The past winter in California has been one of unusual severity. Untold suffering has been experienced through all sections of the mines. Through the fall, provisions were enormously high which prevented supplies going forward, and the early rains having made the roads impassable, famine with all its frightful attendants soon became a reality. In many places where no access could be had on account of the depth of the snow, acts of heroism and self sacrafice, of devotion, of the strong to the helpless have been witnessed in the desolate Kanyons of the Navada Mountains which are not surpassed by the historic records of any age. Picture to your mind a populous village nearly buried in the snow; mountains reach above the clouds and surrounded it on all sides; a number of care and toil worn men have met in anxious consultation; it is ascertained that the whole amount of food in the village is insufficient to sustain its present population until relief can be obtained: One proposes that the able bodied should leave; no one opposes; they deposit what little stores they have with the aged and the invalid; they confide the care of their wives and little ones to the feeble; the pallid cheek, the anxious eye, the throbbing heart tell of emotions which the speechless tongue cannot find words for; forth they go to tread the pathless mountains; onward they press, their forms are lost sight of in the dark wings of the storm; onward they toil shivering in the coldest breath of winter; how it howls on the high glazier crest, it sweeps with blinding fury round the cliff from which the avalanche is thundered to the low chasm; onward they press, the strong sustaining the weak; night shuts in, black, dismal, desolate; some are missing—they have stoped to rest, when the premonitions of death hy freezing come on like a peaceful dream, (I have once in my life experienced them myself to the point of insensibility), a slight chill, a folding of the arms, a pressure of the lips, a feeling of coldness about the heart, not painful, but soothing, a fixed gaze of the eye, a dreamy wandering of the mind, shadows of midsummer, gleams of firesides, and homestead hearths come lazily into the brain; and they sleep! (How statue like and as of marble is such a death).

With the return of spring comes cessation of storm and flood, and miners can again resume their labors from which they have been driven during the winter. Without exaggeration, they are more generally successful now than any previous season since the gold discovery. Improved modes of washing are constantly being introduced and miners are becoming satisfied that success does not so much depend on luck as on constant application and economy. Ever since the working of the mines there has been felt an urgent necessity for legislative action on the part of Congress with regard to the mineral lands of California. Many of our difficulties grow ott of the uncertainty of what will be the final disposition of these lands. Capital, or associated operative labor, is unwilling to commence enterprise looking for permanancy so long as matters remain in their present unsettled condition and to this can be attributed the transitory character of our mining population. The subject of mineral lands in this country is surrounded with immeasurable difficulties and a delay in action by Congress only renders the matter more intricate. Sagacious and well informed miners foresee much future trouble growing out of any action Congress may take as experience thus foreshows that gross ignorance of California and its wants have marked the actions of the U. S. Government when legislating for California.—The land commission for settling land claims between the U. S. and individuals holding under Mexican grants has made sweeping discoveries in favor of about all such individual claims. On much of this land there are large numbers of "settlers" who contend they have preemption rights and that hy right it is U. S. land. Conflicts between claimants under Mexican grants and "squatters" are frequent and sanguinary. Audacious schemes of public robery are openly espoused by the executive and legislative departments of our state government and there is no scheme so vile but it meets ready countenance from the beech and bar. It is a matter of record that in many of the large land claims which have been settled Judges and Lawyers are the fortunate possessors.

Imbecile as has been the action of the U. S. government in not building Light houses to protect our commerce the important trade of San Francisco, Domestic and Foreign, has grown up in four years to be greator in value than that of any other port in the U. S. excep... Neither will it decline ... wicked legislation and o... ple composed mainly of the young and ardent which surmounts all obstacles. Our mines are inexhaustible, our streams swarm with fish, the whaling business opens at our gates and is attracting enterprise and capital. But it is to her agricultural and grazing interests to which California will he the most indebted for permanet prosperity and wealth. At this moment where I write my eyes gaze upon the most capacious harbor in the world and a little beyond its forest of masts. My vision never tires with Contra Costa, its green hill sides dotted with herds, and vallies and plains waving with wheat already yellowing with the promise of plenteous harvest.

Very truly yours,

W. F.

The boats.—The States has hauled off for repairs and to await circumstances.—At present there is a prospect of strong rivalry between the different lines, which may result in an open rupture. The Rutland and Burlington Rail Road ticket from Port Kent to Troy for $2,25 and to N. Y. for $4,50. Cheap enough, but it may be less.

The America, Capt. O. Grady, left her moorings on Tuesday. We understand she is fitted up in the most beautiful manner, and we shall improve the first opportunity to congratulate the "Capt'n" in person, on his "reward of merit."

THE N. Y. SENATE.—Paragraphs like the following are going the rounds of the whig press:

☞ Senator Smith having accepted the office of Collector at Champlain, and Senator McMurray having determined on a visit to Europe—the Whigs will have a majority in the Senate at the Extra Session.

According to our information, Senator Smith has not resigned, and will not enter upon the duties of collector till after the extra session, and Senator McMurray has paired off with whig. So the Senate will remain a tie. So we are informed by "good authority."

Hunts Merchants Magazine.—The number for April presents the following leading articles. 'The manufacturers of Paris'—'The sea and the circulation of its waters'—'The trade and Commerce of St. Louis in 1852'—'The Law of Bankrupcy'—'Wisconsin: its resources, condition and prospects'—'The moral benefits of slavery'—'The true merchant'—'Journal of mercantile law'—'Commercial and chronicle Review'—'Commercial statistics'—'Jour. of Banking, Currency and Fire insurance'—'Commercial regulations'—'Nautical Intelligence'—'Statistics of Rail Roads, Canals, Steamboats, population, manufacturers, &c., &.

Arthors Home Magazine.—The May number is received, and presents a large, and pleasing variety of reading matter.—'Life's Sunbeams,' 'Mothers, do you sympathise with your children?' 'Man and women,' 'Nursery education,' 'Indian names,' are a few of the interesting titles. T. S. Arthur & Co. 107 walnut St. Philadelphia. Terms, 1 copy $2, 2 copies $3, 3 do. $4, 4 do. $5, 8 do. $10, 12 do. $16.

Putnams Monthly.—The number for May was received some days ago. Its leading article is 'Old Ironsides,' by Cooper, a piece of naval biography and the last literary work of the great novelist. His name is a sufficient recomendation of its interest. We notice also the following attractive articles—'The student life of Daniel Webster,' 'Reminiscences of Honolulu,' 'Alison's Histories' &c., &c. Putman & Co., 10 Park Place, N. Y.

Blackwood for April presents the following inviting 'contents'—'Temperance and tetotal societies'—'John Rintoul, or the fragment of the wreck, part 2,'—'A modern french comedy'—'Lombardy and its irrigation'—'Lady Lee's widowhood, part 4'—'Twenty years in the Philippine Islands'—'Hints for legislation.'

Correction.—Mr. E. Kingsland was not the author of the artiole in our last paper signed "Anti-Monopoly," and had nothing to do with its publication. This statement is proper to correct misapprehensions on the part of Col. Barton and others.

New-York Tribune.

The New York Daily Tribune, having completed the twelfth year of its existence, on the 9th instant, signalized its enterance to its teens by an enlargement of its borders adding fully one third to its area, and which will require us henceforth to pay more for the white paper on which it is printed than all we receive from its subscribers. And, ample as our income has been, (though ess ample than it has been currectly reported,) our expenditures for the next year must be larger than our annual income has ever yet been.

We have taken this important step not without reluctance, but upon the maturest consideration. There are thirteen of us concerned in the Tribune establishment as proprietors, with one hundred and seventy more decidedly employed on the paper—all to be subsisted out of its current income—and this enlargement adds some $50,000 per annum to our expenses without necessarily increasing our receipts. Yet we encounter so many complaints of 'small type' 'too fine print,' 'bad for the eyes,' &c., that we have resolved to risk our all on the enterprise of making a paper which will satisfy many thousands who have hitherto stood aloof, and so enlarge our Subscription and Advertising as to secure us a reward for our exertions in the future equal to that we have enjoyed in the past. If we can add one-fourth to our reading matter, and present the whole in fair, clear type of good size, we believe we may nearly double our circulation; and this, though of no direct advantage to us, secures such an increase of our Advertising as will leave us nothing to desire.

We are confessedly ambitious to make The Tribune the leading journal of America, and have dared and done somewhat to that end.—Yet our readers will judge whether we have or have not sacrificed Truth to Popularity—whether we have or have not preferred the Majority to the Right. Our journal has never been a favorite in haunts of evil resort in our City or elsewhere—nor has it pandered to the prejudices and supposed interests of the Mercantile class; whose patronage is the main source of profit to daily newspapers in every great city. Many friends have been repelled by our ardent aspirations for a truer and juster Social Order, wherein there shall be Work secured to All and living in sumptuous idleness possible to None. Some have found or formed Theological pretexts for quitting us; many more have been alienated by our determined advocacy of the Maine Law. For Temperance in the abstract they have great respect; but to any adequate effort to suppress that which they admit to be the greatest Social evil of our time, they are resolutely hostile or frigidly indifferent. And thus with our undistinguished and earnest aversion to Human Bondage and sympathy with every effort that seems calculated to hasten its downfall: It has undoubtedly deprived us of many patrons while it has not secured us the support of those with whom Abolition is the all-engrossing idea and the impulse of all moral and political exertion. On this and other questions of Reform, we have aimed to hold that course which should most effectually prepare for the ripened action of the Future without ignoring the just claims of the Present, and serve the cause of Eternal Right without cutting ourselves off from all sympathy or contact with the men of To-Day.

It will be noticed that we have increased the width, not the number, of our columns.—A wide column is more agreeable to the eye and renders advertisements more conspicuous than a narrow one. In this we copy the great London journals, which The Tribune will henceforth closely parallel in size and general aspect. True, we cannot afford to use such paper on a Daily sold for two cents as they do on theirs which sell for ten cents, (5d) but we trust our readers will have no reason to complain, even on this head.

We are quite aware that the Tribune has not attained perfection in any department; much less in all. Each step forward but widens the area of prospective improvement that opens before us:

'Hills peep o'er hills and Alps on Alps arise;'

but those who remember what our paper was on its first issue, and contrast that with the sheet we now proffer, will, we trust find in the past ample assurance that we shall not be inactive or careless in the future.

Our Foreign Correspondence—which we are willing to compare with that of any other American journal—we have not hitherto been able to print so promtly nor so conspicuously as was desirable. Hereafter, we hope to present each letter on the first or at furthest the second morning after its reception and in such type as will be abundantly readable. We know there are many among our readers to whom this announcement will give satisfaction.

—The Semi Weekly Trebune, was enlarged to the new size of the Daily, and we urge our Country friends who have no daily mail, or think they cannot afford a Daily paper, to give this an examination. We always study to condense the largest possible amount of useful and interesting matter into our Weekly; yet it is physically impossible that we should print there even one third of our letters from Eupope, Asia Minor, India, California, Mexico, Central America, &c. &c. But all these are given in our Semi Weekly. There is not another paper issued in the world which contains so large an amount of mainly original reading for so small a sum: and we trust that, since Postage has been reduced to a mere bagatelle, there are thousands of our friends who have hitherto taken the Weekly, who will henceforth take the Semi-Weekly. We will send a specimen to any one who, without subjecting us to expense, shall see fit to apply for it.

The Weekly Tribune will likewise be enlarged to the new size of the Daily in September next, at the close of its current volume. It will then be the largest Weekly afforded to Clubs for $1 per annum in the world, and its white paper will cost us nearly or quite all that we receive from Club Subscribers. We shall hope to make it pay by appropriating a small part of the new space we thus create to Advertisements, which, until such enlargement, we must continue to keep within the narrowest limits. It is issued every Thursday morning, and contains most of the matter of the Daily, with more summary accounts of such Events and Proceedings as cannot be published in full. We mean that no Weekly shall surpass this in giving a full, graphic, and faithful account of what the World is Doing, whereof it is Thinking, and how it is Progressing.

—Generous friends through past trials! we shall still need and be grateful for the kind interest you have steadfastly evinced in our welfare and progress—for we have many and bitter enemies whom we do not hope to conciliate, and the class interests by which a journal can be most profited generally regard our views as in conflict with their ends. Nay: as we hope to be wiser next year than we were last, and to set forth truths as we shall appreciate them, that we may not even yet clearly apprehend, it is very possible that we may hereafter alienate some who have hitherto stood by and sustained us. We make no claim on your beneficence—we neither need nor desire charity—but if you believe that Truth can be diffused and Human Good promoted by increasing the number of our readers or your own interests by swelling the quite respectable list of our advertisers, there was never a fitter time than is the present for such evidence of your kind consideration.

"VARIETY THE SPICE OF LIFE."

BY EMILY ARNOLD.

"This delicious weather
With all its melting beauty
Its sky of calm its breath of balm
Makes me forget my duty."

This is a beautiful day and I am ready to exclaim? "away with books," when recollecting that it should ever be my motto, "Tasks first, pleasure afterwards." I have seated myself beside an open window, to try and accomplish what should be first in the mind of every scholar. But then, truant eyes will wander from dull problems out into the beautiful sunshine, and still more truant mind is thinking perhaps that "on the south slope hill" just over the way, flowers may be peeping from under bright leaves; if so, how pleasant it would be to stroll that way, of a bright morning.

The birds too as they gaily carol, how sweet seem their songs when contrasted with the dull chirp of the snow bird, more lonely than silence, which has greeted our ears through a long winter.

It is ever thus. Were there no changes of season the dull monotonous sound would be exceedingly tiresome. Were we to have only bright and sunny days we should be weary of their very brightness. But in this as in all the works of nature we behold the wisdom of God, and we turn with a heart of gratitude from winter with his northern blast to love the genial spring with all the pleasure which follow in her train. The calm sky, the warbling brooks, the song of birds and the beautiful flowers, all seem brighter from the contrast. School days like sunshiny ones grow wearisome, and teachers and scholars are awating with anxious hearts the close of the term which will leave them for a time free as the birds, and brooks to stroll wherever fancy may lead them. But at the commencement of a new term we shall turn again to these halls with light and merry hearts, forgetting that we were tired of books.

LAKE CHAMPLAIN, FROM PORT DOUGLASS.

WILLIAM R. WALPOLE.

Not a cloud skims the horizon, scarce a ripple breaks the glassy surface of the lake, in which the inimitable blue of the sky is rendered still more beautiful, hy the tinge of purple and gold which is given to it by the last rays of the setting sun. This lovely sheet of water here spreads out before the eye to a width of about ten miles; studded with numerous green islands like emeralds on the bosom of a fairy. Now and then a white winged sail sparkles in the distance. The windows of Burlington glisten in the sunlight like so many diamonds. The Green mountains of Vermont almost always partially obscured by the mist which surrounds them are visible in the distance. But the shadows of the hills and trees lengthen until they are no longer to be seen.—The last rays are gone, and the moon rises slowly leaving a broad silver pathway over the waters. But as daylight vanishes, all nature sinks to rest, except the murmuring of the waves as they dash gently upon the shore.

MORSE'S

BOOKS! BOOKS!

A HISTORY of the world, Comprising a general History. Both ancient and modern of all the principal nations on the Globe, to which is added a Complete History of the United States to the present time, including the Late War with Mexico, California, &c.,

This work is designed to supply the wants of the present age. It embraces every thing compatible with its scope, down to the last important event in the History of our country. In short, while the unimportant has been left out, nothing essential has been omitted.

It is in two large octavo volumes, which contain upwards of 1500 pages, and illustrated with about Forty Engravings, executed in the most modern style, after authentic pictures, together with a Chart of the Flags of the various Nations, a View of the city of San Francisco, and of the Crystal Palace each appropriately colored, and bound in embossed and gilt leather binding, with marble edges.

The following are a few of the numerous recommendations the work has received.

From the Worcester (Mass.) Christian Citizen.

With pleasure we announce the appearance of this splendid work, the need of which has long been felt both by the student and general reader.

The author has fully explored the field of history, and while he has culled its most interesting and important facts, has left its rubbish;—thus embodying in these beautiful volumes what might not inappropriately be termed the gems of history.

To the people of this country this work is peculiarly adapted, and every lover of his native land should well consult the History of the Nations, whose brilliant history is so accurately recorded by the pen of Mr. Inman.

From Prof. Emerson of Andover (Mass.) Seminary.

I have examined the "History of the World," and think it particularly valuable especially for such as have not access to more extended works of history; and even to those who have such works, it will often be found an important help, as it brings down the history of the countries to the present time. RALPH EMERSON.

From the Franklin Democrat, (Ind.)

In these volumes we have a correct account of the origin and formation of the principal Empires, Kingdoms, and States of the Globe; and also their connected history down to the present time, even giving a complete history of California, the death of our late President Taylor, &c., which makes it one of the most interesting histories ever offered to the public. It is sold at a price that will bring it within the reach of all.

J. P. ALLEN, agent for Essex Co. having canvassed the Western towns, will have the pleasure to present the claims of this book to the people of the lake towns, in the course of the next few days. 468tf

SOLD OUT!

THE subscribers have made arrangements to devote their whole time to those having unsettled accounts with them, till all such acts are settled and paid. Having sold out our entire stock of goods and wishing to make preparations for commencing an entirely new business, we shall expect and enforce the immediate settlement of all our outstanding accounts. WAR DECLARED

—BETWEEN—

France and England!!!

WOULD not create as great a sensation among the inhabitants of this portion of country as the proclamation of war on high prices by CARDWELL in the sale of

Ready-Made Clothing.

That war declared Oct. 1st, 1851, still rages with unabating and increasing fury; but in its progress its path is not marked with bloodshed, carnage and desolation as the wars of one Nation against another; on the other hand its fruits are smiling faces (NOT OF OTHER DEALERS) and glad hearts; go ask the honest and hardy inhabitants of our pine clad hills, and our pleasant valleys, where he buys his CLOTHING, and he will answer you with a smile,

WHY AT CARDWELL'S, OF COURSE!

That is the place where you can obtain the latest styles, a genteel fit, and well made suit of clothes for less money than at any other Store in northern New York.

Why, says one man, I have saved money enough by purchasing my Clothing this Fall at Ploughs—Prouty & Mear's centre draught.

These ploughs have obtained a celebrity unparalleled, having taken the first premiums in this country and at the World's Fair in London. We have also Starbuck's and Tabor's celebrated Ploughs.

Our stock of Ploughs comprise a great variety of patterns and different sizes, calculated for sward and stubble land, wet meadows and recently drained swamps, where roots abound—among which also are the deep-breaking up flat-furrow, lap-furrow, self-sharpening, side-hill, double-mould-board, sub soil; &c., &c.

Harrows—triangular, square, Gedde's and Scotch.

Hay, Straw and Corn Stalk Cutters, either by hand or horse power; spiral, straight or circular knives.

Cultivators—of different kinds, side tooth and cast iron.

Corn Shellers—a variety of patterns. Will shell from 5 to 100 bushels of corn per hour.

Fan Mills and Grain Crades—Grant, unrivalled. We confidently recommend them as the best in use.

Seed Sowers—Batchelder's & Emery's and other kinds.

Vegetable Cutters—for turnips and other roots.

Horse Powers, Threshers, Winnowers and Separators—Wheeler's Patent Railway Chain Horse Power This Power, both single and double-geared, for one or two horses, has never been equalled for lightness in running, strength, durability and economy. The Thresher and Separator are too widely and favorably known to need our commendation. The combined Thresher and Winnower, (which is a new invention of last year) has not been so generally introduced. All who have used it express the highest approbation of its merits. We entertain no doubt that it is the most perfect, compact, and efficient machine now in use for threshing and winnowing grain, as it certainly is by far the cheapest and most economical.

or be returned after a reasonable trial.

Saw Mill—Lawrence, used for sawing wood for locomotives on Railways, or by farmers for cutting stove feet. With a one horse power it will cut 10 to 15 cords of wood twice in two per day.

AGRICULTURAL & HORTICULTURAL TOOLS AND IMPLEMENTS.

A great variety and extensive assortment, such as Hoes, Shovels, Spades Rakes Manure and Hay Forks, Scythes, Snaths, Cattle Ties, Draft, Halter and Trace Chains, Garden Syringes, Pruning Saws, Pruning and Budding Knives, Garden Shears and Twig Cutters, Grindstones, Patent Grindstone fixtures, rollers, barn door rolls, &c., &c.

Grain, Field, Garden and Flower Seeds.—We are prepared to furnish Herds Grass, Red Top, Lucerne, White Dutch, Southern, Western and Northern Clover Seed, Beet, Turnip, Onion and Carrot Seed, at Wholesale and Retail at the lowest market prices.

We have by far the largest and most complete assortment of Agricultural Implements Machines, Field and Garden Seeds to be found in the State, which we offer at our new and spacious Ware-Rooms to Farmers and Dealers on terms the most liberal. We are also Commission Merchants and Who esale and Retail Dealers in heavy and shelf

HARDWARE,

Saddlery, Axles, Springs, Mechanic's Tools, House Trimmings and Furnishing Goods, Cutlery, Cross Cut, Milland Circular Saws, Paints, Oils, Bird Cages, etc., etc., etc.

As agents of Messrs. D. Prouty & Co., Boston, Wheeler, Millick & Co., Albany, J. S. Grant & Co., Troy, and others we can fill orders for Plows, Horse Powers, Threshers Fan Mills, Straw Cutters, &c., at manufacturers prices. A liberal discount made to Dealers.

Private Diseases and their Antidote.

DR LISPENARD, author of the Marriage Guide, or Private Medical Treatise, Professor of Diseases of Women and Children, and Licentiate of the College of Physicians and Surgeons of the United States University, &c., &c, continues as heretofore to be confidentially and successfully consulted on all forms and variety of

PRIVATE DISEASES,

at his old quarters No 5 Beaver-street, ALBANY, N. Y.

The great success attending the use of Doctor L.'s remedies in secret diseases, and the many remarkable cures daily effected by him in recent as wld lingering attacks, is conclusive evidence that the well

SICK AND UNFORTUNATE

can do no better than consult the Doctor, whose whole time is devoted to the exclusive treatment of this much neglected branch of practice.

LOOK AT THIS.

Dr. Lispenard cures recent cases of disease in from three to six days, and chronic or long standing diseases in a very short period of time, without the use of Mercury, without the loss of time, change of diet, or detention from

DAILY EMPLOYMENT.

In Syphillis, Gonorrhœa, Gleet, Strictures, Enlargement of the Testicles and Cords, Bubo, Chancres Pimples and Scaly Eruptions, Sore Throats and Noses, Chancres on the tongue, tender skin bones, and diseases of the skin, and impure blood. Dr. Lispenard's remedies are above all praise, and frequently cure when all others had failed

EVEN TO RELIEVE.

More than 5,000 patients have during the past year experienced the benefit of the Doctor's extraordinary skill in treating secret diseases—among which, diseases of the bladder and kidneys have formed a goodly proportion.

YOUNG MEN.

who by indulging in secret habits have injured their health and prostrated their intellectual faculties, and thereby deprived themselves of the pleasure of married life, should consult Dr. Lispenard without a moment's delay. Hundreds have been restored to health, society and friends, under my peculiar mode of treatment, although vast sums of money had been sacrificed without any benefit. My remedy for this disease is pleasant to take, has no offensive smell and

CURES WITHOUT FAIL.

☞ Persons so unfortunate as to be diseased, although they may have visited half a dozen Doctors, and had medicine sent them a dozen times with no benefit, would exhibit wisdom by making their case known to that FRIEND OF THE SICK, Dr. Lispenard, who never charges for advice and warrants all his cures. The sick are often at a loss where to apply for relief, AND TIS NO WONDER, as hundreds stand ready to plunder the unfortunate victim of PRIVATE DISEASE, or secret habits, without one thought for his life and health. All thus deceived will find a friend, and moderate charges, in consulting the Doctor who uses no MERCURY and cures every time.

N. B.—Persons from a distance when visiting the city in search of a physician and friend, will be fortunate if they succeed in escaping the many dens of imposition, conducted by unprincipled men, destitute of character knowledge or name, who fleece the unfortunate victim of disease of his hard earned money, and his remaining health. Patients who have no acquaintance in the city should make inquiry of some respectable citizen, or the editor or proprietor of any of the city papers, to ascertain who is the most reliable physician to apply to.

FEMALE DISEASES.

Dr. Lispenard, from an experience seldom or never enjoyed by any other medical man, is enable to treat, with every hope of success, all and every variety of Female Complaints—with safe and pleasant remedies—and has without doubt cured within the past five years more than 3000 females afflicted with diseases of the Bladder, Womb, &c. &c. Ladies afflicted with suppression or stoppage of their monthly turns, will recollect that Dr. Lispenard is still the sole American agent for.

DR. VICHOI'S

FEMALE MONTHKY PILLS.

The unprecedented sale of more than 15,000 boxes of these excellent Pills, and the good results which always follow their use, is conclusive evidence of their utility in stoppages, &c. Caution—Married Ladies in certain delicate situations should not use them—for reasons see directions with each box. Price $1. Sent by mail to all parts of the world.

Married Persons and those about to Marry, should enclose 12½ cents post paid to Dr. Lispenard, and obtain a copy of his Marriage Guide, or Private Treatise, a bewitching little work of nearly 100 pages, illustrated. Every thing that married persons can desire or wish to know is here explained. Persons who from poverty or sickness have no desire to increase their family, will find necessary instruction in the Marriage Guide. One copy 12½ cents; 5 copies 50 cts.; 12 copies $1—mailed free to any part of the world.

N. B.—Patients treated by letter, and medicines sent with full directions for use, to the writer's address. All communications destroyed or returned.

No mercury used in any case, and all cures warranted.

No boys or precocious students allowed: timed persons take notice.

Friends of Dr. L. when recommending patients to our care, will recollect our number, 5 Beaver st., three doors from South Broadway.

SHERIFF SALE.

BY virtue of an execution issued out of the Essex County Court, to me directed and delivered against the personal and real property of Nathaniel Mason, I have seized and taken all the right, title, and interest which the said Nathaniel Mason had on the eleventh day of January, 1853, or at any time thereafter, in and to the following described real estate, to wit:—All those certain pieces of land situate in the town of Willsboro, in Essex County and being part of a lot of land in Peru Bay Tract, and bounded and described as follows:—

Beginning at a stake in centre of the highway where a spruce tree formerly stood in the South line of lot Number (62) sixty-two of the aforesaid tract, from thence West on the said South line of lot No. sixty two thirty five chains and eighty one links, thence North partly on the line of a piece of land formerly owned by William S. Flack, seven chains and sixteen links, thence east thirty four chains and seventy five links and from thence Southerly to the place of beginning, containing thirty five acres of land, more or less.

Also, one other piece of land being a part of lot Number thirteen Peru Bay tract commonly called the Thompson lot, and bounded as follows, to wit:—Beginning at at a stake in the centre of the highway where a Spruce tree formerly stood in the South line of lot sixty two of the aforesaid tract and from thence South nineteen degrees and thirty minutes east, fourteen chains and six links to a stake and stones on the east branch of a small stream of water thence South forty two degrees west, forty one links to a hemlock stump, thence North 53° west five chains and seventy links to a stake thence North forty six degrees West thirteen chains and fifty links to the South line of lot Number sixty two in a small brook, from thence to the place of beginning, containing nine acres and seventy two rods of land, more or less, the two lots above described being the same lots described in two Deeds of conveyance executed by Robert Flack and Sarah his wife to Lawrence Edwards, one Dated January 26, 1842, and the other dated May 20th 1843.

Also, one other piece of land in said town of Willsboro, being a part of Lot Number (63) in said Peru Bay tract and commencing on the North line of lot Number 62, in said tract in the centre of the Highway, which runs through said lot 62, thence North sufficient distance to make fifty acres by coming due east to the east line of said lot 63, thence around to the place of beginning, so as to make the aforesaid number of fifty acres from the north side of said lot (63.)

Which said real estate I shall expose for sale at public vendue at the Inn of David Judd in the town of Elizabethtown, in said county of Essex on the 13th day of June next at 10 o'clock, in the forenoon.

Dated, Keeseville February 26th, 1853.

MORTGAGE SALE

DEFAULT has been made in the payment of the debt secured by a certain mortgage, dated the 21st day of October, 1847, executed by William Galusha and Sophia, his wife, then of Wilmington, in the County of Essex, State of N. Y., to Uriah D. Mibills of Keene, in the county and state aforesaid, and recorded in the office of the clerk of Essex county, in volume N. of Mortgages, pages 283 and 284, on the 28th day of December, 1847, at nine o'clock, A. M. Said mortgage was duly assigned by said Mibills to Willard Bell, January 14th, 1848, and by said Bell duly assigned to Reuben Patridge, January 30, 1849, and by said Patridge duly assigned to M. Finch, Amos Avery and Charles Malbone, assignees of Reuben Sanford, January 1st, 1849, who are now the owners of said mortgage. There is claimed to be due on said mortgage, at the time of the first publication of this notice, the sum of $167.93. Now therefore, notice is hereby given that the premises described in said mortgage. will, by virtue of a power of sale contained in said mortgage, and pursuant to the statute in such case made and provided, be sold at public auction, at the Adirondac Hotel, in Keeseville, in said county, on the 8th day of June next, at 1 o'clock, P. M.

Said mortgaged premises are described in said mortgage as follows: All that certain piece or parcel of land situate in the town of Wilmington, in the county of Essex, being a part of lot No 34, of Mallory's grant, bounded as follows: beginning at a stake and stones standing on the North line of the Sampson lot, 141 rods from the centre of the road leading from the Carpenter house to Blish and Burdick's forge. being the South-West corner of Ephraim French's land, and running East on said line to the West line of said grant, thence North on the line of said grant to the centre of the road leading from Sanford's to St. Armand, thence running Easterly in the centre of said road to a stake and stones, being the North-West corner of a piece of land occupied by David Hatch, thence South 42 degrees, West six rods to the South bank of Mill Brook. thence Easterly along the South bank of said brook 30 rods to a stake and stones being the South-East corner of said Hatch lot, thence North 35 degrees East to the centre of said road, thence Easterly in the centre of said road to the North-West corner of the Carpenter lot, thence South on the line of said Carpenter lot to the South-west corner of said lot, thence East on the line of said lot to the brook, thence up the brook in the centre thereof to a point ten rods below the sawmill, and thence on the South bank of said brook on the line of Ephraim French's lot to the North-west corner thereof, thence South 43 degrees west on the line of said French's lot 126 rods to the place of beginning, containing seventy-five acres, be the same more or less.

At a Surrogates Court, held at the County Judges office in Elizabethtown, in and for the County of Essex, on the 21st day of March, A. D., 1853.

Present: J. E. McVINE, Essex County Judge.

In the matter of the application of Emeline H. Morhous & Abram Weldin, administrator and administratrix, &c. of Rensselaer Morhous, deceased, intestate, for authority to mortgage, lease or sell the Real Estate of the said intestate for the payment of his debts.

Whereas on the petition and application of Emeline H. Morhous, the administratrix, and Abram Weldin, one of the administrators of the goods, &c., of Rensselaer Morhous, late of Willsboro, in the county of Essex, deceased, it has been made satisfactorily to appear to the said County Judge and Surrogate, that the personal estate of the said deceased will be insufficient to pay his debts.

It is therefore ordered, that all persons interested in the estate of the said Rensselear Morhous, deceased, be directed to appear before the said county Judge and Surrogate, at his office in the town of Elizabethtown, in said county, on the 9th day of May next, at 10 o'clock in the forenoon of that day, to show cause why authority should not be given to the said administrators to mortgage, lease or sell so much of the real estate of the said deceased as shall be necessary to pay his debts.

THE WONDER OF THE WORLD.

DEVINES' COMPOUND

PITCH LOZENGE,

A sure and pleasant Remedy for Colds, Coughs, Croup, Whooping Cough, Asthma, and if lungs enough are left to sustain life, A CERTAIN CURE FOR CONSUMPTION, safe for the Infant or the Invalid, in any stage of weakness.

"The statements that consumption cannot be cured, has destroyed more lives than the disease itself.—(Dr. Warren Read the following, which to a candid mind places this "Great Remedy," like Cæsar's wife "above suspicion."

TO THE PUBLIC!

We, the undersigned, citizens of Lee, Mass., are acquainted with Mr. Devines, the proprietor and Manufacturer of Devines' Compound Pitch Lozenge and from what we know of it ourselves and have learned from others of its beneficial effects, in cases where it has been used, give it as our opinion that it is a valuable remedy in diseases for which it is recommended and is worthy of public confidence. A. G. Hulburt, Leonard Church, F. G. Taylor, Wm. Taylor, E. A. Bliss, S. A. Hulburt, Josephus Crafts, T. P. Eldridge.

If any individual is to be pitied, and needs sympathy, it is the consumptive—always expecting to get well, and yet the painful evidence of decay almost "makes the inner soul shrink with the outer flesh."

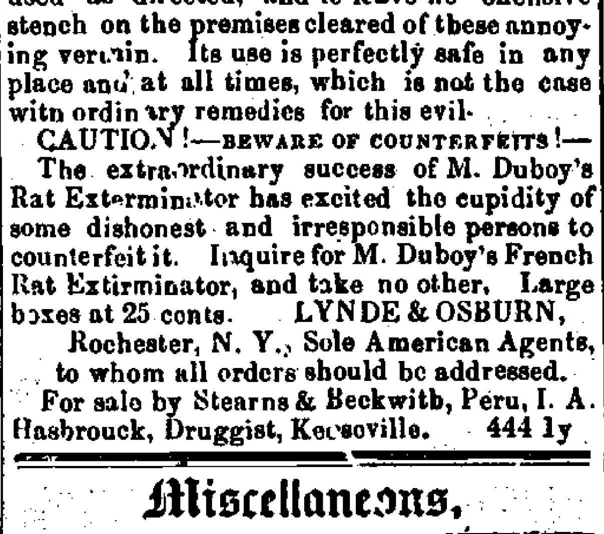
"Some bloom as roses bloom, and live as roses live,
A single morning space !"

While others in more mature life—by some imprudence and a slight cold neglected—in the hectic flush—the painful cough.

"The prints of their departing steps appears."

BUT HE ... Mr. Wm. Devines, the originator and manufacturer of the Pitch Lozenge, under Providence, was raised to perfect health by the use of these Lozenges alone, after he was pronounced by his physician to be almost dying with consumption.

This fact is generally known in Berkshire County and is the neighborhood talk, and wonder in Lee, and in Great Barrington, Mass.



From Dr. Brown, of Lee, Mass.

This certifies that I have made use of Devines' Compound Pitch Lozenge for cold and cough, and found immediate relief. Therefore I would recommend it to the public as being a safe and sovereign remedy. H. C. BROWN.

HOLY LIFE.

The beauty of a holy life constitutes the most eloquent and effective persuasive to religion which one human being can address to another. We have many ways of doing good to our follow creatures, but none so good, so efficacious as leading a virtuous, upright, and well ordered life. There is an energy of moral suasion in a good man's life, passing the highest efforts of the orator's genius. The seen but silent beauty of holiness speaks more eloquently of God and duty than the tongues of men and angels. Let parents remember this. The best inheritance a parent can bequeath to a child is a virtuous example, a legacy of hallowed remomberances and associations.—The beauty of holiness beaming through the life of a loved relative or friend is more effectual to strengthen such as do stand in virtue's ways, and raise up those that are bowed down, than precept, command, entreaty, or warning. Christianity itself, I believe, owes by far the greater part of its moral power, not to the precepts or parables of Christ, but to his own character.—The beauty of that holiness which is enshrined in the four brief biographies of the man of Nazareth, has done more, and will do more to regenerate the world and bring it to an everlasting righteous, than all other agencies put together. It has done more to spread his religion in the world than all that has ever been preached or written on the evidences of Christianity.—Dr. Chalmer.s

A SKETCH.

A mother was kneeling in the deep hush of evening, at the couch of two infants whose rosy arms twined in mutual embrace. A slumber soft as moonlight that fell through the lattice over them, like a silver veil lay on their delicate lips, the soft bright curls that clustered on their pillow, were slightly stirred by their gentle and healthy breathings, and that smile which beams from the pure depth of the fresh glad spirit, yet rests on their lips. The mother looks upon their exceeding beauty with a momentary pride, and then, as she continued to gaze on the lovely slumberers her dark eye deepened with an intense, and unutterable fondness, and a cold shuddering fear came over her, lest those buds of life, so fair, so glowing, might by sudden decay, and gathered back, in their brightness to the dust. And she lifts her voice in prayer, solemnly, passionately, earnestly, that the God of Life would still spare to her those blossoms of love, over whom her soul thus yearned. And as the low breathed accents rose on the still air, a deepened thought came over her, and her spirit went out with her loved and pure ones into the strange wild paths of life, and a strong horror chilled her frame as she beheld mildew and blight settling on the fair and lovely of the earth, and high and rich hearts seathed with desolation and guilty passion. And the prayer that she was breathing grew still more fervent, even to agony, that He who is the fountain of all purity, would preserve those whom He had given her in their perfect innocence, permitting neither shame, nor crime, nor folly to cast a stain on the brightness with which she had received them invested by him as with a mantle.

As the prayer died away in the weakness of the spent spirit, a pale shadowy form stood beside the infant sleepers.

"I am death said the specter," and I come for the babes. I am commissioned to bear them where the perils you deprecate are unknown; where neither stain nor dust, nor shadow, can reach the rejoicing spirit. It is only by yielding them to me, that you can preserve them forever from contamination and decay."

A wild conflict—a struggle as of the soul panting in strong agony, shook the mother's frame, but faith and the love which hath a purer fount than that of earthward passions, triumphed, and she yielded up her babes to the spectar.

"Behold!" said death, as he touched the fair forms, and the beauty of life gave place to a holier and yet deeper holiness, "behold the smile of innocence is now forever sealed. They will waken where there is neither blight nor tempest."

And the benign power, whom we call the Destroyer bore away the now perfect blossoms of immortality to the far off sky,

The Bible.

How comes it that this little volume, composed by humble men, in a rude age, when art and science were but in their childhood, has exerted more influence on the human mind and on the social system than all other books put together?—Whence comes it that this book has achieved such marvellous changes in the opinions of mankind—has banished idol worship—has abolished infanticide—has put down polygamy and divorce—exalted the condition of woman—raised the standard of the public morality—created for families that blessed thing, a christian home—and caused its others triumphs by causing benevolent institutions, open and expansive, to spring up as with the wand of enchantment?—What sort of book is this, that even the winds and waves of human passions obey it? What other engine of social improvement has operated so long, and yet lost none of its virtue? Since it appeared, many boasted plans of amelioration have been tried and failed, many codes of jurisprudence have arisen, and run their course and expired. Empire after empire has been launched upon the tide of time, and gone down, leaving no trace upon the waters. But this book is still going about doing good, leaving society with its holy principles—cheering the tempted—encouraging the penitent—calming the troubled spirit—and smoothing the pillow of death. Can such a book be the offspring of human genius? Does not the vastness of its effects demonstrate the excellency of the power to be of God?

A Truthful Allegory.

A traveller was pursued by an unicorn. In his affright he, and as a falling man caught at whatever was in his way: he caught the branches of a tree. He looked before himself, and saw a fearful precipice. He looked back, and saw the unicorn ready to destroy him. He looked again before, and saw a hideous dragon with jaws gaping to receive him. He looked to the roots of the tree, and saw two rats, one white the other black, gnawing alternately at them. He looked among the branches of the tree, and saw it filled with poisonous asps, ready to sting him; but from their lips dropped honey. Regardless of surrounding danger, he caught the honey, ate it, and perished.

O reader! O man, see here thyself!—The tree is life; the unicorn, death; the precipice, eternity; the dragon, thy destroyer; the rats, day and night, numbering the hours of thy stay on earth; the asps, thy own bad passions; the honey, pleasure, of which thou partakest to thy eternal ruin.

Although people have generally entered upon this part of their "spring's work," we doubt not the following suggestions will be found of advantage.—[Ed. Rep.

A word about Gardening.

How many of our friends have selected their seeds and made all the necessary preperation for gardening?

At first an important consideration in the formation of a kitchen garden is

The Situation.—It is perhaps better, all things considered, that it should have a gentle inclination toward the south east; yet a northern aspect is, for some purposes, perhaps preferable. Some vegetables, such as cauliflower, peas, epinach, &c., yield more abundantly when not exposed to the direct action of the sun.

A moderate elevation is preferable to either hill or valley. Convenience of access should also be duly considered. But the most important matter, in selecting a location, is as to Soil.—This should be rich sandy loam. A depth of two or three feet is desirable—If this cannot be obtained, and a stiff clay or gravel soil is selected, see to it that it is corrected by a judicious admixture of fine loam. A sandy soil is improved by the addition of lime, plaster, ashes and vegetable manure; while a stiff clay soil demands such vegetable and animal manure as tends to the seperation of its particles. Hence the necessity of litter, and other animal and vegetable manures. Lime and plaster also operate favorably, and charcoal is esteemed by many as a very fine fertilizer. It has the power of absorbing various gases from the atmosphere and readily yields them to growing plants But remember that manure of some kind is essential to the garden; with it the gardener can do every thing; without it nothing.

Depth and Mellowness of the Soil.—This must be secured; it is the secret of all successful gardening. The roots of garden plants extend themselves to a great depth in the soil in search of nourishment, Their delicate horns have been traced to the depth of several feet. Downing remarks;—"I have seen the roots of strawberries extend five feet down in rich, deep soil, and these plants bore a crop of fruit five times as large; and twice as handsome and good as the common product of a soil one font deep."

A deep loam has other advantages. It not only permits the escape of water after a heavy rain, but by its capillary attraction absorbs and therefore furnishes a supply of moisture during a protracted drought. In fact, the only soil suitable for the garden, is a deep mellow loam. A cold clay soil, or a rich loam a few inches in depth, resting upon a clay substratum, is not worth the trouble and expense of cultivation.

Water.—In the selection for a garden, it is well to have reference to water. An abundant supply of water is absolutely necessary. Loudon remarks that "Many kitchen crops are lost or produced of very inferior quality for want of watering. Lettuce and cabbage are often stringy; turnips and radishes do not swell; onions decay; cauliflowers die off; and in dry seasons become stinted or covered with insects, even in rich deep soils. Copious watering in the evening, during the dry seasons, would produce that fullness and succullency which we find in the vegetables in the Low Countries, in the Marsh gardens at Paris, and in England at the beginning and latter end of the season."

Selection of Seeds.—After you have gone to the expense and trouble of laying out and preparing your garden, be careful in the selection of the choicest seeds.—Many of the seeds annually offered for sale are worthless; they are either of an inferior variety, or have lost their vitality.—This is exceedingly vexatious to the gardener, and we know of no way of avoiding it but by knowing from whom you purchase your seeds. Possibly an enterprizing neighbor, or regular seedsman, may be able to supply you. If not, you are liable to be deceived.

Garden Tools.—We need scarcely remind the reader that the gradener should be well provided with the implements of his art. Of these, the spade, the hoe and rake are indispensible. Others will be found valuable assistants, and in their selection, much discrimination should be exercised. And see to it that they are kept in a conspicuous position, and at the same time bright and clean.—Ohio Cultivator.

Farmers should not forget their Gardens as a great deal of family comfort and saving of expense depend upon a well cultivated and a neat garden. They should place in their gardens, for the purpose of cleaning up, digging, and preparing the beds for sowing and planting, their best hand, and not entail this labor upon the female members of your family or young boys, as is too frequently the case. They should be of good size—say no less than half an acre, and if a whole acre the better, as it will then admit of grass plats for drying and bleaching cloths, &c.—for the growing of choice fruit, both large and small, and for other purposes. When we see a neat, well arranged yard and garden connected with the farmer's residence, we have the best evidence of the intelligence, good taste and comfort of the family, and it invariably challenges our respect for the occupants.

History of Lake Champlain,

From its first exploration by the French, in 1609, to the close of the year 1814. By Peter S. Pylmer.

The first part of this work from the pen of our fellow-townsman, P. S. Palmer, Esq., has just been laid on our table.—Our emotions on examining it are those of suprise and pleasure—suprise, that such a work should have been written and published in Plattsburgh; and pleasure, derived from porsuing the graphic narrative here given of the interesting events connected with the history of our beautiful lake, from its discovery by Champlain in 1609, down to the commencement of the American Revolution.

In an introductory chapter, the author, after giving a general description of the lake, with its islands, bays, rivers and surrounding scenery, thus announces the object and scope of the book:

"In the following chapter I propose to collect my facts connected with the history of Lake Champlain. No part of the United States is more interesting from its historic incidents. Every bay and island of the lake and nearly every foot of its shore has been the scene of some war-like movement—the midnight forray of the predatory savage, the bloody scout of frontier settlers, the rendezvous of armed bands or the conflict of contending armies. These stirring incidents extend in tradition far beyond the first discovery of the lake, and are brought down, by scattered and unconnected history, in almost uninterrupted series of strifes and contentions, to the close of the war of 1812."

Those who are acquainted with Mr. Palmer need no assurances from us of the qualifications he possesses for the task he has undertaken, and which he has thus far successfully accomplished. To a thorough knowledge of the subject, he unites habits of accuracy and industry, which eminently qualify him to complete the work in a manner alike worthy of the subject and creditable to himself.

We have long felt the want of a connected history of the events which have transpired on this border, since it was first visited by civilized man, and especially of that portion of them which occurred prior to the Revolution. Hitherto, we have had to grope after them amid musty provincial records and documents, where they lie scattered through whole acres of typography. We rejoice that this want is not to be so well supplied.

The general reader has always been more or less perplexed with the mistakes and inaccuracies of historians; and we venture to say that the existing histories of those stirring events which occurred upon our Lake and its borders during the war of Revolution, and even during the war of 1812, are not entirely and in all respects reliable. They are frequently confused and sometimes almost unintelligible, in consequence of the want of accurate local knowledge on the part of the writers.—Even Cooper's Naval History is not exempt from errors. From the opportunities enjoyed by our author we are led to expect a faithful narrative of those great achievements of our fathers, which contributed so much to the glory of their arms, and of which their descendants, through all coming generations, will have just reason to be proud.

To give our readers some idea of the style of the work, we extract the following:

"Lake Champlain is situate on the western side of a valley lying between the Clinton Mountains in New York and the Green Mountains of Vermont. This valley is from one to thirty miles in width and about one hundred and eighty miles in length, north and south. Its gratest depression has been found to be between Westport, Burlington and Port Kent. Between Burlington and Port Kent the water of the lake is two hundred and eighty-two feet in depth. Professor Emmons found the depth, four miles north of Westport, to be three hundred feet, and he was told that soundings of six hundred feet had been made in other places in that part of the lake. The surface of the lake is ninety-three feet above tide, and, if Professor Emmons was not misinformed, its bottom at this last point is at least five hundred feet below the level of the ocean. It is the popular opinion that the waters of the lake are gradually subsiding, but I judge this to be a mistake for the reason that soundings made seventy-five years ago do not differ materially from those of the present day. The waters in the bays and along the shores is not as deep as it was formerly, from the washing of the banks and the deposit of earth [illegible] and rubbish brought down by [illegible] and rivers, but the surface is high above tide as it was when the lake was first visited by Champlain in 1609. It is evident, however, from an examination of the adjacent shores and rocks, that the lake at one time filled a much larger portion of the valley than it does at present. Geologists suppose this entire valley to have been twice occupied by the ocean—but these speculations are of but little interest to the general reader, who, usually, is satisfied to take things as they have existed for the last five thousand years.

This lake has ever been celebrated for the beauty of its scenery and the bold and imposing configuration of the surrounding country. Upon the eastern side, the valley is wide and fertile, until we pass Mount Independence, going south, when the hills approach the lake, and, in some places, rise abrupt from its shores. On the New York side, the mountains in many places extend to the water's edge, as in the case of the Black Mountains south of Ticonderoga; the Kayaderosseras range which terminates with Bulwagga Mountain near Crown Point; the northern end of the West Moriah range, at Split Rock, and of the Adirondac Mountains at Trembleau Point, near Port Kent. These several ranges run from the lake in a south-westerly direction, increasing in altitude as they recede, and presenting a scene at once bold and beautiful; hill after hill rising gradually above each other until the highest peaks attain an elevation of over five thousand feet.—From the west the snow-crowned rocks of Mt. Marcy, old White Face, and half a dozen other giants among the hills, look down in solemn grandeur on the lake; while, on the east, the eye passes over green fields to trace along the horizon the clear blue outline of Jay's Peak, Mansfield's "Chin" and "Nose," and Camel's Hump, the poetic Lion Couchant of the French."—[Plattsburgh Republican.

We believe this book is for sale at Hasbroucks.—[Ed Rep.

Courage.

We believe men generally to be courageous; there is, to be sure, politic courage and bullheaded courage, artifical and genuine courage. The man who "lets on" he wants to do something desperate—when there is no particular reason for it—merely to look wolfish, may, in case of need, be very much inclined to act sheepish; but, even your bragadocio, when penned up, put to his trumps, is very often found to possess courage in larger doses than himself or anybody else supposed to be in him.

Real courage depends not so much upon refined brains as a healthy state of the nerves. Instinct teaches us to avoid danger, and the nervous system must be in a high state of vitality to permit the will to carry the body straight and unflinchingly up to death.

He surely was a strong-minded as well as healthy-nerved man, who dodged the barbarous tortures of the Indians by a ruse de guerre particularly novel and terrific, to wit:—During the war on the North-Western frontiers, a Kentuckian and some friends were taken prisoners by the Indians and Canadian French, and one after another of the prisoners were despatched in the most cruel manner, by maiming, burning, and bastinado. The Kentuckian, seeing how affairs were going, begged a word with one of the chiefs, and being able to make himself understood, stated that if they spared him, he would teach them a secret by which neither bullets, swords or knives could inflict wounds upon them. The Indians paused, and after a consultation they agreed to test the secret, and if it proved a real thing, they would give the prisoner his freedom.

The Kentuckian, accompanied by several Indians, went into the forest and picked some green herbs, which he bruised and rubbed over his neck.

"Now," said he, "strike! Let the strongest man take his heaviest tomahawk, and strike a blow upon my neck, and see if it effects a wound!"

Placing his bare neck upon a fallen tree, the Kentuckian prepared for the blow, and down it came, with all the force of the brawny arm of the Indian. But, judge to their surprise, when off fell the brave fellow's head! Death was inevitable, and the courageous Kentuckian chose the quickest and ~~less painful~~ least painful!—This was true, philosophical courage! And it took a man, perfect—to exhibit it. Don't you think so?—True Flag.

A Funny Letter.—A friend has just shown us a letter from the country, in answer to a dunning epistle he had written, which is too amusing and original not to be handed down to posterity along with the choice literary morals of the day. We suppress names and dates, of course;—

"My Dear Sir:—Yours of the — ult. has been received, and if I have not yet answered it, you must lay your account to its strange contents. I was much surprised at your simplicity in writing to me to ask the payment of the small sum I owe you. How can you imagine that I can scrape together any money in this part of the world, where there never will be such an article? I don't understand you city folks writing up to us country folks for money. Why don't you go to the bank and borrow it? That's the way I do, if I were living in the city. But here we can't borrow money; we havn't got it to spend, much less to lend. You'll appreciate this when you get poor and come to the country to live. There's nothing like the country for modesty and virtue. But I'm sure I don't know why you should be bothering me about money. My notes ought to pass current, for youv'e got an almighty number of them. If they don't, and you never [illegible] you will at last have the satisfaction of having me your faithful friend."—*N. OUR CLUB.

BY "THE SPECTATOR."*

"What right, what true, what fit we justly call
Let this be all my care, for this is all."

In my last number I proposed giving you an idea of the members composing our club which I shall endeavor to do, by giving as hasty a description as possible, of each one who has the honor of being a contributor to the spectator, I use the word hasty for I feel my inspiration must come to me through the medium of a cold in the head, and I would not, in my present state, presume upon your time and attention, if it had not been that a severe illness last week prevented me, and I now fear lest my name and purpose would be entirely forgotten, if not recalled immediately.

Undoubtedly, our motives will be questioned, and some may even have the impudence to question if we have any. The other day I accidentaly overheard a lady in conversation with some others, who were descanting rather freely upon the merits, and demerits of my former number, observe that she could not see what the author was driving at, or what amounted to the same, as of course it must not be expected that I shall quote word for word the remark of a young girl, when I feel to have attained the heightof glory in Bachelordom, but listen again to the motto, and you will pronounce the motive purely good,

"What right what true, what fit we justly call
Let this be all my care, for this is all."

Here I will inform you that we call ourselves men for what I conceive to be one just reason, that we are older than many who have smoked and sworn these many mauy years. We number three—fine fellows we think, and where one pate lacks a bump, the others seldom fail to find a substitute, what one says and does, the other think just right, although they could not do the same themselves, so if you will bear with us yet a little longer, we promise you some variety.

All having firm belief in the old maxim, "Safety in odd numbers," and as we think five would be more minds than we could find so perfectly adapte Ito each other and fearing that we might be tempted to ask one more to join us, we have had made to order, a three cornered table. Our present lamp is round, but we intend having one, more suited to the table, giving a separate light to each, whereby we may see more clearly, and perhaps be able to note down more distinctly, the thoughts adapted to public welfare.

The first I shall mention of our company is a gentleman of Essex, who claims to be of ancient descent, can trace his family back to the first of Scottish Nobility, and I am prone to believe it, for he has that noble bearing, so peculiar to the Scotch. This man whom we call Carlton Bremer is very talented, and if it were not for a superabundance of eccentricity, would be quite a favorite in the world at large, for his manners are pleasing, and he is very sociable at times, according as the world is pleased with him, so is he with it. "His singularities proceed from his good sense, and are contradictions to the manners of the world, only as he thinks the world is in the wrong." This all do not allow, though from the intimacy of several years, close observation has favored the truth of it. He is fond of reading, and I will confess it, though it does not add one iota to his honour, he is passionately fond of reading novels, so much so, that he will rest contented, whole weeks, provided he can procure board in Dreamland. He is rather tall, and from the space he generally occupies in a room, you would know there must be a good deal of the outer man, and from the size and bearing of the head, you would know there was something of the inner. His eyes are large, and dark, and very expressive, his forehead high speaking him a being of noble impulses, and the soul of generosity.

The next I speak of is a natural born wit, without whom we should be much at loss, for we none of us seem to have been gifted that way. He is known amongst us as Sir Andrew, from the similarity he bears to Shakspeare's merry Andrew. When we are all sober, he sets us roaring with laughter, while he is as sober as ever was Don Quixote, and when we are too trivial, he brings us to see the folly of our actions by doing a foolish thing himself, in fact he is the contracting and expanding atmosphere that makes the mercury of our spirits rise and fall to suit the time and occasion. He is the motive power, while we do the work, we could do without him no more than could the wheels continue to propel a steamboat, when there is no fire in the furnace, and he without us would be as useless to you, my friends, as would a fire burning upon the shore be to said steamboat.

The other is a very sensible fellow with wonderful powers of observation, he will detect an action, or a look, as the shadow of coming events and tell us what to expect long before the event happens, so we familiarly call him, the Prophet, with all he is quite, what might be called a ladies'-man, was disappointed in love, at that very susceptible period, the last year of the first dozen of his life, but like the drunkard, still continues to love that which has destroyed him. This enables him to be an acute observer and reader of woman kind, who are so hard to be read, so incomprehensible, so fickle and yet so constant, so timid and yet so brave when their efforts are required.—If we do consider them beneath us, me must at least acknowledge them beyond our comprehension at times.

He says he can tell a coquette as far as the east is from the west. With a vain man, she is so careful to show defference for his opinions, and flatter him in the most deliqate manner; with a timid man, she helps him out of difficulties, tells him in a delicate way that he knows a great deal more than he thinks for, and commits herself as far as she dare; with an uneducated man, she appears very intelligent and learned and tells him that wit is better than learning; with a cultivated and sensible man, she appears to possess a very good heart, thinks woman should know her sphere and love her husband. With a reader of her sex, she does not act at all, for she carefully avoids him. I will give you more of of his observations another time.

* "Spectator," is a name assumed by three members of the school.

COUNTESS GUICCIOLI.

The extraordinary facility with which the French people conform to a change of rulers, dynasty, and form of government, is shown in no manner so distinctly, as the certainty with which a particular set of men rise on the political surface, after every intestinal commotion. The memorable saying of Talleyrand, after taking his thirteenth oath of allegiance, might be repeated, with very slight change of number, by many a French politician of more modern date.

These reflections are suggested by seeing, among the names of those lately elevated to the dignity of Senator in the government of Napoleon III., that of the Marquis de Boissy, a prominent member of the Chamber of Deputies under Louis Philippe. The change of sentiment required to fit this gentleman to his present position, is very small;—his appearance on the political stage is curious, nevertheless, as showing that the amount of liberalism tolerated in the present French Senate is precisely the same as that which marked the later years of the sway of Louis Philippe.

To those conversant with the literature of the earlier part of this century, the name of Marquis de Boissy presents a new interest, in the fact that his lady, who now occupies a distinguished place in the fashionable circle of the new Empress, is the same Countess Guiccioli who won immortal renown from having fixed upon herself, for several years before his death, the illicit favor of Lord Byron.

Teresa Gamba, when sixteen years of age, was taken from an Italian convent, and given in marriage, after the custom of that country, to Count Guiccioli, a nobleman of Ravenna. He had at that time reached the age of three-score—the age of wisdom, although perhaps not of love. In 1819, Lord Byron, in his wayward sojournings in Italy, reached Ravenna, having spent two or three years of great profligacy, although of a good deal of literary activity, at Venice, in the easy, social footing still characteristic of Italian manners, where marriages are, as in this instance, marriages of convenience, that intimacy was commenced wich remained ubroken till the poet's death. A separation from her husband was the eventual consequence; he, with a consenting spirit allowing her a liberal annuity from his large fortune. An imprudent connection with the Carbonari, a secret political society of Italy, led to the banishment of Byron and the Gamba family from the territory of Romagna to the dominions of the more liberal Grand Duke of Tuscany, and their residence was fixed at Pisa, from whence, for the sake of being in more direct maritime connection with Greece, it was afterwards changed to Genoa. In 1823 they separated, when Lord Byron sailed for Greece, to aid in the revolution of that country, and the war with its Turkish oppressors. His death took place, as is known to most rearders, at Missolonghi, in April, 1824.

In December, 1850, the writer of this article met the Countess Guiccioli and her husband in the same harbor of Genoa, where, twenty-seven years previously, she had parted with the man who was destined to give her name a celebrity hardly less than that which Petrarch has bestowed upon Laura. As a fellow-traveler for two or three days, opportunity was of course had to observe her frequently. Although now fifty four years of age, she possesses a large share of beauty. Her figure small in her youth, is now rounded into that degree of fullness common to Italian females when past middle life. She has an oval countenance, fair complexion light hair and blue eyes, with great vivacity of expression when engaged in conversation. Her husband, the Marquis de Boissy, is her inferior in age and appearance, but is evidently possessed of a large fund of general and political information.

Could we fathom the reflection of one to whom the city and bay of Genoa must have been so full of singular remiciscences, the remembrance of her ancient unlawful lord and the sight of her present liege possessor, must have provoked in her mind the comparison of Hamlet:

"So excellent a king; that was, to this,
Hyperion to a stayr."

An Awful Situation.—The Auburn Advertiseer gives an account of an accident which happend in that city Tuesday forenoon, whereby a man named George Jones, who was at work in a well, was buried alive. The only thing that saved Mr Jones from immediate death, (says the Advertiser,) was the curb to the well, which, when the sand caved in, formed an arch over him, giving him a space to breathe and prevented him from being crushed. He had some 14 or 16 feet of earth over him. When the workmen got within about four feet of him, they heard him distinctly say, "hurry, boys, and get me out, for I am in great distress." They did hurry, and succeeded in saving the man's life. He was very much exhausted when taken out, having been confined about one hour and a half, but sustained no bodily injury.

"The twa Corbies."

"Our Artist" presents our readers with a rich feast this week, to many of whom it will be worth a years subscription. The "Twa Corbies" is to be found in Scott's compilation of the "Minstrelsy of the Scottish border." In his notes he says: "This poem was communicated to me by Chas. Kirkpatrick Sharpe Esq., as written down from tradition by a lady." It coincides with an ancient dirge called, "The three Ravens," and yet such a difference exists between the two as to make the one appear rather a counterpart than a copy of the other."

THE TWA CORBIES.*

"As I was walking all alane,
I heard twa corbies making a mane;
The tane unto the t'other say,
'Where sall we gang and dine to day?'

"In behint yon auld fail dyke,
I wot there lies a new-slain Knight;
And naebody kens that he lies there,
But his hawk, his hound, and lady fair.

"His hound is to the hunting gane,
His hawk to fetch the wild-fowl hame,
His lady's ta'en another mate,
So we may make our dinner sweet.

"Ye'll sit on his white hause bane,
And I'll pick out his bonny blue e'en:
Wi' ae lock o' his gowden hair,
We'll theek our nest when it grows bare.

"Many a one for him makes mane,
But nane shall ken where he is gane:
O'er his white banes, when they are bare,
The wind sall blaw forever mair.

*Blood Crows.

"THE THREE RAVENS."

"There were three Ravens sat on a tree,
They were as blacke as they might be:
The one of them said to his mate,
'Where shall we our breakfast take?'

"Downe in yonder green field,
There lies a Knight slain under his shield:
His hounds they lie down at his feete,
So well they their master keep;
His hawks they flie so eagerlie.
There's no fowl dare come him nie.
Down there comes a fallow doe,
As grate with young as she might goe.
She lifted up his bloody hed,
And kist his wounds that were so red.
She got him up upon her backe,
And carried him to Earthan Lake.
She carried him before the prime,
She was dead her selfe 'ere even song time.
God send every gentleman,
Such hawks, such hounds, and such a leman."

TRUE HOSPITALITY.—The definition of true hospitality is thus given by Emerson:—

"I pray you, oh excellent wife, cumber not yourself and me to get a curiously rich dinner for this man or woman who has alighted at our gate; nor a bed chamber made at too great a cost; these things, if they are curious in them, they can get for a few shillings in any village; but rather let the stranger see, if he will in your looks, accent and behavior, your heart and earnestness, your thought and will, which he cannot buy at any price in any city, and which he may well travel twenty miles, and dine sparely and sleep hardly, to behold. Let not the emphasis of hospitality lie in bed and board; but let truth, and love, and honor' and courtesy, flow in all thy deeds."

"Put'er through."—

"Has fortune frowned my honest friend!
Don't hang your head so low;
This is no time to falter now,
Up! strike another blow!
Don't sit and groan and grunt and tell
What you have tried to do,
But place your shoulder to the wheel,

The recent Rail Road Accident

The train consisting of 5 cars with 218 passengers left N. Y. for Boston on the morning of the 6th, and proceeded as usual to Norwalk, 45 miles east of N. Y.

Half a mile east of the Norwalk station is a bridge across the creek This bridge is about 130 feet in length, extending over the Norwalk River. The draw portion of it is 60 feet in length. On the easterly side of the bridge is erected a long pole, some 40 feet high, upon which is placed a large red ball, with pullies to hoist and lower, as the occasion may require. This is the signal for all trains to stop when taken down by the master of the bridge. It can be observed for a mile, either on the east or west side of the bridge, by the engineer of any train. The master of the bridge was compelled to remove the draw, to allow the steamer Pacific to go through. He accordingly fixed his signal as usual, and then swung off the draw. On the westerly side of the bridge is a short curve. The usual precautions were neglected upon this occasion; the speed was not slacked at the station; the signal for safety had been withdrawn full ten minutes before the train approached, but heedless of the warning, the engineer dashed on at a rate of nearly thirty miles an hour, until he reached the open draw, when such was the momentum that the engine sprang across the chasm of sixty feet, dashing against the abutment on the opposite side, but little below the level of the line of rails.—The steamer Pacific, from Norwalk for New York, had hardly passed as the train dashed in. The engine was followed by the tender, which rested upon it, the first baggage car went partly upon the tender and partly alongside; the second car, containing the smoking apartment, went alongside the first baggage car, and two of the first class cars were dashed among the wreck of those which preceeded them, while the bottom of the last car was broken in two crosswise, the forward part being dragged into the submerged ruins, leaving one half the bottom and the entire sides and roof upon the track. The water in the channel over which the draw is placed is from ten to twelve feet deep at high water. The distance from the bridge to the water at high tide is about 20 feet.

The cars so broken that those who had not sustained any injury from the collision instantly strove to escape through the windows and broken roofs, and it is wonderful, that under the circumstances so many succeeded in their efforts. It is supposed that all in the last car escaped—those who were dragged forward on the broken floor being thrown on the top of the wreck, escaping with a few bruises. Those who were in the two cars preceeding the last, were all immersed in water, but as can be ascertained, most of them were rescued. The moment the accident occurred there were strong and willing hands which manned small boats fortunately lying near, and by their efforts, the rescue of the saved was effected. Many of those in these cars sustained contusions of greater or less severity. But few of those in the smoking car escaped, and it is the opinion of Dr. Mc Lean of Norwalk, who was in attendance, that most of those who lost their lives were seriously injured by the crushing of the car.

Over one hundred were plunged into the water and it is ascertained that 40 were either killed, or drowned.

Edward Peck of the firm of J. & J. H Peck, of Burlington, and his wife's sister were in the third car and occupied the seat next back of where it broke in two.

The following will give our readers something of an idea of the horrors of the scene.

Mr. Thomas Hicks, of New York, an artist, was in the forward car, with a Miss King of that city. They occupied a seat on the right hand side, facing the engine. Mr. Hicks describes the scene as follows:—The cars were seemingly going at the usual rate, when without warning or intimation of any kind, he beheld the front part of the car rushing toward him in fragments, the passengers being tossed in the air like chaff, dashed up against the top of the car, and thrown about in a hurricane of destruction. In an instant he found Miss King gone from his side, and himself crushed under the partially fallen roof of the car, and surrounded by a choking atmosphere, in the midst of a shapeless mass of ruins, dead bodies on every hand, and the darkened car rapidly filling with water. He began feeling among the wreck and under the water for his companion, but she was no where to be found.

The shock was such as to break off all the seats and even the umbrella racks, and to push forward all who were setting in the rear of the car. At the same time the roof was split in two, and the larger part of it fell in, covering many persons, including Mr. Hicks himself beneath. The scene under there he describes as horrible in the extreme, persons gasping in death, mutilated bodies, hands broken, some who had apparently only been stunned, drowning in unconsciousness of their condition. One young man had a splinter of some two inches in diameter driven directly through his temples. Others had their faces so mutilated as to present no human resemblance. At the same time the water filled with rubbish of every kind, and Mr. Hicks received several bruises from the floating mass. He hung in the water with one hand on an iron which fortunately had not broken off, until after convincing himself that he could not find the body of his companion, whom he supposed to be dead.

He continued the search till the water had risen to his chin, at a time which he judged to have been ten minutes, when despairing of her recovery, he looked about for a mode of escape. Just behind him, at the corner of the car, he beheld an aparture, through which he crawled out upon the top. He then found to his surprise and joy that Miss King had been projected through the opening in the car and thus saved with slight wounds. She had, also, been enabled to save the life of another person.

WHIGS NOT ALL DEAD.—All hail, glorious whigs of Tennessee!

Tennessee.—The whig State Convention met at Nashville April 25th, to nominate a candidate for Governor. Major GUSTAVUS A. HENRY, received the nomination by acclamation. Gen. J. L. McKoin, of Sumner, presided over the deliberations of the Convention. Hon. John Bell made an eloquent speech. Among the resolutions adopted was the following:—

Resolved, That the Whig party of Tennessee glory in their time-honored Republican principles, for which they have ever contended—particularly as embodied in the address adopted by the Whig Convention of Tennessee, held at Nashville, May 21, 1851—and to which they again in Convention assembled, give the sanction of their approval.

Appreciation of favors.—There are few men who appreciate the esteem of the printer and those few are always successful in business. On the other hand there are no men so ready and able to reciprocate favors as the printer. Any body who doubts these facts can have his doubts dispelled by looking at the flood of business pouring into the Ausable House, and by observing the big, speckled trout on our plate most any day in the week! As we write this, we are about going home to dine on a couple of splendid ones sent in yesterday.

Note.—We ought to say prehaps we dont "fell above" our cotempories who live on salt fish and pork for we have lived on them for two years and a half, and a short allowance at that.

Keeseville Post-Office.

AN UNPUBLISHED "PUFF."

We are sorry to be compelled to be the medium of giving to the public the "good things" said of our neighbor, but his modesty in withholding some of the best, induce us to give one of many similar which have reached us. The following is from the "Madison Dollar Weekly Courier," a democratic paper, published at Madison, Ind. We perceive that Nelson is duly appreciated—and if the editor of the Courier could have known that his appointment was a violation of every principle of justice and right, to the party and to the business of Keeseville, — that he has been less than two years in the place, less than six months a citizen, with "antecedents" anything but such as to commend him to the place, the notice would have been perfect. But to the "puff," which we hope to see in the Gazette next week:

"MODEL POLITICAL POST-MASTER AND EDITOR —The most unsophisticated editor we know of, is the youngster who presides in the Sanctum of the Keeseville, (N. Y.) Gazette, Mr. Arthur Charles Nelson, Esquire. a whilom Canuck. Well, Arthur C. has been appointed Postmaster for the ancient village of Keeseville, and forthwith, in a long article, informs the wondering public of the great fact, and congratulates the Democracy of Essex county, New York, and the world on account thereof! According to Arthur C.'s notion of Republicanism, the offices of this country are intended as rewards for partizan service, and he intimates that Gen. Pierce appointed him expressly on this account, and to keep the Gazette alive. Has our great President fallen so low, that he must buy up little country papers? We fear Arthur has mistaken the President's motives. Mr. Pierce disavows the principle.

We believe, nevertheless, that Arthur's political friends procured his appointment for just such unworthy motives. He has been a good party man—has not deviated from the books, nor dared to express an independent thought of his own. He has been a mere machine in the hands of his political leaders, and has abused the Whigs without stint and without reason His leaders have paid him! Now Arthur holds office by an uncertain tenure. The least vibration to the right or left—the first intimation of restlessness under party discipline—and he will incontinently be kicked out, and his place supplied by a more compliant tool. Beware, dear Arthur, boy!—Beware of heresy. Obey your masters, dear, and you shall be village Postmaster for four mortal years.

We advise Rolla, when he receives his tardy commission, to imitate Arthur His case is analogous. Rolla has only a hundred subscribers, and nothing short of the City Post-office will keep him up. Two or three thousand dollars have already been sunk in the Madisonian. This must be gut out of Uncle Sam some how. The end justifies the means. But here, Rolla, is your copy. Tell the "old soger" to set it in pica and lead it. Don't print it, though, till you get the office, because there's many a slip between the cup and the lip, Rolla:

'THE POST OFFICE—We have the satisfaction of informing the democracy of this county and vicinity, of our appointment as Postmaster of this village. The wishes of our friends, who numerously presented our name for the place, have been complied with, in view of the peculiarities that surround their organ in this latitude!! For a year and a half we have struggled to maintain it, and make it as efficient as our abilities and means could permit. In the endeavor we made no money; on the contrary we ran in debt; but then, as an agreeable offset, we made strong friends, good and true, at home and abroad. Through the exertons of these we are now in a position to conduct the paper with increased vigor and spirit. We shall be enabled to devote all its receipts to its improvement, so that the PARTY MAY PROFIT AS MUCH BY THE APPOINTMENT as the individual in whom it is vested (?) It is well understood that we should never have dreamt of aspiring to the situation, had we been a private citizen.(!) while it is equally well understood that any other man, in charge of the paper, would have been a successful applicant.

It may be gratifying to our friends as it is certainly to us, to notice in this appointment the approbation of the course we have followed as a worker in the democratic ranks. The national principles we cherish and which we have supported to the best of our capacity during the last two presidential elections, or ever since we set foot in this country, will continue to be as dear to us as ever and in maintaining them to the last, we shall put down every attempt at sectional strife, and keep an eye to the integrity of the great party to which we belong.

*What miserable corruption!—ED. COURIER.

The "Telegram."—Considering the invention of this word as designed for a hoax, it has succeeded admirably, for the Gazette is the only paper which has been 'bit' by it, and that 'display' of 'Greek' was rather more langhable than inserting the annihilation of the "Salmon River Messenger" in the "biography"! No wonder the issue is sought to be transferred to the inventor. We wait now to see the next foolish thing which our neighbor will fall into.

Information wanted.—Owing to "ignorance" we are in doubt whether the following words are newly coined, evidences of 'bad spelling,' or errors of the compositor overlooked by the proof-reader. Finding them in the Gazette we hope to be "enlightened" and we beg leave to assure our neighbor that no apology will be required "display in the dead languages" be[illegible]es necessary.

LOCAL ITEMS.

The Ausable still keeps within its 'wall'd banks.'

The Sun continues to give light by day, and the Moon by night—when it is not cloudy.

Trees are the biggest at the but-end.

The man who has been watching to see the Ausable run past, has "gin eout," and says "it's so tarnal long running by, he'll be darned if he'll watch it any longer."

Whether Nelson is "on one side or the other" of the Canal question, is doubted by some.

A member of the whittling club has been expelled for whittling a hardwood stick.

A person in the habit of backbiting was taken sick one day last week for the want of business.

Grass grows out of the ground.

Nails are made of iron, but some kinds of pins are made of wood.

The man who does not think himself qualified for Congress or the Legislature, does not reside here.

The great question of the day: Is there a "united and harmonious democracy?"

Water continues to run down hill.

It is not safe for the Republican's "devil" to go out alone, because some of the girls love him so they want to squeeze him to death. Appropos of the Gazette's: he's so ugly they "flea from him."

The G. A. P. and S. C.—"Great Ausable Pike and Succor Co." has been dissolved, in consequence of the removal of some of its principal supporters—and "Wickham's Mash" is given over to the heathen—the fame of Lings, Eels, and Suckers, has departed forever.

Question discussed by the Curious:—Is "our cotemporary" in favor of "scratching the bottom," or "tickling the sides" of the Canals,—or either, or both. or "nary one"? What is the position of the democracy on the Canal enlargement? What does "our cotemporary" think of the Tariff question now a-days, or what is the position of his party on that subject? "We pause for a reply."

Great surgical feat.—An old hen about the barns of one of our hotels, has had a "cough" all winter, which gradually wasted her to a mere skeleton. Until a day or two since, it was supposed she had the consumption, and that her "mortal career" would soon be brought to an end. By a mere accidental circumstance, however, she has been most miraculously saved from a premature death. Being in the manger, where she ought not to have been, the hostler with a rude hand seized the feeble old "critter" by the neck to hurl her roughly out of the way, when feeling something prick his hand he had the curiosity to examine the cause. To his surprise it was a needle protruding from her neck. Neither with his fingers or knife could he extract it, but rising with the emergency of the occasion he grasped the point in his teeth, and with a desperate jerk brought it out the first pull. The old hen was as suddenly relieved—her cough ceased and her breathing was easy. She is of the Old Grimes breed, a famous layer, and of a kind and affectionate disposition. She now looks forward to a long life of usefulness—and to the hostler her gratitude is unbounded, to whom she "clucks" in the most affectionate manner, and an innumerable progeny will be taught to do him reverence.*

The Sandwich Islands.

The affairs of these Islands are attracting a large share of attention. Their internal affairs, their locality, their history, and their relations with the U. S. have long made them objects of interest, but it is said that a French fleet is on its way there to compel the admission of french brandy free of duty. If this be so, it will produce the most intense feeling throughout both the civil and the religious world. In the first place, if the U. S. Government does not resist such a flagrant outrage, the people will, and in the next place. the people of those Islands having preferred Protestant to Catholic Missionaries, the whole religious world will become absorbed in the issue. That any demonstrations as such would be made is not probable, but the intense interest in the contest can scarcely be conceived. We are opposed to annexation under any circumstances, and we are equally opposed to the subjugation of these Islands by any other power, or of any violation of their rights. Intemperance and its attendant vices are destroying the natives with fearful rapidity, and the time is not far distant when the government of the Islands will pass into the hands of foreigners, mostly Americans. In this connexion we give the following interesting details:

THE SANDWICH ISLANDS. The recent census of the Sandwich Islands exhibits some facts of startling interest, and which some facts of startling interest, and which illustrates in the most unmistakeable manner the vital law that the inferior race must give way to the stronger. The present population of the seven Islands forming the group is 80,641. The deaths during last year were 7943, while the births were only 1748, an average of six deaths to one birth. The foreigners number only 1787. This is an extraordinary state of things, and we doubt whether the parallel can be found in the world. In the time of Cook, this people numbered 400,000; thus in seventy years they have decreased 320,000. In 1836 they numbered 109,579—decrease in 17 years nearly 28,000. Such a rapid decrease of native population is a deeply melancholy spectacle. At the present rate of decrease another generation will hardly have passed away ere this people will be blotted from the face of the earth.

Spiritual Rappings.

Read, ye blind, ignorant skeptics. Let doubters be convinced, the wavering confirmed, and the jester confounded. Benefactors of the human race, stand back; contentious, be silent. We pronounce the following as clear as mud, or clearer, "the same throughout, other things being equal."—(ED. REP.

KEESEVILLE, MAY 10, 1853.

J. Tarbell, Esq.,

Dear Sir,—Will you please give the following explanation of the subject which has so lately engrossed public attention, and oblige one of your numerous subscribers? The subject to which I refer is the "Spiritual Rappings," which has perplexed a great many, and hitherto no one has been able to give a perfectly satisfactory explanation of the matter.

The only true and legitimate manner of accounting for the "taps" is, the physiological defects of the membraneous system. The obtuseness of the abdominal indicator, causes the cartilagenous compressor to coagulate into the diaphragm, and depress the duodenum into the flandango. Now, if the taps were caused by the vogation of the electricity from the extremities, the tympanum would also dissolve into spiritual sinctum, and the olfactory ossificator would ferment, and become identical with the pigmentum. "Now this is not the case;" in order to produce the taps, the spiritual rotundum must be elevated down to the spiritual sphere. But, as I said before, the infer ligaments must not suspend over the digitorum sufficiently to disorganise the stericletum.

There may be a difference of opinion in regard to the agency of the flandango and duodenum—but that the spiritual sinctum or rinctum, and the "olfactory ossificator" have something to do with the science, there can be no manner of doubt. The writer of the above, in order to clear the science of all doubt, has avoided all technicalities not necessary to a full exposition of this wonderful art.

Please insert as soon as possible, and oblige O. P. Q.

"Town Politics."—Notwithstanding we have steadily pronounced the insiuuations of the Gazette false from beginning to end, our neighbor, avoiding every issue we have tendered, waiving every material fact we have stated, and not daring to prefer distinct charges, seeks by perverting our language to infer an admission, and then winds up by unblushingly admitting that all he has written has been simply for effect! The man who will thus trifle with the character of his neighbors, is to say the last, unfit to be trusted with a Post Office. However, nothing higher ought to be expected of a man educated about theatres and ale-houses, as a Penny-a-liner.

Deaths by recent accidents.—By the loss of the Independence on the Pacific coast, 125; bursting of the boiler of the Jenny Lind, 20; burning of the Ocean Wave on the Lake Ontario, 25; Rail Road collision near Chicago, 15; by the Norwalk disaster, 46; total 231!! Where rests the fearful responsibility?

"FEATHERS FOR SALE."—We are not supprised that Nelson reads this advertisement with "fear and trembling," reminding him as it does of the effect of "fuss and feathers" in this vicinity at the late elections, and of "tar and feathers" at a former residence of his We beg him to be quiet for no harm of the latter character shall come to him here!

"OLD CLOTHES."—Nelson says he has a plenty to spare now. Well, having been pensioned on the party at the rate of $600 a year, we hope he will be able to get along without having the hat passed again, or defrauding a cotemporary of paper. We would advise him to keep the old 'duds' that served him through the "tug of war;" he may need them again in 1856!

Obituary.

The announcment just at the close of the service in the several churches here, last Sabbath afternoon, of the decease of Mrs. Mary L. WARD, wife of the Hon. Aaron Ward, spread the gloom of sorrow over the whole village. Mrs. Ward was the only daughter of the late Elkanah Watson, Esq. of Clinton, and during her long residence here, over thirty years, she had endeared herself to a very large circle of friends, who now deeply sympathise with the bereaved husband and family in their irreparable loss. Mrs. Ward, although accomplished, and well prepared to shine in the elevated circles of society, was of a remarkably retiring disposition, and eminently devoted to her maternal duties; while the virtues of her life and her example shone conspicuously in the education and manners of her numerous family of interesting daughters. Verily, a good wife is from the Lord," and in this instance, the commendation of the Divine Word have been fully sustained. Many years ago Mrs Ward united herself to a christian church in this village, and her exemplary consistent life attested the sincerity of that profession; and when the grim messenger of death approached, the sweet solace and supports of an undying faith and confidence in the Redeemer bore her along the perils of pisease and through the last pang of human nature with a blissful assurance of a blessed imortality beyond the grave. Our sympathies and our tears mingle with her surviving family and kindred, for we knew her well, and approved her many admirable traits of character; and would point them in this their deepest sorrow for consolation to her bright exemple in this life, and to her brighter home in the world of bliss. Her record is on high.—[From the Westchester Herald.

CHEAPER THAN EVER.

Regular Opposition Store.

Mammoth Stock of Clothing just received at Cardwell's celebrated Cheap One Price Clothing Store, every style of garment usually kept in any Clothing Store. My facilities for buying are such as challenge competition. The monthly arrivals of boxes (from the South,) and the daily clearances of innumerable bundles clearly establishes the fact that I sell cheaper than any other establishment in this section, and what is more I mean still to continue to do so. I will not be undersold. Bring out your big guns, I am ready for the whole combined forces. G. A. CARDWELL.

202 RIVER & 7 & 9 STATE STREETS.
TROY, NEW YORK,

INVITES the attention of those who wish to purchase

DRY GOODS,

Carpets and Oil-Cloths.

Owing to the large increase of patronage, I have found it necessary from time to time to make many improvements and additions to my store.

This spring I have united the stores No. 7 and 9, State St., making a spacious and beautiful room, fitted up expressly for the sale of all the various styles of

Silks, Shawls, Cloaks & Mantillas.

This connects with the main store, No. 202 River St., (the old stand occupied by the subscriber for nearly 30 years.) which is devoted to a general assortment of

STAPLE AND FANCY DRY GOODS,

comprising every variety to meet the wants of all classes of buyers. Besides these, four large rooms over the stores 200, 202 and 204 River St., are occupied as

CARPET WARE-ROOMS,

where I am constantly receiving the newest and most desirable patterns of Velvet, Tapestry, Brussels, Three ply, Ingrain and Venetian Carpets. Also, Oil-Cloths of every quality and width, and every style of Drugetts, Rugs, Mats, Matting, Stair-Rods, &c.

All these departments combined making an extensive and complete Establishment, conducted on such principles, that customers can trade with confidence, and to their own advantage, my sales being always for cash, and the only price asked, being the lowest cash price. G. V. S. QUACKENBUSH.

WAR DECLARED

—BETWEEN—

France and England!!!

WOULD not create as great a sensation among the inhabitants of this portion of country as the proclamation of war on high prices by CARDWELL in the sale of

Ready-Made Clothing.

That war declared Oct. 1st, 1851, still rages with unabating and increasing fury; but in its progress its path is not marked with bloodshed, carnage and desolation as the wars of one Nation against another; on the other hand its fruits are smiling faces (NOT OF OTHER DEALERS) and glad hearts; go ask the honest and hardy inhabitants of our pine clad hills, and our pleasant valleys, where he buys his CLOTHING, and he will answer you with a smile,

WHY AT CARDWELL'S, OF COURSE!

That is the place where you can obtain the latest styles, a genteel fit, and well made suit of clothes for less money than at any other Store in northern New York.

Why, says one man, I have saved money enough by purchasing my Clothing this Fall at Ploughs—Prouty & Mears' centre draught. These ploughs have obtained a celebrity unparalleled, having taken the first premiums in this country and at the World's Fair in London. We have also Starbuck's and Tabor's celebrated Ploughs.

Our stock of Ploughs comprise a great variety of patterns and different sizes, calculated for sward and stubble land, wet meadows and recently reclaimed swamps, where roots abound—among which also are the deep breaking up flat-furrow, lap-furrow, self sharpening, side-hill, double-mould-board, sub soil, &c., &c.

Harrows—tri angular, square, Geddes and Scotch

Hay, Straw and Corn Stalk Cutters, either by hand or horse power; spiral, straight or circular knives.

Cultivators—of different kinds, steel tooth and cast iron.

Corn Shellers—a variety of patterns. Will shell from 5 to 100 bushels of corn per hour.

Fan Mills and Grain Cradles—Grant' unrivalled. We confidently recommend them as the best in use.

Seed Sowers—Hatchelder's & Emery's and other kinds.

Vegetable Cutters—for turnips and other roots.

Horse Powers, Threshers, Winnowers and Separators—Wheeler's Patent Railway Chain Horse Power This Power, both single and double geared, for one or two horses, has never been equalled for lightness in running, strength, durability and economy. The Thresher and Separator are too widely and favorably known to need our commendation. The combined Thresher and Winnower, (which is a new invention of last year) has not been so generally introduced. All who have used it express the highest approbation of its merits. We entertain no doubt that it is the most perfect, compact, and efficient machine now in use for threshing and winnowing grain, as it certainly is by far the cheapest and most economical.

Warranted to give satisfaction.

More than 5,000 patients have during the past year experienced the benefit of the Doctor's extraordinary skill in treating secret diseases—among which, diseases of the bladder and kidneys have formed a goodly proportion.

YOUNG MEN,

who by indulging in secret habits have injured their health and prostrated their intellectual faculties, and thereby deprived themselves of the pleasure of married life, should consult Dr. Lispenard without a moment's delay. Hundreds have been restored to health, society and friends, under my peculiar mode of treatment, although vast sums of money had been sacrificed without any benefit. My remedy for this disease is pleasant to take, has no offensive smell and

CURES WITHOUT FAIL.

☞ Persons so unfortunate as to be diseased, although they may have visited half a dozen Doctors, and had medicine sent them a dozen times with no benefit, would exhibit wisdom by making their case known to that FRIEND OF THE SICK, Dr. Lispenard, who never charges for advice and warrants all his cures. The sick are often at a loss where to apply for relief, AND TIS NO WONDER, as hundreds stand ready to plunder the unfortunate victim of PRIVATE DISEASE, or secret habits, without one thought for his life and health. All thus deceived will find a friend, and moderate charges, in consulting the Doctor who USES NO MERCURY and cures every time.

N. B.—Persons from a distance when visiting the city in search of a physician and friend will be fortunate if they succeed in escaping the many dens of imposition, conducted by unprincipled men, destitute of character knowledge or name, who fleece the unfortunate victim of disease of his hard earned money, and his remaining health. Patients who have no acquaintance in the city should make inquiry of some respectable citizen, or the editor or proprietor of any of the city papers, to ascertain who is the most reliable physician to apply to.

FEMALE DISEASES.

Dr. Lispenard, from an experience seldom or never enjoyed by any other medical man, is enable to treat, with every hope of success, all and every variety of Female Complaints—with safe and pleasant remedies—and has without doubt cured within the past five years more than 3000 females afflicted with diseases of the Bladder, Womb, &c. &c. Ladies afflicted with suppression or stoppage of their monthly turns, will recollect that Dr. Lispenard is still the sole American agent for.

DR. VICHOP'S FEMALE MONTHLY PILLS.

The unprecedented sale of more than 15,000 boxes of these excellent Pills, and the good results which always follow their use, is conclusive evidence of their utility in stoppages, &c. Caution—Married Ladies in certain delicate situations should not use them—for reasons see directions with each box. Price $1. Sent by mail to all parts of the world.

Married Persons and those about to Marry, should enclose 12½ cents post paid to Dr. Lispenard, and obtain a copy of his Marriage Guide, or Private Treatise, a bewitching little work of nearly 100 pages. illustrated. Every thing that married persons can desire or wish to know is here explained. Persons who from poverty or sickness have no desire to increase their family, will find necessary instruction in the Marriage Guide. SHERIFF SALE.

BY virtue of an execution issued out of the Essex County Court, to me directed and delivered against the personal and real property of Nathaniel Mason, I have seized and taken all the right, title, and interest which the said Nathaniel Mason had on the eleventh day of January, 1853, or at any time thereafter, in and to the following described real estate, to wit:—All those certain pieces of land situate in the town of Willsboro, in Essex County and being part of a lot of land in Peru Bay Tract, and bounded and described as follows:—

Beginning at a stake in centre of the highway where a spruce tree formerly stood in the South line of lot Number (62) sixty-two of the aforesaid tract, from thence West on the said South line of lot No. sixty two thirty five chains and eighty one links, thence North partly on the line of a piece of land formerly owned by William S. Flack, seven chains and sixteen links, thence east thirty four chains and seventy five links and from thence Southerly to the place of beginning, containing thirty five acres of land, more or less.

Also, one other piece of land being a part of lot Number thirteen Peru Bay tract commonly called the Thompson lot, and bounded as follows, to wit:—Beginning at at a stake in the centre of the highway where a Spruce tree formerly stood in the South line of lot sixty two of the aforesaid tract and from thence South nineteen degrees and thirty minutes east, fourteen chains and six links to a stake and stones on the east branch of a small stream of water thence South forty two degrees west, forty one links to a hemlock stump, thence North 55° west five chains and seventy links to a stake thence North forty six degrees West thirteen chains and fifty links to the South line of lot Number sixty two in a small brook, from thence to the place of beginning, containing nine acres and seventy two rods of land, more or less, the two lots above described being the same lots described in two Deeds of conveyance executed by Robert Flack and Sarah his wife to Lawrence Edwards, one Dated January 26, 1842, and the other dated May 20th 1843.

Also, one other piece of land in said town of Willsboro, being a part of Lot Number (63) in said Peru Bay tract and commencing on the North line of lot Number 62, in said tract in the centre of the Highway, which runs through said lot 62, thence North sufficient distance to make fifty acres by coming due east to the east line of said lot 63, thence around to the place of beginning, so as to make the aforesaid number of fifty acres from the north side of said lot (63.)

Which said real estate I shall expose for sale at public vendue at the Inn of David Judd in the town of Elizabethtown, in said county of Essex on the 13th day of June next at 10 o'clock, in the forenoon.

Dated, Keeseville February 26th, 1853.

MORTGAGE SALE

DEFAULT has been made in the payment of the debt secured by a certain mortgage, dated the 21st day of October, 1847, executed by William Galusha and Sophia, his wife, then of Wilmington, in the County of Essex, State of N. Y., to Uriah D. Mihills of Keene, in the county and state aforesaid. and recorded in the office of the clerk of Essex county, in volume N. of Mortgages, pages 283 and 284, on the 28th day of December, 1847, at nine o'clock, A. M. Said mortgage was duly assigned by said Mihills to Willard Bell, January 14th, 1848, and by said Bell duly assigned to Reuben Patridge, January 30, 1849, and by said Patridge duly assigned to M. Finch, Amos Avery and Charles Malbone, assignees of Reuben Sanford, January 1st, 1849, who are now the owners of said mortgage. There is claimed to be due on said mortgage, at the time of the first publication of this notice, the sum of $167.93. Now therefore, notice is hereby given that the premises described in said mortgage, will, by virtue of a power of sale contained in said mortgage, and pursuant to the statute in such case made and provided, be sold at public auction, at the Adirondac Hotel, in Keeseville, in said county, on the 8th day of June next, at 1 o'clock. P. M.

Said mortgaged premises are described in said mortgage as follows: All that certain piece or parcel of land situate in the town of Wilmington, in the county of Essex, being a part of lot No 34, of Mallory's grant, bounded as follows: beginning at a stake and stones standing on the North line of the Sampson lot, 141 rods from the centre of the road leading from the Carpenter house to Blish and Burdick's forge. being the South-West corner of Ephraim French's land, and running East on said line to the West line of said grant, thence North on the line of said grant to the centre of the road leading from Sanford's to St. Armand, thence running Easterly in the centre of said road to a stake and stones, being the North-West corner of a piece of land occupied by David Hatch, thence South 42 degrees, West six rods to the South bank of Mill Brook, thence Easterly along the South bank of said brook 30 rods to a stake and stones being the South-East corner of said Hatch lot, thence North 35 degrees East to the centre of said road, thence Easterly in the centre of said road to the North-West corner of the Carpenter lot, thence South on the line of said Carpenter lot to the South-west corner of said lot, thence East on the line of said lot to the brook, thence up the brook in the centre thereof to a point ten rods below the sawmill, and thence on the South bank of said brook on the line of Ephraim French's lot to the North-west corner thereof, thence South 43 degrees west on the line of said French's lot 126 rods to the place of beginning, containing seventy-five acres, be the same more or less.

At a Surrogates Court, held at the County Judges office in Elizabethtown, in and for the County of Essex, on the 21st day of March, A. D., 1853.

Present: J. E. McVINE, Essex County Judge.

In the matter of the application of Emeline H. Morhous & Abram Weldin, administrator and administratrix, &c. of Rensselaer Morhous, deceased, intestate, for authority to mortgage, lease or sell the Real Estate of the said intestate for the payment of his debts.

Whereas on the petition and application of Emeline H. Morhous, the administratrix, and Abram Weldin, one of the administrators of the goods, &c., of Rensselaer Morhous, late of Willsboro, in the county of Essex, deceased, it has been made satisfactorily to appear to the said County Judge and Surrogate, that the personal estate of the said deceased will be insufficient to pay his debts.

It is therefore ordered, that all persons interested in the estate of the said Rensselaer Morhous, deceased, be directed to appear before the said county Judge and Surrogate, at his office in the town of Elizabethtown, in said county, on the 9th day of May next, at 10 o'clock in the forenoon of that day, to show cause why authority should not be given to the said administrators to mortgage, lease or sell so much of the real estate of the said deceased as shall be necessary to pay his debts.

THE WONDER OF THE WORLD.

DEVINES' COMPOUND

PITCH LOZENGE,

A sure and pleasant Remedy for Colds, Coughs, Croup, Whooping Cough, Asthma, and if lungs enough are left to sustain life, A CERTAIN CURE FOR CONSUMPTION, safe for the Infant or the Invalid, in any stage of weakness.

"The statements that consumption cannot be cured, has destroyed more lives than the disease itself.—[Dr. Warren

Read the following, which to a candid mind places this "Great Remedy," like Cæsar's wife "above suspicion."

TO THE PUBLIC!

We, the undersigned, citizens of Lee, Mass., are acquainted with Mr. Devines, the proprietor and Manufacturer of Devines' Compound Pitch Lozenge and from what we know of it ourselves and have learned from others of its beneficial effects, in cases where it has been used, give it as our opinion that it is a valuable remedy in diseases for which it is recommended and is worthy of public confidence. A. G. Hulburt, Leonard Church, F. G. Taylor, Wm. Taylor, E. A. Bliss, S. A. Hulbart, Josephus Crafts, T. P. Eldridge.

If any individual is to be pitied, and needs sympathy, it is the consumptive—always expecting to get well, and yet the painful evidence of decay almost "makes the inner soul shrink with the outer flesh."

"Some bloom as roses bloom, and live as roses live,
A single morning space!"

While others, in more mature life—by some imprudence and a slight cold neglected—in the hectic flush—the painful cough.

"The prints of their departing steps appears."

BUT HERE IS HOPE! Mr Wm. Devines, the originator and manufacturer of the Pitch Lozenge, under Providence, was raised to perfect health by the use of these Lozenges alone, after he was pronounced by his physician to be almost dying with consumption.

This fact is generally known in Berkshire County and is the neighborhood talk, and wonder in Lee, and in Great Barrington, Mass.

From Dr. Brown, of Lee, Mass.

This certifies that I have made use of Devines' Compound Pitch Lozenge for cold and cough, and found immediate relief. Therefore I would recommend it to the public as being a safe and sovereign remedy. H. C. BROWN.

MORSE'S

COMPOUND SYRUP OF

Yellow Dock Root.

THIS is a Purely Vegetable Compound, scientifically prepared from the best Roots and Herbs of the Materia Medica, and has gained a universal reputation for the following effects, viz: Regulating and Strengthening the Liver and Digestive Organs, and Cleansing the Stomach and Bowels, and curing all Billious Diseases, Liver Complaints, Dyspepsia. Indigestion, Costiveness. Piles Headache, Fever and Ague, Jaundice Nausea. Loss of Appetite, &c., and causing the food to nourish and support every part, PURIFYING THE BLOOD, and thus curing all Humors. Cutaneous Eruptions, Scrofula. Salt Rheum, Erysipelas, Scald Head, Canker, Pimples on the face, Blotches, Ulcers, Tumors, Mercurial Diseases, Cancers, &c. Regulating the secretory Organs, and by enabling them to perform their proper functions, preventing and curing many painful and dangerous diseases; Strengthening and Quieting the nervous system, thus allaying Nervous Irritation, and curing all Diseases of the Nerves, as Hysteria, Neuralgia, Cramps, &c.

It is unrivalled in the cure of all FEMALE COMPLAINTS, as weakness, general debility, Irregularity, Obstructions, Swelling of the Feet, Limbs, Joints, &c., caused by weakness; also, Lung and Throat Complaints, as Colds, Coughs, Asthma. Consumption, &c., also, Dropsy.

Having made use of the Compound Syrup of Yellow Dock Root, prepared by C Morse and Co., either ourselves or in our families and finding it to be a very salutary and effectual preparation, we do most cheerfully recommend it to the public as a very valuable medicine.

E Bourne, Esq, Cashier National Bank, Providence, R. I.; A. W. Spencer, Esq, Cashier Lime Rock Bank, do do Rev. William Phillips. Rev. J. B. Richmond, C. S Jones. editor Providence Gen. Advt, Wm. Field, M. W. G. M. Cyrus Fisher, M. E. H. P. James Hutchinson, G. S. Dea., V. J. Bates, Doct Benj. Cathy. and one hundred others of the most respectable families of Providence.

This certifies that I have for a number of years been acquainted with the composition and mode of manufacture of Morse's Compound Syrup of Yellow Dock Root. I have also been acquainted with its modus operandi in disease, and can say that in all respects it is admirably calculated to remedy that class of Diseases for which it was designed. It is especially valuable in Indigestion and all its attendant symptoms, it excites to healthy action the Liver, removes Torpor, and inactivity of this organ, and stimulates healthy action in all the system. As a Depurator or purifier of the Blood it has no superior.

made by tailors in New York, that for fitting even Genio C. Scott, in his palmiest days was not a circumstance.

We would also inform the public that it is to be sold by wholesale or retail at very low figures for cash, and for quantity and cheapness is far in advance of any other concern in Northern New York. A comparison with the trade, both in prices and quantity is particularly requested.

In connection with the above we would call the attention of the community to our stock of

Fancy & Staple Dry Goods, of every variety; also, hats, caps and furs, paper hangings, window shades, hardware and groceries, rifles and shot guns, amunition, &c., &c. Trunks. and valises, carpet bags, whips and lashes, stone ware, and every description of goods that are wanted or can be found in the country. Don't forget

CHAPTER 76.

AN ACT to authorise the consolidation of certain railroad companies. Passed Apr. 2, 1853.

The People of the State of New York represented in Senate and Assembly do enact as follows:

§ 1. The Albany and Schenectady, Schenectady and Troy, Utica and Schenectady, Syracuse and Utica, Rochester and Syracuse, the Buffalo and Lockport, the Mohawk Valley, and the Syracuse and Utica direct, Buffalo and Rochester, Rochester, Lockport and Niagara Falls Railroad Companies, or any two or more of them, are hereby authorised at any time to consolidate such companies into a single corporation, in the manner following:

1. The directors of any two or more of such corporations may enter into an agreement, under their respective corporate seals, for the consolidation of the said corporations, prescribing the terms and conditions thereof, the mode of carrying the same into effect, the name of the new corporation, the number of directors thereof, which shall not be less than thirteen, nor more than twenty three, the time and place of holding the first elections of directors, the day for annual elections of directors, the amount of capital, and the number of shares of the stock of the new corporation, which shall not be larger in amount than the aggregate amount of capital of the several companies thus consolidated, and shall not be increased except in accordance with the provisions of the act passed April second, eighteen hundred and fifty, the manner of converting the shares of capital stock in each of said corporations into the shares of such new corporation, the manner of paying any shareholder that may decline taking shares in the new corporation, with such other details as they may deem necessary to embrace in such agreement, not inconsistent with the provisions of the act entitled "An act to authorise the formation of railroad corporations and to regulate the same," passed April second, eighteen hundred and fifty.

2. Such agreement of the directors shall not be deemed to be the agreement of the said corporations so proposing to consolidate, untill after it has been submitted to the stockholders of each of said corporations respectively, separately, at a meeting thereof to be called upon a notice of at least thirty days, specifying the time and place of such meeting and the object thereof, to be addressed to each of such stockholders, when their place of residence is known to the secretary, and deposited in the post office, and published for at least three successive weeks in the state paper, and in one of the newspapers printed in each of the counties through or into which the railroad of the said corporation shall extend, and has been sanctioned and approved by such stockholders by the vote of at least two-thirds in amount of the stockholders present at such meetings respectively, voting by ballot in regard to such agreement, either in person or by proxy, each share of such capital stock being entitled to one vote; and when such agreement of the directors has been sanctioned and approved by each of the meetings of the respective stockholders separately, after being submitted to such meetings in the manner above mentioned, then such agreement of the directors shall be deemed to be the agreement of the said several corporations, and a sworn copy of the proceedings of such meetings, made by the secretaries thereof respectively, and attached to the said agreement, shall be evidence of the holding and of the action of such meetings in the premises.

§ 2. Upon the making the said agreement mentioned in the preceding section in the manner required therein, and filing a duplicate or counterpart thereof in the office of the secretary of state, and immediately upon and after the first election of directors of said corporation, the said corporations shall be merged in the new corporation, provided for in the said agreement, to be known by the corporate name therein mentioned, and the details of such agreement shall be carried into effect as provided therein, only such new corporation shall not have any larger powers than are granted by the act entitled "An act to authorise the formation of railroad companies and to regulate the same." passed April second, eighteen hundred and fifty, or be exempt from the performance of any duty which the said several corporations may be liable to perform, except as herein provided.

§ 3. Such new corporation shall possess the general powers and be subject to the general liabilities and restrictions expressed in the third title of the eighteenth chapter of the first part of the revised statutes, it shall also have the general powers and privileges, and be subjected to the general liabilities, restrictions, duties and provisions expressed and contained in the said act entitled "An act to authorise the formation of railroad corporations and to regulate the same," passed April second, eighteen hundred and fifty, and the acts amending the same, so far as the same, are applicable to a railroad corporation, where a railroad is constructed and put in operation.

§ 4. Upon the election of the first board of directors of the said new corporation created by the agreement of the several companies, all and singular the rights, franchises and interests of the said several corporations so consolidated, in and to every species of property, real, personal and mixed, and things in action thereunto belonging, shall be deemed to be transferred to and vested in such new corporation, without any other deed or transfer; and such new corporation shall hold and enjoy the same, together with the rights of way, and all other rights of property, franchises and interests, in the same manner and to the same extent as if the said several corporations so consolidated should have continued to retain the title and transact the business of such corporations; and the title and real estate acquired by either of the said corporations shall not be deemed to revert, or be impaired by means of such act of consolidation or anything relating thereto.

§ 5. The rights of creditors of any corporations that shall be consolidated, shall not in any manner be impaired by any act of consolidation, nor shall any liability or obligation for the payment of any money now due, or hereafter to become due to this state, or any individual, or any claim or demand for damages for any act done, or neglect suffered by any such corporation, be in any manner released or impaired, but such new corporation is declared to succeed to such obligations and liabilities and to be held liable to pay and discharge all the debts and liabilities of each of the corporations that shall be so consolidated, whether on contract or for misconduct or neglect, either to this state or to individuals, and it shall be liable to have an action brought against it to enforce the payment of any money or damages or the performance of any duty which any corporation consolidated into such new corporation was liable to pay or perform, in the same manner as if such new corporation had itself incurred the obligation or liability to pay such money or damages, or perform such duty; and no suit, action or other proceeding now pending before any court or tribunal in which any railroad company that may be so consolidated is a party, shall be deemed to have abated or discontinued, by reason of any such agreement of consolidation; but the same may be prosecuted to final judgment in the same manner as if the said corporation had not entered into such agreement of consolidation, or the said new corporation may be substituted as a party in the place of any corporation of which it shall be composed, by order of the court in which such action, suit or proceeding may be pending.

§ 6. If any stockholder shall, at said meeting of stockholders, or within twenty days thereafter, object to said consolidation and demand payment for his stock, such stockholder or said new company may, if said consolidation take effect at any time thereafter, apply to the supreme court at any special term thereof, held in any county through which any part of the said railroad may pass, for the appointment of three persons to appraise the value of such stock. If the court shall be satisfied that reasonable notice has been given of such application, it shall thereupon appoint three persons to appraise the value of said stock, and shall designate the time and place of meeting of such appraisers, and give such directions in regard to the proceedings on said appraisement as shall be deemed proper, and shall also direct the manner in which payment for such stock shall be made to such stockholder. The court may fill any vacancy in the board of apraisers occurring by refusal or neglect to serve, or otherwise; the appraisers shall meet at the time and place designated, and they, or any two of them, after being duly sworn honestly and faithfully to discharge their duties, shall estimate and certify the value of such stock at the time of such dissent as aforesaid, and deliver one copy of their appraisal to the said company, and another to the said stockholder, if demanded; the charges and expenses of the appraisers shall be paid by the company. When the corporation shall have paid the amount of the appraisal as directed by the court, such stockholder shall cease to have any interest in said stock, and in the corporate property of the said corporation, and the said stock may be held or disposed of by the said corporation.

§ 7. When any two or more of the railroad companies named in this act are so consolidated, said consolidated company shall carry way passengers on their road at a rate not to exceed two cents per mile.

§ 8. This act shall take effect immediately.

State of New York, } I have compared
Secretary's Office } the preceding with the original law on file in this office, and do certify that the same is a correct transcript therefrom and of the whole of said original.

HENRY S. RANDALL,
Secretary of State.

Colonization.

The Republic of Liberia

One of the many spots on the earth in which we are interested is on the west coast of Africa. Judging our readers by ourself, we devote a little space this week to the history, and progress of Colonization, and the Republic of Liberia, for which we are indebted to the Colonization Journal.

Liberia is of American origin, matured and protected through all the trials and changes of colonial life up to her present national existence by the benevolence and enterprise of our citizens; associated with the names and sustained by the influences of the greatest statesmen and the purest philanthropists of America, her humble history connects itself with our own, and forms one of the most interesting chapters in our national annals.

On the 24th of December, 1816, a meeting was held in this Capitol for the purpose of adopting measures to assist in the formation and execution of a plan for the colonization of the free people of color, with their consent, in Africa. The meeting, though small in numbers, was great in the moral, intellectual and political character of the men who composed it. Henry Clay presided over its deliberations, and John Randolph and other distinguished public men of that day took part in the discussions which led to the formation of the Colonization Society.

In the month of February, 1820, the ship Elizabeth sailed from the United States with 86 passengers. They were free people of color, voluntarily emigrating from this country to the western coast of Africa to make a permanent settlement there.—The good ship carried them safely to their new destination. From this small plantation of legally manumitted slaves has grown up, in the course of thirty years, a nation containing of emigrants and natives. 200,000 inhabitants, governed by a Republican form of government, with a written Constitution like our own, and exercising an undisputed dominion over 700 miles of seacoast, with an extent of territory yet undefined, and commanding by its position the trade and commerce of Western Africa.—

The President of that Republic with his wife recently made a visit to England where they were treated with the greatest attention, and consideration, and were sent home in a government vessel free of expense.—We quote from a correspondent of the Colonisation Journal in England.

"There are regular steamers that go once a month from Plymouth to Monrovia, and there are other steamers on the way to the Cape of Good Hope that call at Monrovia once a month to leave merchandise and passengers, so that you may say there are two half monthly or fortnightly steamers going regularly between England and Liberia.

These frequent and rapid (only twenty two or twenty three days) conveyances are a wonderful increase of commerce and business relations, and if continued a few years longer, without any competition from the United States, there will be a complete monopoly of the trade and of influence over the people of Liberia. What your Government should do immediately is to recognize the independence of Liberia in the most gracious manner possible, to establish a line of monthly steamers between Norfolk and Monrovia, and for Virginia to make her annual subscription towards transporting emigrants to Liberia so available as that it would be efficient for the purpose it was intended for. These three measures would immediately restore the lost ground we have sustained on the coast of Africa, and would be of incalculable utility in promoting the colonization plan and increasing our trade with Africa. Pray tell me what is the prospect of the new administration of General Pierce being favorable to colonization?"

This Republic has been acknowledged by Belgium, Great Britain, Prussia, Brazil, and France. Although "Liberia is of American oreign, matured, and protected through all the trials and changes of Colonial life up to her present national existence by the benevolence of our citizens," her Independence has not yet been acknowledged by the U. S. Government from motives we will not here discuss. We give the following letter written by a colored man, Samuel B. Webster, about 20 years of age—who emigrated from Lafayette, Ind., last autumn, in the bark Shirley—to one of his friends in Indiana.

MONROVIA, Jan. 12, 1853.

Messrs. J. H. MORRIS AND BIRTCH:

SIRS: I embrace the present opportunity to drop a few lines to inform you that I have arrived safe at Manrovia, Liberia. I cannot give you all the particulars of my voyage, &c., as I have several letters to write at this time. But I would say to you that I am agreeably disappointed. As far as I have seen, the country has but few objections, if any.

I embarked on the barque Shriley, on Saturday, Nov. 27, 1852, and cast anchor on the 6th of January 1853, at 3 o'clock, making a passage of forty days from port to port. As to the pleasantness of the voyage, it might have been improved much. The fare was rather course, but plenty of it.

As to the climate here, there is none to excel it; I am certain you would like it. I have been informed by the old settlers of Monorvia that they might have never known warmer weather than we have a[t] present. My thermometer has not gone [be]low 64° as yet. It stands this morning at 78°, and a person feels very comfortable with a thick coat on. I have been up St. Paul river as far as Caldwell, and I come to the conclusion to make it my future home. It is certainly the finest country I have ever seen. There are no parts of the Wabash, from its mouth to its head, that can in any way compare with it in beauty and fertility. I have actually seen, with my own eyes, large fields of sugar-cane, and drank of the syrup made from it; and as fine specimens of coffee as the world produces. I also saw rice, cotton, cassada, yams, chickens in abundance, and as fine, if not finer hogs than are seen running about the streets of Lafayette, and plenty of them; as fine cattle, although they are not quite as large as our two year old cattle, but make excellent beef. I have eaten several meals of entire African production.

I went up St. Paul river some nine or ten miles, and in that distance I saw some six or eight fine brick houses, one sugar mill, and a number of frame houses. After you get into the St. Paul river you will not be out of sight of houses for fifteen miles and perhaps farther.

I took breakfast with Mr. Findley on Tuesday morning last. He and his family are all well, and doing well. He has forty acres of land on St. Paul river, and quite a number of coffee trees planted. The people here are very kind and hospitable from the President town. This place has been awfully slandered or misrepresented. The people in Monrovia are generally contented and hapy, and live in a style superior to the people in Cincinnatti or Baltimore.—They have every thing on the table that heart could wish or appetite crave. Some of the cittizens live in fine stone and brick houses, and the houses are much better than those occupied by the colored people of the towns in the West.

The business character of Monrovia is something after the character of Lafayette, but not so extensive. It is common to realize from one to five hundred per cent.—Coffee, sugar, shot, and salt pork sell readily at twenty-five cents per pound. Flour per barrel, twelve dollars; per pound, eight cents. Common bleached muslin, such as we get in the States, for six and eight cents per yard. Every other article in proportion. For two yards of shirting you can get one gallon palm oil, which is worth in Baltimore from fifty to sixty-two and a half cents.

There is nothing more certain than a fortune to a man who invests from one hundred to two thousand dollars in the right kind of articles for this place. But when he comes here he must act for himself.

Here as elsewhere, there are sharpers, I have been informed. There are lying in port at this time five vessels, three American, one English brig and one French barque. A prussian man of war sailed last Monday morning from this port; an English man of war on Tuesday last, and on Sabbath morning last the Government schooner Lark sailed to leeward.

Besides, there are several little schooners and palm oil vessels belonging to the republic. There are sixteen vessels owned by individuals of this republic, four or five on the stocks building.

If you hear of any peroson coming here, tell them to make all their arrangements with the agent at Washington, not at Baltimore, for reasons I shall explain more fully hereafter.

I saw Mrs. Fry. Herself and children are all well. Her husband, Henry Fry, died about two months since, they tell me. I also saw Mrs. Tompkins, of Madison, Ind., herd aughter and son; they all say they have no desire to return to America, and the fatality of that expedition they attribute to having small-pox on board the vessel. They think their systems were impregnated with that disease when they took the fever. Answer this, and pay postage on your letters. I answer none but post-paid letters.

I remain yeurs, &c,
S. B. WEBSTER.

The Singing of the Telegraph Wires.

Willis writes from "Idlewild:"—

With a November blast as with a June breeze, the news passes to music! Whether the country folks or city belles listen, the Æolian harps strung along upon the telegraph poles, play perpetually the same. To the strange beauty of the music (little noticed or valued) I have become quite wedded, in my life out of doors for the last winter. It is more varied and beautiful than people think. You can always hear it—if not as you walk upon the road, at least by laying your ear against the poles—and, by selecting one that stands near a running stream, you may hear a duet of breeze and brook, a capricious out-singing, of each other alternately by wind and water, that is as heavenly, to muse by as a voluntary of nature well could be. The poles differ very much, both in the quantity and quality of sound—partly, perhaps, from difference of size, or kind of wood, or tightness with which the wire is pressed by the leaning—but, by stopping in your walks you get to know these with their variations, and you may thus choose your standing place and have music fainter or louder, to suit your mood. There is one telegraph post, by a little bridge which crosses Idlewild brook, where I have heard a great deal of waking dream accompaniment. Stopping there with the glow of exercise in the blood, there seems a kind of fellowship in the instrument's being oneself, independent of the wintry air. The invalid's nerves, too, (as much more susceptible to pleasure as to pain) are ready for harmony in its most delicate caprices. What news was [sen]t on those wires; what death or [ma]rriage, love or business, was being told in those vibrations; I did not loose romance by trying to guess or discriminate. The same tune seldom carried the same language to any two hearts. But there it was, murmuring day by day in changeful contention with the brook, always somewhat audible when closely listened for, and often as loud as love whisper and as changefully expressive—and I must own to have grown habituated to it as a luxury. How many good things we may have in this mercenary world, after all, without paying for them. "Telegraphing is expensive," but here are its greatest advantage (per my use) and nothing to pay. I trust the stockholders will take the hint, however, and put sentry boxes around the posts, to be let out for roadside operas!

An Incident in the Slavery of Solomon Northrup.

We gave a short time since an extract from the Narrative of Northrup, who was kidnapped and carried to a plantation on the Red River. The following is another. The work from which it is taken is in press and is to be issued in the course of a few weeks by Derby & Miller:—

At length, one day, while we were in the yard, Freeman came out and ordered us to our places, in the great room. A gentleman was waiting for us as we entered, and inasmuch as he will be often mentioned in the progress of this narrative, a description of his personal appearance, and my estimation of his character, at first sight, may not be out of place

He was a man above the ordinary height, somewhat bent and stooping forward. He was a good looking man, and appeared to have reached about the middle age of life. There was nothing repulsive in his presence; but on the other hand, there was something cheerful and attractive in his face, and in his tone of voice. The finer elements were all kindly mingled in his breast, as any one could see. He moved about among us, asking many questions, as to what we could do, and what labor we had been accustomed to; if we thought we would like to live with him, and would be good boys if he would buy us, and other interrogatories of like character.

After some further inspection, and conversation touching prices, he finally offered Freeman one thousand dollars for me, nine hundred for Harry, and seven hundred for Eliza. Whether the smallpox had depreciated our value, or from what cause Freeman had concluded to fall five hundred dollars from the price I was before held at, I cannot say. At any rate, after a little shrewd reflection, he announced his acceptance of the offer.

As soon as Eliza heard it, she was in agony again. By this time she had become haggard and hollow-eyed with sickness and with sorrow. It would be a relief if I could consistently pass over in silence the scene that now ensued. It recalls memories more mournful and affecting than any language can portray. I have seen mothers kissing for the last time the faces of their dead offspring; I have seen them looking down into the grave, as the earth fell with a dull sound upon their coffins, hiding them from their eyes forever; but never have I seen such an exibition of intense, unmeasured, and unbounded grief, as when Eliza was parted from her child. She broke from her place in the line of women, and rushing down where Emily was standing, caught her in her arms. The child, sensible of some impending danger, instinctively fastened her hands around her mother's neck, and nestled her little head upon her bosom. Freeman sternly ordered her to be quiet, but she did not heed him. He caught her by the arm and pulled her rudely, but she only clung the closer to the child—Then, with a volley of great oaths, he struck the her such a heartless blow, that she staggered backward, and was like to fall. Oh! how piteously then did she beseech and beg and pray that they might not be seperated. Why could they not be purchased together? Why not let her have one of her dear children? "Mercy, mercy, master!" she cried, falling on her knees. "Please, master, buy Emily. I can never work if she is taken from me: I will die."

Freeman interferred again, but disregarding him, she still plead most earnestly, telling how Randall had been taken from her—how she never would see him again, and now it was to bad—oh, God! it was too bad, too cruel, to take her away from Emily—her pride—her only darling, that could not live, it was so young, without its mother!

Finally, after much more of supplication, the purchaser of Eliza stepped forward, evidently affected and said to Freeman he would buy Emily, and asked him what her price was.

"What is her price? Buy her?" was the responsive interrogatory of Theophilus Freeman. And instantly answering his own inquiry, he added, "I won't sell her. She's not for sale."

The man remarked that he was not in need of one so young—that it would be of no profit to him, but since the mother was so fond of her, rather than see them seperated, he would pay a reasonable price.—But to this humane proposal Freeman was entirely deaf. He would not sell her then on any account whatever. There were heaps and piles of money to be made of her, he said, when she was a few years older.—There were men enough in New Orleans who would give five thousand dollars for such an extra, handsome, fancy piece as Emily would be, rather than not get her. No, no, he would not sell her then. She was a beauty—a picture—a doll—one of the regular bloods—none of your thick-lipped, bullet-headed, cotton picking niggers—if she was might be be d—d.

When Eliza heard Freeman's determination not to part with Emily, she became absolutely frantic.

"I will not go without her. They shall not take her from me," she fairly shrieked, her shrieks commingling with the loud and angry voice of Freeman commanding her to be silent.

Meantime Harry and myself had been to the yard and returned with our blankets, and were at the front door ready to leave. Our purchaser stood near us, gazing at Eliza with an expression indicative of regret at having bought her at the expense of so much sorrow. We waited some time, when, finally, Freeman, out of patience, tore Emily from her mother by main force, the two clinging to each other with all their might.

"Don't leave me, mamma—don't leave me," screamed the child, as its mother was pushed harshly forward; "Don't leave me—come back, manma," she still cried, stretching forth her little arms imploringly. But she cried in vain. Out of the door and into the street we are quickly hurried. Still we could hear her calling to her mother, "Come back—don't leave me—come back mamma," until her infant voice grew faint and still faint, and gradually died away, as distance intervened, and finally was wholly lost.

Eliza never after saw or heard of Emily or Randall. Day nor night, however, were they ever absent from her memory. In the cotton field, in the cabin, always and everywhere, she was talking of them—often to them, as if they were actually present. Only when absorbed in that illusion, or asleep, did she ever have a moment's comfort afterwards.

She was no common slave, as has been said. To a large share of natural intelligence which she possessed, was added a general knowledge and information on most subjects. She had enjoyed opportunities such are vouchsafed to very few of her oppressed class. She had been lifted up into the regions of a higher life. Freedom—freedom for herself and for her offspring, for many years had been her cloud by day, and her pillar of fire by night. In her pilgrimage through the wilderness of bondage, with eyes fixed upon that hope-inspiring beacon, she at length ascended to "the top of Pisgah," and beheld "the land of promise." In an unexpected moment she was utterly overwhelmed with disappointment and despair. The glorious vision of liberty had faded from her sight as they led her away into captivity. Now "she weepeth sore in the night, and tears are on her cheeks; all her friends have dealt treacherously with her: they have become her enemies."

THE TERRORS OF UGLINESS.—The last number of the Democratic Review, is ornamented (?) with a portrait of Mr. Bennett, of the Herald. It must be confessed that Bennett is not a handsome man. The Louisville Journal pokes fun at his likeness in the following pitiless style:

There's one thing we will readily admit, and that is, if Bennett's portrait be correct he is the ugliest of the Democratic editors. For a while, we doubt whether he or a certain neighbor of ours is the ugliest mortal, but the twist in the eye of Bennett decided the contest in his favor. We congratulate our neighbor that there is one editor uglier than himself in the Democratic ranks.

Bennett's portrait is terrific. Such a thing ought never to be painted or daguerreotyped. It ought to be considered a penal offence to make anything so revolting to all our ideas of propriety. No man has a right to monopolize so much ugliness.—If Bennett's ugliness could be distributed over a thousand faces, it would make each of them intensely, hatefully ugly. He ought not to be permitted to go into the street without a blanket over his awful frontispiece. No wonder that so many of the New York children die of convulsions, since Bennett is permitted to walk abroad with uncovered face. We once heard of a man's face that was so ugly that it was placed on andirons for the purpose of frightening children from the fire with much effect. No child dared to approach the andirons, and the liability to combustion from such cause was greatly lessened. If Bennett's ugly likeness were stamped on fire-places, the effect would be decidedly bad, for the children would not dare to go near enough to the fire to keep warm, and would become frost bitten and perhaps frozen to death—We cannot conceive of any reason why anything should be as ugly as Bennett.—He is uglier than a half starved hyena.—He is ugliness perfected. There is a thoroughness about his ugliness which defies competition. When Mirabeau described himself as a tiger that had the small-pox, he placed a very ugly idea in everybody's mind, but it was beautiful when compared with Bennett's face. When Appelles made his beauty, his Venus, he took an eye from one woman, a nose from another, a mouth from a third, and so on until the Venus was complete in her more than earthly beauty. Now if any Appelles, or artist of any appellation, wished to make the most indubitably perfect representation of ugliness, he would not be compelled to take features from several very ugly persons, but all he would be compelled to do would be to get Bennett's face, and the enterprise would be accomplished.

"The Union of Lakes, the Union of Lands,
The Union of States none can sever,
The Union of Hearts, the Union of Hands,
The Flag of Our UNION—Forever."

The "Happy Family."

Whoever has visited "Barnum's Museum," in N. Y. city, has of course, attentively observed a largo cage, in which are confined together a great variety of animals, cats, dogs, rats, monkies, owls, parrots, etc., etc., etc. This is called Barnum's "happy family." But all who have seen it are aware that "Pandemonium" would be a far more appropriate name, the conduct of this "family" being such as one would expect in the abode of demons. This "family" affords a most apt illustration of the "union and harmony" of the democratic party at the present time, as a few passages from their own journals will show.

1. The following, from the Union, is as much a caricature upon the democracy, as the "happy family" is upon Barnum's cage of warring elements!:

"It is pleasant to observe how completely the jealousies and heart burnings which existed among the different portions of the Democracy, prior to the nomination of Gen. Pierce, and even up to and for some time after his inauguration, have been dissipated."

2. It is almost a pity to dissipate such a beautiful picture, and we will do it as mildly as possible. In the Assembly of this state, Hon. D. B. Taylor, hunker, of N. Y. city, introduced resolutions frankly and squarely endorsing the President's inaugural; but Hon. Mr Gale, barnburner, moved a series of equivocal resolutions, instead, upon which the Argus thus speaks out:

"It is quite apparent that the democracy of the state understand what this attempt at evasion and subterfuge means. * * * It means that the pretences in that quarter of repentance and return to the democratic party, which they deserted and betrayed, are sheer hypocrisy—and that nothing but the necessity of keeping up appearances, at the present critical juncture, prevents their open and decided repudiation of the eminently right and high-toned national democratic doctrines of the Inaugural."

3. The Buffalo Republic, one of the few honest free soil papers, thus speaks on the same subject:

"We should be pleased to have patronage from the government—who would not? And if it may be had without stultifying ourselves by endorsing the constitutionality of the Fugitive Slave Law, we will receive it thankfully. But, inasmuch as we can find nothing in the constitution which authorises legislation by Congress on that subject, we believe all the laws that Congress ever enacted in relation to it, were without constitutional authority. So believing, we cannot be compelled, either by the Albany Argus, or by its resolution mover, Mr. Taylor, or by any other influence, or for any consideration, to misrepresent ourselves on that subject."

4. Says the Argus:

"The Speaker's packed committee, 'the gang of confederates'—with the Canal law before them, the committee deliberately suppress an important part of what they profess to quote, in order to sustain a charge of neglect of duty against the Commissioner. Could malice and unscrupulousness go further?"

Replies the Atlas:

"Thus while the Argus charges the committee with overstating the account, it deliberately falsifies the figures; and when charging upon the committee a suppression of part of the law, it deliberately publishes a mutilated and fabricated extract from the statute. Can audacity go further? It would seem as if the Argus, whenever it found some act of scoundrelism necessary to its disreputable attempt to prejudice the case, commenced by charging such an act on the accusers, and then perpetrating it itself.

If the Argus believes that its language of Billingsgate is more pungent for being stale as well as fishy, and can reconcile its readers to its taste in this respect, we certainly shall not object to its daily serving up of worn out epithets and slang against the Democrats of the last Legislature, and the Speaker and committees of the Assembly."

5. A fine "kettle of fish" is boiling in Washington county. It seems that the new "M. C" elect, committed himself to a hunker, in Whitehall, for the Post-office, but afterward saw fit to go in for one of his own stripe, a barnburner—whereupon the hunker "resolved to practice the Golden Rule, by returning good for evil." Accordingly he sought in the New York market, for a suitable present with which to reward the M. C. At length he found one in the shape of an elegant suit of "Negro clothing," which he purchased and sent to "Charley," free of charge, with a request that he put it on immediately, as it would serve as an expression badge of his principles!"

Verily, "how pleasant it is for brethren to dwell together in unity!" And then just remember, that "all who stand upon the platform," and the Atlas, and the Argus, and Hon. D. B. Taylor, and Hon. Mr. Gale, and the Buffalo Republic, "Charley" and his hunker friend, and all who are for the Canals, and all who are against them, and all who are "one side or the other," and secession, and Fillibuster, and anti-Fillibuster, and Tariff and anti-Tariff, and Abolition and Union, are all democrats, brethren of the same "happy family."—Just think of it.

The Canals and the Tariff.

Congress and the Legislature adjourned, without giving these subjects the attention which we were assured on all sides, in the press, on the stump, in the highways and by-ways, they would receive at the hands of the democracy. The press, and the leading politicians of this section, knew this result during the late campaign, as well as they do now—and they stand convicted of deliberate deception of the democratic masses. Pledged in the most public manner to the faithful prosecution of the Canal enlargement, and the immediate revision of the Tariff, they have neglected to attend to either; but none, save the masses, are disappointed. How long they can be duped by this "democracy" remains to be seen. If they could be persuaded to give it a little investigation, "democracy" would become a "by-word and a reproach" in the estimation of every candid man. Read the following:

"What are we Coming to?—At the port of New York alone, the imports for January showed an excess over the same month of last year amounting to $2,428,873. The imports for February showed a still larger increase, amounting to $8,232,343; and the imports for March, we see by statements just published, show an excess of $6,825,926, making a total increase in imports for three months as compared with last year of $17,487,142!

If the same ratio of increase and decrease should continue for any great length of time, it would of itself produce revulsion and a crisis. The total value of imports for the three months above named were, in whole numbers, $50,336,781
Exports duting same period, 26,246,478

Balance against the country, $24,090,303

In other words, the country has run in debt. in the space of three months, for foreign merchandise, over twenty four millions of dollars! And this sum must be paid. if not in produce and manufactures, in gold and silver."

City Agents.—The following Newspaper Advertising Agents, are hereby authorisod to receive advertisements and subscriptions for the Essex County Republican, at the same rates required at this office, and their receipts will be regarded as payments:

V. B. Palmer, Tribune Buildings, New York, Schollay's Buildings, Boston, and N. W. Corner Third and Chesnut streets, Philadelphia.

S. M. Pettingill & Co., 122 Nassau-st. New York, and 10 State st., Boston.

Wm. H. McDonald, 102 Nassau-street, New York.

Advertising Agencies.—Mr. Palmer is the pioneer in this system of Agencies, and is entitled to all the honor which such an enterprise entitles him to. We are, however, on reflection, unwilling to make him our exclusive agent. We do not think it for our interest. We may be mistaken, but such is our opinion.

Mr. Pettingill is a disciple of Mr Palmer, and we believe will do honor to his great teacher.

Of Mr. McDonald, we know less, but believe him to be a man of honor.

These Agencies. we believe, do all kinds of business entrusted to their care, for a reasonable compensation, and we commend those we have named as eminently trustworthy.

The Session Just Closed.—Several good bills have been passed during the session of the Legislature, now brought to a close, among which are the city reform bill, the bill exempting editors and reporters from certain libel suits, the mock auction bill, the police bill, and others; but the great political measures of the session have failed.—N. Y. Eve. Post.

Yes, "the great political measures of the session" have failed, and why? With a large democratic majority, what is the necessity for this humiliating record? Elected on the most public pledges to complete the Canals, yet these "great political measures of the session" failed—failed through a most determined, but disguised hostility to these great works, on the part of one of the democratic factions. Nevertheless, we suppose it is all in the name of democracy, and though these factions are diametrically opposed on all the great principles of State and National policy, we suppose they are still all "dimocrats of the Jeffersonian school," and will continue to compose the elements of the "united and harmonious democracy."

Improvement.—One of the most substantial buildings which has been erected in this city, is the splendid stone warehouse of Wilson Fliut, Esq., situated on the corner of Battery and Filbert streets. It is built of square free stone, and has a cement roof. It is two stories high, 160 ft. deep, and 137 1-2 ft. front. The walls are 28 inches thick, with iron doors and windows. It has been the main object to make it a substantial fire and water proof structure; and we think the object has been achieved. This building is an ornament to that portion of our city.—San Francisco Journal.

Wilson Flint, named above, we suppose to be one of the firm of S. S. & W. Flint, of Crownpoint, in this county, whose card is in another column. He is also our interesting California correspondent, "W. F." These gentlemen are brothers, and have been carrying on a heavy business, both here and in California, for several years—manufacturing here and shipping to California for sale. Success, it seems is crowning their efforts, as it ever will honest industry.

District Tent, I. O. R.

action on the death of mrs. m. hall.

Your Committee would further Report, that as we from time to time, renew our pledge to each other to sustain and assist with our best counsel, and bear each others burthens, as we journey through our common pilgrimage—it is peculiarly appropriate for the Brothers of the District Tent, to manifest to our worthy Bro. and friend, Monroe Hall, the respected Chief Ruler of the District, our kindly sympathy with him, in the domestic affliction which he has sustained since last we met—and would therefore offer the following Resolution:

Resolved, That the members of Champlain District Tent, have learned with grief and warm sympathy, of the domestic bereavement which has darkened the horizon of our worthy brother Monroe Hall:

The chosen companion of his life, the wife of his heart, has by the fiat of the one common Father, been called home. She has preceded him in the one journey common to every child of Earth, and Brother Hall is alone:

There is a sacredness of grief, a depth of sorrow, to which more words ordinarily bring at first aggravation, rather than alleviation. Still, knit to Brother Hall, by the strong bonds of brotherhood in a holy cause, as well as by the respect and esteem that those who know him must feel, we cannot refrain from tendering to Brother Hall our cordial condolence, and heart-felt sympathy, in the deep grief that has fallen upon him. Sharing as we do in his sorrow, we unite with him in the consoling reflection, that behind the dark clouds of present affliction, the sun of Divine Benevolence still ever rolls. May its warming rays soon illumine his present darkness.

Respectfully submitted,

D. Dobie,

The Canals.

We need the enlarged Canal, completed and in operation, at the earliest practicable day. Our city needs it—our State and her finances need it—the free West needs it—our country and the world need it. Why can we not have it?—Tribune.

Because the Whigs will not trust the people with an opportunity of declaring, by their votes, whether they will tax themselves to make the enlargement at once, or not.—Evening Post.

Or, because the Anti-Canal faction will not let the Canals enlarge and complete themselves with their own Revenues and Credit, without taxation.—Albany Journal.

Here is the whole case in a nutshell.—Of course the people will never consent to be taxed to build the Canals, when they can be made to build themselves. This the Barnburners know, and in proposing the tax they only seek the ultimate defeat of the enlargement, having always been opposed to it.

But it is said that the Whigs will not trust the people with the opportunity of declaring whether they will tax themselves. With a democratic state administration, we don't see what the Whigs can do about it, but then it may be well enough to hold them, or somebody, responsible for the acts of the majority, who have proved themselves more fit for the Lunatic Asylum, than for seats in the Legislature.

To our Cotemporaries.

We send this initial number of our Journal to the entire Newspaper Press of this country; and if our editorial brethren are moved to respond to this Telegraphic dispatch we shall duly appreciate the courtesy, and send a message every week.—[The Spiritual Telegraph.

We have received a copy of the Telegraph and are "moved to respond." Our response is this; We consider the pretense that "spirits" have any agency in producing the "raps," not merely an arrant humbug, but a diabolical imposition, injurious to morals and religion, destructive to reason and common sense, and none but fools, knaves, and simpletons will engage in propogating so vile a theory. We trust that Editors or the Telegraph will "duly appreciate" this "courtesy," and if they wish to send us "a message every week" they can do so, but we advise them to abandon what we consider a blasphemous publication.

Bowie Inditer.—This is the title of a paper printed in Boston, Bowie Co. Texas, Chas. R. Joslin, Editor and Proprietor.—It is less than half the size of the Republican and published at $1, a year. We clip a couple of items from its editorial columns by way of showing our readers the way things are done away down in the "lone star" state of the Hero of San Jacinto:

The "Suckers!"—We are often amused at the extreme condescension exhibited by those persons to whom we occasionally give a copy of our paper, when requested by them, and who appear to think they are doing us a great favor by reading it. Yet, from the gratification evinced when they get it for nothing, they evidently consider each paper equal to two bits clear gain; but, as to paying for it, they would view the two cents per week as a dead loss.

How to Get Drunk.—Get two or three jolly boys, and your fishing-tackle and a large bottle of brandy; then agree with each other to take a drink for every fish you catch—and if you don't get drunk there' no fish in the creek. Try it, boys.

The Baptist Home Mission Society.

The proceedings of this society are contained at length in the Troy Whig from which we give the following condensed statement.

The twenty-first Annual Anniversary of the American Home Mission Society, is now being held at the Third st. Baptist Church in this city. The meeting was called to order by Rev. B. M. Hill, Corresponding Secretary. An organization was effected by the appointment of Rev. L. Howard as President pro tem, and Rev. J. R. Stone, Recording Secretary pro tem.

Prayer was then offered by the Rev. E. L. McGown of New York city.

The several committees were then appointed, and the annual report of the Treasurer presented.

The condition of the Treasury, as submitted by the report, is as follows:

Balance from last year,	$6, 311 65
Receipts for this year,	45, 354 93
Total,	$51, 470 56
Total amount of disbursements for the same period,	$47,004 58
Leaving a balance in the Treasury at the present time of	$4,465 98

The liabilities of the society at the close of the financial year were $36,007 78; the resources during the same period $8, 891-80.

The missionary operations of the society, says the report, have been extended as much as the financial condition of the society would allow. The condition of the mission in California has been much improved during the past year, and all the principal cities and towns are now supplied with resident Missionaries. It speaks of the fearful effects of the great influx of Catholic foreigners—also, of the emigration from China, in introducing Catholicism and Paganism into our country. Of the request of several Indian tribes in the Far West to be admitted into the benefits of the Mission, as a new and a cheering feature. It states the number of Missionaries at 142; the number of States and Territories supplied 15; stations 500; number baptized 1025; amount contributed for the support of Home Mission $45,354.

It shows the insufficiency of the sums bequeathed to the Society to carry on its labors, and calls for greater efforts to procure donations to the funds.

The meeting then proceeded to the appointment of the following committees, viz: —Committee on Financial Affairs; on Mission in the Far West; on Obituary notices; on Mission for north-eastern New York and Canada; on Mission for Mississippi Valley.

The missionaries have been distributed as follows:—In Canada (West) 3; Grande Ligne Stations, Canada (East)6; Pennsylvania, 3; Deleware, 2; Ohio, 2; Michigan, 9; Indiana, 35; Illinois, 23; Wisconsin, 36; Iowa, 22; Minnesota, 4; Oregon, 3; California, 3; New Mexico, 4; besides whom, 9 collecting agents have been employed the whole or a portion of the year.

The Missionaries report the organization of 59 churches; and the ordination of 30 ministers. Twelve houses of worship have been completed, and thirty are in progress of building.

The Churches, aided by the Society, have contributed to the usual objects of Christian benevolence, $4,293 08, besides about $15,473 for the suport of their ministers.

Two or three ministers under appointment, to commence labors from or after April 1, are designated for Illinois or Iowa, and the other for North Western Minnesota.

The following officers were elected for the ensuing year:—

President—Hon. Isaac Davis, of Mass.

Vice Presidents—Wm. Colgate, Esq., of N. Y. John P. Crozier, Esq., Chester, Pa.

Treasurer—Charles J. Martin, Esq., of N. Y.

Auditor—Garret N. Bleecker, Esq., of N. Y.

Cor. Secretary—Rev. B. M. Hill, D. D., N. Y.

Rec. Secretary—Rev. Thos. Armitage, N. Y.

After the adjournment of the public meeting, an election of officers was held, tellers being appointed, and ballots taken, and that it resulted in the selection of the entire previous Board. The exercises in the churches were of the most interesting character. In the evening the ordination of a native Indian as missionary to the Far West, attracted a large audience, at the Third street Baptist Church, Rev. Mr. Baldwin's.

Loss of Ship William and Mary.

200 lives lost!—&c.

The brig Ruchen Carner, arrived here this morning with Capt. Stimson, mate, 2d mate, and 6 of the crew of the ship "William and Mary," of Bath, lost at sea. The W. and M. left Liverpool for New York, with a cargo of railroad iron, and 208 passengers, nearly all of whom, together with the steward and two of the seamen went down with the ship!

The Captain reports that the W. and M. struck on a sunken rock, near the Great Isaacs on the evening of the 3d of May.

After thumping heavily for 15 minutes, she fell off and struck another rock within a few rods of the first. Here she thumped a few times and fell off again into deep water, when she began to fill. After laboring at the pumps until 7 o'clock in the morning without avail—and finding the ship with 10 feet of water in her hold, and fast sinking, the captain, mates and crew, took the boats and left her. In a few minutes after she went down, carrying with her nearly two hundred souls!

The long boat and life boat, which were filled with passengers, parted company.—A few hours afterwards a bark, apparently bound to Europe, hove to in the direction of these boats, and it is supposed these passengers were rescued.

B. H. Baldwin, whig, resigned his clerkship in the Land Office to day.—Ex. paper.

Autobiography of a British Soldier in the United States Army. Being observations and adventures in the States and Mexico. New York: Stringer and Townsend.

We always have brilliant accounts of a successful military campaign, that fill the heart and thrill the soul with patriotic emotion—that awakens in the bosom of the distant reader, a love of country, and fills them with a heroic emulation that urges them to the assistance of their fellow-countrymen. We have thrilling accounts of individual prowess, and combined effort in our little army during the Mexican war, that must ever be dear to the American heart. The deeds of the lamented Clay, the intrepid Ringgold, the chivalrous May, and gallant Ransom, with many others, stand out in proud distinction on the page of fame; and time cannot rust the infinite purity of their dear bought laurels. They shine resplendent in the military galaxy that formed the nucleus of our military system. In the whirl of excitement, the hearty cheers, the brilliant illumination and the sonorous tones of thundering cannon, the fate of the unfortunate soldier is forgotten. No thought of the solitary seeker of a lost comrade on the bloody field of battle, who has become endeared by months of danger and fatigue, or perhaps a brother who, but a few hours before, went out full of the majesty of hopeful manhood, to mar their wild exultation. No thought of the heart-strings sundered of the young mother, who's support and hope lies a disfigured, mangled mass—a victim of the unholy practice of war.

We all remember with what national pride we read the record of their exploits, and with what anxiety we waited to hear of new victories. In all this the private, who bears the brunt of battle and the fatigueing march—the midnight watch and debilitating bivouck—is scarcely remembered, and if at all, but by a passing remark.—This book emanates from the ranks, as the author served five years in the regular service, and in all the battles from the bombardment of Vera Cruz, to taking the city of Mexico, and is a faithful transcript of the trials and hardships of the common soldier. The punishments resorted to for the most trifling offence, are barbarous in the extreme, and more becoming barbarians, than educated officers of the American army, in the 19th century. We blush to think that the chivalrous bearing of our officers, so distinct on the battle field, should descend to the inhuman practices related in this book. As an example we quote:—

"One of the modes of punishment practised while in the city, consisted in placing the culprit standing on a barrel in the open street, exposed to the heat of the sun all day, and the derisive admiration of the street passengers. Of course a sentry was in attendance to shoot or run him through with a bayonet if he attempted to escape from his uncomfortable position. Another mode consisted in placing the victim on a high wooden horse, and I knew of one man losing his life, in consequence of being compelled to sit for a series of days and nights in that position; one night while asleep, he fell from the back of his inanimate steed, which was about eight feet high, on the hard pavement, and was so severely injured that he died shortly afterwards in consequence.

But the favourite punishment was that called the buck and gag; which is administered after the following manner. The culprit being seated on the ground, his feet are drawn up to his hams, and his wrists tied firmly in front of his legs; a long stick or broom handle is then inserted between his legs and arms, going over his arms and under his bent knees, a gag is then placed in his mouth and tied firmly behind his head. In this helpless condition, unable to move hand, foot, or tongue, he is left for a series of hours, or even days, according to the humor of his tormentor. This revolting and disgusting punishment, which is often inflicted at the mere whim of an officer, has long been, and, I am sorry to say, still continues a favourite mode of punishment in the American army."

As a humane officer, uncorruptible patriot, distinguished commander and endowed with great military talents, Gen. Scott is mentioned in the most exalted terms; as kind to his soldiers, and sparing of human life. Such tributes as these are not the offspring of pecuniary or professional expectations, but the spontaneous record of just appreciation by one who served in the ranks—one who best knows how to appreciate humanity in his superior. General Twiggs is handled rather severely for his wanton sacrifice of the lives of his men, and his brutal and savage conduct towards them. We would advise all our readers to secure a copy of this work, as it is an interesting history and vivid detail of the hardships of the common soldier. It is written in a vigorous style with many passages of rare beauty and thrilling pathos. (On sale at Hasbrouck's.)

"The man who first nominated Gen. Pierce:"—

We learn from the Boston Atlas that this gentleman was in that city recently and left his papers with the Collector for a birth in the custom House. He says, he thinks he made an impression, though he is not quite certain, as there are hundreds who "have done so much for Democracy" and have made the same known to the appointing power, that something must be done for them or else the country's ruined—He complains bitterly of those who have revelled in spoils for years, and now expect to retain their places, and wonders how it is they have managed to keep in clover with administrations, —such Democrats, he thinks, ought to be turned out to grass.

The Editor's Table.

The "School Fellow," for May, is received. It is designed for Boys and Girls, and is a publication we are pleased to recommend. Terms, $1 a year. Evans and Britton, 697 Broadway, N. Y.

"The Child's Paper," and the "American Messenger," are also regularly received. The former is only 10 cents a year; a merely nominal sum for an excellent paper for children of all sizes.

"Graham," for June, is thus early at hand, and so far from diminishing in beauty and interest, it is on the contrary, constantly advancing in both. "The Rhine and its Scenery," the "Pilgrims of the Great St. Bernerd," "Central America," "The Oath of Hannibal," &c. are a few of its attractive articles.

"Hunt's Merchant's Magazine," for May is also acknowledged. Freeman Hunt, 142 Fulton street. N. Y.—$5 per year. Its leading articles are—"History of English Railways," "The bearing of physical circumstances upon the development of Commerce," "Trade and growth of Chicago in 1852," "Traits of Trade," "Stuart's Naval and Mail Steamers of the U. S.," &c. with its usual variety on Trade, Commerce, Banking, &c.

The Knickerbocker Magazine.—We are in the constant receipt of this popular monthly—the most sprightly, quaint, and at the same time one of the purest literature, of the American monthlies. We wish we could do something for it. It is now afforded at $3 a year, and its subscription is rapidly increasing.

The Illustrated Magazine of Art.—We can only announce its reception. It is too large, and contains too great a number of articles, and too many illustrations, to receive a tithe of the notice it deserves. It is every way worthy of patronage. Only 25 cts. a month.

Thanks.—We are indebted to Hon. W. H. Seward, for his speech on the subject of "Duty on Rail Road Iron," made in the Senate of the U. S. Feb. 28, 1853; and to Hon. Stephen A. Douglass, for his Address before the Jackson Statue Association, on the 14th of January, 1853, for which these gentlemen will please accept our thanks.

A friend, who occasionally sends us welcome contributions for the Republican, in a recent note apologised for "annoying" us. We reply, that the more we are annoyed in that way the better.

The "Time Piece," is a new "illustrated weekly paper, for the edification of every body"—good for the blues and dyspepsia. Only 50 cents a year. R. B. Hutchins, 40 Ann-st., N. Y.

North Carolina.—The North Carolina editors are congratulating the citizens of their State on the eminent men now occupying minor judicial positions. The late Chief Justice of the Supreme Court of that state, Thomas Ruffin, is now chairman of the Courts of Pleas and Quarter Sessions, of his county—a simple magistrate's Court. Hon. Jas. J. McKay, of Bladen, an influential member of Congress for years, former chairman of the Committee of Ways and Means, (the most important of all the Committees), acts in a similar capacity for his county. Hon. Calvin Graves, has recently been elected to a like post in Caswell. Wm. A. Wright, Esq., of New Hanover, accepted a year or two ago, the appointment of Justice of the Peace, and regularly brings at each County Court, the weight of his legal learning and acquirements, to the assistance of the bench in the trial of causes.—Ex. Paper.

Humph! As though that was something uncommon. Well, it may be "away down in the Old North State," but up here among the mountains of Northern N. Y., a similar practice has long prevailed, as a matter of course, and has not been deemed worthy of making an outcry in the papers about. We can't answer so well for the other places, but we know of more than one instance pretty near Keeseville. A-hem!

The Legislature, meets in Extra session on the 25th inst, being next Wednesday. The divisions and wranglings of the democracy, at the late session, and the failure of the great measure of the day, are known to our readers. What will be done at the Extra session, remains to be seen. We give the following from the Argus, as indicating the course of the Barnburners, and the ultimate defeat of the Canal Enlargement;

"The Atlas has at last thrown off the mask, which it had worn since the opening of the extra session of the Legislature, and for a week past has been boldly opposing the raising of money from any source or by any means, for the purpose of canal enlargement. To this complexion it has been driven at last, and the attitude in which it places itself is at least a becoming, if not a politic one. It is a simple declaration—but one consistent with the tenor of its entire course—that the Erie canal needs no enlargement!

☞ The "Pick" prophesies that "before five years are over, Napoleon and Eugenie will be in America gaining an honest and independent livelihood by dancing at the Broadway Theatre, or exhibiting at Welch's Circus in the Bowery, their next resort after leaving the throne, diadem, and other fixings.—[Ex.

We object. The Emperor would be an irresistible democratic candidate for the Presidency, and the Empress would introduce fashions, and morals highly deleterious.

Concert.—We are authorised to state that Mr. Holmberg, assisted by Miss Stevens, and a large corps of performers, will give a Concert of Vocal and Instrumental Music at the Academy, on Wednesday Evening next. Mr. Holmberg comes highly recommended by the press and musical connoisseurs, who pronounce him a violinist of unequalled merit. Miss Stevens is a young lady of rare accomplishments, and as a vocalist has a widespread and enviable fame; and none will fail to be pleased with her charming voice and prepossessing appearance. We hope our citizens will give them a hearty welcome, as it will be an entertainment of rare excellence. †

Funny papers—seem to be all the go, now-a-days, especially in Washington Co. The "Old Hat," published at Sandy Hill, and "The Joker," at Whitehall. The last named gets off the following good ones:

Fuddlemug was walking along the towpath the other evening, and musing on the perils of the "raging Canawl," when he espied a boat approaching. Anxious to increase his store of knowledge, he sung out to one of the hands on board—

'What boat is that?'

'Canal boat.'

'Who runs her?'

'The Captain.'

'What line does she tow with?'

'Tow-line, you fool!'

Fuddlemug came away profoundly reflecting on the last of the boatman's answers.

☞We find in the Saryeuse Star a tolerably rich thing. In the State of Ohio, there resided a family consisting of an old man, by the name of BEAVER, and his three sons, all of whom are hard "pots," who had often laughed to scorn the advice and treaties of a pious though very eccentric minister who resided in the same town. It happened one of the boys was bitten by a rattlesnake and was expected to die, when the minister was sent for in great haste.—On his arrival he found the young man very penitent and anxious to be prayed with.—The minister, calling on the family, kneeled down and prayed in this wise.—"O Lord we thank theo for rattlesnakes; we thank thee because a rattlesnake has bit Jim. We pray thee send a rattlesnake to bite John; send one to bite Bill: send one to bite Sam; & O Lord, send the biggest kind of a rattlesnake to bite the old man, for nothing but rattlesnakes will ever bring the Beaver family to repentance!"

Total, "Editor Northern Gazette."

To Correspondents.—We have on hand from esteemed friends, several communications, which have been delayed a long, long time—not willingly, but for reasons connected with the business of the office. We have now more help, and these favors shall be attended to. They have lost nothing by the keeping.

"A true Whig."—We must have your name in full. "All's well that ends well."

Don't be modest, take them—we shall have no occasion for them—you'll find us in our shirt sleeves about those days.—N. Gaz.

We don't need them. Besides, unlike the Ed. of the Gaz., we have consciencious scruples about robbing our neighbors. As to the "sleeve" part, we imagine they will have to be a little higher, to be of any service, than they were last fall, when the Ed. was around bawling: Feller Canucks, a fearful responsibility rests! Where does it rest? Echo answers, where?

We are disposed for peace.—Ed. Gaz.

Poor felly, he cries enough. We would advise him to get a "Cottage Gazette" of about the time he was discussing Bloomerism with the Editress of the "Lily," soak it, make a poultice of it, wrap is head up in it and go to bed, which we think will relieve him. Should it not prove effectual, take one of Ellen Louisa's letters and hug it till you sweat. This will give immediate relief.

CHARADE.

My first is a word—to the French we owe,
It's applied to all places and sports where we go.
My next is a number in calculus found;
It's an aliquot part of an "old English pound."
I'm sure that my last is a creature most wise,
If all men were as smart, they'd to eminence rise.
To wars does my whole go, in times of great need;
Plumes ride o'er his head,—and he rides on a steed!

New-York Tribune.

The New-York Daily Tribune, having completed the twelfth year of its existence, on the 9th instant, signalized its entrance to its teens by an enlargement of its borders adding fully one third to its area, and which will require us henceforth to pay more for the white paper on which it is printed than all we receive from its subscribers. And, ample as our income has been, (though less ample than it has been currently reported,) our expenditures for the next year must be larger than our annual income has ever yet been.

We have taken this important step not without reluctance, but upon the maturest consideration. There are thirteen of us concerned in the Tribune establishment as proprietors, with one hundred and seventy more decidedly employed on the paper—all to be subsisted out of its current income—and this enlargement adds some $50,000 per annum to our expenses without necessarily increasing our receipts. Yet we encounter so many complaints of 'small type,' 'too fine print,' 'bad for the eyes,' &c., that we have resolved to risk our all on the enterprise of making a paper which will satisfy many thousands who have hitherto stood aloof, and so enlarge our Subscription and Advertising as to secure us a reward for our exertions in the future equal to that we have enjoyed in the past. If we can add one-fourth to our reading matter, and present the whole in fair, clear type of good size, we believe we may nearly double our circulation; and this, though of no direct advantage to us, secures such an increase of our Advertising as will leave us nothing to desire.

We are confessedly ambitious to make The Tribune the leading journal of America, and have dared and done somewhat to that end.—Yet our readers will judge whether we have or have not sacrificed Truth to Popularity—whether we have or have not preferred the Majority to the Right. Our journal has never been a favorite in haunts of evil resort in our City or elsewhere—nor has it pandered to the prejudices and supposed interests of the Mercantile class; whose patronage is the main source of profit to daily newspapers in every great city. Many friends have been repelled by our ardent aspirations for a truer and juster Social Order, wherein there shall be Work secured to All and living in sumptuous idleness possible to None. Some have found or formed Theological pretexts for quitting us; many more have been alienated by our determined advocacy of the Maine Law. For Temperance in the abstract they have great respect; but to any adequate effort to suppress that which they admit to be the greatest Social evil of our time, they are resolutely hostile or frigidly indifferent. And thus with our undistinguished and earnest aversion to Human Bondage and sympathy with every effort that seems calculated to hasten its downfall: It has undoubtedly doprived us of many patrons while it has not secured us the support of those with whom Abolition is the all-engrossing idea and the impulse of all moral and political exertion. On this and other questions of Reform, we have aimed to hold that course which should most effectually prepare for the ripened action of the Future without ignoring the just claims of the Present, and serve the cause of Eternal Right without cutting ourselves off from all sympathy or contact with the men of To-Day.

It will be noticed that we have increased the width, not the number, of our columns.—A wide column is more agreeable to the eye and renders advertisements more conspicuous than a narrow one. In this we copy the great London journals which The Tribune will henceforth closely parallel in size and general aspect. True, we cannot afford to use such paper on a Daily sold for two cents as they do on theirs which sell for ten cents, (5d) but we trust our readers will have no reason to complain, even on this head.

We are quite aware that the Tribune has not attained perfection in any department; much less in all. Each step forward but widens the area of prospective improvement that opens before us:

'Hills peep o'er hills and Alps on Alps arise;'

but those who remember what our paper was on its first issue, and contrast that with the sheet we now proffer, will, we trust find in the past ample assurance that we shall not be inactive or careless in the future.

Our Foreign Correspondence—which we are willing to compare with that of any other American journal—we have not hitherto been able to print so promptly nor so conspicuously as was desirable. Hereafter, we hope to present each letter on the first or at furthest the second morning after its reception and in such type as will be abundantly readable. We know there are many among our readers to whom this announcement will give satisfaction.

—The Semi Weekly Trebune was enlarged to the new size of the Daily, and we urge our Country friends who have no daily mail, or think they cannot afford a Daily paper, to give this an examination. We always study to condense the largest possible amount of useful and interesting matter into our Weekly; yet it is physically impossible that we should print there even one third of our letters from Eupope, Asia, Minor, India. California, Mexico, Central America, &c., &c. But all these are given in our Semi Weekly. There is not another paper issued in the world which contains so large an amount of mainly original reading for so small a sum; and we trust that, since Postage has been reduced to a mere bagatelle, there are thousands of our friends who have hitherto taken the Weekly, who will henceforth take the Semi-Weekly. We will send a specimen to any one who, without subjecting us to expense, shall see fit to apply for it.

The Weekly Tribune will likewise be enlarged to the new size of the Daily in September next, at the close of its current volume. It will then be the largest Weekly afforded to Clubs for $1 per annum in the world, and its white paper will cost us nearly or quite all that we receive from Club Subscribers. We shall hope to make it pay by appropriating a small part of the new space we thus create to Advertisements, which, until such enlargement, we must continue to keep within the narrowest limits. It is issued every Thursday morning, and contains most of the matter of the Daily, with more summary accounts of such Events and Proceedings as cannot be published in full. We mean that no Weekly shall surpass this in giving a full, graphic, and faithful account of what the World is Doing, whereof it is Thinking, and how it is Progressing.

—Generous friends through past trials! we shall still need and be grateful for the kind interest you have steadfastly evinced in our welfare and progress—for we have many and bitter enemies whom we do not hope to conciliate, and the class interests by which a journal can be most profited generally regard our views as in conflict with their ends. Nay: as we hope to be wiser next year than we were last, and to set forth truths as we shall appreciate them that we may not even yet clearly apprehend, it is very possible that we may hereafter alienate some who have hitherto stood by and sustained us. We make no claim on your beneficence—we neither need nor desire charity—but if you believe that Truth can be diffused and Human Good promoted by increasing the number of our readers or your own interests by swelling the quite respectable list of our advertisers, there was never a fitter time than is the present for such evidence of your kind consideration.

BOOKS! BOOKS!

A HISTORY of the world, Comprising a general History, Both ancient and modern of all the principal nations on the Globe, to which is added a Complete History of the United States to the present time, including the Late War with Mexico, California, &c.,

This work is designed to supply the wants of the present age. It embraces every thing compatible with its scope, down to the last important event in the History of our country. In short, while the unimportant has been left out, nothing essential has been omitted.

It is in two large octavo volumes, which contain upwards of 1500 pages, and illustrated with about Forty Engravings, executed in the most modern style, after authentic pictures, together with a Chart of the Flags of the various Nations, a View of the city of San Francisco, and of the Crystal Palace each appropriately colored, and bound in embossed and gilt leather binding, with marble edges.

The following are a few of the numerous recommendations the work has received.

From the Worcester [Mass.] Christian Citizen.

With pleasure we announce the appearance of this splendid work, the need of which has long been felt both by the student and general reader.

The author has fully explored the field of history, and while he has culled its most interesting and important facts, has left its rubbish;—thus embodying in these beautiful volumes what might not inappropriately be termed the gems of history.

To the people of this country this work is peculiarly adapted, and every lover of his native land should well consult the History of the Nations, whose brilliant history is so accurately recorded by the pen of Mr. Iuman,

From Prof. Emerson of Andover [Mass.] Seminary.

I have examined the "History of the World," and think it particularly valuable especially for such as hvave not access to more extended works of history; and even to those who have such works, it will often be found an important help, as it brings down the history of the countries to the present time. RALPH EMERSON.

From the Franklin Democrat, [Ind.]

In these volumes we have a correct account of the origin and formation of the principal Empires, Kingdoms, and States of the Globe; and also their connected history down to the present time, even giving a complete history of California, the death of our late President Taylor, &c., which makes it one of the most interesting histories ever offered to the public. It is sold at a price that will bring it within the reach of all.

J. P. ALLEN, agent for Essex Co. having canvassed the Western towns, will have the pleasure to present the claims of this book to the people of the lake towns, in the course of the next few days. 468 tf

Carpets and Oil-Cloths.

Owing to the large increase of patronage, I have found it necessary from time to time, to make many improvements and additions to my store.

This spring I have united the stores No. 7 and 9, State St., making a spacious and beautiful room, fitted up expressly for the sale of all the various styles of Silks, Shawls, Cloaks & Mantillas.

This connects with the main store, No. 202, River St., (the old stand occupied by the subscriber for nearly 30 years,) which is devoted to a general assortment of

STAPLE AND FANCY DRY GOODS,

comprising every variety to meet the wants of all classes of buyers. Besides these, four large rooms over the stores 200, 202 and 204 River St., are occupied as

CARPET WARE-ROOMS,

where I am constantly receiving the newest and most desirable patterns of Velvet, Tapestry, Brussels, Three-ply, Ingrain and Venetian Carpets. Also, Oil-Cloths of every quality and width, and every style of Druggetts, Rugs, Mats, Matting, Stair-Rods, &c.

All these departments combined making an extensive and complete Establishment, conducted on such principles, that customers can trade with confidence, and to their own advantage, my sales being always for cash, and the only price asked, being the lowest cash price. G. V. S. QUACKENBUSH.

AGRICULTURAL WARE-HOUSE AND SEED STORE.

DAVEY & ALLEN,

No. 8, COLLEGE STREET, BURLINGTON, Vt.

Ploughs—Prouty & Mear's centre draught. These ploughs have obtained a celebrity unparalleled having taken the first premiums in this country and at the World's Fair in London. We have also Starbuck's and Tabor's celebrated Ploughs.

Our stock of Ploughs comprise a great variety of patterns and different sizes, calculated for sward and stubble land, wet meadows and recently drained swamps, where roots abound—among which also, are the deep-breaking up, flat-furrow, lap-furrow, self-sharpening, side-hill, double-mould-board, sub soil, &c., &c.

Harrows—triangular, square, Gedde's and Scotch.

Hay, Straw and Corn Stalk Cutters, either by hand or horse power; spiral, straight or circular knives.

Cultivators—of different kinds, steel tooth and cast iron.

Corn Shellers—a variety of patterns. Will shell from 5 to 100 bushels of corn per hour.

Fan Mills and Grain Cradles—Grant's unrivalled. We confidently recommend them as the best in use.

Seed Sowers—Batchelder's & Emery's, and other kinds.

Vegetable Cutters—for turnips and other roots.

Horse Powers, Threshers, Winnowers and Separators—Wheeler's Patent Railway Chain Horse Power This Power, both single and double-geared, for one or two horses, has never been equalled for lightness in running, strength, durability and economy. The Thresher and Separator are too widely and favorably known to need our commendation. The combined Thresher and Winnower, (which is a new invention of last year,) has not been so generally introduced. All who have used it express the highest approbation of its merits. We entertain no doubt that it is the most perfect, compact, and efficient machine now in use for threshing and winnowing grain, as it certainly is by far the cheapest and most economical.

Warranted to give satisfaction.

OLD ESTABLISHED HOSPITAL.

Quick Cures and Low prices. Private Diseases and their Antidote.

Dr. LISPENARD. author of th Marriage Guide, or Private Medical Treatise, Professor of Diseases of Women and Children, and Licentiate of the College o Physicians and Surgeons of the United States University, &c., &c , continues as heretofore to be confidentially and successfully consulted on all forms and variety of

PRIVATE DISEASES,

at his old quarters, No 5 Beaver-street, ALBANY, N. Y.

The great success attending the use of Doctor L.'s remedies in secret disease, and the many remarkable cures daily effected by him in recent as .... lingering attacks, conclusive evidence that the well

SICK AND UNFORTUNATE

can do no better than consult the Doctor, whose whole time is devoted to the exclusive treatment of this much neglected branch of practice.

LOOK AT THIS.

Dr. Lispenard cures recent cases of disease in from three to six days, and chronic or long standing diseases in a very short period of time, without the use of Mercury, without the loss of time, change of diet, or detention from

DAILY EMPLOYMENT.

In Syphilis, Gonorrhœa, Gleet, Strictures, Enlargement of the Testicles and Cords, Bubo, Chancres, Pimples and Scaly Eruptions, Sore Throats and Noses, Chancres on the tongue, tender shin bones, and diseases of the skin, and impure blood. Dr. Lispenard's remedies are above all praise, and frequently cure when all others had failed

EVEN TO RELIEVE.

More than 5,000 patients have during the past year experienced the benefit of the Doctor's extraordinary skill in treating secret diseases—among which, diseases of the bladder and kidneys have formed a goodly proportion.

YOUNG MEN,

who by indulging in secret habits have injured their health and prostrated their intellectual faculties, and thereby deprived themselves of the pleasure of married life, should consult Dr. Lispenard without a moment's delay. Hundreds have been restored to health, society and friends, under my peculiar mode of treatment, although vast sums of money had been sacrificed without any benefit. My remedy for this disease is pleasant to take, has no offensive smell and

CURES WITHOUT FAIL

☞ Persons so unfortunate as to be d seased, although they may have visited half a dozen Doctors, and had medicine sent them a dozen times with no benefit, would exhibit wisdom by making their case known to that FRIEND OF THE SICK, Dr. Lispenard, who never charges for advice and warrants all his cures. The sick are often at a loss where to apply for relief, AND TIS NO WONDER, as hundreds stand ready to plunder the unfortunate victim of PRIVATE DISEASE, or secret habits, without one thought for his life and health. All thus deceived will find a friend, and moderate charges, in consulting the Doctor who uses no MERCURY and cures every time.

N. B.—Persons from a distance when visiting the city in search of a physician and friend, will be fortunate if they succeed in escaping the many dens of imposition, conducted by unprincipled men, destitute of character knowledge or same, who fleece the unfortunate victim of disease of his hard earned money, and his remaining health. Patients who have no acquaintance in the city should make inquiry of some respectable citizen, or the editor or proprietor of any of the city papers, to ascertain who is the most reliable physician to apply to.

FEMALE DISEASES.

Dr. Lispenard, from an experience seldom or never enjoyed by any other medical man, is enable to treat, with every hope of succes, all and every variety of Female Complaints—with safe and pleasant remedies—and has without doubt cured within the past five years more than 3000 females afflicted with diseases of the Bladder, Womb, &c. &c. Ladies afflicted with suppression or stoppage of their monthly turns, will recollect that Dr. Lispenard is still the sole American agent for,

DR. VICHOI'S

FEMALE MONTHLY PILLS.

The unprecedented sale of more than 15,000 boxes of these excellent Pills, and the good results which always follow their use, is conclusive evidence of their utility in stoppages, &c. Caution—Married Ladies in certain delicate situations should not use them—for reasons see directions with each box. Price $1. Sent by mail to all parts of the world.

Married Persons and those about to Marry, should enclose 12½ cents post paid to Dr. Lispenard, and obtain a copy of his Marriage Guide or Private Treatise, a bewitching little work of nearly 100 pages, illustrated. Every thing that married persons can desire or wish to know is here explained. Persons who from poverty or sickness have no desire to increase their family, will find necessary instruction in the Marriage Guide. One copy 12½ cents; 5 copies 50 cts.; 12 copies $1—mailed free to any part of the world.

N. B.—Patients treated by letter, and medicines sent with full directions for use, to the writer's address. All communications destroyed or returned.

No mercury used in any case, and all cures warranted.

No boys or precocious students allowed: timid persons take notice.

Friends of Dr. L. when recommending patients to our care, will recollect our number, 5 Beaver st., three doors from South Broadway.

Hospital open from 7 A. M., to 9 P. M., and on Sundays from 1 to 4 P. M.

No charge for advice, although no medicine may be desired.

Good board and private rooms for those who desire to remain in the city.

SHERIFF SALE.

By virtue of an execution issued out of the Essex County Court, to me directed and delivered against the personal and real property of Nathaniel Mason, I have seized and taken all the right, title, and interest which the said Nathaniel Mason had on the eleventh day of January, 1853, or at any time thereafter, in and to the following described real estate, to wit:—All those certain pieces of land situate in the town of Willsboro, in Essex County and being part of a lot of land in Peru Bay Tract, and bounded and described as follows:—

Beginning at a stake in centre of the highway where a spruce tree formerly stood in the South line of lot Number (62) sixty-two of the aforesaid tract, from thence West on the said South line of lot No. sixty two thirty five chains and eighty one links, thence North partly on the line of a piece of land formerly owned by William S. Flack, even chains and sixteen links, thence east thirty four chains and seventy five links and from thence Southerly to the place of beginning, containing thirty five acres of land, more or less.

Also, one other piece of land being a part of lot Number thirteen Peru Bay tract commonly called the Thompson lot, and bounded as follows, to wit:—Beginning at at a stake in the centre of the highway where a Spruce tree formerly stood in the South line of lot sixty two of the aforesaid tract and from thence South nineteen degrees and thirty minutes east, fourteen chains and six links to a stake and stones on the east branch of a small stream of water thence South forty two degrees west, forty one links to a hemlock stump, thence North 55° west five chains and seventy links to a stake thence North forty six degrees West thirteen chains and fifty links to the South line of lot Number sixty two in a small brook, from thence to the place of beginning, containing nine acres and seventy two rods of land, more or less, the two lots above described being the same lots described in two Deeds of conveyance executed by Robert Flack and Sarah his wife to Lawrence Edwards, one Dated January 26, 1842, and the other dated May 20th 1843.

Also, one other piece of land in said town of Willsboro, being a part of Lot Number (63) in said Peru Bay tract and commencing on the North line of lot Number 62, in said tract in the centre of the Highway, which runs through said lot 62, thence North sufficient distance to make fifty acres by coming due east to the east line of said lot 63, thence around to the place of beginning, so as to make the aforesaid number of fifty acres from the north side of said lot (63.)

Which said real estate I shall expose for sale at public vendue at the Inn of David Judd in the town of Elizabethtown, in said county of Essex on the 13th day of June next at 10 o'clock, in the forenoon.

MORTGAGE SALE

DEFAULT has been made in the payment of the debt secured by a certain mortgage, dated the 21st day of October, 1847, executed by William Galusha and Sophia, his wife, then of Wilmington, in the County of Essex, State of N. Y., to Uriah D. Mihills of Keene, in the county and state aforesaid, and recorded in the office of the clerk of Essex county, in volume N. of Mortgages, pages 283 and 284, on the 28th day of December, 1847, at nine o'clock, A. M. Said mortgage was duly assigned by said Mihills to Willard Bell, January 14th, 1848, and by said Bell duly assigned to Reuben Patridge, January 30, 1849, and by said Patridge duly assigned to M. Finch, Amos Avery and Charles Malbone, assignees of Reuben Sanford, January 1st, 1849. who are now the owners of said mortgage. There is claimed to be due on said mortgage, at the time of the first publication of this notice, the sum of $167,93. Now therefore, notice is hereby given that the premises described in said mortgage, will, by virtue of a power of sale contained in said mortgage, and pursuant to the statute in such case made and provided, be sold at public auction, at the Adirondac Hotel, in Keeseville, in said county, on the 8th day of June next, at 1 o'clock, P. M.

Said mortgaged premises are described in said mortgage as follows: All that certain piece or parcel of land situate in the town of Wilmington, in the county of Essex, being a part of lot No 34, of Mallory's grant, bounded as follows: beginning at a stake and stones standing on the North line of the Sampson lot, 141 rods from the centre of the road leading from the Carpenter house to Blish and Burdick's forge, being the South-West corner of Ephraim French's land, and running East on said line to the West line of said grant, thence North on the line of said grant to the centre of the road leading from Sanford's to St. Armand, thence running Easterly in the centre of said road to a stake and stones, being the North-West corner of a piece of land occupied by David Hatch, thence South 42 degrees, West six rods to the South bank of Mill Brook, thence Easterly along the South bank of said brook 30 rods to a stake and stones being the South-East corner of said Hatch lot, thence North 35 degrees East to the centre of said road, thence Easterly in the centre of said road to the North-West corner of the Carpenter lot, thence South on the line of said Carpenter lot to the South-west corner of said lot, thence East on the line of said lot to the brook, thence up the brook in the centre thereof to a point ten rods below the sawmill, and thence on the South bank of said brook on the line of Ephraim French's lot to the North-west corner thereof, thence South 43 degrees west on the line of said French's lot 126 rods to the place of beginning, containing eventy-five acres, be the same more or less.

At a Surrogates Court, held at the County Judges office in Elizabethtown, in and for the County of Essex, on the 21st day of March, A. D., 1853.

Present: J. E. McVINE, Essex County Judge.

In the matter of the application of Emeline H. Morhous & Abram Weldin, administrator and administratrix, &c. of Rensselaer Morhous, deceased, intestate, for authority to mortgage, lease or sell the Real Estate of the said intestate for the payment of his debts.

Whereas on the petition and application of Emeline H. Morhous, the administratrix, and Abram Weldin, one of the administrators of the goods, &c., of Rensselaer Morhous, late of Willsboro, in the county of Essex, deceased, it has been made satisfactorily to appear to the said County Judge and Surrogate, that the personal estate of the said deceased will be insufficient so pay his debts.

It is therefore ordered, that all persons interested in the estate of the said Rensselear Morhous, deceased, be directed to appear before the said county Judge and Surrogate, at his office in the town of Elizabethtown, in said county, on the 9th day of May next, at 10 o'clock in the forenoon of that day, to show cause why authority should not be given to the said administrators to mortgage, lease or sell so much of the real estate of the said deceased as shall be necessary to pay his debts.

THE WONDER OF THE WORLD.

DEVINES' COMPOUND

PITCH LOZENGE,

A sure and pleasant Remedy for Colds, Coughs, Croup, Whooping Cough, Asthma, and if lungs enough are left to sustain life, A CERTAIN CURE FOR CONSUMPTION, safe for the Infant or the Invalid, in any stage of weakness.

"The statements that consumption cannot be cured, has destroyed more lives than the disease itself.—[Dr. Warren

Read the following, which to a candid mind places this "Great Remedy," like Cæsar's wife "above suspicion."

TO THE PUBLIC!

We, the undersigned, citizens of Lee, Mass., are acquainted with Mr. Devines, the proprietor and Manufacturer of Devines' Compound Pitch Lozenge and from what we know of it ourselves and have learned from others of its beneficial effects, in cases where it has been used, give it as our opinion that it is a valuable remedy in diseases for which it is recommended and is worthy of public confidence. A. G. Hulburt, Leonard Church, F. G. Taylor, Wm. Taylor, E. A. Bliss, S. A. Hulburt, Josephus Crafts, T. P. Eldridge.

"If any individual is to be pitied, and needs sympathy, it is the consumptive—always expecting to get well, and yet the painful evidence of decay almost "makes the inner soul shrink with the outer flesh"

"Some bloom as roses bloom, and live as roses live,
A single morning space!"

While others in more mature life—by some imprudence and a slight cold neglected—in the hectic flush—the painful cough.

"The prints of their departing steps appears."

BUT HERE IS HOPE! Mr Wm. Devines, the originator and manufacturer of the Pitch Lozenge, under Providence, was raised to perfect health by the use of these Lozenges alone, after he was pronounced by his physician to be almost dying with consumption.

This fact is generally known in Berkshire County and is the neighborhood talk, and wonder in Lee, and in Great Barrington, Mass.

From Dr. Brown, of Lee, Mass.

This certifies that I have made use of Devines' Compound Pitch Lozenge for cold and cough, and found immediate relief. Therefore I would recommend it to the public as being a safe and sovereign remedy. H. C. BROWN.

MORSE'S

COMPOUND SYRUP OF

Yellow Dock Root.

THIS is a Purely Vegetable Compound, scientifically prepared from the best Roots and Herbs of the Materia Medica, and has gained a universal reputation for the following effects, viz: Regulating and Strengthening the Liver and Digestive Organs, and Cleansing the Stomach and Bowels, and curing all Billious Diseases, Liver Complaints, Dyspepsia, Indigestion, Costiveness, Piles, Headache, Fever and Ague, Jaundice Nausea Loss of Appetite, &c., and causing the food to nourish and support every part, PURIFYING THE BLOOD, and thus curing all Humors, Cutaneous Eruptions, Scrofula, Salt Rheum, Erysipelas, Scald Head, Canker, Pimples on the face, Blotches, Ulcers, Tumors, Mercurial Diseases, Cancers, &c. Regulating the secretory Organs, and by enabling them to perform their proper functions, preventing and curing many painful and dangerous diseases: Strengthening and Quieting the nervous system, thus allaying Nervous Irritation, and curing all Diseases of the Nerves, as Hysteria, Neuralgia, Cramps, &c.

It is unrivalled in the cure of all FEMALE COMPLAINTS, as weakness, general debility, Irregularity, Obstructions, Swelling of the Feet, Limbs, Joints, &c., caused by weakness; also, Lung and Throat Complaints, as Colds, Coughs, Asthma, Consumption, &c., also, Dropsy.

Having made use of the Compound Syrup of Yellow Dock Root, prepared by C. Morse and Co., either ourselves or in our families and finding it to be a very salutary and effectual preparation, we do most cheerfully recommend it to the public as a very valuable medicine.

E. Bourne, Esq., Cashier National Bank, Providence, R. I.; A. W. Spencer, Esq., Cashier Lime Rock Bank, do do Rev. William Phillips, Rev. J. B. Richmond, C. S. Jones, editor Providence Gen. Advt., Wm. Field, M. W. G. M. Cyrus Fisher, M. E. H. P. James Hutchinson, G. S. Dea., V. J. Bates, Doct. Benj. Colby, and one hundred others of the most respectable families of Providence.

This certifies that I have for a number of years been acquainted with the composition and mode of manufacture of Morse's Compound Syrup of Yellow Dock Root. I have also been acquainted with its modus operandi in disease, and can say that in all resp cts it is admirably calculated to remedy that class of Diseases for which it was designed. It is especially valuable in Indigestion and all its attendant symptoms, it excites to healthy action the Liver, removes Torpor, and inactivity of this organ, and stimulates healthy action in all the system. As a Depurator or purifier of the Blood it has no superior.

Poetry.

[For the Republican.]

"Why art thou cast down, and why is thy countenance sad?"

Go, lonely one, and seek the balmy air,
The lovely flowers that breathe out sweetness, where Each sunny hill-side glistening with dew,
Wears in the light the softest emerald hue!
Where little rivulets, with music sweet,
Are dancing on, some sunny face to greet;
Sweetly they flow and drop by drop distil,
Till every flower its tiny cup can fill.
The forest birds their thrilling voices raise,
Delightful chorus to their Maker's praise!
The chrysalis emerges from his shell,
And in a new existence joys to dwell—
Delights to bask 'neath "Heaven's serenest blue,"
And may that little eye behold it too!
Aye! though proud man may scorn to think of thee,
Yet canst thou point him to the Deity!
Even thy frailty teaches of the sky,
And bids us learn the lesson, how to die!
The list'ning spirit from thy change hath caught
A key to vast, unfathomable thought!
Ah! grasp the thought, thou wayward child of earth!
Know thence, thy soul is of immortal birth—
Know thence, thou may'st not drop the idle tear,
For thou must make thy preparation here!
In that bright home would'st thou forever dwell?
Go, cast aside those brooding thoughts—'tis well—
Now gird thee for the battle—to the strong
'Tis not decreed—but he who suffers long,—
And faithful to the power, God has given
Through grace shall enter at the gates of Heaven!
Be not dismayed—thy course is onward still Thou hast a lofty mission to fulfil:—
"What is my mission?" thou wouldst vainly ask;
Seek for his guidance to direct thy task;
Bend thou thine ear; his voice doth speak to thee—
"This is the way—walk in it fearlessly!"
Thy spirit, bound to sorrow's shades of night,
Will find new freedom in the gush of light
That from that ceaseless Fount for thee is pour'd—
For thee—hast thou thy Maker then adored!

Sabbath Reading.

MR. EDITOR:—I was gratified to find a column in the Republican of the 14th inst. devoted to "Sabbath Reading," and feel confident a continuance of the same in future numbers, will meet with a ready welcome, and at the same time, "prove a word in season" to many readers. Allow me to offer the following articles for insertion, which I clip from a religious journal.—More anon.

Yours, &c.,
W. D. R.

"DECISION IN RELIGION.—When Naomi, on leaving the land of Moab, said to Ruth, "Behold thy sister-in-law is gone back unto her people and unto her gods; return thou after thy sister-in-law," that amiable and gracious woman instantly replied, "Entreat me not to leave thee nor to return from following after thee; for whither thou goest I will go, and where thou lodgest I will lodge; thy people shall be my people, and thy God my God." These words, expressive as they are of the strongest attachment, it is very natural for the Christian to use in describing the high regard he entertains for his adorable Redeemer; for, like Ruth, he cannot bear the thought of being separated from this great object of his warmest love. So precious to his soul is the Lord Jesus, so desirable to him is the presence of this Saviour, that to be found always in and near him he is willing to account other things as loss; "Yea, doubtless," said the apostle Paul, "I count all things but loss for the excellency of the knowledge of Jesus Christ, my Lord; for whom I have suffered the loss of all things, and do count them as dung, that I may win Christ, and be found in him, not having my own righteousness, which is of the law, but that which is through the faith of Christ, the righteousness of God by faith." Entertaining, as the Christian does in this life, such ardent love for his Redeemer, opportunities are not wanting both for the trial and for the manifestation of it. Often does the evil heart of unbelief and the tempter endeavor to persuade him that his affection is not sincere, that his exercises are not of the right kind, that his hope is false, and that he had better stop on his religious course and go no farther with such a frame of mind in his professions of the Saviour's name.—But though such dissuasions occur, yet they cannot induce him to abandon the Lord Jesus and his kingdom: "For his love is strong as death; many waters cannot quench it, neither can the floods drown it." Prompted by this affection, he continues to say to the Redeemer, I will not leave thee nor return from following after thee; whither thou goest I will go, thy people shall be my people, and thy God my God."

EARNESTNESS IN RELIGION.—The following extract from the recently published Sermons of Rev. Dr. Armstrong is a fair specimen of his earnest style and vigorous thought. It is from a discourse on Ecclesiastes ix. 10: "Whatsoever thy hand findeth to do, do it with thy might."

"In our own nature, and in the circumstances in which we are placed, we may find numerous and weighty reasons to enforce this maxim. We are frail, and our life is proverbially uncertain. In a moment we may be bereft of our mental powers, and rendered incapable of action. Delay, therefore, or relaxation of effort, hazards total failure and the entire loss of previous exertion. Our mental and physical resources, the power of our minds, and the means at our command for carrying our purposes into effect, are imperfect, limited, and comparatively feeble. If, therefore, we would not live almost in vain; if we would accomplish anything great or good, such fixedness of purpose and concentration of effort and energy as shall give to our limited resources the greatest possible efficacy are indispensable. He who roves from object to object, and spends his strength in random or desultory effort, does but waste his life in laborious idleness.

In this world, which has apostatized from God and fallen under the dominion of the Prince of Darkness, there is an enormous mass of moral evil always in active hostility to every great and good enterprise; and this opposition is commonly violent and formidable in proportion to the importance and excellence of any good work. Nothing can be plainer than the necessity of vigor, promptness, and perseverence when so many obstacles must be surmounted, and so much hostility overcome, in order to success. See, then, in the frailty and uncertainty of human life, in the feebleness of our powers and the limited and imperfect nature of our means of action, and in the counteracting and opposing influences which are in motion all around us, the importance of doing whatsoever our hand findeth to do with our might.

We have already intimated that this maxim has a most extensive application. In every lawful and valuable concern of the present life, he who disregards it may expect to labor in vain and spend his strength for naught. Whatever is worth doing at all is worthy of being well done. Nothing important can be thoroughly executed if it does not receive, at least for a time, earnest and exclusive attention. To every purpose there is a time and a season; he who defers it for one day beyond its proper time subjects himself to the necessity either of neglecting it or of permitting it to crowd out of place something else perhaps of equal importance. Prompt, vigorous, and persevering action is the great secret of efficiency and success. It has been well understood and practically illustrated by those who have been most remarkable for success in worldly pursuits. They have risen to eminence, partly, it may be, by the force of native powers, partly by a concurrence of favorable circumstances, but far more by their intense devotion to their particular object, leading them, whatsoever their hand found to do, to do it with their might.

But the maxim has a far more interesting and important application to the great concerns of personal religion. In serving God and preparing for eternity, we must do whatsoever our hand findeth to do with our might. The work is great and arduous in itself. It must be carried on and completed in the face of opposition, and over numerous and formidable obstacles. In worldly concerns, men may sometimes stumble upon success. Not so here. The way of life is a straight and narrow way. Over the threshold is written, "Strive to enter in; many shall seek and shall not be able." "Whoever forsaketh not all that he hath cannot be my disciple." In such a work, mere knowledge is vain; wishes are idle; resolutions are worse than fruitless, without vigorous, prompt, persevering action. This is true of the whole course, and it is equally true of every several step, in the way of life. In each effort to mortify sin and to cultivate holiness; in the use of every means of grace; in the performance of each duty, personal, relative, and social, we must do with our might, we must give our whole attention to the work, our whole souls must be thrown into it, or our expectations of profit and acceptance are unauthorized and vain. In every concern of personal piety, one hour of intense application of the whole soul to divine and eternal things is worth more than days or weeks of comparative formality and lukewarmness. To such exertion God has promised his blessing, without which all our efforts will be unsuccessful. "Ye shall seek me," saith he, "and ye shall find me when ye shall search for me with all your heart." "Whatsoever thy hand findeth to do, do it with thy might."

It's "Oh, for a Quiet Spot."

BY DANIEL H. HILLER.

It's "Oh, for a quiet spot,"
A place where the waters sleep,
A little farm and a sheltered vale,
A home in the forest deep.

A dog for the woodland game,
A dollar to spend or to keep,
A black and a brown and brindle cow,
A horse and a flock of sheep.

A duck and a guinea hen,
A goose and a gander too,
A turkey proud---the poultry king,
And a pair of doves to coo.

A pig and a yoke of steers,
A cat and a bird to crow,
A place for the comfort of them,
And a place for the rake and hoe.

An axe for the lordly tree,
A plough for the stubborn soil;
A faith in the promise of good,
And a strength and a will to toil.

And a kind and gentle wife,
A little girl and a boy—
Oh, what can equal in life:
The farmer's fire side joy?

What a source of pleasure to him,
His fathers rarely knew---
"The paper" ready for use,
And that paper "paid for" too.

It's "Oh for a quiet spot,"
A place where the waters sleep,
A little farm in a sheltered vale,
A home in the forest deep.

Large and Small Pastures.

Wide differences of opinion, have always existed among farmers as to the propriety of dividing pasture lands into small fields, with the view of alternating the feeding so as to afford a constant succession of fresh pasture. This question seems to have come up incidentaly at a meeting held for agricultural discussion, at the State House in Boston, not long since, when the following views were expressed.

"The chairman, Mr. BROOKS, inquired whether 100 acres of pasture land, divided into 10 acre lots, would not furnish more feed than if thrown together.

Prof. NASH, replied, that he thought it would. Better feed can be secured, and it can also be reserved if desired.

Mr. FRENCH, thought the system might operate very well for a couple of months in the first part of the season, but after that time, he thought it would be full as advantageous to throw the pastures together?"

It is an old and a very trite adage that "a change of pasture makes fat calves," and we do not know as its truth was ever seriously contradicted, but some persons do give it the cold shoulder practically in the adoption of the system of large pastures. But seriously this is a question of great importance to stock-growers and dairymen, and worthy of consideration.—Our own opinion has been that more feed was produced, and more milk obtained from the system of feeding small pastures and changing often, say once in two or three weeks, than by the other system, but then it involves the expense of extra fencing which is an important item, and some other drawbacks worthy of consideration.

We shall be happy to have the views of our correspondents upon a question of so much practical importance, and trust they will thus favor us.—N. Y. Farmer.

Dwarfing Fruit Trees.

The French have a method of cultivating the dwarf fruit trees, or trees which have been stunted by a certain process, which one of their writers describes as follows;—

"Young trees are to be treated in the following manner:—If there are more than three shoots on the plant, reduce them to that number, and shorten each to three, four, or six eyes, according to their strength. The following season, reduce the number of leading shoots to six, and shorten them to three-fourths of their length, and spur in the remaining shoots. The tree should be managed in every respect in this manner, until it has attained the required size, which of course, depends upon the fancy or convenience of the owner or conductor of the garden. I make a point of letting the trees take their natural form of growth, as far as the system described will admit; for I consider it of little consequence what shape is given to the tree, provided my end is attained; that is, to make every branch, as it were a long spur, with bearing buds from the extremity to the base."

It is asserted by both French and English writers, that trees so stunted are not so much exposed to injury by high winds, that they produce better fruit, bear earlier and more abundantly, and occupy less space. Dwarfs are also produced by inoculating on stock of small growth. The apple is often inoculated on the Paradise or Doucain stock, the peach on a slow-growing plum, and the pear on the quince. We have seen large pears on trees not more than five feet high, the tops of which were not possessed of sufficient strength to sustain their weight of fruit without the assistance of drops. This is a common result where some varities of the pear are set in quince stocks. The writer above quoted says:—

"Two or three years' trial of this method only might deter many from a continuance of it, in consequence of the young wood which will be produced ye[ar] of the apparent difficulty [of] the superfluity. But tha[t] will be utterly surmounted instructions are attended t[o]

The Management of Fowls.

The rearing of poultry is a source of much more profit than farmers generally suppose.

They require plenty of good food, pure water, fresh air, shelter from cold and storms, and cleanliness in their houses.—Hens should not be fed too highly before they begin to lay, or while they are laying. The cock should be well fed and in good health. All kinds of grain is good food, also cabbage turnips, carrots, &c. A variety is advantageous to their health. Barley may be occasionally given as a purgative. Damaged grains are not good. When fowls are confined they should have gravel supplied them. There is no food so good as sound corn as a regular diet in the winter. If you wish them to lay in the winter keep them warm, and feed fresh beef every day with corn. Salt food will stop their laying and injure them. Red pepper-seed twice a week is good to promote laying.—Ten hens are sufficient for one good cock if you wish strong healthy chickens.

All young chickens, turkies, and ducks, should be kept under cover during rainy seasons.

A small piece of assafœtida should be placed in the pan in which the water is given them to drink. It will prevent drooping.

Chickens kept from the dunghill when young will seldom have the gapes. Should any of them have the gapes or snuffles, mix assafœtida, rhubarb, and pepper in equal proportions of each, in fresh butter. Give each chicken half of the bowl full of a small teaspoon. A small crumb of dough and soap is said to be very good.

For the Pip in Chickens.—Take off the indurated covering on the point of the tongue, and give twice each day for two or three days a piece of garlic or onion about the size of a pea.

Grown up ducks are sometimes taken off rapidly by convulsions. Four drops of syrup of rhubarb, and four grains of red pepper, mixed in fresh butter, will cure them. When hens come of the nest with their brood, grease them well under the wings. Do the same to the chickens once a week for a few weeks.

Roup, or swelled heads in chickens.—Wash the eyes and nostrils clean three times a day with whiskey. The fowls should be kept in a dry warm place and fed with warm soft food.

To Fatten Poultry Quick.—Boil rice in sweet milk, and feed them with it.

To Prevent the Attack of Lice—Wash the poultry house with a strong solution of cedar boughs, and then smoke the house with cedar wood.

The manure of fowls is of great value to farmers. A few weeks before planting time, mix the manure with ashes and plaster, in proportion of about 4 parts of the manure to 1 of ashes and 1 of plaster.—Let it dry and pulverize. Drop a handful in each hill, cover it with earth, then plant. You will have a good crop, and the following crop of grain will also be increased.—The grain should not be dropped in the compost or the germ will be destroyed.

Hen's Eggs.—Those approach nearest to roundness produce females, while those that are more pointed produce males.

To preserve eggs, rub them with butter or varnish. They will keep many months and produce chickens. When varnished, the varnish should be removed before setting. Another mode is to pack them in salt, the point always downward.

Novel Reading.—No. II.

BY NEDLA C. OZNOLA.

"It cannot be, the baffled heart, in vain,
May seek, amidst the crowd, its throbs to hide;
Ten thousand other kindred pangs may bide,
Yet not the less will our own griefs complain."
—Smith.

What is mind? We speak of a sound mind, a weak mind, a strong mind, with reference to the active powers of the understanding; and literally, denotes capacity. Mind is the heart or seat of affection. The implanted principle of grace. It is the foundation of man; in it lies the principles; but their quality, whether good or bad, depends wholly upon the state of the mind.

The mind which has for years been conflicting with opinion, which has wrought mighty works, when allowed to become gratified with, and abide by the influence of "Novel Reading," to any extent, is in as bad a predicament, as is the untutored mind, when allowed to partake freely of its poisonous contents, and become drowned in deep and sluggish reveries. We easily comprehend the distinction between the sound and the weak mind; and we may easily demonstrate the causes of this distinction. That much depends on the idiocratical formation of the mind, I presume no one will deny. But much more depends upon the kind of aliment by which it is nourished. When we eat to gratify the taste merely, we often take within the system that which diseases the body. But when we eat with a desire of preserving and strengthening our physical constitution, we well research the food which we are about to admit and which is to form a portion of the blood which runs through our veins and arteries, which alone is life.

The craving appetites of the mind, before being brought to reason, may be gratified by the admittance of a portion of the most unwholesome food. Its poisonous qualities being unknown, its effects unrealized, its [illegible] unappreciated, the partaker pleads [illegible]less of the crime already committed [illegible]h has shaken his mental constitution, [illegible]rmined his physical, and rendered the [illegible] unfit to receive nutrition from the [illegible] substantial food. Few researches composition; those perhaps containing the most poison, appears in the "glittering guise of polished sentences," and to fancies vision, presents the striking feature of innocence.

As the mind is the soul of affection, or the foundation of man—mental, that whenever the mind is disordered, and misdirected, the affections are stricken, and the sole possessor of the same is rendered unable to call himself a "man of sense" and understanding. He is mind-strickened, the very chords of his heart touched by the influence, and passions—injurious and effective which may be found contained in the works of fiction, or more particularly Novels! The mind is led astray from that which is the most applicable to its future prosperity in this life, and in after life. Mind is the implanted principle of grace. Where is the Christian who has not grace, or a favorable influence of God—divine influence.—Were that influence not among us, we should even at this late period in the world's history, been involved in one common apostacy, for that, and that alone renews the heart and restrains it from sin. When we lose the "state of reconciliation to God," all that the pure Christian is striving to save, is lost, —lost forever!

Novel Reading tends to restrain the mind from seeking "Final salvation" As the mind becomes weakened under the influence of Novel Reading and its natural propensities for deep study and reflection, becomes lukewarm and indulges in erratical thoughts and amusing "Love Stories" which renders it weak and indigent; it is no longer influenced by the preaching of the Gospel, but is unjustly led to pass away the remainder of its days in inglorious ease. It no longer looks abroad into the provinces of the intellectual world. It has become satisfied with it present lot; and can find plenty for its craving appetites to feast upon, even the most unsubstantial food. 'The taste of pleasure provokes the appetite, and every successive indulgence of vice which is to form a habit, is easier than the last.'

"He that pursueth evil, pursueth it to his own death." Such may be the invariable rule that is to govern our mental appetites, that is to direct and regulate our intellectual desires. As the lion perishes by the puncture of an asp, so also may the mind shrink at the entrance of poisoned ideas. Man, to himself, is a large prospect; and yet he may be stricken down by a single ingredient, obtained by his own hands. The evil of Novel Reading thou canst not conceal. It is too notorious. And know ye that, after partaking of the contents of Novels, you must, in future, suffer the disastrous effects of the same upon the finest portion of your compound being. "This is turning nobility into a principle of virtue and making it productive of merit."

CHAPTER 52.

AN ACT requiring Canal Superintendents to publish monthly abstracts of their official disbursements.

Passed March 25, 1853.

The People of the State of New York, represented in Senate and Assembly, do enact as follows;

§ 1. It shall be the duty of each canal superintendent of this state, on or before the fifteenth day of each month, to publish in some newspaper printed in any country through which any part of his section of the canal shall pass, an abstract of his official disbursements, during the preceeding month stating therein the name and residence of the person to whom he has paid money and the amount paid to each; if for labor, the number of days and the amount per day; if for materials, the kind, quantity and price; which abstract shall be published in the entire edition of such newspaper and shall be verified by the oath of such superintendent. The expense of such publication shall not exceed the sum of fifteen dollars to be regulated and fixed by the auditor of the canal department, may be paid by such superintendent out of public moneys in his hands, the expense thereof to be included in and published in his next abstract of official disbursements.

§ 2. Should the canal superintendent be unable to procure the publication as aforesaid for the sum mentioned, then it shall be his duty to make and file such abstract in county clerk's office in the county in which he shall reside, or in the town clerk's office in the town through which his section of the canal shall pass, as the said auditor shall direct.

§ 3. The auditor of the canal department shall prescribe the form of such abstract and cause the necessary blanks to be printed and sent to the superintendent, together with such instructions for publication or filing as will be necessary to insure uniformity in the same.

§ 4. Immediately after the publication or filing such abstract in the country or town clerk's office, he shall transmit to said with CVISION's PdfCompressor effect, that the same has been filed or published according to law, in which he shall state the aggregate amount of such abstract, the form of which certificate shall also be prescribed by said auditor.

§ 5. Said abstract so filed shall be subject to the inspection of the public at all reasonable office hours.

§ 6. This act shall take effect immediately.

CHAPTER 53.

AN ACT to amend an act entitled "An act in relation to railroad corporations," passed February 12, 1853.

Passed March 25, 1851.

The People of the State of New York represented in Senate and Assembly, do enact as follows:

§ 1. The third section is hereby amended by inserting after the word "1848" the words or "An act to authorize the formation of railroad corporations and to regulate the same," passed April 2, 1850, so that said section as amended, shall read as follows; Any railroad company which prior to the passage of this act has been duly formed under the act entitled "An act to authorise the formation of railroad corporations," passed March 27, 1848, or "an act to authorize the formation of railroad corporations and regulate the same," passed April 2d, 1850, and which is duly continued in existence, when at least ten thousand dollars for every mile of its railroad proposed to be constructed in this state, shall be in good faith subscribed to its capital stock, and ten per cent, thereof paid in, may apply to the court for the appointment of commissioners, and all subsequent proceedings may be had to obtain the title to lands necessary for its construction, to the same extent and in the same manner as if the whole amount of the capital stock specified in its articles of association was in like manner described.

§ 2. This act shall take effect immediately.

CHAPTER 63.

AN ACT to amend the sixteenth chapter, of the first part, of the Revised Statutes, Passed March 29, 1853.

The People of the State of New York, represented in Senate and Assembly do enact as follows;

§ 1. The sixth subdivision, of the first, section, of the first article, of the first title, of the sixteenth chapter, of the first part of the Revised Statutes, is hereby amended so as to read as follows:

6. To assign to each of the said road districts such of the inhabitants liable to work, on highways as they shall think proper, having regard to proximity of residence as much as may be: provided, however, that whenever the commissioners of any town shall have neglected for the period of one year at any time after any public road or highway shall have been laid out, and title thereto acquired by due process of law, to open or work the same or any part thereof, and whenever any number of inhabitants of any town, in or through which the said road has been laid out, shall have given ten days notice to the commissioners of said town that they desire to apply the whole or any part of their highway labor to the working of said road, the said commissioners shall forthwith assign the said inhabitants to such road, direct the highway labor, for which they are annually assessed, to be applied to the same, and cause the same to be worked and put in good order for vehicles and travellers, within one year, under the direction of any of the said inhabitants whom such commissioners may appoint as an overseer of the labor so to be applied to such road; and where the number of days labor assessed in the current year to such inhabitants as their annual highway tax is not sufficient to put such road in good order as aforesaid, then the said inhabitants may anticipate the whole or any part of the highway labor assessed, and to be assessed against them for a period not exceeding three years; but from no one of the districts into which the said town is divided shall more than one-half of its annual labor be taken and applied to any road not embraced in said district.

§ 2. This act shall take effect immediately.

State of New York, }
Secretary's Office } I have compared the preceding with the original law on file in this office, and do certify that the same is a correct transcript therefrom and of the whole of said original.

The Americanism of Sardinia.

The accurate Paris correspondent of the Courrier des Etats-Unis states that the French Government is about to abondon or at least postpone its project of establishing a line of steamers to this port: at the same time we have the intelligence that the Piedmontese Government has just signed a contract for two lines, one between Genoa and New York, the other between Genoa and Monte Video. There is a significance in these facts which ought not to pass unheeded. France is seven times larger in territory than Piedmont, has seven times greater population, has tenfold more natural resources, is situated hundreds of miles nearer the American coast, has many fine docked harbors while Piedmont is without a single one, and yet shrinks timidly from a trans-Atlantic commercial enterprise which the others enters upon with zealous confidence. This tells a tale of the relative condition and prospects of the two countries which cannot be misconstrued. The one is all fear, the other all hope: the one all supineness, the other all energy. The two nations are contiguous, but in respect to every thing which truly constitutes a State, they are separated from each other by a more than Alpine barrier.

It would be hard to find such an instance of national growth in power and in character, as Piedmont has exhibited under the free Constitution of 1848. Previous to that time, for centuries back in to the middle ages, the subjects of the Sardinian monarchy were among the most impassive and stationary people in all Europe. They were not a people; they had no civil life; they were a nation of conscripts, and had no other organization than the iron one of military discipline. The Constitution of CHARLES ALBERT made them freemen.—The nation started up into life, displayed a spirit in rushing upon the armies of Austria that astonished the kingdoms, and since then has been pursuing greatness in a peaceful path with an energy and steadiness that assure her the brightest destiny. The Piedmontese now stand before the world the freest, manliest, strongest and discreetest people on the face of Continental Europe. Though in the midst of enemies who have exhausted against them all threats and wiles, they have kept their Constitution unimparied, maintaining it both in letter and spirit. They have given the broadest scope to the discussion of political questions, both in the legislative tribunal and in the public press. Though continuing firm in the Roman Catholic faith, they have made appropriations from the public treasury for the erection of spacious Protestant Churches, have granted perfect religious tolerance, and subordinated all ecclesiastical to the civil authority. They have granted an asylum to exiles and fugitives from neighboring despotism, and, while guarding, as was their duty, against any abuse of their hospitality, have furnished them from their own public treasury with the means of subsistence. They have continued to cherish devoted loyalty to their young king, though he has maintained no state, and in his personal intercourse with his people been scarcely distinguishable from the private citizen. They have sustained at the head of their Constitution first the veteran D' AZEGLIO whose statesmanship was formed upon the most approved English model, and now the more youthful and more progressive CAVOUR, who stands confessedly at the head of all the political economists of Europe. They have paid to Austria every livre of the immense sum which the calamitous war that terminated at Novara imposed upon their exchequer. They have interlaced their territory with railroads; have just organized a company with a capital of fifty million pounds to traverse the rugged passes of Savoy; are already bordering the Alps in one direction, and in their provincial councils gravely devising new tunnels elsewhere on a scale that scarcely has a parallel in modern engineering. They have resolved to construct a line of submarine telegraph to the island of Sardinia; to make most extensive and costly improvements in the harbor of their commercial emporium; have taken measures to open steam communication with the two Americas; have so arranged their internal improvements as will put them in the closest route between England and India; and, though carrying out the principle of free trade, have made astonishing progress in every department of home industry.—And yet notwithstanding all this energy in material development, they have remained as sensitive as the proudest nation in Europe to their national rights and dignity and have just recalled their Minister from the Austrian Court in solemn protest against the late Milan decree sequestrating the property of emigrants from Lombardy who have become Sardinian subjects. The grant of the Constitution of 1848 was as signally the commencement of a new and glorious era to Piedmont, as was to us the adoption of our own Constitution in 1787. Its successful operation has done more than all other causes combined to foil the ruinous schemes of MAZZINI, and to inspire the friends of Italy throughout the world with hope for her future regeneration. —[Courier and Enquirer.

SINGULAR ANECDOTE—There was a young woman left in the care of a house; her master and mistress being in the country. One night on her going to bed, when she was undressing herself, she looked into the glass and said "how handsome I look in my night cap." When she rose in the morning she found the house robbed. She was taken into custody on suspicion of being concerned in the robbery, but tried and acquitted. Some time afterwards, she was walking in company with another female, a man passing her said, "how handsome I look in my night cap!" This expression so forcibly struck her mind that he was the man that robbed the house, that she seized hold of him with the utmost intrepidity, and held him fast, assisted by her companion, till he was given into custody; at which time he confessed that when he was under the bed he heard her use the expression previously to his robbing the house, and he suffered accordingly.

WANTED.—A fifer and drummer to beat time for the march of intellect; a pair of snuffers to trim the "light of other days:"

Republican vs. Aristocrat.

MAXIMILIAN ROBESPIERRE. A somewhat recently issued Life of this "democrat of the old school," reveals a few facts which stand out in agreeable contrast with the conduct of democrats of the present day.—Prominent amongst his virtues—if such an infamous being can be said to have had virtues—was this, that not a dollar of the public money ever stuck to the palms of his hands. With all his opportunities for obtaining plunder during the confiscations and confusion of the Reign of Terror, he died Poor—only a few francs being found in his lodgings after he was beheaded. Of what prominent Loco Foco of the present day, who ever had similar means of amassing wealth, can it be said, He died poor!

The pay of Robespierre as a member of the National Convention was eighteen francs (about three dollars) a day. With this he dressed in excellent taste, paid his board, suported himself when not a member of the Legislature, made a figure in the world, and remitted one third of his pay to his sister at Arras, with which to keep up the family establishment there.

Upon news reaching Paris that Benjamin Franklin was dead, the National Assembly voted to go into mourning. Robespierre therefore threw off his sky-blue coat, white vest, and yellow leather breeches; but being a man who went upon the cash system, and having no means with which to purchase a black suit, he was forced to hire a coat and pants for the occasion. By such frugality he obtained the title of "The Incorruptible."

Robespierre, although forever flattering the people, did not, like Marat, dress in slovenly or vulgar apparel, in order to secure popular applause. Marat was a filthy democrat—Robespeierre a scrupulously exact one. He always, says this Life of him, dressed in precisely the same style, whatever the fluctuations of fashion during the five years he resided in Paris—and was recognized more readily by his garments than his features, particularly by such as had never or but occasionally seen him; blue coat, with broad skirts coming over the hips; light or white vest, yellow leather breeches, stockings reaching to the knee, with a buckle at the knee and upon the shoe and a round, three-cornered hat, made the invariable costume of Robespierre.—[N. H. Statesman.

BRITISH AND AMERICAN STEAMERS.—The average of the voyages performed in the year 1852 by the Collins' line from New York to Liverpool, was 10 days 19 hours, and 14 minutes; from Liverpool to New York, 11 days 16 hours, and 24 minutes. The average of the trips performed in the same period by the Cunrad line from New York to Liverpool, was eleven days eight hours and 55 minutes; from Liverpool to New York 12 days, 11 hours and 30 minutes. It is but fair to say, however, that there have been other computations making the difference somewhat less, but yet not very materially. It must however be borne in mind, that three only of the Cunard steamers were the size and power of the Collins' steamers—the Asia the Africa, and the Arabia, the two first have been almost uniformly beaten in both direction, though by no means so considerably as in the other cases:—the Arabia, with a power much more largely proportioned to its size than exists in any of the Collins' line, and of which the highest expectations were formed by our English friends, has yet performed but two voyages, which fairly tested her best abilities—one in February from New York to Liverpool in 10 days, 3 hours and 30 minutes, and the other in April from Liverpool to New York in 10 days and 10 hours. Considering that the Collins line have now triumphantly maintained their ground for three years against every successive vessel that the long experience and great resources of the Cunard line have been able to bring out against them, we believe we are fully outitled to regard this contest in steam navigation as settled in favor of American skill and American enterprize.

A Contrast.

☞"I wish I could see a pleasant face when I come home. Tired! Yes! that's always the cry. I never get tired—oh, no! Customers to please—clerks to overhaul—accounts to cast up. Hush! I shall hate that child. Now walk the floor and spoil him. Bill, hunt up my slippers. Mary, draw up the rocking-chair. Other men have these things ready for them. There's Saunders, he takes comfort. His wife's as handsome as she was the day she married. If there's anything I hate it's a faded woman. Light the lamps and give me my newspaper. If I can't read here in peace I'll go over to Saunders'."

"Mary, dear, how tired you look. Give me that great strapping boy. No wonder your arms ache. Oh! never mind me.—I'm always O. K. at home, you know. Take the rocking chair yourself, and just be comfortable. Ain't I tired? Why yes, I am—a little, but then I've feasted on fresh air and sunshine to-day, which you haven't. Besides, I don't have such a lump of perpetual motion as this to manage.

Bless my soul—how do you live these hot days? Never mind the room! everything looks well enough—you included—except that your are looking a trifle better than well. How do you manage to keep so young and pretty, bonny wify?"

Well might the smiling answer be, "the freshness and fullness of my husband's love, keeps my heart green." M. A. D.

Notes by the Way; or, Incidents of Collecting Tours.

This is the season of the year when we usually devote a few weeks to collecting.—We have thus far made only hasty trips to Ticonderoga and Crownpoint. The former we have left to a more lengthy visit from our Foreman, and the latter we have left in the hands of an Agent. Hence we omit intended "notes" of these towns. We will only say of Crownpoint that, the more we become acquainted there the better we like it. We doubt if there is a town in the County as valuable for farming, and the farmers too are universally thriving. With scarce an exception, the business of that town has never met with a revulsion. Any number of what is called "poor people" are unknown. The "crops," this spring, and especially grass, exceeds anything we have seen this year. We noticed that farmers are "breaking up" a vast deal.—Grain must be plenty next fall, and it is well, for there will be an increased demand if business continues good. The Hammonds are examining what they hope will prove a copper mine.

The Rev. Mr. Bradshaw, now of Elizabethtown, has had a call to settle in this town as Pastor of the Congregational Church, over which the Rev. Mr. Herrick recently prosided. He is a good man, and we believe the selection will be mutually agreeable.

As we write we are at Port Henry—our old home—where we shall spend two or three days looking up our subscribers, visiting old friends and scenes familiar and endeared by a thousand pleasing recollections. The business of this place so long depressed, and which had well nigh depopulated the town, is once more advancing with the rapidity of the opening and advancement of spring. We trust we shall be able to make some interesting "notes" here.

We now intend to make our next excursion "up the river." We have not yet canvassed the Western, and in fact, the most interesting towns in the County, but now design to do so.

We are thinking of making our delinquent subscribers an offer that will induce them to pay up arrearages, and our patrons generally to extend our circulation and increase our business. We intend to have something to say on the subject next week.

☞The Editor of the Northern Gazette has been sued for libel, and to satisfy his ill natured spleen, pours out his vials of bitter invective upon our unoffending head.—It would seem from his article that nothing that cunning and artifice could devise, was left unemployed to gag this unoffending individual, and ruin him morally and temporally. How true this is it is not necessary for us to say, as the citizens of this village are too well conversant with the facts, to be influenced by these low and unqualified insinuations. It is a well know fact that he threw down the gauntlet, and that we must "clear the track or be run over." This we did not choose to do, although we well knew that no honor could be gained in a controversy with such an adventurer. For

"Be thou as chaste as ice, or pure as snow, Thou shalt not escape calumny."

We now pass to the only thing that needs a word from us, leaving his foul and wanton abuse of us for him to gloat over in his leisure hours.

For whatever has appeared in our columns in relation to this matter of Mr. Finch and Carter, we only are responsible, and the base insinuations of our groveling opponent who panders to suchvitiated tastes, that they were dictated, or in the least influenced by these individuals, are unqualifidely false, and could be harbored only in a breast steeped in iniquity. We were entirely free in our course and acknowledge fealty to no man; neither were we goaded on in our course by the prospect of public pap or pecuniary gain. We vindicated Mr. Finch and Carter as whigs in their official capacity, when assailed by worse than a midnight assassin, well knowing that they were abundantly able to clear themselves of the charges of dishonesty and embezzlement in their own good time.—This is the secret of the Gazette's spleen, who, growing bold by the silence of Mr. Finch, lifted the flood gates of his invective, and argued himself into the belief that he was doing the "state some service" when traducing a valuable citizen who stands pre-eminent in our community for strict moral deportment and integrity. But he was not prepared for the sequel, and it has burst upon him while revelling in his fancied security. He is chagrined and mortified, and we do not wonder at it.

We presume Mr. Finch has not gone into this matter without mature deliberation, nor with the expectation of making money out of it, but for the purpose of teaching Mr. Nelson that a "good name is better than riches and honor than fine gold," and that they cannot be assailed with impunity by an itinerant individual who [illegible] is far from being above reproa[illegible]

The Country Paper.

It is very often complained, as an excuse for not taking a country paper that it has too many advertisements, and that they can get a good deal larger paper, the "Weekly Tribune," "Express," or "Times" for instance, containing more matter, at less price than the country paper, although the postage brings it up to more than the price of the country journal. That the country paper cannot compete with the great plethoric, double-sheeted blankets that issue from our large cities is an admitted fact, but that they never can supply the place of the country paper is also an undisputed truism. Individually, the city papers wield in our democratic government a mighty influence, but their influence, compared with the country journals collectively, is infinitely small. The country journal seeks those that the city paper does not reach, and sows the seed of morality and concord in every nook and corner, in every thriving village, and in every rustic hamlet that bedecks our mountain sides, or nestle in our luxuriant vallies. To the first objection stated above, we will give an estimate showing the amount of money we would make, aside from the advertising patronage, and were the advertisements discontinued, the yearly expenses would be nearly doubled.

Papor, one yoar, - -	$260
Composition, press work, &c.,	614
Incidental expenses, - -	150
	$1,024
Receipts from 600 subscribers,
at $1.50 per year, - -	$900
Deduct for bad debts, at least	100

Leaves a balance against the paper of $224, without any allowance for the Editor.—This shows conclusively that a paper that has not got a good advertising patronage with a fair share of jobbing, must sink money every year.

Now, we have never said ought against our people taking city papers. We think every man had ought to have one, at the same time it is his imperative duty to take the paper that is the most closely allied with his interests. A. B. and C. are doing business here for instance, in different departments of industry, and if they have any thing they wish to call attention to, they cannot depend on the Tribune,—that does not circulate among the class they wish to reach; if they wish to "puff" a friend, a branch of business—the notoricty of which increases the dimes in their pocket; or, if the wish to give some sapiont biped a "setting up," or call attention to some public nuisance, which is perhaps to benefit them individually, the village paper is just the thing. We hold that every one who can read, or has a family, should take two papers if able—his county paper and a city paper—if not not able to take but one, the preference should be in favor of the county paper. We hold too, that citizens should support their village journal with zeal—each individual doing business feeling that he is helping himself—ashe is—when doing so, by giving it all his patronage, suppose it does cost him a pittance more in the course of a year than it would in the city. It is bad policy that sends a man to Albany, or New York to get his work done, when it is taken from those that needs it help to pay him for the articles they consume. We hope our friends will bear these facts in mind, and give us their patronage. It is our ambition—and we hope it is a laudable one—to do good work and give satisfaction to our customers, and if we but receive their encouragement, it will be our concern that material and facilities are secured to enable us to keep pace with the improvements in the Art. †

THE "OLD SETTLER."—Anson H. Allen Esq., has again commenced his highly popular paper, the June number of which is before us. It is filled with pleasing and interesting articles; the one on "Washington City" being very instructive, with a fair share of editorial matter. The "Old Settler" in the hands of its popular and facetious editor, was decidedly popular before its suspension, and it must prove to be even more favorably received now, as its editor has just returned from the seat of wisdom, with any quantity of raw material to manufacture highly interesting articles. †

☞We have received the April No. of the Westminster Review, which has its usual amount of able articles on interesting and important subjects. One on the "Educational Institutions of the United States," will be read by Americans with deep interest, and the writer shows himself thoroughly conversant with all the minutia that governs our school system. We intend to give our readers some quotations. †

Fruits of Advertising.—Those merchants of Burlington who advertise with us are doing a large and rapidly increasing business from this side of the lake. Only a day, or two since F. K. ☞Dr. S. ALLEN has removed his office to the room lately occupied as the Post Office, in the Stone Row, where those who need his professional services will always find him.

C. W. HATCH, Esq., of Westport, has received the appointment of P. M. at that place. He is a young man of correct business habits, and will undoubtedly give good satisfaction.

☞We understand that Messrs. Matthews and Ames, are making arrangements to put up a large three story brick building, on the site of Mr. Hoag's meat market. We are glad of it, as such a building would improve the appearance of that street much.

☞J. B. Holemberg, assisted by Miss Stevens, of Portland, Me., H. A. Scott & Mrs. Holcomb of Vergennes, and Mr. Benton of Shelburne, gave a Concert on Wednesday evening last, which was well received by an intelligent audience.

☞C. Roelofson, Esq., for some time an active and thriving citizen of our village, engaged in manufacturing woolen goods, is about to remove to Detroit, Mich. Mr. R. was decidedly popular among every class of our citizens for his correct, upright business habits and urbanity of manners. We wish him and his family long life and prosperity in their new home.

"Anniversary Week."

The first week in May in N. Y. city has become "of all the year the best"—famous in the calander of great events. There gathers together in that city at that time the representatives from the following, among other societies, having an important influence upon the destinies of the world.—With their deliberations the papers are filled, but we have not the space for them entire, nor the time to condense them.—We can scarcely more than name their different organizations. These are a few of them: Institution for the blind, Institution for the Deaf and Dumb, Meeting in behalf of the Waldenses, Meeting for father Gavazzi, Central American Education Society, Young Men's Christian Association, The five points House of Industry, American Musical Society, American board of Foreign Missions, N. Y. Sunday School Union, N. Y. State Colonization Society, American Home Missionary Society, American Tract Society, Female Guardian Society, Institution for the blind, American Anti-Slavery Society, American Bible Society, American Temperance Union, American Sundy School Union, Philolexian Society's Anniversary. American Baptist Home Mission Society, &c., &c.

We give below a table showing the receipts of some of the principal societies for the years 1852 and 1853, and may at another time give some items of expenditures.

A PRINTER JUDGE.—CHARLES FERNALD, Esq., a talented and energetic young printer, who, four years ago, was a compositor upon the Boston Post—has been appointed, by the Governor of California, County Judge for Santa Barbara, of that State.—The position to which he has been elevated is an extremely responsible one, embracing criminal, civil, and appelate jurisdiction. The appointment is very judicious, and displays a commendable appreciation of merit. It will be recollected that GEORGE H. CAMPBELL, Esq., another Boston printer, was made Judge of Calveras County, Cal., a year or two since, and this latter appoint-

BLACKHAWKS TRIUMPHANT.—It has been objected to this beautiful breed of horses that they would not make draft horses, nor the fastest on the course. Whoever will take the trouble to examine a blackhawk team owned by the Messrs. Kingsland of this place will abandon the first objection, and the result of a recent trot on the Long Island course in which the blackhawk, Eathen Allen, owned by Joel W. Holcomb and Orville Rowe of Ticonderoga, won an easy victory of which the particulars are given below from the N. Y. Herald, is a triumphant answer to the other. In addition to what is given below, we have had the pleasure of an interview with Col. F. M. Wilcox who was present. He states that the race attracted a great crowd of people, and the excitement was intense.—The victory was won with the most perfect ease, and indeed it was more complete than the owners of the Blackhawk wished, for several reasons. We are aware that Mr. Holcomb has always had entire confidence in the success of the blackhawks, and has always insisted that with age and experience they would make fast horses. And now notwithstanding the rush for this breed, the stock is still going up, and will for years, for the supply cannot begin to keep pace with the demand. The valuable blackhawks in this section, so far as we know, are as follows: W. J. Anderson, Peru, G. A. Austin's with B. Rogers Peru, Jason Fairbanks, Keeseville, Mr. Sheldon, Essex, Col. Root, Westport, Foster Bond, Hiram Sissons, Jas. Eddy, A. Honsinger, Timothy Taft, Allen Harwood, Crownpoint, John A. Lee, Moriah, and W. G. Baldwin, Ticonderoga. It costs but a trifle more to raise a horse worth $500, to $1000, than it does one worth only $50, or 75, and hence it seems to us farmers will do well to turn their attention to this subject.

We ought to add that it is said that Holcomb and Rowe have sold their horse for $7000, and that since the race he has trotted a mile in 2,32.

We are for the blackhawks against the world.

TROTING OVER THE UNION (L. I.) COURSE.

Tuesday, May 10—Match $1000, Mile heats, best 3 in 5, in harness, for 4 year old colts.

H. Jones's b. h. Ethan Allen	1 1 1
Smith Burr's b. m. Rose of Washington	2 2 2

Time, 2:36—2:39—2:42.

One hundred to forty was current previous to the start, and during the progress of the race the odds were inornased in favor of the stallion. There was an immense crowd on the course. The track was good, and the weather favorable for the sport.

First Heat.—Ethan Allen won the pole. They came up nicely for the word—H. Jones driving the colt and Albert Conklin the filly—and went off at a very lively gait. The colt took the lead round the turn, the mare pulling out too much. He was two lengths ahead at the quarter pole in forty seconds. Going down the back-stretch the filly gained a trifle, although the colt was going astonishingly fast. He passed the half mile pole in 1:17—making the second quarter in 37 seconds, without the slightest urging on the part of his driver. On the lower turn the filly made an effort to lead. She went up to his head, but as she swung on the homestretch, broke up badly, and fell off at least 20 yards. Albert then seeing that he couldn't overtake the colt did not hurry the filly any further, and came gradually home. The colt, too, broke up about the same time; but he made one plunge or so, and was at his work again in an instant. He won the heat by 40 yards. Time 2:36.

Second Heat.—The mare broke up as soon as the word was given, and the stallion led to the quarter pole four or five open lengths. Time 40 seconds. He increased his speed down the backstretch to the half, but did not get away any further from the filly. Time 1;17. On the lower turn the filly began closing gradually; but it was evident that Mr. Jones was slackening the pace of the colt, and he brought him to the stand a winner by only half a length, in 2·39.

Third Heat.—The son of the owner of the filly now took the place of Albert Conklin in the sulky of the mare, to try his chance, as a last resort. He was 22 pounds overweight, enough to lose any race with equally matched horses. As might be supposed, he was beaten easily.—The stallion took the lead and went past the quarter pole 40 yards in advance, in 41 seconds, the mare having broke up twice before she reached there. The colt went to the half in 1;18, and came home leisurely a winner by a length in 2:42.

From N. Y. Day-Book:

Great Trot.—Quickest Time on Record.—There was a great trot over the Union Course, yesterday, by two four year old colts—one a down-east b. s., and the other a Long Island b. m. The excitement was greater than at any previous trot this season, and the time shorter than ever before made by horses of their age. The horse won the first heat in 2.36, and the second in 2.39. The mare made them in 2.40 and 2.41. This 'takes down' all the colts on the Island, and makes troting by others just no business at all.

☞We would advise those young scapegoats that were around on Tuesday night last, making the solemn midnight hour hideous with their besotted orgies, to take up some other employment, as their squealing voices are ill adapted to successful serenading, and their songs are "stale, flat, and unprofitable," and could the immortal bard hear their quotations from his sublime tragedies he would hide his head for very shame at the degeneration of the 19th century. Mexico.

The Albany Knickerbocker says:

"The late news from Mexico is highly important just at this juncture, when there appear to be so many schemes on foot for the subversion and entire anihilation of that ever misgoverned and unfortunate republic. It is not a litte curious that while Santa Anna is apparently negotiating for the return of Mexico to the arms of Spain, Gen. Arista, the recently deposed President, has come out strongly in favor of anexation to this country. Santa Anna, on again assuming the reins of government, finds the national treasury bankrupt. He requires money and must have it—this probably will account for his intrigues with the Spanish diplomat. On the other hand, Arista, who is anxious for the welfare and happiness of his countrymen, is fully impressed with the belief that the desired ultimatum cannot be obtained short of annexation. The following extract is from the reply of the Ex-President to the now Minister of War.—The cause that led to his expulsion from the country, is a suspicion that he intended to head a reactionary movement. His views in relation to annexation are somewhat remarkable.

I cannot conceive how or why there can be any obstacle to preserve tranquility and public order by my presence in the country, if it be not that it is made out a crime that I should have maintained some friendly relations, in particular with Carvajal and other federalists. North Americans established in the neighborhood of the Northern frontier, as such indicates to me the expression made by your Excellency in the note which I reply, saying that while I remain in Europe I shall enjoy my pay and rank.

I should remark that, notwithstanding my federal ideas and the sympathy that I have for the North American institutions, I have committed not the slightest act that should cause the punishment of exile to be applied to me. I desire the happiness of my country, and to attain it I see no road but through federal institutions, and, if it be desired annexation to the United States; in which Mexico will meet an inexhaustible fountain of riches and prospetity notwithstanding she may lose the grand enigma, that squaring of the circle, called by Santa Anna Nationality. The day will arrive when this will happen; in the meanwhile I must protest, and I protest solemnly, against the act of tyranny which falls upon me, and at the proper time will demand reparation due for the injuries inflicted on me.

The Charleston Mercury, in an article upon the present and the future of Mexico, states sundry facts illustrating the rapidity of her recent decline. She has lost more than one-half her territory since 1832; her income has fallen from twenty millions, which it averaged before her independence, to ten millions, the amount in 1851; her foreign debt has risen from thirty two to fifty-two millions since 1825; her domestic debt has risen from forty to seventy six millions since 1822, and the army has dwindled from 50,000 to 13,000. It says;

They want a master, who will compel their respect and obedience by force.—They are incompetent of self government, and the alternative, therefore, is anarchy or absolutism. To endow such a people with the franchises of republicanism, is simply to place in their hands the instruments of disorder. These remarks have a party, daily growing stronger in the United States, called the Young America, party. It regards the indefinite extension of our territory, and by consequence the same spread of our institutions as "manifest destiny." It regards Democracy as a political panacea, to be administered copiously in all cases. It details in all the extravagence of words, flatters national vanity, and incites the aggressive spirit of the country to boundless conquests for power and spoils. It holds treaties, a national clemency, and a regard for the rights of others, at convenience or self-interest.

The nucleus of this party is in the Northwest. But it has adherents and recruits all over the country. Even in the South, that section which must live by an enlightened conservatism, which should see in every foot of acquisition still further compromise of honor and safety, even here the wild tenets of Young America have found disciples. That this party will become dominant in the nation, is by no means improbable—And if it does, what can stay its swoop upon the defenceless flocks of the Sierras of Mexico? Her annexation to this Union will then be a certain thing, and that act will introduce into our Government the same elements which, for thirty years have been destroying, impoverishing, and corrupting everything of worth at home.

The relations of Mexico and the U. S. and the consequences to flow from them are worthy of serious attention. Will this government lend its aid to help Mexico out of her troubles, or will it plunge her deeper, and deeper in difficulties? Are the people of this country Republicans, or Pirates? Will not this last conquest cease till this beautiful land is plunged into a civil war to preserve its own unity? Is there no mighty hand, or eloquent tongue to assist, this phantom chase for indifinite extension, this wicked lust for that which is our neighbors?

Let us pause and reflect.—[Ed. Rep.

POSTOFFICE DEPARTMENT.—There are 19,000 Postmasters in the United States, and the Department to supervise all this complicated machinery, consists of only a Postmaster General and five assistants. There are between four and five thousand more Postoffices in the United States than in all Europe. In the islands of Great Britain and Ireland, in addition to the officers of the Home Office in London, there are twelve assistants, ranking with the Postmaster General's assistants here, and having only about 3,000 Postoffices.

The Rail Road.—Various reports are in circulation as to the location of this road through Keeseville. We have conversed with Mr. Green, the engineer, who says he has not expressed any opinion, and shall not—that his report will consist of the facts of the survey, without any opinion of his, upon which the directors will pass upon the particular route. As to the probabilities of the road there is nothing new.—At the next meeting of the Direotors after the report of the survey there will undoubtedly be some show of hands, indicating either action or delay. We confess that to us there appears to be a crisis approaching in rail road operations. Several roads are heavily embarassed, some have gone into the hands of assignees, and others are not paying expenses, and we have fears of the result. Should there be a crash in the rail road speculations it would of course put off this enterprise indefinitely. It is true that this is an important link in a great chain of roads, and we hope it is so much a matter of necessity as not to be deferred in any event. Our anxiety for the road is not exceeded by any other person, and we hope our fears will prove unfounded There seems to be few things more important to the prosperity of this section than a rail road. That it may succeed is our most anxious wish.

FESTIVAL OF ST. JOHN. The twenty-fourth day of June will be celebrated in Concord by the ancient Order of Free and Accepted Masons. The proceedings will be under the direction of the Grand Lodge of New Hampshire, and from that body invitations will be extended to subordinate Lodges in the State. We are informed that the occasion will be made both intellectual and festive, and that in all probability Masons will be present from adjoining States. There is to be a procession, an oration, and a dinner.

Masonry has so completely survived the prejudicies and even vindicitive assaults made upon it during several years succeeding 1828, and at least held its own, notwithstanding the establishment of a Society supposed to be at least a partial imitation of it, that in this fact is furnished evidence that it is an Institution which accomplishes some good. Were it not so, men would not expend money and time to sustain it. Other secret societies expire soon after their novelty is gone: this has survived the vicissitudes of centuries.—N. H. Statesman.

CROWNPOINT, May 25, 1853.

MR. EDITOR:—I noticed an obituary of the death of Isaac Huestis jr., in the last number of your paper. I once was his teacher and he my scholar. On the last day of my school in Chesterfield, he read from the well known "Porter's Rhetorical Reader," these words—"Death loves a shining mark," (a sentence in one of the Exercises he read on that day,) the truth of these words is confirmed by the death of Isaac Huestis Jr. The grave does not hold within its narrow bounds a nobler youth.

The Legislature.

This body was to have met on Tuesday. Its labor must attract the attention of the people. What will be done for the canals? Will the Barnburner faction permit them to enlarge themselves. We can only wait and see. In the mean time read the following:

COMPLETION OF THE PUBLIC WORKS.

The Report of the Canal Committee of the Senate, by whom Judge Vanderbilt's Plan for completing the Public Works was adopted, will be found in to day's Journal.

This Plan contains, with modifications and improvements, the leading and essential features of the Canal Law of 1851, for the faithful execution of which the present State Officers stand solemnly Pledged.—And now that it proposes to allow the Canals to work out their own completion Constitutionally, there ought to be a concurrence of all parties in favor of the enterprise.

The Democracy holds sway in all the Department of the States Government.—They owe their supremacy to a Pledge to complete the Canals. We now call upon them to redeem that Pledge. The time, the manner and the means are at hand.—Much time along with many millions have been lost. The growth of our Cities has been retarded. The general prosperity has been postponed; and though past may not be retrieved, the future may be secured.

And let this be held in remomberance.—The completion of the Public Works imposes no burthen upon the People. With leave of the Government the Canals will enlarge and complete themselves. And when enlarged and completed, revenues will flow into our Treasury and riches be wafted into our Cities and Villages, exceeding in value the wildest "dreams of avarice."

Accommodation Line.—We have at last a boat running for the accommodation of the public. The States leaves Burlington for Whitehall every day at 1-2 past 7 P. M. and leaves Whitehall for Burlington every day at 1-2 past 7 A. M. making all intermediate landings. The people in the south part of the county are very much pleased with it. The "States" is fitted up in the most beautiful manner, and manned by as unexceptionable a crew as ever conducted a craft on the lake.

To the Misses Weston—On the Death of their Brother.

He has taken his flight to the realms of light,
On eagles' wings, he, soaring went;
And a happy smile wreathed his lips the while,
For you his loving sisters meant.

'Tis a smile that tells of the peace that dwells,
In that bright world beyond the skies;
That makes us aspire, with frequent desire,
To die the death the christian dies.

Monroe to his home has gone alone,
And left his sisters mourning here.
For an angel came, and breathed his name,
Then left him smiling for the bier.

To those he has left, to his friends bereft,
Our kindly sympathy be given;
To the world above he has borne their love,
And awaits them now in heaven.

Answer to Charade of last week—"Lieutenant."

Died.

May 19th, in Keeseville, at the residence of his father, Monroe E. Weston aged 21.

Seldom has it been my privilege to visit the sick chamber of any one, who manifested more of the endearing virtues, than the subject of this obituary; young, of pleasing manners naturally and amiable disposition, his friends had abundant evidence, that for weeks previous to his departure, all was sanctified by the grace which none but God imparts. Two weeks before his death, he made a profession of his faith, as public as circumstances would permit, by baptism and uniting with the few friends who had the happiness of being present, in commemorating the dying love of his Redeemer,—To his friends he expressed the deepest regret for the sins of his past life, and his chief desire seemed to be, that he might devote himself to the service of his Savior, and manifest his faith by a godly life. It was a source of grief, that in consequence of the extreme difficulty he experienced in speaking, he was precluded from saying much, he would have said to those about him, specially to his former companions in folly. Towards the clergymen who frequently visited him in his sickness, he expressed very strong attachment, and in their absence from town, which occurred during the last few days of his life, he deeply felt the want of spiritual advice. He loved best the society of those, who also loved their Saviour. His friends mourn not as those who have no hope, for to him death seemed to have lost its sting, and the glories of eternity only, attracted him. He was lovely in his life, and in death peaceful and triumphant. By a large circle of mourning friends, his memory will be ever fondly cherished. C. E.

Ploughs—Prouty & Mear's centredraught.

These ploughs have obtained a celebrity unparalleled having taken the first premiums in this country and at the World's Fair in London. We have also Starbuck's and Tabor's celebrated Ploughs.

Our stock of Ploughs comprise a great variety of patterns and different sizes, calculated for sward and stubble land, wet meadows and recently drained swamps, where roots abound—among which also, are the deep-breaking up, flat-furrow, lap-furrow, self-sharpening, side-hill, double mould-board, sub soil, &c., &c.

Harrows—triangular, square, Geddes and Scotch.

Hay, Straw and Corn Stalk Cutters, either by hand or horse power; spiral, straight or circular knives.

Cultivators—of different kinds, steel tooth and cast iron.

Corn Shellers—a variety of patterns. Will shell from 50 to 100 bushels of corn per hour.

Fan Mills and Grain Cradles—Grant's unrivalled. We confidently recommend them as the best in use.

Seed Sowers—Batcheller's & Emery's, and other kinds.

Vegetable Cutters—for turnips and other roots.

Horse Powers, Threshers, Winnowers and Separators—Wheeler's Patent Railway Chain Horse Power This Power, both single and double-geared, for one or two horses, has never been equalled for lightness in running, strength, durability and economy. The Thresher and Separator are too widely and favorably known to need our commendation. The combined Thresher and Winnower, (which is a new invention of last year,) has not been so generally introduced. All who have used it express the highest approbation of its merits. We entertain no doubt that it is the most perfect, compact, and efficient machine now in use for threshing and winnowing grain, as it certainly is by far the cheapest and most economical.

Warranted to give satisfaction.

or be returned after a reasonable trial.

Saw Mill—Low, once used for sawing wood for locomotives on Railways, or by farmers for cutting stove fuel With a one horse power it will cut 10 to 15 cords of wood twice in two per day.

AGRICULTURAL & HORTICULTURAL TOOLS AND IMPLEMENTS,

a great variety and extensive assortment, such as Hoes, Shovels, Spades, Rakes, Manure and Hay Forks, Scythes, Snaths, Cattle Ties, Draft, Halter and Tree Chains, Garden Syringes, Pruning Saws, Pruning and Budding Knives, Garden Shears and Twig Cutters, Grindstones, Patent Grindstone fixtures, rollers, barn door rolls, &c., &c.

Grain, Field, Garden and Flower Seeds.—We are prepared to furnish Herds Grass, Red Top, Lucerne, White Dutch, Southern, Western and Northern Clover Seed, Red, Turnip, Onion and Carrot Seed, at Wholesale and Retail at the lowest market prices.

We have by far the largest and most complete assortment of Agricultural Implements, Machines, Field and Garden Seeds to be found in the State, which we offer at our new and spacious Ware-Rooms to Farmers and Dealers on terms the most liberal. We are also Commission Merchants and Wholesale and Retail Dealers in heavy and shelf

DRY GOODS,
Carpets and Oil-Cloths.

Owing to the large increase of patronage, I have found it necessary from time to time, to make many improvements and additions to my store.

This spring I have united the stores No. 7 and 9, State St., making a spacious and beautiful room, fitted up expressly for the sale of all the various styles of Silks, Shawls, Cloaks & Mantillas.

This connects with the main store, No. 202, River St., (the old stand occupied by the subscriber for nearly 30 years,) which is devoted to a general assortment of

STAPLE AND FANCY DRY GOODS,

comprising every variety to meet the wants of all classes of buyers. Besides these, four large rooms over the stores 200, 202 and 204 River St., are occupied as

CARPET WARE-ROOMS,

where I am constantly receiving the newest and most desirable patterns of Velvet, Tapestry, Brussels, Three-ply, Ingrain and Venetian Carpets. Also, Oil-Cloths of every quality and width, and every style of Drugetts, Rugs, Mats, Matting, Stair-Rods, &c.

All these departments combined making an extensive and complete Establishment, conducted on such principles, that customers can trade with confidence, and to their own advantage, my sales being always for cash, and the only price asked, being the lowest cash price. G. V. S. QUACKENBUSH.

OLD ESTABLISHED HOSPITAL.

Quick Cures and Low prices. Private Diseases and their Antidote.

Dr. LISPENARD, author of the Marriage Guide, or Private Medical Treatise, Professor of Diseases of Women and Children, and Licentiate of the College of Physicians and Surgeons of the United States University, &c., &c, continues as heretofore to be confidentially and successfully consulted on all forms and variety of

PRIVATE DISEASES,

at his old quarters, No 5 Beaver-street, ALBANY, N. Y.

The great success attending the use of Doctor L.'s remedies in secret diseases, and the many remarkable cures daily effected by him in recent as sold lingering attacks, ionclusivevidence that the well

SICK AND UNFORTUNATE

can do no better than consult the Doctor, whose whole time is devoted to the exclusive treatment of this much neglected branch of practice.

LOOK AT THIS.

Dr. Lispenard cures recent cases of disease in from three to six days, and chronic or long standing diseases in a very short period of time. without the use of Mercury, without the loss of time, change of diet, or detention from

DAILY EMPLOYMENT.

In Syphillis. Gonorrhœa, Gleet, Strictures, Enlargement of the Testicles and Cords, Bubo, Chancres, Pimples and Scaly Eruptions, Sore Throats and Noses, Chancres on the tongue. tender shin bones, and diseases of the skin, and impure blood, Dr. Lispenard's remedies are above all praise, and frequently cure when all others had failed

EVEN TO RELIEVE.

More than 5,000 patients have during the past year experienced the benefit of the Doctor's extraordinary skill in treating secret diseases—among which, diseases of the bladder and kidneys have formed a goodly proportion.

YOUNG MEN,

who by indulging in secret habits have injured their health and prostrated their intellectual faculties, and thereby deprived themselves of the pleasure of married life, should consult Dr. Lispenard without a moment's delay. Hundreds have been restored to health, society and friends, under my peculiar mode of treatment, alt ough vast sums of money had been sacrificed without any benefit. My remedy for this disease is pleasant to take, has no offensive smell and

CURES WITHOUT FAIL

☞ Persons so unfortunate as to be d seased, although they may have visited half a dozen Doctors, and had medicine sent them a dozen times with no benefit, would exhibit wisdom by making their case known to that FRIEND OF THE SICK, Dr. Lispenard, who never charges for advice and warrants all his cures. The sick are often at a loss where to apply for relief, AND TIS NO WONDER, as hundreds stand ready to plunder the unfortunate victim of PRIVATE DISEASE, or secret habits. without one thought for his life and health. All thus deceive will hnd a friend, and moderate charges, in consulting the Doctor who USES NO MERCURY and cures every time.

N. B.—Persons from a distance when visiting the city in search of a physician and friend will be fortunate if they succeed in escaping the many dens of imposition, conducted by unprincipled men, destitute of character knowledge or name, who fleece the unfortunate victim of disease of his hard earned money, and his remaining health. Patients who have no acquaintance in the city should make inquiry of some respectable citizen, or the editor or proprietor of any of the city papers, to ascertain who is the most reliable physician to apply to.

FEMALE DISEASES.

Dr. Lispenard, from an experience seldom or never enjoyed by any other medical man, is enable to treat, with every hope of succes. all and every variety of Female Complaints—with safe and pleasant remedies—and has without doubt cured within the past five years more than 3000 females afflicted with diseases of the Bladder. Womb, &c. &c. Ladies afflicted with suppression or stoppage of their monthly turns, will recollect that Dr. Lispenard is still the sole American agent for.

DR. VICHOI'S

FEMALE MONTHKY PILLS.

The unprecedented sale of more than 15,000 boxes of these excellent Pills, and the good results which always follow their use. is conclusive evidence of their utility in stoppages, &c. MORTGAGE SALE

DEFAULT has been made in the payment of the debt secured by a certain mortgage, dated the 21st day of October, 1847, executed by William Galusha and Sophia, his wife, then of Wilmington, in the County of Essex, State of N. Y., to Uriah D. Mibills of Keene, in the county and state aforesaid, and recorded in the office of the clerk of Essex county, in volume N. of Mortgages, pages 283 and 284, on the 28th day of December, 1847, at nine o'clock, A. M. Said mortgage was duly assigned by said Mibills to Willard Bell, January 14th, 1848, and by said Bell duly assigned to Reuben Patridge, January 30, 1849, and by said Patridge duly assigned to M. Finch, Amos Avery and Charles Malbone, assignees of Reuben Sanford, January 1st, 1849, who are now the owners of said mortgage. There is claimed to be due on said mortgage, at the time of the first publication of this notice, the sum of $167,93. Now therefore, notice is hereby given that the premises described in said mortgage, will, by virtue of a power of sale contained in said mortgage, and pursuant to the statute in such case made and provided, be sold at public auction, at the Adirondac Hotel, in Keeseville, in said county, on the 8th day of June next, at 1 o'clock, P. M.

Said mortgaged premises are described in said mortgage as follows: All that certain piece or parcel of land situate in the town of Wilmington, in the county of Essex, being a part of lot No 34, of Mallory's grant, bounded as follows: beginning at a stake and stones standing on the North line of the Sampson lot, 141 rods from the centre of the road leading from the Carpenter house to Blish and Burdick's forge. being the South-West corner of Ephraim French's land, and running East on said line to the West line of said grant, thence North on the line of said grant to the centre of the road leading from Sanford's to St. Armand, the nce running Easterly in the centre of said road to a stake and stones, being the North-West corner of a piece of land occupied by David Hatch, thence South 42 degrees, West six rods to the South bank of Mill Brook, thence Easterly along the South bank of said brook 30 rods to a stake and stones being the South-East corner of said Hatch lot, thence North 35 degrees East to the centre of said road, thence Easterly in the centre of said road to the North-West corner of the Carpenter lot, thence South on the line of said Carpenter lot to the South-west corner of said lot, thence East on the line of said lot to the brook, thence up the brook in the centre thereof to a point ten rods below the saw mill, and thence on the South bank of said brook on the line of Ephraim French's lot to the North-west corner thereof, thence South 43 degrees west on the line of said French's lot 126 rods to the place of beginning, containing seventy-five acres, be the same more or less.

SHERIFF SALE.

BY virtue of an execution issued out of the Essex County Court, to me directed and delivered against the personal and real property of Nathaniel Mason, I have seized and taken all the right, title, and interest which the said Nathaniel Mason had on the eleventh day of January, 1853, or at any time thereafter, in and to the following described real estate, to wit:—All those certain pieces of land situate in the town of Willsboro, in Essex County and being part of a lot of land in Peru Bay Tract, and bounded and described as follows:—

Beginning at a stake in centre of the highway where a spruce tree formerly stood in the South line of lot Number (62) sixty-two of the aforesaid tract, from thence West on the said South line of lot No. sixty two thirty five chains and eighty one links, thence North partly on the line of a piece of land formerly owned by William S. Flack, even chains and sixteen links, thence east thirty four chains and seventy five links and from thence Southerly to the place of beginning, containing thirty five acres of land, more or less.

Also, one other piece of land being a part of lot Number thirteen Peru Bay tract commonly called the Thompson lot, and bounded as follows, to wit:—Beginning at at a stake in the centre of the highway where a Spruce tree formerly stood in the South line of lot sixty two of the aforesaid tract and from thence South nineteen degrees and thirty minutes east, fourteen chains and six links to a stake and stones on the east branch of a small stream of water thence South forty two degrees west, forty one links to a hemlock stump, thence North 55° west five chains and seventy links to a stake thence North forty six degrees West thirteen chains and fifty links to the South line of lot Number sixty two in a small brook, from thence to the place of beginning, containing nine acres and seventy two rods of land, more or less, the two lots above described being the same lots described in two Deeds of conveyance executed by Robert Flack and Sarah his wife to Lawrence Edwards, one Dated January 26, 1842, and the other dated May 20th 1843.

Also, one other piece of land in said town of Willsboro, being a part of Lot Number (63) in said Peru Bay tract and commencing on the North line of lot Number 62, in said tract in the centre of the Highway, which runs through said lot 62, thence North sufficient distance to make fifty acres by coming due east to the east line of said lot 63, thence around to the place of beginning, so as to make the aforesaid number of fifty acres from the north side of said lot (63.)

Which said real estate I shall expose for sale at public vendue at the Inn of David Judd in the town of Elizabethtown, in said county of Essex on the 13th day of June next at 10 o'clock, in the forenoon.

THE WONDER OF THE WORLD,

DEVINES' COMPOUND

PITCH LOZENGE,

A sure and pleasant Remedy for Colds, Coughs, Croup, Whooping Cough, Asthma, and if lungs enough are left to sustain life, A CERTAIN CURE FOR CONSUMPTION, safe for the Infant or the Invalid, in any stage of weakness.

"The statements that consumption cannot be cured, has destroyed more lives than the disease itself.—[Dr. Warren

Read the following, which to a candid mind places this "Great Remedy," like Cæsar's wife "above suspicion."

TO THE PUBLIC!

We, the undersigned, citizens of Lee, Mass., are acquainted with Mr. Devines, the Proprietor and Manufacturer of Devines' Compound Pitch Lozenge and from what we know of it ourselves and have learned from others of its beneficial effects, in cases where it has been used, give it as our opinion that it is a valuable remedy in diseases for which it is recommended and is worthy of public confidence. A. G. Hulburt, Leonard Church, F. G. Taylor, Wm. Taylor, E. A. Bliss, S. A. Hulburt, Josephus Crafts, T. P. Eldridge.

If any individual is to be pittied, and needs sympathy, it is the consumptive—always expecting to get well, and yet the painful evidence of decay almost "makes the inner soul shrink with the outer flesh"

"Some bloom as roses bloom, and live as roses live, A single morning space!"

While others, in more mature life—by some imprudence and a slight cold neglected—in the hectic flush,—the painful cough.

"The prints of their departing steps appears."

BUT HERE IS HOPE! Mr. Wm. Devines, the originator and manufacturer of the Pitch Lozenge, under Providence, was raised to perfect health by the use of these Lozenges alone, after he was pronounced by his physician to be almost dying with consumption.

This fact is generally known in Berkshire County and is the neighborhood talk, and wonder in Lee, and in Great Barrington, Mass.

From Dr. Brown, of Lee, Mass.

This certifies that I have made use of Devines' Compound Pitch Lozenge for cold and cough, and found immediate relief. Therefore I would recommend it to the public as being a safe and sovereign remedy. H. C. BROWN.

MORSE'S

COMPOUND SYRUP OF

Yellow Dock Root.

THIS is a Purely Vegetable Compound, scientifically prepared from the best Roots and Herbs of the Materia Medica, and has gained a universal reputation for the following effects, viz: Regulating and Strengthening the Liver and Digestive Organs, and Cleansing the Stomach and Bowels, and curing all Billious Diseases, Liver Complaints, Dyspepsia. Indigestion, Costiveness, Piles. Headache, Fever and Ague, Jaundice Nausea, Loss of Appetite, &c., and causing the food to nourish and support every part, PURIFYING THE BLOOD, and thus curing all Humors, Cutaneous Eruptions, Scrofula, Salt Rheum, Erysipelas, Scald Head, Canker, Pimples on the face, Blotches, Ulcers, Tumors, Mercurial Diseases, Cancers, &c. Regulating the secretory Organs, and by enabling them to perform their proper functions, preventing and curing many painful and dangerous diseases; Strengthening and Quieting the nervous system, thus allaying Nervous Irritation, and curing all Diseases of the Nerves, as Hysteria, Neuralgia, Cramps, &c.

It is unrivalled in the cure of all FEMALE COMPLAINTS, as weakness, general debility, Irregularity, Obstructions, Swelling of the Feet, Limbs, Joints, &c., caused by weakness; also, Lung and Throat Complaints, as Colds, Coughs, Asthma, Consumption, &c., also, Dropsy.

Having made use of the Compound Syrup of Yellow Dock Root, prepared by C. Morse and C., either ourselves or in our families. and finding it to be a very salutary and effectual preparation, we do most cheerfully recommend it to the public as a very valuable medicine.

E Bourne. Esq, Cashier National Bank, Providence, R. I.; A. W. Spencer. Esq, Cashier Lime Rock Bank, do do Rev. William Phillips. Rev. J. B. Richmond, C. S Jones. editor Providence Gen. Advt; Wm. Field, M. W. G. M., Cyrus Fisher, M. E. H. P., James Hutchinson, G. S. Dea., V. J. Bates, Doct Benj. Colby. and one hundred others of the most respectable families of Providence.

This certifies that I have for a number of years been acquainted with the composition and mode of manufacture of Morse's Compound Syrup of Yellow Dock Root. I have also been acquainted with its modus operandi in disease, and can say that in all respects it is admirably calculated to remedy that class of Diseases for which it was designed. It is especially valuable in indigestion and all its attendant symptoms, it excites to healthy action the Liver, removes Torpor, and inactivity of this organ, and stimulates healthy action in all the system. As a Depurator or purifier of the Blood it has no superior.

Poetry.

The following beautiful effusion emenates from the brilliant mind and warm and pure heart of one of the most gifted lyric poets of the age.

[From the Home Journal]

On the Burial of Mrs. Mary L. Ward, at Dale Cemetery, Sing-Sing, on Tuesday, 3d May.

BY GEORGE P. MORRIS.

THE knell was toll'd—the requiem sung,
The solemn burial service read;
And tributes from the heart and tongue
Were rendered to the dead.

The dead!—Religion answers "No!
She is not dead—she cannot die!
A Christian left this vale of woe!
An angel lives on high!"

The earth upon her coffin-lid
Sounded a hollow, harsh adieu!
The mound arose, and she was hid,
For ever from the view!

For ever?—Drearily the thought
Passed, like an ice-bolt, thro' the brain;
When Faith the recollection brought
That we shall meet again.

The mourners wound their silent way
Adown the mountain's gentle slope,
Which, basking in the smile of May,
Looked cheerfully as hope.

As hope?—What hope?—That boundless
God in His love and mercy gave; [One
Which brightens, with salvation's sun,
The darkness of the grave.

THE CHRISTIAN LIFE.—When our Saviour said to his disciples, "Because I live ye shall live also," he evidently referred to that higher spiritual life upon which, as having been made "new creatures," they had entered. He also, at the same time declared himself the cause, origin, and everlasting sustainer of that life. He is the fountain of life to all who believe on him. Not only was he such to them whom by his own voice he had called to follow him, but he has been, is, and ever will be the same to all, of whatever country or age, to the end of time, who receive him by faith as a Saviour.

The source being ever the same, we should expect the believer's life to be the same, wherever or under whatever circumstances it may be developed. And so we find it to be. In all the diversities of creeds and modes of worship, true religion is ever essentially the same. Its constituent elements are always identical in nature, whether observed in the enlightend or ignorant, bond or free. There can be no true piety without love to Christ as the Redeemer, faith in his word, and hatred of sin as offensive to God. Of these all partake who are truly believers in Christ.—They are the common gifts of the same Spirit to all who experience its renewing power. They are the cause and source of whatever is lovely and holy in the development and growth of Christian character. Repentance toward God and faith in the Lord Jesus Christ precede and underlie the whole range of Christian experience. All pretended Christian experience of which these are not the source and basis must be spurious.

But that faith and repentance, whose effects are not observable in the believer's daily life are of no value. They are but mere idle sentiments or intellectual convictions, having no power over the soul. If genuine, they will penetrate thoroughly the spiritual nature, control the springs of action, and infuse themselves into the current of the soul's desires, thoughts, and affections. It is a great mistake to suppose that repentance is to be exercised once for all at the time of conversion, and one act of faith, put forth when Christ is first revealed to the soul. He who in theory or practically adopts such a view needs to be instructed in some of the first principles of the gospel. "Real evangelical repentance is much more than a solitary or occasional act. It denotes the soul's constant and habitual conflict with sin in all its forms, from its smallest germs in the heart through all its varying phases, until it expands into overt acts of transgression It mourns over disinclination to duty and sluggishness of desire in the Master's service, and finds occasion for grief in omitted performances as well as in open disobedience. The great deficiencies of character which demand repentance can be remedied only through the exercise of a faith that actualizes the whole gospel to the mind, and brings all its motives to bear, in connection with the Holy Spirit, in the work of re-fashioning the moral nature in the image of the heavenly Mediator." As Christ is the source of all spiritual life, it is only by preserving a near connection with his living Lord that the believer can, through faith, appropriate the gracious benefits he bestows, and indues the stream of divine life into his soul. In proportion as this connection is maintained, will the life of Christ be manifest in us, and we live, even as the branch lives by reason of its connection with the vine.

What abundance of encouragement is there in those gracious words of Christ which were quoted at the commencement of these paragraphs! Human nature is weak, and beset with manifold infirmities. No one knows this so well as the Christian who has striven to attain unto the life of faith. But in these words we have assurance that whosoever will live a holy life shall find in Christ a sufficiency of grace for every occasion. Whoever is intent upon making the religion a life and a demonstration and cankers. The stores of the man who walks according to the will of God are under a special blessing, put the stores which have been unjustly gathered are accursed. "Your gold and your silver is cankered, and the rust of them shall be a witness against you, and shall eat your flesh as fire." Far better have no gold at all than gold with that curse on it. Far better let cold pinch this frame, or hunger gnaw it, than that the rust of ill-gotten gold should eat it up as fire.

Perhaps you may once or twice in your life have passed a person whose countenance struck you with a painful amazement. It was the face of a man with features as of flesh and blood, but all hue of flesh and blood was gone, and the whole visage was overspread a dull silver-gray and a mysterious metallic gloss. You felt wonder, you felt curiosity, but a deep impression of the unnatural made pain the strongest feeling of all which the spectacle excited. You found it was a poor man, who, in disease, had taken mercury till it had transfused itself through his skin and glistened in his face. Now, go where he will, he exhibits the proof of his disorder, and of the large quantity of metal he has consumed. If you had an eye to see the souls that are about you, many would you, see—alas, too many—who are just like that; they have swallowed doses of metal—ill-got ten, cankered, rusted metal—till all purity and beauty are destroyed. The metal is in them, throughout them, turning their complexion, attesting their disorder, rendering them shocking to look upon for all eyes that can see souls. If you have unjust gains, they do not disfigure the countenance on which we short sited creatures, look, but they do make your soul a pitiful sight to the great open Eye that does see. Of all poisons and plagues' the deadliest you can admit to your heart is gain which fraud has won. The curse of the Judge is in it; the curse of the Judge will never leave it; it is woe, and withering, and death to you; it will eat you up as fire; it will witness against you—ay, were that poor soul of yours, at this precise moment, to pass into the presence of its Judge, the proof of its money-worship would be as clear on its visage as the proof that the man we have described has taken mercury is plain upon his.

Miscellaneous.

Improvement of the Mind.

BY T. S. ARTHUR.

We often find two persons, who have been equally well educated at school, one of whom is greatly in advance of the other in point of intelligence. This does not always arise from the superior ability of one, but because one of them had read, thought, and observed, more than the other. What we gain at school is only the means of becoming wise and useful. If we let it lie inactive in our minds, it will do us no good. How quickly does a young lady lose her power over the piano, if she neglect the instrument! How soon is a language forgotten, if we do not attempt to write or speak it! And this is true of nearly everything that is acquired at school. It lies merely in the outer court of memory, and does not enter and take any permanent impression upon the mind until it is practised and made useful in every day-life.

We often hear it said of a woman, in society, that she is a well-educated woman; and the inference usually is, that she has received a liberal education at school.—But the remark means something more; it means that she is a reading, observing, and reflecting woman. Hundreds have their memories crowded with the rudiments of an education, lie there as inactive as food in the stomach of a dyspeptic; and they imagine themselves to be well educated; but it is all an imagination. To be well educated is something very different from this.

All real improvement of the mind commences at the time we first begin to think for ourselves; and this is after we have left school. At school, we merely acquire the means to be used in that true and higher order of education which every one must gain for himself. It matters not how many studies a young lady may have pursued at school, nor how thoroughly she may have mastered all she attempted to learn; if, after leaving school she does not read, observe, and think, she will never make an intelligent woman.

In every company a young lady will find two classes of persons, distinctly seperated from each other. If she mingle with those of one class, she will find their conversation to consist almost entirely of light and frivolous remarks on people's habits, dress, and manners, with the occasional introduction of a graver theme, that is quickly set aside, or treated with a levity entirely at variance with its merits. But if she mingle with those of the other class, she will find herself at once upon a higher plane, and be impressed with the pleasing consciousness that she has a mind that can think and feel interested in subjects of a general and more weighty interest. An hour spent with one class leaves the mind obscure and vacant; while an hour spent with the other, elevates expands, and strengthens its powers, and causes it to see in a clearer atmosphere.

With one or the other of these classes a young lady is almost sure to identify herself, and rise into an intelligent woman, or remain nearly upon the level she at first occupied. We need not say how important it is for her to identify herself with the who look upon life with an eye of rational intelligence, and seek to live to some good purpose. The mental food received during the time she thus compels herself to mingle with them, will create an appetite that unsubstantial gossip and frothy chit-chat can no longer satisfy.

The importance and necessity of reading need hardly be affirmed. Its use is fully understood and admitted. But there is great danger of enervating the mind by improper reading. For a young girl to indulge much in novel reading, is a very serious evil. Few of the popular novels of the day are fit to go into the hands of a young and imaginative girl. Apart from the false views of life which they present, and the false philosophy which they too often inculcate, they lift an inexperienced reader entirely above the real, from whence she has too little inclination to come down; and whenever she does come down, she is unhappy, because she finds none of the ideal perfections around her, with which her imagination has become filled, but is for ever coming into rude contact with something that shocks her over-refined sensibilities. Her own condition in life she will be in great danger of contrasting with that of some favorite heroine of romance. If she does this, she will be almost sure to make herself miserable. A young lady who indulges much in novel reading never becomes a woman of true intelligence. She may be able to converse fluently, and to make herself at times a very agreeable companion, even to those who are greatly her superiors; but she has no strength of intellect, nor has she right views of life.

All works of fiction, however, are not bad. Where the author's aim is to give right views of life, and to teach true principles, if he possess the requisite ability, to execute his design well, he may do great good. The reading of works of this kind, forms not only a healty mental recreation, but creates a true sympathy in the mind for virtuous actions, and inspires emulation in good deeds. It is by no means of this kind of writing that the broadest contrasts between right and wrong are made, and so presented to the reader that he cannot but love one while he abhors the other. Who can read one of Mis Sedgwick's admirable little books—"The Poor Rich Man and the Rich Poor Man," "Live and Let Live," or "Home"—without rising from its perusal with healthier views of life, and a more earnest desire in all things to do justly and love mercy? Of this class of books there are a great many. The novels and tales of Miss Edgworth, Miss Bremer, Mrs. Howitt, and Mrs. Opie, are good and may be read with not only pleasure but profit, by every young lady. The time spent in reading them will not be lost. Indeed, some portion of the time occupied in reading just such books, is necessary to a well-balanced mind. In reading history, we sympathize only with masses of people, or admire some powerful leader. Books of philosophy lift the mind up into an abstract region of thought; and poetry warms, inspires, and delights the imagination and refines the taste. All these are necessary to right intellectual culture; they form the very ground-work, solid walls, and inward garniture of a well-educated mind. But if reading be confined to these alone, there is danger of becoming cold and unsympathizing—of living in an intellectual world, more than in a real world of people, with like thoughts and like affections with ourselves. It is here that well wrought fiction comes in with a humanizing tendency; giving to man a love for his fellow-man, and inspiring him with a wish to do good. In history, travels, and biography, we see man on the outside, as it were, and regard him at a distance as a thinking and effective being; but in fiction, we perceive that he is fashioned in all things as we are; that he has like hopes and fears, joys and sorrows, and like aspirations after the good and the true, and we are gradually led to feel with and for him as a brother—we hold him by the hand, we look into his face, we see the very pulsations of his heart. All this is good—all this is necessary to the true formation of character.

But for a young lady to limit her reading to this order of books, or even spend a large portion of the time allotted to reading to their perusal, will hinder her advancement in mental improvement. She will be very apt, also, to sink into the mere waste of sympathy towards ideal personages, without seeing in them types of real classes that are in the world, and all around her.

All right improvement of the mind will depend upon the leading motive which a young lady has in view, when she reads, thinks, or observes, with a careful eye, what passes around her. If her end be to acquire the power of conversing intelligently on various topics, and of exhibiting an acquaintance with books, in order to, appear well in society, or to gain the reputation of being an intellectual and well-read woman, her advancement will not be as real as she supposes. All knowledge has its appropriate sphere of action, and that is the doing of something useful; and until it comes into its true sphere, it never rises into intelligence. If, therefore, a woman reads and thinks merely with an end to be thought wise, she never becomes more than a mere pedant, who betrays on all occasions the shallowness of her pretensions; but if she use the truth she acquires in seeking to advance the cause of truth for the sake of the power it gives, then is she in the way of becoming sensible and wise.

A woman of true intelligence in her home, in her circle of friends kind. She strengthens right principles in the virtuous, incites the selfish and indifferent to good actions, and gives to even the light and frivolous a taste for food more substantial than the frothy gossip with which they seek to recreate their minds.

"To give particular rules for self-improvement and to specify the books to be read, and the order of reading them, is a thing not easily done. Indeed, what would be a right order for one to pursue, would not suit another; and therefore we shall not attempt to lay down any rules on this subject. Extensive reading is all very good; but right thinking on what we read, even if the amount be smaller, is far better. The only sound advice we are prepared to give is, for a young lady to suffer herself to be attracted towards the class of intelligent persons which she will always find in society, and to which we have alluded in this chapter. If she permits herself to become interested in the subjects that interest them, and be guided by what they mainly approve, she will find no difficulty in the choice of books. And if she seeks improvement more from a love of truth than to be thought intelligent, she will soon be able to see truth so clearly in the light of her own understanding, as to be at no loss in making right discriminations on nearly all subjects that are presented to her mind.—Advice to Young Ladies on their Duties and Conduct in Life.

Speech of T. F. Meagher.

On Wednesday evening last, THOMAS FRANCIS MEAGHER, the eloquent and patriotic Irish Exile, delivered an address for the Benefit of the New York Volunteers at Metropolitan Hall, to an immense audiance. The production was very eloquent and appropriate to the occassion, and was warmly applauded throughout. We should be glad to publish the entire address, but its length will not allow us to do so. There are two marked points in the production. One is, the eloquent speaker attributed principally the failure of the Irish Revolution of 1848 to the opposition of the Catholic Clergy. We quote from this part of the address:

John Mitchel was the first to step on deck—the first to give the word—the first to take the fire—the first to fall. [Vehement applause.] The events then shaking Europe to her centre, stimulated the new passions that had sprung up. Thrones were everywhere tumbling, like the idols of the heathen. Crowns were tossed about, as though they never had been anointed; and the people in their irreverence so despised them, they would not pick the diamonds and the rubies from them.

And as though the Angel of the Lord had passed over them, before the Spirit of Freedom the armies of the kings fell prostrate to the earth. It might have been a wild belief—but men eager for the disenthralment of their land, might, in such a crisis, be pardoned the belief—that the people had but to strike one blow, to prevail and triumph. Mr. Meagher then introduced the name of Smith O'Brien, amid the most enthusiastic applause. He said that he knew of no man who had a larger heart for the people. That he was as jealous of the freedom of his country as of his own honor. That he threw himself into the insurrectionary movement, with Roman earnestness and devotion.

To do so, he had no temptations save those which excites to virtue, and heroic goodness persuades and prompts the honest conscience. Smith O'Brien was more sanguine of success than others were. He thought that the people would turn out in masses, and that the Roman Catholic clergymen, if they did not head, would, at all events, not dishearten and restrain them. This was a fact which he (Mr. Meagher) knew not who would question.

They did so in all the villages and towns, where Smith O'Brien endeavored to rally and concentrate a body of armed men.—They did so especially on that occasion, where Smith O'Brien, with a handful of ragged and half-armed men, came suddenly, and by the merest accident, into collision with the police. But there were noble deviations from the course, which, as a body, the Roman Catholic clergymen thought it advisable or expedient to pursue. There were many young curates throughout the country—in Navan, in Waterford in Dublin for instance—fully prepared and prompt to throw themselves into the movement, to aid it and to bless it.

Taking a broad view, it was not incorrect to state, that the Bishops and the Parish Priests were opposed to this movement, and, to suppress it, brought their immense influence in the pulpit, and in the forum, and in the field, to operate. On the other hand, the curates of the Roman Catholic were, to a man, in favor of it. This he knew, that in one memorable instance, a young curate was marching to join O'Brien, with a body of brave fellows he had hastily collected, and armed from the hardware stores of the village, when the parish priest appeared, and, with severe admonitions, dismissed the good curate and his escort.

Had the Catholic clergy, as a body, taken another course—had they gone out as the Sicilian priests went out—as, if I mistake not, the Archbishops of Milan had done—had they lifted up the cross in front of the insurgent ranks, there would have been a different story written. Who else were opposed to the movement? The O'Connellites almost to a man. In Waterford the corporation of them were sworn in as constables to put down the 'Irish So, too, the Orange party, who their church and anniversaries Schools. On this point he is explicit, and we commend his views to his countrymen and everywhere; and we ask them, is not Mr. Meagher right in acting the part of an independent man, in thinking for himself, and like a true American citizen, acknowledging no allegiance to a foreign ruler, whether in Rome or England—is not Mr. Meagher right—the better man—the truer patriot for—for so doing,—and will not his countrymen—Irishmen everywhere—renounce, as he declares he has renounced, "all foreign powers and potentates?" Mr. Meagher allows no "foreign potentate,"—whether Pope or Priest—to tell him he must oppose the Common Schools of this country; but he declares that he will sustain those schools, and he calls upon Irish Catholics to do likewise.

For this and similar declarations of manly independence, Mr. Meagher has been denounced by Bishop Hughes; but he is nevertheless in the heart of every true Irishman; and if the contest were to come off, whether John Hughes, Bishop, or Thomas Francis Meagher, the exiled Patriot, should lead the Catholic sons of Ireland in America, we would not hesitate to declare it as our belief that the Exile would show himself the strongest. We ask Irishmen, is there not something to think of in the fact, that the Priests who broke down the Revolution of 1848, and thereby sent Meagher, Mitchell, and O'Brien into ignominious exile, are the same Priests that now seek to break down our common schools?

We quote Mr. Meagher's conclusion, and we ask special attention to his closing sentence:

To this Republic—renouncing all foreign powers and potentates—have I taken the oath of allegiance; and in the new sphere and citizenship which is opened to me here, do I trust to prove the sincerity with which that oath was taken, and my deep sense of the duties which, by that act, devolves upon me.

Faithful to the principles on which this community is framed, faithful to the laws on which it proceeds and operates; faithful to the institutions which distribute the vitality whilst they secure the unity of the whole; faithful, above all, to that noble system of public schools, which, in the illumination of the public mind, insure the perpetuity of a condition of government and society, based upon intelligence and good sense, qualifying, in each succeeding generation, the entire body of citizens, the yet more wisely to exercise their great faculties, diminishing the chances of the imposter, and, in the end, elevating the democracy to the highest level, instead of keeping it to the lowest—the foe of bigotry, from whatever pulpit it may descend, or in whatever garb it may riot, or play its maddening pranks—the foe of tyranny in every clime, whatever be the motto or mask under which it marches, or whatever be the ceremonies with which it is installed—acting as you have acted—true as you have been true, brave soldiers! liberal of my services to the Republic as you have been.—if that be necessary, liberal of my blood in the cause of the Republic, as you have been—I trust, if it be the will of Heaven, to crown me with the white lilies and the silver crown of age, looking back upon a life well spent, I shall be able to say, with the great foe of Cataline, the conspirator against the Roman Commonwealth—

"Rempublican defensi adole, non deseram senex."

And why should I not stand, with a proud love and courage, to this Republic—her interests, her laws and institutions? There is more than one good reason for so doing. It is not alone that I am grateful for the protection and the citizenship insured to me. It is not alone that I regard this form of government and this condition of society as the finest and most truthful expression of the national will, necessities, intellect and ambition, that anywhere on this earth exists; but that I recognize in the stability of the Republic, a source of strength to other nations, and in her success, an incentive with them to a courageous emulation.

While this Republic stands—augments her fortunes—proceeds upon her high career—there is hope for the most abject, decrepid and disabled of mankind. As the thoughts of the great poet—whether in woods or marble; of the great artist—sometimes wake the most drowsy souls into rapturous activity—so shall the example, the written, the spoken and the living word of this great nation, rouse the spirit of those who now lie dumb and torpid in the shadow of the thrones that are moored in the full tide of massacre, and in which, as if in the hold of a pirate ship, the plundered liberties of the people bound and bleeding, are battered down.

Austria—the whole Germanic family—tongue-tied; the Rhine stagnant in her bed; Poland, still the Niobe of nations, and her estate and children cut up and parcelled out among the robbers; Hungary, with the knife at her proud and beautiful neck; Italy locked within her sculptural sepulchre, and a profane soldiery keeping watch upon it; France, grimacing in a masquerade, the glare of which blinds men to the crimes of which it is the senseless and the reckless carnival; Ireland, her people decaying and disappearing faster than the ruins even, which a ruthless civilization has yet left standing on the soil; where—where can the eye that scans the history of this day turn with joy—without grief, without vengeance, without despair, unless it be to this great commonwealth, the power, the progress, the immensity of which are mapped out in those mighty waters of the Wes, and storm—descend and penetrate the deepest dungeon, and there wake up the oldest prisoner—wake him up, not idly to gaze upon the hills and his home far off, but wake him up to wrench the bars that hem him in, and with them slay the sentinel—though he wear a crown, and be impiously hailed the anointed of the Lord.

A Relic of the Olden Time.

Through the politeness of H. N. Parke Esq. Town Clerk, we have been permitted to copy the following from the original record now on file in his office. We give it verbatim et literatim:—

TO MAKE A GOOD WIFE UNHAPPY.—We apprehend there are many husbands who will read the following with a blush:

See your wife as seldom as possible. If she is warm-hearted and cheerful in temper, or if after days or weeks of absence she meets you with a smiling face and in an affectionate manner, be sure to look coldly upon her and answer her with monosyllables. If she force back her tears and is resolved to look cheerful, sit down and gap in her presence till she is fully convinced of your indifference. Never think you have anything to do to make her happy—but that her happiness is to flow from gratifying your caprices; and when she has done all that a woman can do, be sure you do not appear gratified. Never take an interest in any of her pursuits; and if she asks your advice, make her feel that she is troublesome and impertinent. If she attempts to rally your good humoredly on any of your peculiarities, never join in the laugh but frown her into silence. If she has faults, (which without doubt she will have, and perhaps may be ignorant of,) never attempt with kindness to correct them. By such a course you will not fail to make an unhappy wife; and if you have children, they will not fail to be inoculated with the example, which they will show in their respect to their parents.

DEMOCRATIC HARMONY.—We heartily welcome all who assent to the principles and the platform of '52, but we never will have fellowship with those who insist holding on to the principles and the organization which defeated the Democratic party and threw us into the hands of our enemies in '48.—National Democrat.

Scene—The Hustings in England.

AFTER THE ADMISSION OF WOMEN TO THE ELECTIVE FRANCHISE.

Sir Charles Darling, (the ladies' candidate) presented himself on the husting amidst a general waving of handkerchiefs, and spoke as follows:—Ladies and—(with a smile)—need I say gentlemen? (Titters, and droll ereature.) I think not. 'Gallantry forbids my recognizing their existence in any other light than as the devoted slaves of that divine sex,—of whom I am proud to esteem myself the humblest.—(Cries of 'how nice!') Ladies, then, angles; goddesses—('Oh, from an elderly bachelor, who was removed by the police,) for the thrilling position in which I am placed, how can I be sufficiently grateful to that glorious reform in our electoral system, which has partially recognized the true position of lovely woman?—('Partially!' in a tone of sarcasm, from a member of Mr. Screwdriver's committee.) My honorable and gallant friend objects to the adverb; I say partially, for by admitting the ladies to the franchise with the gentlemen, they are but recognized as equals instead of superiors. (Great sensation.) Yes, ladies, and it shall be my earnest endeavor, as your representative, ('Yah! and 'Not yet!' from Mr. Screwdriver.) My noble and gallant friend observes 'Not yet.' It is true I have a formidable rival to contend with. The charms of his person, (screams, and 'The old fright!') his politeness, and above all his taste in dress, (here the laughter and clapping of kid gloves rendered the speaker inaudible for a moment,) compared with such claims as mine are worthless, ('Do listen') extended no farther than a willingness, I may say a downright anxiety to die in the cause of the fair creatures, who I may say have done me the honor to elect me as their champion. ('Yes yes!') With the ladies' voices in my favor I believe I need not fear that of a gentleman being exerted against me. (Cries of 'We should like to see them.' 'Speak up, Alfred, do.' 'I am ashamed of you, etc.' I thank you gentlemen, or rather I do not thank you; I honor you for your—may I say obedience—('Oh yes! in rapturous tone from the engaged gentleman)—tho' after all I don't see how you are going to help yourselves.' (Great applause, and numerous bouquets thrown.)

The Hon. Mrs. Poser stepped forward, and begged to be allowed to address a few questions to the candidate.

Mrs. Poser—What are Sir Charles's views with regard to the existing excise regulations?

Sir Charles—My first measure will be to bring in a bill legalizing the smuggling of laces and French ribbons. (Rapturous cheering.)

A voice—What about the sanitary movement?

Sir Charles thought every family should leave town at the end of the season. It was his opinion that all husbands paying the income tax should be compelled to take their wives, and children to the seaside for the Autumn months. It should have his earliest attention. In answer to another speaker, he considered that assembly rooms should be maintained in every town by the public purse.

Mrs. Poser—What foreign policy will you advocate?

Sir Charles would advocate peace with France at all hazards, that nothing might endanger the importation of Perisian fashions. [Cheers and bouquets.]

A young Lady—About the army?

Sir Charles—I am for keeping up a standing army, composed entirely of officers.—[immense sensation.]

Mrs. Poser should like to hear your intentions as to the tobacco duties.

Sir Charles—To prohibit the cultivation and importation of that objectionable plant altogether, so that there be no more smoking.

A show of Parasols was demanded, and Sir Charles was declared duly elected.—Express.

Mississippi Politics.

The struggle now going on in this State for U. S. Senator is one of a great deal of interest. We have noticed that Ex Senator, now Governor Foote, made a great many appointments to show his claims; but we here see a summons from this gentleman, calling on all competitors for the Senate to courteous discussion. Ex Governor Brown is said to be a competitor, and he has now a chance for a fair field fight.

A Card.—Before setting out fairly upon my Senatorial canvass, I again invite all competing aspirants, and especially Gov. A. G. Brown, to courteous and free discussion of our conflicting claims before the people. If they do not appear, after this summons, at the time and place specified, I shall take judgment by default against each and all of them.

H. S. Foote.

The impression is, that the Secretary of War, Mr. Davis, would like the place, and that so far as he can use the Federal power, he will exert it to defeat Foote.

Mr. Foote, it will be remembered, resigned his seat in the United States Senate to run for Governor, as the Union candidate—when the Secretary of War was exerting all his power to get Mississippi out of the Union.—[N. Y. Express.

An American Pleasure Trip.—'Commodore' Vanderbilt with his family has left N. Y. city in the new and superb steamer 'North Star,' Capt. Eldridge, on a pleasure excursion to the European ports on the Atlantic and in the Mediterranean. The vessel is of twenty two hundred tons burden! and was built by him expressly for the purpose. The only persons accompanying him not belonging to his family, are his family physician, Dr. Lindsey of this city, and the Rev. Dr. Choules of Newport, his friend and Chaplain. The 'North Star' will go first to Southampton, and will probably be absent from New York about four months. A more delightful trip it would be hard to imagine. But the 'Commodore' has battled old Neptune to valiantly and too victoriously not to be entitled to "Whatever ye would that men should do unto you, do ye even so unto them."—The anniversaries of the various Religious and Christian Societies in our land take place in New York during the second week of next month. Active preparations are being made for these interesting gatherings. The Commercial says that the past year has been one of prosperity, and the receipts of the several societies, in most instances, show an advance over any previous year. So far as they have been made up, they are exhibited in the following table. In some instances they are partly estimated, but are not far out of the way:

	1852.	1853.
American Tract Soc.	$342,749	$384,627
do Bible Soc.	308,744	334,069
do B. C. F. Miss	301,727	$186,682
do Home Missionary Society,	160,062	171,784
do Foreign and Christian Union,	54,600	62,000
do Seaman's Friend Society,	21,930	†22,500
New York State Colonization Society,	11.529	15,580

*For eight months, or from the first of August, the commencement of the financial year, to March 31st, the expenditures for the whole year will be $300.000.

†The above amount does not include large sums which pass through the hands of auxiliary and branch societies.

The American Board has sent out about thirty missionaries during the year. The report of the American Home Missionary Society shows an increase of twenty-one laborers. The operations of the Colonization Society have also been largely extended.—The intelligence from Liberia is of a cheering character. Belgium has recently recognized the independence of Liberia, making the fifth monarchical Government that has taken this step. The American Bible Society has increased its distribution about 100 000 during the year. These encouraging facts will be read with pleasure by all who feel an interest in the spread of the gospel and christian institutions.

The receipts of the above seven societies, reach in 1853, $1,177,183, a good round sum, truly. The revenue of the Independent Order of Odd Fellows, for the year ending July, 1853, was $1,161.331, a sum not quite thrown into the shade by the doings of seven leading religious associations, whose doings are paraded from the Tabernacle to Exeter Hall. The amount expended by the Order in relieving the sick, burying the dead and educating the orphan during the year ending July 1st, 1852, was $571,721, or One Hundred and Thirty Thousand Dollars more than the entire receipts of the American Tract Society, $180,000 more than the Bible Society, $210,000 more than the Foreign Mission Society. The revenue of the Order in New York or Pennsylvania alone, exceeds the receipts of the leading religious association on the Continent.—[Golden Rule.

Gigantic Steamers.

We published yesterday among our items of foreign news, an announcement that a contract had been made in England for the construction of a mammoth steamer of upward six hundred feet in length, and measuring 12,000, tuns. The idea of a monster ship like this is not original with John Bull. Mr. Burden, of Troy, in this State, a man of wealth and a mechanic of original genius, some years ago suggested the construction of a steamer of 700 feet in length, and of corresponding depth and width, to run to Europe. Mr. Burden's idea was that it is practicable to construct a steamer which would go across the Atlantic with as little motion as our Brooklyn ferry steamers run to our sister city. He proposed that his steamer should draw seventy-five feet of water, and her top to be an hundred feet above the water line. The maximum height of the waves of the ocean from the bottom of the sea trough to the crest of the wave is estimated not to exceed thirty-five feet; hence Mr. Burden concluded that a vessel of seventy-five feet draught would always run on a nearly even keel. There are but few ports where such a vessel could enter. On our coast, Newport offers the greatest facilities of a good harbor, with ease of access and abundance of water, and here Mr. Burden proposed to establish the head-quarters of his ship. No steps were ever taken to carry out the majestic idea of our countryman, and it is now broached on the other side of the Atlantic, and measures taken to secure its realization. The proposed British ship is to be propelled by two sets of side-wheels and a screw at the stern, having, we presume, three independent engines and sets of machinery.—The experiment of running a steamer of such gigantic proportions will be watched with intense interest, and, if successful, will mark a new era in navigation. If such a moving world can be securely and rapidly propelled over the ocean with little or no more motion, than is experienced by our steam ferry boats, all the world will take to sea traveling, and directly we shall have our own wealty citizens establishing their summer residences on the shores of the Baltic instead of at Staten or Long Island.—This will enable them to live far more retired than they can possibly live in the neighborhood of New York. And not only on the Baltic will the villas and country-seats of our citizens arise, but doubtless at Spitzbergen, Archangel, and other cooling retreats in these latitudes. How long shall it be before we chronicle the laying of a steamer's keel in New York one thousand feet in length?—N. Y. Tribune.

Steam Dredge for the Lake.—Under the appropriations made at the first session of the last Congress for the improvement of the navigation of Rivers and Harbors, $20,000 was appropriated to Lake Champlain for the building of a Steam-dredge and discharging scows. The Government officers in charge of the matter have commenced building the Dredge, on the west side of the harbor below the village. The work has so far progressed as to be now

☞The Colonization Journal contains a full and interesting account of the Anniversary of the N. Y. Colonization Society. The receipts in aid of the Society for the year amount to $15,000, the number of vessels fitted out, 6, number of emigrants, 718.

The number of vessels in 1847, were 2, and the number of emigrants, 41, thus showing a great increase.

We quote from the speach of Capt. Foote of the U. S. Navy:

I have been to Liberia, and I can state facts, and facts are always the strongest arguments. (Applause.) It is unnecessary to state that, after four or five administrations of that colony under white men sent from this country, General Joseph. J. Roberts, a colored man, was appointed to command and administer affairs there for several years, until after the colony declared itself independent and established a Republic; that he was elected President of that Republic, and holds the office to this day. When in Washington last winter, President Fillmore asked me how President Roberts appeared. I was about saying, as well as any President, but I thought that would be invidious, and replied, "As well as the Governors of our States generally." (Laughter.)

Liberia has now extended about five hundred miles of sea-coast, a depth of near forty or fifty miles, and a population of one hundred and fifty thousand souls. The slave trade, formerly so rife there, now gives place to a legal commerce, in the amount of exports and imports respectively, of $500,000 annually. The government of Liberia is modelled very much after that of the United States; but no white man there is eligible to any office under the government. Of the natural history of Liberia very little is known. President Roberts, however, informed me, when I was there, that iron ore was found in large masses twenty miles in the interior, and that it was malleable without the process of smelting. The soil is productive of all tropical fruits, and persons can live there with comparatively little effort.

The religious character of Liberia struck me most favorably, and another officer who had been there, while walking with me one Sunday in New Haven, remarked, "This is the most moral place I have seen, except Monrovia, in Liberia." (Applause.) I was struck with the good habits and order of the people there, and, I must also say, in finding so much mind and character developed among that people. I had an opportunity not only of seeing and associating with the Attorney General, State officers, Senators and Representatives, but I went among the lowly—from the upper ten down to the very substratum of society—and I found, with scarcely an exception, that they were intelligent and happy.—They said, "We now all feel free," and I was particularly struck with that one trait. We find that colored people in this country, no matter how favorable circumstances may be, feel under a certain sense of inferiority; but among this people I remarked that they felt a self respect and independence which is not theirs in this country. We felt as if we were not holding intercourse with colored people, but people of our own color, and we found a degree of intelligence among them which surprised us all. If President Roberts were to visit this country, there is no gentleman I should welcome more heartily to my home and family.

Young America and Russia.

"Young America" woke up day before yesterday morning, opened its eyes, and was confounded. The Washington Union was glorifying Russia! The organ of the Democracy was discoursing autocratic music to the world, in a high bold key that could not be mistaken, the burden whereof was that The government of Russia may be a despotism, and for that reason abhorrent to the notions of republicans; but its effect upon the subject people establishes its fitness for them. Under the government of absolute monarchy the Russian nation have emerged from a state of barbarism, and within a single century have taken position in the front rank of civilization.

Young America was startled. It experienced "a sensation." It was quite 'confounded.' "What may this mean?" sprang from its lips, and to this hour it has not ceased to exclaim "What may this mean?" And there is none to answer. The strain is over, and there is not one whether in the capital or out of the capital that ventures to interpret it.—[Courier and Enquirer.

"Young America startled! It ought to know democracy better. If the people could be assured of escaping from "the powers that be" with merely "a sensation" it would be a relief, but whatever is proposed in the name of democracy, however, absurd, illegal, or tyrannical, is—why, its democracy, taken and accepted "as such." So young America, and the "rest of mankind," had better steady their nerves, and be prepared for events of which startling sensations are but the shadows which go before.—[Ed. Rep.

Office Seeking.

(Original and selected.)

Office Seeking.—The terribly lean and ferociously hungry crowd of office seekers, who have been, and now are, thronging the streets of Washington, nuzzling everywhere, tracking every scent of favor, and fawning about every hand that can be hoped to help them to a scrap, reminds one of a description in the "Rejected Addresses":

"So, when dog's meat, re-echoes through the streets;
Rush sympathetic dogs from their retreats:
Beam with bright blaze their supplicating eyes,
Sink their hind-legs, ascend their joyful cries;
Each, wild with hope, and maddening to prevail,
Points the pleased ear and wags the expectant tail!"

The number of applicants hanging about Washington at one time exceeded 13000.

The President has been compelled to limit calls upon him.

There were 100 applicants for the Consulate at Honolulo of whom several were Ex-Governors.

There are about 45 applicants for the birth of traveling mail agent on Lake Champlain.

There are said to be, on an average, thirty applicants for every office in the New York Custom House. As there are seven hundred offices, and only seven hundred men can get them, it follows that upwards of 20,000 of the applicants can be dissappointed.

The mission to Naples is actually actively sought for by nearly seventy five gentlemen. Senators, members of the House of Representatives, ex-Senators and ex-Representatives in Congress, ex Governors, ex-Foreign Ministers, stump speakers from everywhere, and not a few party editors, are on this list.

The whole number of offices at the disposal of the President amount to about 42,000, and it is estimated that there are 13 applicants to each office.

Appropo:

Keep it before the People.—"There was nothing in the administration of Gen. Jackson which I so uniformly failed to justify, as the removal of one worthy officer to give place for another."—[General Pierce's Speech in the Senate in 1842.

The following noble sentiments of two of our most illustrious men may not be inappropriate.

"When General Washington occupied the Presidential Chair, application was made for the appointment of one of his old and intimate friends to a lucrative office.—At the same time a petition was received asking the same station for a most determined political opponent. The latter received the appointment. The friend was greatly dissappointed, and hurt in his feelings, at his defeat. Let the explanation of Washington be noted and ever remembered."

"My friend, "said he" I receive with cordial welcome. He is welcome to my house, and welcome to my heart. But with all his good qualities, he is not a man of business. His opponent, with all his politics so hostile to me, is a man of business. My private feelings have nothing to do in the case. I am not George Washington, but President of the United States. As George Washington I would do this man any kindness in my power—as President of the United States I can do nothing."—Life of J. Q. Adams.

It was in my hearing, that to a certain representative that an important functionary of the General Government in New York was using the power of his office adversely to Mr. Adam's re-election, and that he ought to desist or be removed. Mr. Adams made this reply:

"That gentleman is one of the best officers in the public service. I have had occasion to know his diligence, exactness and punctuality. On public ground, therefore, there is no cause of complaint against him; and upon no other will I remove him. If I cannot administer the government on these principles, I am content to go back to Quincy."—King's Eulogy on J. Q. Adams.

Democratic Interchange of congratulations.—The Washington Union, in announcing the list of appointments, says "The claim of no section has been overlooked or failed of due consideration." In testimony whereof, we quote:—

The Rochester Advertiser thinks "there is a great mistake somewhere in the appointments;" and says "New York seems to have but a slim share, less in fact, so far, than Massachusetts, in point of value and importance."

The Ontario Messenger states that the appointment of Postmaster in Canandaigua was received with marked indifference, and thinks the candidate passed for a different kind of "Shell" at Washington, from what he is supposed to be at home.

The Portland Advertiser says, "favors have been lavished upon summer soldiers and sunshine patriots, while the men who have done the hard work of the party, have been entirely disregarded."

The Lawerence Sentinel is "disagreeably disappointed if not ineffably disgusted" at the Soft Shell Postmaster appointed there, and adds that "seven-eighths of the community will endorse its opinion that the appointment will be destructive of the best interest of the Democratic party of Lawrence."

And even some of the ungrateful appointees themselves are said to be exasperated because they were not assigned as desirable places as they had a right to demand.—[Albany Journal.

all, that he has not "shaken the bush" in vain.—(Ib.

The Hunkers regard B. F. Angel's appointment as a direct affront to Dickinson, while the Barnburners openly vaunt it as a proof that Dickinson has not the least particle of influence at Washington.

It will be recollected that Dickinson's friends charge Angel with keeping D. off the committee to notify Pierce at Baltimore.

Where do we stand?—The "National Democrat," asks that, and then replies;

Well that, is the great paramount question which, of all others, we desire most to see answered just now. Where do we stand? Can anybody get an observation, and give us our political latitude and longitude, out of this region of fog and mist. Many experienced old captains tell us that there is a storm ahead, and that there is a reef of rocks under our lee-bow, while some saucy young tars swear that all is right, and bid us weigh anchor and set sail. But, to what part are we driving? For one, we do not propose to go much further until this point is settled. We did not enlist for a voyage to Africa, and most decidedly shall not sail that way.—And as there has been, of late, a remarkable dexterity on the part of some well-known commanders, who are bound for that coast, and who have positively refused to give any pledges that they will not take us out there the next trip, we have resolved to remain where we are, until all things are made plain to us.

Dear Sir:

In the last No. of your paper, the attention of your patrons is called to the Black-Hawk breed of horses. In addition to those referred to in that article, allow me to mention the one owned by Hiram Wilson, Esqr., of this village. This horse was sired by Old Black-Hawk, and is out of a Post-Boy mare—is four years old this spring, and weighs 1060 lbs. The cross has entirely done away the objection commonly raised to the breed of horses—that they are not suitable for draft—and has produced the most perfect horse I ever saw

"In shape, in courage, color, pace and bone,
Round hoofed, short jointed, fetlocks slim and long.
Broad breast, full eyes, small head and nostril wide,
High crest, short ears, straight legs, and passing strong.
Thin mane, thick tail, broad buttocks, tender hide.

John Porter, Jr. and Michael Quin have each a fine three year old stallion of this stock which bid fair to make fast horses.—Mr. Quin purchased his of Wm. A. G. Arthur Esqr. a year ago for $500. His colt is a coal black and took the premium at the last county fair.

Yours &c,

Military Preaching.—A short time since, I listened with great attention and interest to a short narrative of the naval action on Lake Champlain, during the last war between the United States and England, by one that was there and fought like a hero. This narration ran thus:—"The action commenced on Sabbath morning, about ten of the clock, and I heard louder preaching on that day than I ever heard afore or since. McDonough took his text, which was this: 'Liberty and Independance; who dares dispute its being the birthright of Americans.' And sich preachin I never hear tell on. There were several convictions on that day. Downie was so effected that he lost his strength, a short time after the commencement of sarvice. The old sinner, John Bull, was convicted and converted on that day, and was baptized in the bright waters of Champlain. And I understand the old sinner has stood pretty fair in society ever since. I think he never will forget that sarmint preached by Mc Donough. Oh, 'twas powerful and full of glory! And then McDonough's Rooster being chorister of the choir, struck up 'Hail Columbia, Happy Land!' and sich beautiful singin' was never heard."

True, John Bull never will forget that preaching; his conscience was aroused—and he always will believe that American sail was made expressly for American hearts and no other.

Crownpoint, May 30, 1853.

Mr. Editor:—In your last number of May 28th, under the head of "Blackhawks Triumphant," you speak of several valuable Blackhawk horses of our town, leaving out, and neglecting to mention some of the most valuable and finest of the blood. One owned by Darwin Rider; a more beautiful horse the eye of man never beheld; he is now in the great commonwealth of Vermont, and valued at $3,000. Another, owned by A. J. Benedict, which stands very high in the estimation of good judges, and bids fair to equal any of the race in speed.—Another owned by Benj. Brad—a very valuable horse—and if you could once see him trained, you never would make another mistake respecting the valuable Blackhawks of Crownpoint; and also another, owned by S. Burrell, which also ranks with the first class of Blackhawks. Now, be careful, and not be so neglectful again when you speak of the nice things of Old Crownpoint; if you do, I shall report you to the Editor of the Northern Gazette, and he will give you a little more grape.

Temperance.

There is one more society which seems to be raising the cause of Temperance. This organization is called the "Stars of Temperance." This division was organized some two years ago, and its leaders have ty who were traveling fast in the drunkard's path—going fast to ruin and degredation—but, what a change! they are now strict temperance men, looked up to as men, & men of honor. We hope that this division will not stop here; that they may build up and strengthen until they accomplish what they set out to—and then the tide of drunkenness will roll away, and temperance abide throughout our midst. May the names of those who have contributed to this Division, long live upon the brightest page of the historian, and be remembered with the warmest emotion of gratitude and pleasure, by these whom they have contributed to make happy, and by all temperance societies when time is no more.

THE WILD, DARK STORM.

BY O. F. W.

The following song is founded upon the following incident: An inebriate who, having murdered his wife and five innocent children by his unceasing attention to the glass, has one remaining child, a little girl about seven years of age, who is now dying from hunger and cold. The father, at last starts in search of food for his dying child, but in passing a grog-shop, where he has been used to spend the most of his time, he cannot withstand the temptation, to step in "only to take a glass." When once in, he has not sufficient self-denial to get out again; so, after staying until a late hour, he returns to his once happy, but now desolate home, and couches down beside that innocent, but much wronged child. Here commences the Song.*

"Oh, tie the casement father!
The snow falls on my bed—
Oh, tie the casement father!
It rattles o'er my head.
Don't sleep so sound, my father;
I'm very numb and chill—[and still."
I cannot bear to listen, with the room so dark
The Drunkard heard no plaintive voice,
For death had wrapped his form,
Nor the child's moan: "I'm all alone,
In the wild, dark storm!"

The light shone in upon her?
Her heart beat quick with fear,
She could see no form around her—
No voice, nor foot-fall hear!
But, a whisper came unto her,
As zephyr's tones might be—
In tones so sweet and fairy-like—
"My child, come home to me."

"There's snow upon my bed, mamma—
My heart is freezing fast,
And shadows from the corner
Are flitting swiftly past,
I'll come to you, dear mother,
If you'll make me very warm,
For Oh, I'm cold and all alone
In the wild, dark storm!"

The little snow drifts gathered,
So silently they slept,
Upon the ragged coverlid—
The child no longer wept.
She said, "there must be warmth in them."
And thrust within her hand,
But drew it forth incircled
With a pale and icy band!
She shrieked, as wild and frantic,
And shook the drunkard's form—
"I'm dying, father, dying
In the wild, dark storm!"

The dawn looked now upon her,
Stiff motionless, and cold;
The snow lay all around her,
And dim'd her locks of gold.
Beside that wretched father,
She drew her quivering breath,
And there the two slept side by side,
Within the arms of death!
Poor child! no more she murmurs,
"Oh, mother, make me warm!"
And thus the Drunkard's child did die,
In the wild, dark storm.

*This song can be sung in the tune of "Home, Sweet Home."

Signs of the Times in New York.—Nearly the effective patronage of this State has been thrown by Mr. Secretary Marcy and the Federal Government into the hands of the Free Soil Barnburners; but of late, we have had a yet more significant sign.

The Government advertisements, some of which are valuable, have now, we see, been given the same direction. The "Albany Atlas" has a nine column advertisement, call for proposals for supplies, and the "Argus" has little or nothing. The "Republic" in Buffalo, has a like advertisement, and the "Courier" (Hunker) has little or nothing. The "Sunday Atlas" in this city (Barnburner) has a little support, in a long advertisement.

For the edification of the Southern Democracy, it is well for us to inform them that the "Buffalo Republic" and the "Albany Atlas," to whom Mr. Dobbin, the North Carolinian Secretary of Navy, has thus given the supplies, were bitter opponents of the Compromise Bills, and are yet bitter opponents of the Fugitive Slave Law, and would be glad to vote for its repeal.—[Express.

The Mammoth Brother Jonathan.

The grand Fourth of July double sheet Brother Jonathan, filled with large and beautiful pictures suitable for the coming National Jubilee, has just been issued by Mr. B. H. Day, New York. The first page is one entire historical picture, comprising thirteen tableaux pertaining to the early history of America. The last, as well as the two inner pages, are also filled with fine large engravings, among which are several of romantic historical interest.—Taken altogether, this is really an elegant number of the famous Brother Jonathan.—The price is only 12 cents, or ten for one dollar.

Gov. Marcy.—The Jeffersonian thus sums up the "merit" of the Hon. W. L. Marcy:

"This is the merit of William L. Marcy—he has betrayed the recogoized leader of the national democracy, the great and acknowledged champion of pupinism in the State of New York, and has by this means reached the bad eminence, which he now occupies before the nation. The eyes of a just people should be upon him, and see him as he is. Also with the new men who given work is laid out for him to do, but weak in counsel, infirm of purpose, of dull CASSIUS M. CLAY.—We are sure many will hear with pleasure what we learned during a recent sit-down with our old friend and fellow-laborer, C. M. Clay, that the emancipation of his slaves, some eight years ago, has quite unexpectedly to him, proved a profitable operation. Having been an extensive stock rearing farmer for many years previously, and being every way surrounded and hedged in by Slavery and Slave Labor, he naturally supposed that the liberation of his slaves would subject him to embarrassment and probably loss in his farming operations. But his experience has dissipated all apprehensions.—He finds no difficulty in hiring White Labor according to his need and at reasonable rates; he hires a portion of his former slaves for wages mutually satisfactory; his farm is considerably improved and still improving in fertility and productiveness; he cuts more Hay, has better Pasturage, keeps more Cattle and keeps them in better order than formerly; and whereas his farm used to run him in debt or at least yield him no profit, he is now making money by it. So much for a single experiment in emancipation, made under the most discouraging and embarrassing auspice—with Slavery and anti-Abolition prejudice hemming it on every side, and with the least possible diversification of Labor among the surrounding community.

Keeseville, June 3, 1853.

Married.

At New Sweden on the 31st. ult. by the Rev. John Mattocks, Mr. Elisha Arnold of Keeseville, to Miss Charlotte, second daughter of Dr W. V. K. McLean, of the former place.

Died.

Of Consumption, in Vernon, Oneida County, on Wednesday the 18th inst, Mary J. Sawyer, daughter of Rev. Conant Sawyer, Lowville, Lewis County, in the full and joyful hope of a glorious immortality, aged 20 years, 5 months, and 16 days.

At Boulton, Warren Co., on the 6th inst., Sally, wife of Perly Barton, aged 61 years.

Her funeral was attended on the Sabbath following by a large circle of friends and acquaintances, to whom she had become endeared by an amiable disposition and a stainless christian character.

Inured for many years to seasons of sickness and suffering, she bore with meek patience and cheerful submission the decay of her "earthly tabernacle," looking forward with unfaltering confidence to her release from the body, that she "might be present with the Lord."

During her last severe and protracted sickness, lingering for weeks upon the confines of Eternity, the same faith that had purified her heart in earlier life sustained her in the near prospect of dissolution, and bore her finally in calm fortitude "through the dark valley and the shadow of death." She had trusted in her Redeemer's therefore her end was peace.—Com.

Ploughs! Ploughs!!

PROUTY & MEARS'

Celebrated Centre Draughts—All Sizes.

THE 46 Ploughs wherever introduced, are fast superseding all others.

The most thorough trials of Ploughs on record in this country, and at the World's Fair in London, have demonstrated the important fact, that the Centre draught Plough is of much easier draught than any other, and therefore used with less fatigue to both Plough man and Team; and, also owing to its peculiar form, it pulverizes and prepares the ground for seed more perfectly than any other, causing less work for the harrow, and securing better crops than by any other method of Culture.

The following Implements, among others of the best quality, and of the latest and most approved patterns, are constantly on hand, viz:

Iron Frames, Steel Shovels, Corn Planters, Corn Shellers, Straw Cutters, Corn and Cob Crushers, Cheese Presses, Threshing Machines, Potato Hooks, Manure Hooks, Cast Iron Ox Scrapers, Prairie Shears, Tree Scrapers Budding and Pruning Knives, Hay Knives, Barn Door Rollers, Agricultural Furnaces, Corn Knives, Post Hole Augers, Wheelbarrows, Sheep Shears, etc., etc.

Being agents of Messrs. D. Prouty and Co., we can furnish the CENTRE DRAUGHT PLOUGHS at the Boston wholesale prices, with the addition of freight.

20 Years Experience.
OLD ESTABLISHED HOSPITAL.
Quick Cures and Low prices.
Private Diseases and their Antidote.

Dr. LISPENARD. author of the Marriage Guide, or Private Medical Treatise, Professor of Diseases of Women and Children, and Licentiate of the College of Physicians and Surgeons of the United States University. &c., &c., continues as heretofore to be confidentially and successfully consulted on all forms and variety of

PRIVATE DISEASES,

at his old quarters, No 5 Beaver-street, ALBANY, N. Y.

The great success attending the use of Doctor L.'s remedies in secret diseases, and the many remarkable cures daily effected by him in recent as well as old lingering attacks, is conclusive evidence that the

SICK AND UNFORTUNATE

can do no better than consult the Doctor, whose whole time is devoted to the exclusive treatment of this much neglected branch of practice.

LOOK AT THIS.

Dr. Lispenard cures recent cases of disease in from three to six days, and chronic or long standing diseases in a very short period of time, without the use of Mercury, without the loss of time, change of diet, or detention from

DAILY EMPLOYMENT.

In Syphilis, Gonorrhœa, Gleet, Strictures, Enlargement of the Testicles and Cords, Bubo, Chancres, Pimples and Scaly Eruptions, Sore Throats and Noses, Chancres on the tongue, tender shin bones, and diseases of the skin, and impure blood. Dr. Lispenard's remedies are above all praise, and frequently cure when all others had failed

EVEN TO RELIEVE.

More than 5,000 patients have during the past year experienced the benefit of the Doctor's extraordinary skill in treating secret diseases—among which, diseases of the bladder and kidneys have formed a goodly proportion.

YOUNG MEN,

who by indulging in secret habits have injured their health and prostrated their intellectual faculties, and thereby deprived themselves of the pleasure of married life, should consult Dr. Lispenard without a moment's delay. Hundreds have been restored to health, society and friends, under my peculiar mode of treatment, although vast sums of money had been sacrificed without any benefit. My remedy for this disease is pleasant to take, has no offensive smell and

CURES WITHOUT FAIL.

☞ Persons so unfortunate as to be diseased, although they may have visited half a dozen Doctors, and had medicine sent them a dozen times with no benefit, would exhibit wisdom by making their case known to that FRIEND OF THE SICK, Dr. Lispenard, who never charges for advice and warrants all his cures. The sick are often at a loss where to apply for relief, AND TIS NO WONDER, as hundreds stand ready to plunder the unfortunate victim of PRIVATE DISEASES, or secret habits, without one thought for his life and health. All thus deceived will find a friend, and moderate charges, in consulting the Doctor who USES NO MERCURY and cures every time.

N. B.—Persons from a distance when visiting the city in search of a physician and friend will be fortunate if they succeed in escaping the many dens of imposition, conducted by unprincipled men, destitute of character knowledge or name, who fleece the unfortunate victim of disease of his hard earned money, and his remaining health. Patients who have no acquaintance in the city should make inquiry of some respectable citizen, or the editor or proprietor of any of the city papers, to ascertain who is the most reliable physician to apply to.

FEMALE DISEASES.

Dr. Lispenard, from an experience seldom or never enjoyed by any other medical man, is enable to treat, with every hope of success, all and every variety of Female Complaints—with safe and pleasant remedies—and has without doubt cured within the past five years more than 3000 females afflicted with diseases of the Bladder, Womb, &c. &c. Ladies afflicted with suppression or stoppage of their monthly turns, will recollect that Dr. Lispenard is still the sole American agent for

DR. VICHOI'S
FEMALE MONTHLY PILLS.

The unprecedented sale of more than 15,000 boxes of these excellent Pills, and the good results which always follow their use, is conclusive evidence of their utility in stoppages, &c. Caution—Married Ladies in certain delicate situations should not use them—for reasons see directions with each box. Price $1. Sent by mail to all parts of the world.

Married Persons and those about to Marry, should enclose 12½ cents post paid to Dr. Lispenard, and obtain a copy of his Marriage Guide, or Private Treatise, a bewitching little work of nearly 100 pages, illustrated. Every thing that married persons can desire or wish to know is here explained. Persons who from poverty or sickness have no desire to increase their family, will find necessary instruction in the Marriage Guide. One copy 12½ cents; 5 copies 50 cts; 12 copies $1—mailed free to any part of the world.

N. B.—Patients treated by letter, and medicines sent with full directions for use, to the writer's address, All communications destroyed or returned.

No mercury used in any case, and all cures warranted.
No boys or precocious students allowed: timid persons take notice.

Friends of Dr. L. when recommending patients to our care, will recollect our number, 5 Beaver st., three doors from South Broadway.

Hospital open from 7 A. M., to 9 P. M., and on Sundays from 1 to 4 P. M.

No charge for advice, although no medicine may be desired.

MORTGAGE SALE

DEFAULT has been made in the payment of the debt secured by a certain mortgage, dated the 21st day of October, 1847, executed by William Galusha and Sophia, his wife, then of Wilmington, in the County of Essex, State of N. Y., to Uriah D. Mihills of Keene, in the county and state aforesaid, and recorded in the office of the clerk of Essex county, in volume N. of Mortgages, pages 283 and 284, on the 28th day of December, 1847, at nine o'clock, A. M. Said mortgage was duly assigned by said Mihills to Willard Bell, January 14th, 1848, and by said Bell duly assigned to Reuben Patridge, January 30, 1849, and by said Patridge duly assigned to M. Finch, Amos Avery and Charles Malbone, assignees of Reuben Sanford, January 1st, 1849. who are now the owners of said mortgage. There is claimed to be due on said mortgage, at the time of the first publication of this notice, the sum of $167,93. Now therefore, notice is hereby given that the premises described in said mortgage. will, by virtue of a power of sale contained in said mortgage, and pursuant to the statute in such case made and provided, be sold at public auction, at the Adirondac Hotel, in Keeseville, in said county, on the 8th day of June next, at 1 o'clock, P. M.

Said mortgaged premises are described in said mortgage as follows: All that certain piece or parcel of land situate in the town of Wilmington, in the county of Essex, being a part of lot No 34, of Mallory's grant, bounded as follows: beginning at a stake and stones standing on the North line of the Sampson lot, 141 rods from the centre of the road leading from the Carpenter house to Blish and Burdick's forge. being the South-West corner of Ephraim French's land, and running East on said line to the West line of said grant, thence North on the line of said grant to the centre of the road leading from Sanford's to St. Armand, thence running Easterly in the centre of said road to a stake and stones, being the North-West corner of a piece of land occupied by David Hatch, thence South 42 degrees, West six rods to the South bank of Mill Brook, thence Easterly along the South bank of said brook 30 rods to a stake and stones being the South-East corner of said Hatch lot, thence North 35 degrees East to the centre of said road, thence Easterly in the centre of said road to the North-West corner of the Carpenter lot, thence South on the line of said Carpenter lot to the South-west corner of said lot, thence East on the line of said lot to the brook, thence up the brook in the centre thereof to a point ten rods below the sawmill, and thence on the South bank of said brook on the line of Ephraim French's lot to the North-west corner thereof, thence South 43 degrees west on the line of said French's lot 126 rods to the place of beginning, containing seventy-five acres, be the same more or less.

SHERIFF SALE.

BY virtue of an execution issued out of the Essex County Court, to me directed and delivered against the personal and real property of Nathaniel Mason, I have seized and taken all the right, title, and interest which the said Nathaniel Mason had on the eleventh day of January, 1853, or at any time thereafter, in and to the following described real estate, to wit:—All those certain pieces of land situate in the town of Willsboro, in Essex County and being part of a lot of land in Peru Bay Tract, and bounded and described as follows:—

Beginning at a stake in centre of the highway where a spruce tree formerly stood in the South line of lot Number (62) sixty-two of the aforesaid tract, from thence West on the said South line of lot No. sixty two thirty five chains and eighty one links, thence North partly on the line of a piece of land formerly owned by William S. Flack, even chains and sixteen links, thence east thirty four chains and seventy five links and from thence Southerly to the place of beginning, containing thirty five acres of land, more or less.

Also, one other piece of land being a part of lot Number thirteen Peru Bay tract commonly called the Thompson lot, and bounded as follows, to wit:—Beginning at at a stake in the centre of the highway where a Spruce tree formerly stood in the South line of lot sixty two of the aforesaid tract and from thence South nineteen degrees and thirty minutes east, fourteen chains and six links to a stake and stones on the east branch of a small stream of water thence South forty two degrees west, forty one links to a hemlock stump, thence North 55° west five chains and seventy links to a stake thence North forty six degrees West thirteen chains and fifty links to the South line of lot Number sixty two in a small brook, from thence to the place of beginning, containing nine acres and seventy two rods of land, more or less, the two lots above described being the same lots described in two Deeds of conveyance executed by Robert Flack and Sarah his wife to Lawrence Edwards, one Dated January 26. 1842, and the other dated May 20th 1843.

Also, one other piece of land in said town of Willsboro, being a part of Lot Number (63) in said Peru Bay tract and commencing on the North line of lot Number 62, in said tract in the centre of the Highway, which runs through said lot 62, thence North sufficient distance to make fifty acres by coming due east to the east line of said lot 63, thence around to the place of beginning, so as to make the aforesaid number of fifty acres from the north side of said lot (63.)

Which said real estate I shall expose for sale at public vendue at the Inn of David Judd in the town of Elizabethtown, in said county of Essex on the 13th day of June next at 10 o'clock, in the forenoon.

THE WONDER OF THE WORLD.
DEVINES' COMPOUND
PITCH LOZENGE,

A sure and pleasant Remedy for Colds, Coughs, Croup, Whooping Cough, Asthma, and if lungs enough are left to sustain life, A CERTAIN CURE FOR CONSUMPTION, safe for the Infant or the Invalid, in any stage of weakness.

"The statements that consumption cannot be cured, has destroyed more lives than the disease itself,—[Dr. Warren

Read the following, which to a candid mind places this "Great Remedy," like Cæsar's wife "above suspicion."

TO THE PUBLIC!

We, the undersigned, citizens of Lee, Mass., are acquainted with Mr. Devines, the proprietor and Manufacturer of Devines' Compound Pitch Lozenge and from what we know of it ourselves and have learned from others of its beneficial effects, in cases where it has been used, give it as our opinion that it is a valuable remedy in diseases for which it is recommended and is worthy of public confidence. A. G. Hulburt, Leonard Church, F. G. Taylor, Wm. Taylor, S. A. Bliss, S. A. Hulburt, Josephus Crafts, T. P. Eldridge.

If any individual is to be pitied, and needs sympathy, it is the consumptive—always expecting to get well, and yet the painful evidence of decay almost "makes the inner soul shrink with the outer flesh"

"Some bloom as roses bloom, and live as roses live,
A single morning's space!"

While others in more mature life—by some imprudence and a slight cold neglected—in the hectic flush—the painful cough.

"The prints of their departing steps appears."

BUT HE IS HOPE! Mr Wm. Devines, the originator and manufacturer of the Pitch Lozenge, under Providence, was raised to perfect health by the use of these Lozenges alone, after he was pronounced by his physician to be almost dying with consumption.

This fact is generally known in Berkshire County and is the neighborhood talk, and wonder in Lee, and in Great Barrington, Mass.

From Dr. Brown, of Lee, Mass.

This certifies that I have made use of Devines' Compound Pitch Lozenge for cold and cough, and found immediate relief. Therefore I would recommend it to the public as being a safe and sovereign remedy. H. C. BROWN.

MORSE'S
COMPOUND SYRUP OF
Yellow Dock Root.

THIS is a Purely Vegetable Compound, scientifically prepared from the best Roots and Herbs of the Materia Medica, and has gained a universal reputation for the following effects, viz: Regulating and Strengthening the Liver and Digestive Organs, and Cleansing the Stomach and Bowels, and curing all Billious Diseases, Liver Complaints, Dyspepsia, Indigestion, Costiveness. Piles. Headache, Fever and Ague, Jaundice Nausea, Loss of Appetite, &c., and causing the food to nourish and support every part, PURIFYING THE BLOOD, and thus curing all Humors, Cutaneous Eruptions, Scrofula, Salt Rheum, Erysipelas, Scald Head, Canker, Pimples on the face, Blotches, Ulcers, Tumors, Mercurial Diseases, Cancers, &c. Regulating the secretory Organs, and by enabling them to perform their proper functions, preventing and curing many painful and dangerous diseases; Strengthening and Quieting the nervous system, thus allaying Nervous Irritation, and curing all Diseases of the Nerves, as Hysteria, Neuralgia, Cramps, &c.

It is unrivalled in the cure of all FEMALE COMPLAINTS, as weakness, general debility. Irregularity, Obstructions, Swelling of the Feet, Limbs, Joints, &c., caused by weakness; also, Lung and Throat Complaints, as Colds, Coughs, Asthma. Consumption, &c., also, Dropsy.

Having made use of the Compound Syrup of Yellow Dock Root, prepared by C. Morse and C., either ourselves or in our families and finding it to be a very salutary and effectual preparation, we do most cheerfully recommend it to the public as a very valuable medicine.

Field, M. W. G. M. Cyrus Fisher, M. E. H. P. James Hutchinson, G. S. Des., V J. Bates, Doct Benj. Colby. and one hundred others of the most respectable families of Providence.

This certifies that I have for a number of years been acquainted with the composition and mode of manufacture of Morse's Compound Syrup of Yellow Dock Root. I have also been acquainted with its modus operandi in disease, and can say that in all respects it is admirably calculated to remedy that class of Diseases for which it was designed. It is especially valuable in Indigestion and all its attendant symptoms, it excites to healthy action the Liver, removes Torpor, and inactivity of this organ, and stimulates healthy action in all the system. As a Depurator or purifier of the Blood it has no superior.

Telling the Truth.

Among the wilds of this Northern country, between New York and Canada Line, there are several gentlemen who are large land owners, and are residing upon, or in the vicinity of, their property. They are, most of them at any rate gentlemen of education, cultivated tastes, and refinement of thought, impulse and habits. They are the exotics of the latitude into which they have been transplanted, and looked open-eyed upon the manners and customs of the indigenous 'humans' with whom they are brought in contact, and sometimes marvel at the close homogenity that exists between all manner of products in their neighborhood.

Not long ago (as the dates will show) a gentleman in New York wrote to his friend away up in the wilderness of the North, just this side of Canada, asking information in behalf of his friend who had conceived the notion that it might be fun, or profit, to establish himself in "the diggings" alluded to. The reply of the resident gentleman addressed is rich as the compost of the County swamps! The man who can read it without laughing, we respectfully request to "call at the office and settle." We stole the correspondence from a friend who will be astonished to see it in print; but it is rather to good to keep! It is as follows:

NEW YORK, Feb. 24th, '52

MY DEAR HARRY,

A friend of mine who has just disposed of a valuable farm in Wisconsin, is desirous of locating himself nearer home. I mentioned your name to him as the owner of a large tract of land in———, and he has requested me to obtain such information, as you may be able to give him, respecting the soil, climate, price of labor, manners, habits, of the people, &c., &c., as your long residence there will naturally suggest. If your report is favorable, he will visit your part of the world, in all next summer, and I will recommend him to your kind care and attention

Most truly yours,
&c., &c.

———, Feb. 26th, 1852.

MY DEAR....

Yours of the 24th is received, and I hasten to give you the information desired, for the benefit of your friend, as follows:

The soil, when you can get at it, is composed principally of Conglomerate, viz:—a mixture of muck, moss, decayed fern leaves, paving stones and snow.

The face of the country, when not covered with snow, is covered with a growth of hemlock, tamaracks, spruce and cedar timber, except those portions which the enterprise of former years has attempted to clear,—these are covered with stumps, rocks, fallen trees, alder bushes, and brambles.

The fruits are various, comprising most of the species found in high latitudes, such as Choke-cherries, Moose berry, Whortle berry and black Raspberry, the latter in great abundance and perfection.

Among the game, is to be found the domestic fowl, the swallow, Crow and Blue Jay, and in mid summer, the Night Hawk and Screech Owl.

The animals hunted for their fur are the Cat, and Chip monk, the stray dogs—those chiefly esteemed for their flesh are the Must rat, Sknnk, and Woodchuck.

The fishes embrace a great variety—from the tadpole to the bull-pout—the Sucker is salted down for winter use.

The principal articles of consumption are Pork, White Beans, Apple sass, and Rye Whiskey.

The principal articles of import, are dried apples, Buffalo coats, tea, tobbacco, cotton cloth, molasses, bogus cigars, and spoilt oysters.

The articles of export are few, being only such things as they don't want themselves—the principal are, Convicts to Auburn and Sing Sing Prisons, and emigrants to California.

The chief productions are white headed children, which in time grow to be lumbermen, pedlars, deacons, squires, politicians and rogues.

Their means of getting a living are ingenious and varied—the most ostensible, however, is 'dickering,' at which they are very expert, swapping horses, trading cattle, and getting boot.

Their chief amusements, in winter, are keeping up a fire, watching the weather, going to funeral, whittling, and breaking steers—in summer these are varied, by getting out manure, hoeing corn, acting as scare crows, and getting 'down sick,' eating green apples.

The range of domestic duties is confined altogether by chance, and the 'women folks.'

Their principal business is an impertinent interference in other people's affairs, to the entire neglect of their own; exaggerating evil reports, throwing obstacles in the way of public improvements, talking politics, and doing chores. The young leave the parental roof at a tender age, and commence on their own hook, peddling pop corn, gingerbread, and molasses candy.

The climate is a cross between Lapland and Siberia, not quite as cold as the one, and a good deal colder than the other, but unhealthy. The principal diseases are lame stomach, delirum, tremens, and 'folks' is sick.

The articles of food are salt codfish, dried punkins, and woolen gowns.

The articles of furniture, are a cooking stove, mop pail, and wash dish

Their farming implements consist of an axe, a saw, a log chain, generally hooked, and a jack knife.

Their education is confined to writing their name, guessing off hogs, and making axe helves.

Their moral and religious ideas are vague and loose. They generally live to a green old age, and die as green as they lived.

Their habits are predatory and migratory.

Their principal places of resort are the platforms of Railroad depots, Bar rooms, Justices Courts, and public and private offices, where they have no business.

If your friend is a bachelor, it may be interesting to him to know, that the Females, (with a few exceptions) have no front teeth, but their eye teeth are cut early, and are sharp and well developed. If there are any points not touched upon, likely to influence him in choice of a residence I hope you will have no hesitation in asking further enlightenment.

Yours ever,

Doings at our School 'Ouse.

'First class of vagabonds, rise" thundered our school-master. Well, the vagabonds rose. 'Now answer every question correctly, or I'll break every bone in your bodies,' was the next pronunciamento of the old autocrat of our red school-house.—Sapient old pedagogue! thy years were many, and full of knowledge. Looking back, through a long vista of birch rods, I can see his restless grey eyes darting in quick glances from pupil to pupil, in search of the 'graceless scamp' who threw the last spit-ball with such a wonderful precision as to barely escape his nose, and stick fast on the wall. And now I recollect, he had a most perplexing squint—a squint accommodating; for if he appeared to be looking directly at one, that one might 'go it,' and no longer fear of being detected; for his optical focus was otherwise directed—but if his eyes were fastened in one direction, one could not tell where, then be wary, for it might be on you. Glorious old master! if your eyes squinted, your heart was as true as a needle to the pole—your affections had no squint; you thrashed all alike; and all alike shared your wonderful store of knowledge.

This was the last day of the quarter—for a week our individual store-houses of lore had been progressing through the various stages of mental ventilation and renovation; our memories jogged, dormant ideas awakened, all our energies scoured up to a high state of brightness by copious applications of the master's brickdust of erudition. We were in prime order.

'John Brown, what do you understand by acoustics?'

'Why, a stick to drive cows with, I 'spose.'

'Get out, you young vagabond! Sarah, you are John's youngest sister?'

'Yeth thir.'

'What is acoustics?'

'I know, thir—it ith, it ith the art of making a noith and hearing a noith.'

'You are right—explain it.'

'Yeth thir; if you stick your finger into your mouth and then pull it out thuddenly, the cold rutheth into the vakkum and produtheth a thound that thriketh on the tympan of the ear, whith maketh the thound audible, and it ith called thience of a couth-thixth.'

'You are quite right, Sarah. You may take your books and run home. Willy Chase, what is the currency of the United States?'

'Cash and money.'

'What are its denominations?'

'Coppers, bogus, and bungtown cents, pennies, fips, fourpence's pennys, levyss ninepences, Spanish quarters, pistareen, and shinplasters.'

'Scale weight, and wait a little longer.'

'What is a hundred weight?'

'One hundred and twelve pounds.'

'Simon, how many kinds of motion is there?'

'Four, Point, point up point down, and wigwag.'

'You rascal! I've a miad to wigwag your jacket! Hadn't you better describe the motion of my stick?'

'I can, sir.'

'And its effect?'

'Yes, sir. Up stroke and down stroke—the up stroke regular and easy; the down stroke spasmodical, electrifying, and its effects are strikingly indescribable'

'You understand that, I see. Susannah, what is matter?'

'There is nothing the matter with me sir.'

'I ask you, what is matter, m-a-t t-e-r?'

'Yes, sir—matter is everything that has substance. There's animated and vaccine matter, and'—

'No matter about the rest. Speaking of vaccine matter, puts me in mind of something else. There has a case of small-pox appeared in this village, or rather varioloid—which is the botanical name of small pox—and Mr. Scalpel says he has some prime vaccine matter, of his own manufacture, warranted to take—and he will vaccinate the whole village at eight cents apiece and take his pay in potatoes. All recollect, and when you go home tell your parents George Smith, do you recollect the story of David and Goliah?

'Yes, sir—David was a tavern-keeper, and Goliah was an intemperate man.'

'Who told you that?'

'Nobody. I read it, and it said that David fixed a sling for Goliah, and Goliah got slewed with it.'

'Wasn't Goliah a giant—a strong man?'

'Why, to get so easily slewed.'

'Yes, George—that was undoubtedly owing to the strength of the sling

'Wasn't David a musician?'

'Yes, sir—he played psalms on a harp, a favorite instrument with Jews, and at the present day it is called a Jewsharp. I have one in my pocket—here it is—place it in your mouth thus, breathe on the tongue gently, then strike with your finger this way, and the psalm in harmonious corncob will fructify on the ear as natural as thunder.'

'That's sufficient—you can pocket your harp. Simon, how many points to the compass?'

'One; father broke the other off opening an oyster.'

'Thirty-two—can you box the compass?'

'No, sir.'

'Master?'

'Well, Isaac, what do you want?'

'I guess he can box it, for I seen him boxing with Jack Smith this morning, and he hit him first rate, bim, right in the nose—yes he did!'

'Squat yourself down. Jane, what is time?'

'Something that flies, any how.'

'How do you make that out?'

'Why, tempus frugit. That is Latin—it means that time flies—and how can time, if it flies be anything else than something that flies?'

'Excellent! What is the meaning of requiescat in pace?'

'Rest quiet cats in peace.'

'Well, Jane, at Latin you are perfectly aufait—which, translated, means perfectly awful; it is a great phrase from the classics, and appliable to this class particularly. Now, boys, take off your jackets, and I will give you 'rewards of merit.' Those who get more than they merit, can keep the overplus as a token of my special affection for them; those who get less, can have the mistake rectified by mentioning it to me—you will find me quite obliging. Pope says, 'as the twig is bent the tree is inclined;' and that is very true, for I have used up whole trees thrashing your jackets for you.'

That Offer.

A great portion of our newspaper accounts are still outstanding. We have now been here over two years and a half, and it is time we had our pay. We also desire an increase of our subscription list. To induce immediate payment, and for the purpose of interesting our friends in extending the circulation of the Republican, we have come to the conclusion to make the offer to which we alluded recently, viz:

Those in arrears who will pay up, & those who have paid up, and new subscribers shall have the Republican one year for ONE DOLLAR, in Advance, $1,50 if paid during the year, or $2, at the end of the year.

Country papers cannot be afforded for $1 a year; but we shall try it for a while. If we can increase our subscription list and get the money in hand, it will be far better than trusting two or three years at double the price.

And now, shall this reduction be met by a liberal and generous effort on the part of our readers? Will not each one in arrears pay up and send us in addition a dollar in advance? Will not also each subscriber obtain us at least one new one, and thus double our present list?

Some object to paying $1,50 a year because they can get a city paper for $1.—Now, they can have the Republican for the club price of city papers, and those in the county without postage, making it in fact, cheaper than the city papers.

As to reading matter, there are to be two things taken into consideration, the quantity and the quality. Sift out of the city papers all the trash, and all that is unfit for the family, and what is left will scarcely exceed the country paper.

In fact, the cheap city papers are filled up with everything without regard to decency or propriety. This is peculiarly true of cheap literary papers, being mostly made up, not merely of trash, but of the most debasing matter, yet are liberally taken and freely circulated. These are dear at any price. Really valuable, city, literary, family papers are not to be had less than $2 a year. The selections for the Republican we intend shall always be valuable, interesting, and improving. But others object to the advertisements. Well, if any one is not interested in the business of the county, then the objection is good. There are few of this class. The country paper is a mirror of its locality, as well in local news as in local business; and all who are interested in the world around them ought to have the Republican.

A word to whigs. We do not ask you to think of us personally, but of the paper.—That is your property, and you should take care of it. It ought to be a better paper than it has been, and with the improvement in business it ought to be enlarged. To be well conducted, the Editor should have his time his own. A poor, half-starved Editor is in no condition to prepare an interesting paper. He should not only be in easy circumstances, but he should have a surplus to employ correspondents, and necessary assistants. To enlarge and improve the Republican is the easiest and simplest thing in the world. It is not necessary to pass the hat, no donations are required—but just the ordinary business of whigs.—This is all we ask; is it unreasonable? With it we can improve and enlarge, and meet the expectations of our friends, and MORIAH.

We canvassed this town with mingled feelings of pain and pride. It is our native town, wherein we have enjoyed the happiest, and endured the darkest days of our past life. Looking back through a period of about twenty two years, embracing the extent of distinct recollection, the changes, which pass before our mind fill us with emotions we will not undertake to describe.—Change, change, is marked upon all, and constantly and painfully impressed itself upon our thoughts. Those "old inhabitants," those venerated "old settlers," whose virtues were the admiration of our youthful mind, & those youthful companions, where are they? Nearly all gone, some to distant parts, but mostly gone to that "bourne from whence no traveler returns." Their places are filled by comparative strangers.

And the business of the town, it has changed too. Once lumber was its great article of manufacture and export. Its amount we have no means of knowing, but when Moriah was in her glory and lumbering was in the "full tide of successful operation" 500 teams a day was not an unusual number to pass over the road in the winter season. Now, the timber is nearly exhausted, and iron and iron ore have become the leading business of the town:—We are indebted to Rev. C. Ransom for interesting statistics which are contained in the subjoined note.

We proceed to give a few of the "notes" we made while in that town:

1. The general appearance of the town is vastly improved over the past few years. Crops are excellent, and we need not repeat that business is rapidly improving. For the last few years strangers have scarcely been seen in that town, and would have attracted as much attention as the elephant. Now, from six to ten a day is not unusual.

2. Teams are making $5 a day, over tolls. The time we were there Simeon Stickney with two ordinary teams made $19,75 over tolls in two days. And still there is room. They cant get teams enough to do the business.

3. It is supposed that a valuable and extensive lead mine has been discovered on Jas. Lewis' land, a wealthy and intelligent farmer in the south part of the town.

4. The Messrs. Witherbees are about erecting a steam Seperator near what is called "New bed." The Port Henry Iron Co. are also about to erect a steam power to raise ore from their bed.

5. Pease erected a large, three story brick house just before the failure of the late owner of the iron works, and has had very little use for it till now. Such is the crowd there, that he is doing off a large hall room into bedrooms.

6. Messrs. Stillwell and Trotter of N.Y. city lately became the purchasers of what is called the "Old Sanford bed," and also the Storrs and Reausau bed, and are trying experiments with the magnetic seperator of Clinton Prison notority. We saw it work one afternoon and dont see why it wont succeed. Mr. C. Watson of Albany, son-in law of Prof. Emmons is agent, G. S. Hammond, engineer and Mr. Barnes machinist.

This company intend to raise several thousand tons of ore in addition to the estimate below.

7. The principal ore dealers n Moria h now are Messrs. Lee and Sherman, Moriah, S. H. & J. G. Witherbee, Port Henry Iron Co. and G. W. Goff, Port Henry.

8. The principal ore beds are, Goffs, (late Foots) Port Henry Iron Co, Port Henry, "New bed," and "old bed," Moriah. The Messrs Kingslands and Barton of this place own a valuable bed there also. but we think they raise ore for their own use only. K. Sherman has also a bed at Mineral Point. There is also the "Fisher bed."

The "new bed" gives every indication of rivalling the Port Henry Iron Co. bed.

In short there is no limit to the ore in that town. The mountains are one vast deposit of ore, and the owners have 'mines' of wealth.

These beds are a great natural curiosity, and should be visited by all who have leisure. The vast quantities of ore, the great depth to which the veins have been sunk, and the immense piles of overhanging rocks fill one with wonder. Mr. Goff has tunnelled his, and there over a hundred feet below the surface, it seems more like the place where Vulcan forged the thunderbolts of Jupiter, than where man of the 19th century takes out material entering so largely into common use as iron ore.

9. The Port Henry Iron Co. furnaces are rapidly approaching completion. Gen. Throop of this place is comfortably quartered at his old desk. Mr. Goff is at his post from early morning till late at night. Contrasting strongly with the wasteful management of Mr. Grey is the absence of agents, sub-agents, clerks and waiters, Mr. Goff and two or three others doing the duties for which Mr. Grey employed over a dozen. Wm. H. Stone of N. Y. is agent of the Port Henry Iron Co. ore bed to whom we are indebted for favors.

10. We dont mean to be personal, but we just want to insert here that Jacob Tappen of Tappen's Hotel is one of the finest men in that town.

11. G. B. Pease, C. W. Ensign, Milton ly are the owners of valuable blackhawks.

We defer a note of visit to "Big Hollow" with the District attorney, a notice of Legge's Patent, a scrap or two of the "early history" of Moriah, and other items to another time.

Moriah, June 1st, 1853.

COL. TARBELL;

DEAR SIR—The following are the statistics pertaining to our ore business as near as I can get them. I will first give the business of the last year and then that of the present, as this is much in advance of the last:—

1st. Ore exported from Moriah, last year was about 30,000 tons, of which there was

2d. Sent out of the State 9,630 tons.

3d. Distributed to the following states, to wit; to Pa 4,400, tons, to Virginia 1,300 tons to Vermont 2,800 tons, to Maine 1,065 to Maryland 65 tons.

2. Business of the present year;—

1st. Already contracted to be exported from Moriah, 107,100 tons,

2d. Of which is to be sent out of the state, 41,500.

3d. To be sent to the following states viz: to Pennsylvania 16,000, to Virginia 3,500, to Vermont 6,000, to Massachusetts 10,000, to Maine 1,000, to Ohio 1500, to New Jersey 2,000.

4th. The price of Anthracite Coal delivered on our docks is $4,50.

The estimate of the present year is below the amount of business that will be done between this and the close of navigation.

Very respectfully yours,
C. RANSOM.

The Legislature—the Democracy.

We have prepared a synopsis of Legislative doings up to the present time, but on looking over the proceedings with care, there is nothing of interest save the Canal question, and the most interesting feature of this question is, the warfare between the Democratic factions. The Barnburners have yielded to the pressure of public opinion so far as to give up their tax and toll policy, and a committee of conference has been appointed between the two houses, which may result in a plan that will be acceptable to all.

Elected under written pledges to carry out the Canal law, the Barnburners first went to work with party judges to obtain its repeal, and have since resisted to the last, any sensible measure of completing the enlargement. Over-awed by public opinion, and the certainty of an overwhelming defeat at the next election, they are now yeilding. As it is all done in the name of democracy, we suppose they will of course, be kept in power if they hold out promises of amendment! What a burlesque!

By the way, the Administration at Washington have been taking a deep interest in the politics of this State; first, to encourage the Barnburners in their opposition to the Canal enlargement, evidently with a view to break down the Hunkers, but now, discovering the firmness of the latter, the evident symptoms of a rupture, the low mutterings of discontent, like the rumblings of a coming earthquake, and the certainty of the prostration of the party in this State, they advise the Barnburners to give way.—Their only salvation depends on the adoption of the Hunker and Whig plan for the immediate Enlargement. It is known that Cass, Douglass, Foote, Dickouson and others, occupy a position towards the Administration of "masterly inactivity." It is also known that the Hunkers compose the talent and the back-bone of the party. Pressed to the wall, they would be like a tiger at bay—their opposition would be no sham-fight. Without their support, Pierce would be as contemptible as John Tyler with his less than a corporal's guard. In short, the elements of rebellion exist thro' out the democracy. The standard of revolt once raised by the Hunkers, Pierce and his factions would be no more. The Canal question in this State is a mine under the very citadel of the democracy—the train is set—the match is lighted—its explosion will blow them to atoms.

A new Candidate for Fame.

That libel suit, is evidently a perplexing matter. If it could only be settled by ex parte newspaper articles in the Gazette the Editor of that paper would be triumphantly vindicated. We had supposed the matter transferred to the courts and that disreputable personalities were to cease, but it seems we were mistaken. A new candidate for fame appears in the Gazette of this week over the signature of "An E-town subscriber." On the reception of this letter it was duly announced as the production of "an old atty." The writer himself says he is a lawyer of about eight years practice, and the Editor of the Gazette, who has claimed, among numerous other pretensions, to be an atty. and counselor at law, pronounces the letter to be "as lawyerlike as it is founded in common sense." Thus heralded and endorsed, we proceed to notice a portion of its contents.

1. With a single dash of the pen he overrules the uniform decisions of the English and American courts for the last 150 years, and thus summarily annihilates the plff. and his atty in the libel suit against Nelson:

"Again, I even discover nothing in the complaint charging a State Prison offense against the plantiff, and if there is not there is no possibility of a recovery against you, because there are but two modes of recovery in the law of libel laid down in the books; one is where the libellous words as before stated are actionale per se, the other where the plantiff proves special damages."

The decisions of the courts are of course of no account now, but by way of showing that this "old atterney" is not only ignorant of the distinction between slander and libel, but that he does not know what constitutes a cause of action in slander even, we will quote briefly from the authorities.

The following rule was laid down by one Hawkins, (doubtless a stranger to this "old atty,") which was adopted by our supreme court as early as 1812 and has been repeatedly sanctioned since:

"A libel is a malicious defamation made public either by printing, writing, signs, or pictures, tending to blacken the memory of one who is dead, or the reputation of one who is alive, and expose him to public hatred, contempt or ridicule."

Jewett, justice, in 1845 said of this rule, "it is drawn with the utmost precision," and added, "It (libel) is a censorious or ridiculing writing, picture, or sign made with a mischievous and malicious intent towards government, magistrates, or individuals."

In a late case, Jewett, justice says, "The proposition of deft's counsel, that to render a pulication actionable it must impute a crime, cannot be sustained. This rule has never been extended to libels in this state, nor has it been in England for the last 150 years." In an older case Ch. J. Spencer, said, "there exists a decided distinction between words spoken, and written slander. To maintain an action for the former cause. the words must either have produced a temporal loss to the plf. by reason of special damage, or they must convey a charge of some act criminal in itself, and indictable in itself &c * * To maintain an action for a libel is not necessary that an indictable offense should be imputed to the plf. If a libel holds up a party to public scorn, contempt, and ridicule, it is actionable."

"An old atty." has undoubtedly read, or heard something said on slander, which he has confused with libel, but even in slander he has not yet learned that a man may be liable to an action for falsely charging another with "an indictable offense," which is not per se "a State Prison offense!"

We charge nothing for this information, and only regret that the letter did not arrive before Nelson had retained other counsel. What does Mr. Stetson know compared to "an old atty." of "8 years experience?"

Did we not know that 'an old atty.' never troubles himself to find out what is, and what is not 'laid down in the books,' we should judge the letter designed as a hoax upon Nelson, disguised under an attack upon us. Such is its effect, however, and its publication and endorsement are as sad a commentary on his pretended legal knowledge as his 'display in the dead languages' was on his knowledge of Greek.

So much for what is "laid down in the books." As to the personal attack upon us, it is base and unprovoked. Its baneness consists not in what we may have written, to the publication of which we have no objection, but in the misuse of confidence, which none but a vagabond will resort to. The gentleman can publish all that he chooses, as he and his friend Turner have done before. Our objection is to a distortion of facts—false comments—and to the time, the mode, the manner of doing a dirty lousy trick, which only Nelson, "Dave," and "an old atty." are capable of doing. All that we propose to say, is to draw a PORTRAIT.

Such an ornament to the bar—such a pillar of democracy, deserves to be presented prominently to public view. Otherwise, the honors, which are justly his due may be worn by others. The profession in that town must be content with the reflections from this great luminary. They shall not steal his thunder with our permission. We begin then, by exculpating them from [illegible] esponsibility of his legal and moral [illegible]ing. "An old attorney" is not our [illegible]nd esteemed friend Pend, nor any one [illegible]al office, but he is one who is famed chief-maker, good to every-body's face, and to none more so than to ours, and a falsifier and defamer to their backs; and none ever received a worse character from him than Turner and Nelson, and other of his own party. He was once caught under a window of a night, listening to the proceedings of a private political convention.—Once upon a time we had occasion to prosecute him under the statute, for converting to his own use money collected as an atty. At another time he was an assistant to "Dave" Turner, where he purloined papers which he now proposes to distort and publish.

Such is "an old atty." who proffers his aid to a libeller of his neighbor's character. His legal acumen may be inferred from the foregoing, and his pecuniary ability is about the same as Nelson's just before he got the Post Office. Such is one of those friends whom Nelson boasts to have rallied to his support. We wish him joy—the more he has and the closer they stick—the worse he will be off. And such is the man who volunteers to intrude in a personal matter by a violation of honor, and a distortion of facts. The "coat" we have made is an exact fit. He can put it on and wear it or he can mind his own business, as he likes.

Legislative Dissipation.

The members of the Legislature went on a "bender" to Niagara on the 4th and returned on the 6th, on the special invitation and cost of the consolidated railroads.—They of course had a grand time of it! Gov. Seward was present and made a glorious speech. Gov. Hunt was also present, as were also several eminent citizens, and prominent members of the press.

The distance from Albany to Niagara is 305 miles, and was run in 8 hours and 33 minutes, or at the rate of a mile in one minute and 40 seconds. The Albany Journal says:—

'Some twelve miles from Rochester, where the recent break occurred, the workmen on it, at the approach of the train, assembled on the tow-path and presented to the gaze of the members of the Legislature a large white banner, on which was inscribed "VANDERBILT'S PLAN," and from that point to this place nothing was heard or exhibited but the same feeling. It was the ERIE CANAL ENLARGEMENT AND VANDERBILT'S PLAN.

The Press was well represented; but I have not time now to speak of them individually.

Gov. Seward came on board at Rochester, and Gov. Hunt at Lockport; but no Gov. Seymour was seen, although his name was frequently mentioned by those who are so strenuous for the Enlargement of the Canals; and on being told that he was non est, the invariable reply was that he did not dare to "face the music."

☞A case of unusual interest has recently occurred in Milwaukie. On the 14th of October last, Mary Ann Wheeler shot John Lace in the public street of that city. She was arrested and tried, but the Jury could not agree. They stood 10 for acquittal and 2 for conviction. Another jury was ordered, but so great was the excitement and such the interest taken in the case by the people, that it was almost impossible to obtain an impartial jury. Two pannels were made up and given to the Sheriff, of 500 each. On the second trial she was promptly acquitted, and every lover of innocence will say Amen. The case is briefly thus:

Mary Ann Wheeler was a young woman—about 23 years of age—said to be of pre possessing appearance, and was seduced under promise of marriage. Her betrayer insulted, spurned, and rejected her. He exposed her private letters in the public saloons, and boasted of the ruin he had made of her good name and fame. Which was the greater crime? The law says her's, but justice maintains a different opinion.

Time Flies On.

BY LOUIS N. BOUDRYE.

Swift as the arrow through the air,
Swift as the lightning's vivid glare;
Swift as the bark o'er waves capped white,
Swift as the eagle's chasing flight,
Time flies on.

Swift as an echo o'er the vales,
Swift as the leaf borne on the gales.—
Swift as the cloud before the breeze,
Swift as the gull's flight o'er the seas—
Time flies on.

Swift as the earth its course doth run,
Swift as the light from the morning sun—
Swift as oft pass mirth's gentlest lays Swift as will pass our childhood days,—
Time flies on.

Swift as the rain descends from high,
Swift as the cornets onward fly,—
Swift as a star its course has sped,
Swift as we hasten to the dead—

"Rejected Addresses."

Not to be outdone by the Rail Roads and Forwarders, the "Canallers" present the following "first rate" caricature to the Legislature:

Whereas, we have learned, with great satisfaction, that it is the intention of the Hon. Members of the Legislature to make a pleasure excursion to Niagara Falls, and that the Agents of the Railroads have tendered said members a free passage to and from said Falls; and whereas we have learned with pride and heartfelt gratitude, that our brethren, the Buffalo forwarders, have with their usual magnanimity likewise tendered said members a free passage via of the Canal on their facilities so far as they go, together with the necessary Police arrangements along the line of Canal to guard against "the usual and customary dangers" of canal navigation, such as culverts dropping out, and the half finished banks sliding off on a tangent; and whereas, by visiting Niagara Falls, via of Oswego, the chances of a more speedy return to their legislative duties (before the meeting of the next legislature deprive many of the present incumbents of a seat in that Honorable body) inasmuch as there is less distance of Canal to pass through; and whereas we are desirous of being equally magnanimous with our Buffalo neighbor and the Railroad Companies; therefore

Resolved, That we hereby tender to the Hon. Members of the Senate and Assembly, a free passage to Oswego and return, on the boats of either of the following lines:—

Troy and Oswego, Oswego Transportation Co., Oswego. Oswego Canal, New York Oswego & Western New York and Oswego. New Oswego. Syracuse and Oswego. Old Oswego. Oswego and Western, New York, Troy and Oswego.

Resolved, That as an inducement to have our route thus honored by such marked distinction, in case said members avail themselves of our liberality, we hereby agree to run such boats as may be honored with members, through the Oneida Lake, that we may avoid the dangers of the Orville Feeder, and the dilapidated locks at Salina; and also, that our guests may see at least one short space of navigation that will not be materially benefitted by "scratching the bottom and tickling the sides."

Resolved, That this invitation be extended to his Excellency the Governor, that he may have an opportunity to point out his warehousses on the Canal, and add new proof of his friendship for the enlargement.

Resolved, That we hereby likewise extend this invitation to the Honorable the Canal Board; and especially to our worthy Auditor, who has, with such liberality, we understand, instructed the superintendents to pay the enormous price of six shillings per day for laborers, in case of breaks, as an inducement, and to invite plenty of help, that the breaks may be speedily repaired, instead of being five or six weeks, as usual.

Resolved. That a committee be appointed to make the necessary arrangements with the Lake Ontario steamboats, to convey said officials from Oswego to the Falls and back, in case they conclude to adopt our route.

Resolved. That the proceedings of this meeting be published in the Albany and Oswego papers. and a copy served on each of the members and officers thus invited.

ATROCIOUS MURDER AND ROBBERY.—We learn by a gentleman from Port Kent the following particulars of a murder committed in Duane, Franklin Co, on Monday last. W. Van Tassel and J. S Seger, from Westchester Co, had been buying horses in Franklin Co., and were known to have a large sum of money between them. As they were riding on horseback together along the road, Seger was shot through the heart by a man named Cook, and robbed by him and an accomplice of $400 and a gold watch. Van Tassel fled and gave the alarm. The citizens turned out and formed a line 10 miles in length along the Northern Railway, and succeeded in arresting the murderers as they crossed the road on their way to Canada. Cook is a schoolmaster and the son of a Justice of the Peace. The name of his accomplice we did not learn. They are both in jail at Malone. Van Tassel had $1500 on his person. The murderers had but one gun, or they would probaly have killed him. Both of them were identified by Van Tassel after their arrest as the perpetrators of the deed. This most atrocious and cold blooded murder causes the greatest excitement in Franklin Co, as well it may. Never before has its soil been polluted by so foul a deed.—[Troy Whig

The Extra Session.

An extra session of the Legislature of the State of New York commences on Tuesday the 24th May. In all the annals of the State, no record can be found where the extraordinary measure of a session called by the Governor, has been with reason so inadequate. Since the Convention of 1821, twice only has there been a session convened by the Proclamation of the Chief Magistrate. The other extra sessions have been directed by a resolution of the Legislature. The Constitution of 1846 took from the Legislature the power to call itself together, and vested that in the Governor. It however forgot a most important feature in the grant of authority, and one which certainly should have been included, and that is, the power of prescribing the duration of the session. The regular session, like the governor of a steam engine, regulates itself. At the end of the Hundred Days, the Comptroller and the Treasurer lock up their books and chests and turn over the representatives to a contemplation of the exalted virtues and delicious patriotism of George Washington, who served his country without pay, but in an extra session, there is no bar or barrier.—The Treasury must honor the draft as long as the Legislature choose to reman.

Old Governor Yates in 1822, entertaining the curious idea that to the People at the ballot boxes more than to the Legislature belonged the election of Presidential Electors, called by Proclomation, the wisdom of the State. They came in compliance wite his call, but the democrats led on by Silas Wright and Azariah C. Flagg, treated the measure as absurd, and dissolved the session in hot water with the Executive—It was a good beginning for democratic rule, and history always stops at this era in our record to wonder and admire at such democracy.

There was a very brief extra session held in 1832, for the purpose of the division of the State in Congressional Districts, but the members acted under the pressure of a panic, on account of the Asiatic pestilence, which in that year of terror was acting in our land the same fearful tragedy which had made it so memorable. The time of remaining together was very brief. Only two acts were passed, the District Law, & a statute constituting and regulating the powers and duties of Boards of Health.

In 1828 and 1829 several extra sessions were held, to perfect the revision of the laws, a great duty which came upon a Legislature in which were many of the very ablest men of the State, among whom was John C. Spencer—powerful even when in error—mighty when giving his energies to the right.

The duty of dividing the State into Congressional districts brought the Legislature together in August of 1842. It took three weeks to pass one law. The democratic party had all the power, and occupied themselves in trying to out-general each other. In several cases the "fixed" districts so very strong, that the democratic party regularly split before election, and illuminated such Gibraltars of Democracy as Delaware and Chemung by Whig victories.

But all, or nearly all these assemblages, were rather adjourned sessions than extra ones—there being full authority in the Legislature to determine how long and how often should be their meetings.

Governor Hunt called the Legislature together in 1851. He could not, in justice to his duty, have done otherwise. The disorganization consequent upon the resignation of the gentlemen who tried that rash experiment, left the Executive no alternative. But, politically, the thing was to be regretted. The Whig party would have held power much longer, and the vote for General Scott have been much larger, had the settlement of the Canal question been postponed to the regular session of 1852.

Governor Seymour commences his administration by a call for an extra session That distinguished gentleman certainly has used this power, intended only for extreme cases, with most dangerous facility. There was nothing in the condition of the business before the Legislature three days before the hundred ended, that was unusual or peculiar. The great mass of the business, in its concluding stages, was to be done W and so it has been, at almost every session, for the last score of years—and always will be. Men will not act together till they know each other, and it is only in the last month of the session that the one hundred and twenty-eight have well-defined mutual understanding.

If his Excellency had, on the Friday before the adjournment, called either Mr. Loomis, of Herkimer, Mr. West, of Jefferson, or Mr. Champlin, of Alleghany—all of them gentlemen who were properly regarded by the House, as possessing the full confidence of the Executive power—if these gentlemen had been asked to assure the House that no extra session would be called, the difficulties would have vanished at once. In point of real importance, the private and local measures are greater to the individual than the general laws of leading public policy, and the anxiety with which each member would have been imbued—to take home, as laws, complete and perfected, the projects of particular moment to his friends and neighbors—would have caused the occupation of hours enough out of the twenty-four, to have given the session a finish as complete as happens to any.

BOOT & SHOE STORE!

THE Subscribers having bought the Boot and Shoe Establishment heretofore known as F. E. Shandrew and Co.'s, are now prepared to manufacture anything in that line. We have also a large stock of Ready-Made Work, selected with great care by Mr. Shandrew, and warranted to be a better article than can be found in any slop Shoe Store in town. Our ready made Boots and Shoes are made by some of the best workmen in New York city,—in the most fashionable style, and every pair warranted to give satisfaction or the money refunded. We are permanently in the business, and of course expect to furnish a better article for less money than our neighbors can who, do not manufacture.

Ladies and gentlemen—you need not go to Burlington, nor any where else, expecting to do better than you can with us, as we have in our employ some of the best workmen in the State, and can give you perfect fits. We hope and expect that our own mechanics and village will be patronized in preference to the States Prison convicts, whose worthless trash is brought into competition with the labor of honest workmen. In addition to every article in the line of Boots and Shoes, we have a well selected stock of

SOLE AND UPPER LEATHER;

Morocco, White, Red and Russet sheep Linings; Bindings; Lastings of different colors; Lasts; Nails; Pincers; Hammers; Files; Knives; Awls, &c., &c.; all of which we shall sell at very low prices for Cash or good credit.

SHERIFF'S SALE.

By virtue of two executions issued out of the Supreme Court of the State of New-York, to me directed and delivered against the goods and chattels and chattels real of James W. Taggard, I have seized and taken all the right title and interest which the said James W. Taggard had on the 6th day of August 1852 or which he may since have acquired of in and to all that certain piece or parcel of land situate, lying and being in the Town of Chesterfield, in the Village of Keeseville, County of Essex and State of New York, bounded as follows: Begining at the South west corner of a lot of land sold and deeded to Irish Durkee and John Johnson running thence east, twenty three degrees south twenty rods, thence south twenty three degrees west eight rods thence west twenty three degrees north twenty rods, thence north 23 degrees east eight rods containing one acre of ground excepting & reserving out of the north west corner of the above described premises a piece of land extending thirty feet on the road bounding the westerly part of said premises and fifty feet back or easterly from said road and containing fifteen hundred superficial feet of land being the same parcel or lot of land sold by Robert Forsyth Junior, now deceased to Irish Durkee. Also, that certain piece or parcel of land situate lying and being in the village of Keeseville, in the Town of Chesterfield and State aforesaid. Beginning at the south east corner of a lot of land heretofore sold by Robert Forsyth Jr. now deceased, to Irish Durkee on which said Durkee has erected a building and runs thence south twenty two degrees west along the line of the highway 35 feet, thence east twenty two degrees south fifty feet thence north twenty two degrees east thirty five feet thence west twenty two degrees north fifty feet to the place of beginning. Also all that other certain piece or parcel of land situated in the village, town and county aforesaid, beginning at the south east corner of the aforesaid lot and runs from thence east twenty seven feet from thence north fifty four feet from thence west twenty seven feet and from thence south fifty four feet to the place of beginning. Also all that certain other piece or parcel of land situate lying and being in the village, town, county and state aforesaid, in a patent of thirteen thousand acres of land granted to Zephaniah Platt and others, and is lot number twenty one in the village survey made by Edwin F. Johnson, and is bounded as follows: Begining at the south east corner of lot number twenty in said survey running thence south twenty three and a half degrees west along the west line of vine street two chains thence north sixty six and a half degrees west one chain thence north twenty three and a half degrees east along the line of Robert Forsyths Junior, now deceased, two chains thence south sixty six and a half degrees east one chain along the line of lot number twenty to the place of beginning containing one fifth of an acre of land. Excepting and reserving from the premises last described the following lot or parcel of ground, viz: Beginning on the west line of vine street at the south east corner of the Johnson lot, so called, thence south twenty four degrees, west fifty two feet six inches thence north seventy six degrees west two chains nineteen links thence north twenty four degrees east fifty two feet six inches thence south seventy six degrees east two chains nineteen links to the place of begining. being the same premises sold by Robert Forsyth Junior, in his life time to George Hubbard, and which said three pieces or parcels of land as hereinbefore described compose the farm lot and premises owned and occupied by Robert Forsyth Junior in his life time and being the same now in posession of Sabina Forsyth, the widow of the said Robert Forsyth Junior, deceased, one of the parties of the first part to these presents. Also the right of taking and using water from the lot on vine street in said village the same as it now is used and taken for the use of said farm house and premises and from the same spring and place on said lot that is now taken from and none other. Together with the right at all times of entering upon said lot for the purpose of keeping said spring in repair and of putting down and repairing the logs or pipes used to convey the water from the same and for no other purpose whatsoever. Also, all that house and lot situate in the village of Keeseville, in the town of Chesterfield, in the county of Essex, being the house and lot conveyed by Homan Rockwell and Harry Rackman to Nathan Eastabrook by deed bearing date the 26th day May, 1826, and by the said Nathan to Gardiner Stow and now occupied by the said Gardiner Stow as his office. All of which aforesaid real property, I shall expose for sale at the Adirondac Hotel, in said village and county, on the 18th day of July next, at 12 o'clock at noon of that day. Dated Keeseville this 3d day of June 1853.

Ploughs! Ploughs!!

PROUTY & MEARS'

Celebrated Centre Draughts—All Sizes

THESE Ploughs wherever introduced, are fast superseding all others.

The most thorough trials of Ploughs on record in this country, and at the World's Fair in London, have demonstrated the important fact, that the Centre draught Plough is of much easier draught than any other, and therefore used with less fatigue to both Plough-man and Team; and, also owing to its peculiar form it pulverizes and prepares the ground better and more perfectly than any other, leaving less work for the harrow, and securing better crops than by any other method of Culture.

The following Implements, among others of the best quality, and of the latest and most approved patterns, are constantly on hand, viz:

Drill Harrows, Seed Sowers, Corn Planters, Corn Shellers, Straw Cutters, Corn and Cob Crushers, Cheese Presses, Threshing Machines, Potato Hoes, Mortice Hooks, Cast Iron Ox Scrapers, Prairie Shears, Tree Scrapers, Budding and Pruning Knives, Hay Knives, Barn Door Pullers, Agricultural Furnaces, Corn Knives, Post Hole Augers, Wheelbarrows, Sheep Shears, etc., etc.

Being agents of Messrs. D. Prouty and Co., we can furnish the CENTRE DRAUGHT PLOUGHS at the Boss on wholesale prices, with the addition of freight.

202 RIVER & 7 & 9 STATE STREETS,

TROY, NEW YORK,

INVITES the attention of those who wish to purchase

DRY GOODS,

Carpets and Oil-Cloths.

Owing to the large increase of patronage, I have found it necessary from time to time, to make many improvements and additions to my store.

This spring I have united the stores No. 7 and 9, State St., making a spacious and beautiful room, fitted up expressly for the sale of all the various styles of

Silks, Shawls, Cloaks & Mantillas.

This connects with the main store, No. 202, River St., (the old stand occupied by the subscriber for nearly 30 years,) which is devoted to a general assortment of

STAPLE AND FANCY DRY GOODS,

comprising every variety to meet the wants of all classes of buyers. Besides these, four large rooms over the stores 200, 202 and 204 River St., are occupied as

CARPET WARE-ROOMS,

where I am constantly receiving the newest and most desirable patterns of Velvet, Tapestry, Brussels, Three-ply, Ingrain and Venetian Carpets. Also, Oil-Cloths of every quality and width, and every style of Druggetts, Rugs, Mats, Matting, Stair-Rods, &c.

All these departments combined making an extensive and complete Establishment, conducted on such principles, that customers can trade with confidence, and to their own advantage, my sales being always for cash, and the only price asked, being the lowest cash price.

OLD ESTABLISHED HOSPITAL.
Quick Cures and Low prices. Private Diseases and their Antidote.

Dr. LISPENARD, author of the Marriage Guide, or Private Medical Treatise. Professor of Diseases of Women and Children, and Licentiate of the College of Physicians and Surgeons of the United States University, &c., &c., continues as heretofore to be confidentially and successfully consulted on all forms and variety of

PRIVATE DISEASES,

at his old quarters, No 5 Beaver-street ALBANY, N. Y.

The great success attending the use of Doctor L.'s remedies in secret diseases, and the many remarkable cures daily effected by him in recent as well as old lingering attacks, isconclusiveidence that the

SICK AND UNFORTUNATE

can do no better than consult the Doctor, whose whole time is devoted to the exclusive treatment of this much neglected branch of practice.

LOOK AT THIS.

Dr. Lispenard cures recent cases of disease in from three to six days, and chronic or long standing diseases in a very short period of time, without the use of Mercury, without the loss of time, change of diet, or detention from

DAILY EMPLOYMENT.

In Syphillis, Gonorrhœa, Gleet, Strictures, Enlargement of the Testicles and Cords, Bubo, Chancres Pimples and Scaly Eruptions, Sore Throats and Noses, Chancres on the tongue, tender shin bones, and diseases of the skin, and impure blood. Dr. Lispenard's remedies are above all praise, and frequently cure when all others had failed

EVEN TO RELIEVE.

More than 5,000 patients have during the past year experienced the benefit of the Doctor's extraordinary skill in treating secret diseases—among which, diseases of the bladder and kidneys have formed a goodly proportion.

YOUNG MEN,

who by indulging in secret habits have injured their health and prostrated their intellectual faculties, and thereby deprived themselves of the pleasure of married life, should consult Dr. Lispenard without a moment's delay. Hundreds have been restored to health, society and friends, under my peculiar mode of treatment, although vast sums of money had been sacrificed without any benefit. My remedy for this disease is pleasant to take, has no offensive smell and

CURES WITHOUT FAIL

☞ Persons so unfortunate as to be diseased, although they may have visited half a dozen Doctors, and had medicine sent them a dozen times with no benefit, would exhibit wisdom by making their case known to that FRIEND OF THE SICK, Dr. Lispenard, who never charges for advice and warrants all his cures. The sick are often at a loss where to apply for relief, AND TIS NO WONDER, as hundreds stand ready to plunder the unfortunate victim of PRIVATE DISEASE, or secret habits. without one thought for his life and health. All thus deceived will find a friend, and moderate charges, in consulting the Doctor who USES NO MERCURY and cures every time.

N. B.—Persons from a distance when visiting the city in search of a physician and friend. will be fortunate if they succeed in escaping the many dens of imposition, conducted by unprincipled men, destitute of character knowledge or name, who fleece the unfortunate victim of disease of his hard earned money, and his remaining health. Patients who have no acquaintance in the city should make inquiry of some respectable citizen, or the editor or proprietor of any of the city papers, to ascertain who is the most reliable physician to apply to.

FEMALE DISEASES.

Dr. Lispenard, from an experience seldom or never enjoyed by any other medical man, is enable to treat, with every hope of success, all and every variety of Female Complaints—with safe and pleasant remedies—and has without doubt cured within the past five years more than 3000 females afflicted with diseases of the Bladder, Womb, &c. &c. Ladies afflicted with suppression or stoppage of their monthly turns, will recollect that Dr. Lispenard is still the sole American agent for.

DR. VICHOP'S
FEMALE MONTHKY PILLS.

The unprecedented sale of more than 15,000 boxes of these excellent Pills, and the good results which always follow their use, is conclusive evidence of their utility in stoppages, &c. Caution—Married ladies in certain delicate situations should not use them—for reasons see directions with each box. Price $1. Sent by mail to all parts of the world.

Married Persons and those about to Marry, should enclose 12½ cents post paid to Dr Lispenard, and obtain a copy of his Marriage Guide, or Private Treatise, a bewitching little work of nearly 100 pages, illustrated. Every thing that married persons can desire or wish to know is here explained. Persons who from poverty or sickness have no desire to increase their family, will find necessary instruction in the Marriage Guide. One copy 12½ cents; 5 copies 50 cts.; 12 copies $1—mailed free to any part of the world.

N. B.—Patients treated by letter, and medicines sent with full directions for use, to the writer's address. All communications destroyed or returned.

No mercury used in any case, and all cures warranted.

No boys or precocious students allowed: timed persons take notice.

Friends of Dr. L. when recommending patients to our care, will recollect our number, 5 Beaver st., three doors from South Broadway.

Hospital open from 7 A. M., to 9 P. M., and on Sundays from 1 to 4 P. M.

No charge for advice, although no medicine may be desired.

MORTGAGE SALE

DEFAULT has been made in the payment of the debt secured by a certain mortgage, dated the 21st day of October, 1847, executed by William Galusha and Sophia, his wife, then of Wilmington, in the County of Essex, State of N. Y., to Uriah D. Mibills of Keene, in the county and state aforesaid, and recorded in the office of the clerk of Essex county, in volume N. of Mortgages, pages 283 and 284, on the 28th day of December, 1847, at nine o'clock, A. M. Said mortgage was duly assigned by said Mihills to Willard Bell, January 14th, 1848, and by said Bell duly assigned to Reuben Patridge, January 30, 1849, and. by said Patridge duly assigned to M. Finch, Amos Avery and Charles Malbone, assignees of Reuben Sanford, January 1st, 1849. who are now the owners of said mortgage. There is claimed to be due on said mortgage, at the time of the first publication of this notice, the sum of $167,93. Now therefore, notice is hereby given that the premises described in said mortgage, will, by virtue of a power of sale contained in said mortgage, and pursuant to the statute in such case made and provided, be sold at public auction, at the Adirondac Hotel, in Keeseville, in said county, on the 8th day of June next, at 1 o'clock, P. M.

Said mortgaged premises are described in said mortgage as follows: All that certain piece or parcel of land situate in the town of Wilmington, in the county of Essex, being a part of lot No 34, of Mallory's grant, bounded as follows: beginning at a stake and stones standing on the North line of the Sampson lot, 141 rods from the centre of the road leading from the Carpenter house to Blish and Burdick's forge, being the South-West corner of Ephraim French's land, and running East on said line to the West line of said grant, thence North on the line of said grant to the centre of the road leading from Sanford's to St. Armand, thence running Easterly in the centre of said road to a stake and stones, being the North-West corner of a piece of land occupied by David Hatch, thence South 42 degrees, West six rods to the South bank of Mill Brook, thence Easterly along the South bank of said brook 30 rods to a stake and stones being the South-East corner of said Hatch lot, thence North 35 degrees East to the centre of said road, thence Easterly in the centre of said road to the North-West corner of the Carpenter lot, thence South on the line of said Carpenter lot to the South-west corner of said lot, thence East on the line of said lot to the brook, thence up the brook in the centre thereof to a point ten rods below the sawmill, and thence on the South bank of said brook on the line of Ephraim French's lot to the North-west corner thereof, thence South 43 degrees west on the line of said French's lot 126 rods to the place of beginning, containing seventy-five acres, be the same more or less.

SHERIFF SALE.

BY virtue of an execution issued out of the Essex County Court, to me directed and delivered against the personal and real property of Nathaniel Mason, I have seized and taken all the right, title, and interest which the said Nathaniel Mason had on the eleventh day of January, 1853, or at any time thereafter, in and to the following described real estate, to wit:—All those certain pieces of land situate in the town of Willsboro, in Essex County and being part of a lot of land in Peru Bay Tract, and bounded and described as follows:—

Beginning at a stake in centre of the highway where a spruce tree formerly stood in the South line of lot Number (62) sixty-two of the aforesaid tract, from thence West on the said South line of lot No. sixty two thirty five chains and eighty one links, thence North partly on the line of a piece of land formerly owned by William S. Flack, even chains and sixteen links, thence east thirty four chains and seventy five links and from thence Southerly to the place of beginning, containing thirty five acres of land, more or less.

Also, one other piece of land being a part of lot Number thirteen Peru Bay tract commonly called the Thompson lot, and bounded as follows, to wit:—Beginning at at a stake in the centre of the highway where a Spruce tree formerly stood in the South line of lot sixty two of the aforesaid tract and from thence South nineteen degrees and thirty minutes east, fourteen chains and six links to a stake and stones on the east branch of a small stream of water thence South forty two degrees west, forty one links to a hemlock stump, thence North 55° west five chains and seventy links to a stake thence North forty six degrees West thirteen chains and fifty links to the South line of lot Number sixty two in a small brook, from thence to the place of beginning, containing nine acres and seventy two rods of land, more or less, the two lots above described being the same lots described in two Deeds of conveyance executed by Robert Flack and Sarah his wife to Lawrence Edwards, one Dated January 26, 1842, and the other dated May 20th 1843.

Also, one other piece of land in said town of Willsboro, being a part of Lot Number (63) in said Peru Bay tract and commencing on the North line of lot Number 62, in said tract in the centre of the Highway, which runs through said lot 62, thence North sufficient distance to make fifty acres by coming due east to the east line of said lot 63, thence around to the place of beginning, so as to make the aforesaid number of fifty acres from the north side of said lot (63.)

Which said real estate I shall expose for sale at public vendue at the Inn of David Judd in the town of Elisabethtown, in said county of Essex on the 13th day of June next at 10 o'clock, in the forenoon.

THE WONDER OF THE WORLD.
DEVINES' COMPOUND
PITCH LOZENGE,

A sure and pleasant Remedy for Colds, Coughs, Croup, Whooping Cough. Asthma, and if longs enough are left to sustain life, A CERTAIN CURE FOR CONSUMPTION. safe for the Infant or the Invalid, in any stage of weakness.

"The statements that consumption cannot be cured, has destroyed more lives than the disease itself.—[Dr. Warren

Read the following, which to a candid mind places this "Great Remedy," like "Cæsar's wife "above suspicion."

TO THE PUBLIC!

We, the undersigned, citizens of Lee, Mass., are acquainted with Mr. Devines, the proprietor and Manufacturer of Devines' Compound Pitch Lozenge and from what we know of it ourselves and have learned from others of its beneficial effects, in cases where it has been used, give it as our opinion that it is a valuable remedy in diseases for which it is recommended and is worthy of public confidence. A. G. Hulburt, Leonard Church, F. G. Taylor, Wm Taylor, E. A. Bliss, S. A. Hulburt, Josephus Crafts, T. P. Eldridge.

If any individual is to be pitied, and needs sympathy, it is the consumptive—always expecting to get well, and yet the painful evidence of decay almost "makes the inner soul shrink with the outer flesh".

"Some bloom as roses bloom, and live as roses live,
A single morning space!"

While others, in more mature life—by some imprudence and a slight cold neglected—in the hectic flush—the painful cough.

"The prints of their departing steps appears."

BUT HERE IS HOPE! Mr Wm. Devines, the originator and manufacturer of the Pitch Lozeuge, under Providence, was raised to perfect health by the use of these Lozenges alone, after he was pronounced by his physician to be almost dying with consumption.

This fact is generally known in Berkshire County and is the neighborhood talk, and wonder in Lee, and in Great Barrington, Mass.

From Dr. Brown, of Lee, Mass.

This certifies that I have made use of Devines' Compound Pitch Lozenge for cold and cough, and found immediate relief. Therefore I would recommend it to the public as being a safe and sovereign remedy. H. C. BROWN.

Field, M. W. G. M. Cyrus Fisher, M. E. H. P. James Hutchinson, G. S. Dea., V J. Bates, Doct Benj. Colby. and on hundred others of the most respectable families of Providence.

This certifies that I have for a number of years been acquainted with the composition and mode of manufacture of Morse's Compound Syrup of Yellow Dock Root. I have also been acquainted with its modus operandi in disease, and can say that in all respects it is admirably calculated to remedy that class of Diseases for which it was designed. It is especially valuable in Indigestion and all its attendant symptoms, it excites to healthy action the Liver, removes Torpor, and inactivity of this organ, and stimulates healthy action in all the system. As a Depurator or purifier of the Blood it has no superior.

The State Canals.

Remarks of Mr. Burnett, of Essex, in Committee of the Whole, on the Resolution amending the Constitution in regard to the Canals.

IN ASSEMBLY, May 29.

Mr. CHAIRMAN—It is an essential prerequisite in every measure introduced as a subject of legislative action, that two points be preliminary considered and carefully weighed. First, its expediency—secondly, its feasibility; for, lacking either of these, its policy is not merely questionable, but such lack should be taken as constituting adequate cause for its instant rejection.

A measure having been found both expedient and practicable, other elements supervene, the consideration of which should materially influence our action in the premises—time and mode of execution. And, sir, in applying these principles to the subject matter of the present debate, the question of time appears to be the only important particular in, or about, which there seems to be any material points of difference in the opinions of members of this House. All admit the expediency of enlarging our canals—all admit the practicability of the measure; but here opinions diverge—some advocating a speedy, others a gradual enlargement, running through a course of many years; and the last do not, as I understand them, base their advocacy of a gradual enlargement upon the position, that expense would be saved thereby, but the incurring of a debt avoided. Now, I do not stand here as the advocate of the advantages of a public debt, although there may be many things far worse, in character and tendency, easily imagined. I do not believe a national debt to be per se a national blessing. But, sir, I do insist, that exigencies may arise, and that this is one of them, when the increasing of a State debt becomes a measure of the highest expediency. And I will further venture to say, that, when an emergency as exigent as the present, arises, it is the dictate of practical wisdom and enlightened economy to incur such debt. And whoever opposes this proposition, must close his eyes and lock up his understanding to all the teachings of the past, and be "stone blind" to the promises of the future. The maxim that "experience is the best schoolmaster," is as true now, (the senseless ravings of a few crazy fanatics, the self styled champions of progress, to the contrary notwithstanding) as when these words of wisdom first fell from the lips of the almost divine Socrates, more than two thousand years ago. But the question is asked, should we not first count the cost? Doubtless the costs are to be counted. But should we postpone such enlargement, who I ask, can count the cost of delay?

The loan of a few million negotiated in Holland, at the very crisis of our revolutionary struggle, turned the tide of victory in our favor; and thus was instrumental in securing the independence of these United States; which otherwise might, even now be enduring the blighting curse of colonial vassalage. Was this profligacy; or was it wise forecast? And what, he would ask, would have been the result, had Dewitt Clinton and his compeers, (I should say compatriots, Clinton had no peer,) not counted the cost of postponing the construction of the Erie Canal? Since it is now a matter of history, that, had that noble enterprise been delayed but for a little time, a canal would have been constructed, under the fostering care of the General Government, from the head of Chesapeake Bay to Lake Ontario, and thus forever cut off the whole trade of the West from the port of New York. Fortunately, our State was not then cursed with the leaden rule of rhetoricians and political empirics. "There were giants in those days;" men renowned for wisdom and prudence and patriotism; men imbued with energy and enterprise, and perseverance, equal to the emergency—and, although New York, in common with the whole Union, had been greatly damaged and impoverished by the war just closed, and far more by the wretched system of embargoes and other commercial restrictions of several preceding years, yet the far seeing statesmen of those times did not hesitate, with true heroic faith, to cast their bread upon the waters, knowing well that they should 'gather it up after many days." Action, immediate action, being demanded by the exigency of the occasion, action, energetic action was had; and although many friendly but timid minds were alarmed, and Thomas Jefferson himself pronounced the scheme chimerical, and doomed to prove an utter failure, from having been entered upon a century too soon, yet the work progressed, and stood complete before that distinguished scholar and pure patriot, but timid, and vascillating statesman and fanciful theorist had departed from a world, the brightest pages of whose history he had adorned.

More than a quarter of a century has since elapsed, but well do I remember the festive day which celebrated the nuptials of Lake Erie with the Atlantic. 'Twas the 20th of October, 1825. Not a cloud obscured the horizon. They, with every lowering cloud of doubt and apprehension, seemed to be chased away, leaving the autumnal sky gloriously beautiful and serene. The equinoctical storms, like the fierce passions of men, slept in repose. The winds had gone back to their caves, when suddenly the loud thunder of the deep mouthed cannon came booming from the far west, along the valley of the Mohawk, awakening the sleeping echoes to the more sleepy senses of the drowsy dwellers in the vales of Herkimer, where and thence progressed with tumultuous roar adown the broad bosom of the Hudson, "deep calling unto deep, because of the voice of the water pipes." 'Twas a nation's jubilee; and, sir, from that day, our course has been onward, outstripping the brightest visions of fancy, and safely challenging a parallel in the annals of the world. The construction of the Erie Canal forms, and forever will form, an important era in our history. It has become the parent of States, has extended the limits of civilization, and opened a cheap and convenient avenue to boundless fields, where the downtrodden and oppressed of the old world can find a welcome refuge and a home, and has added almost countless millions to our pecuniary resources.

"Night sable goddess on her ebon throne of rayless majesty, Now waves her leaden sceptre o'er a slumbering world,"

But there is another view, and to my mind the most important one, connected with this great question, which has been but incidentally touched upon in this debate upon which I desire to say a few words. Would that this subject had fallen into abler hands; or that I had a tongue of fire to speak "in thoughts that breathe and words that burn," truths which should be written with a pen of iron and the point of a diamond, and engraved upon the rock forever. Great and manifold as have been the pecuniary benefits derived to our State, and to the boundless regions in the West, by the opening of a cheap and expenditious communication with the great Lakes, I hold, sir, the crowning glory of this work to be the moral results thus superinduced.

It seems to be a law of our nature, that physical and mental energy are generally found combined—that activity of the body lends activity to the mind; and that their conjoined action is favorable to the development of the moral powers. Now, Sir, let us look for a moment at the position of the West, at and previous to the time when our scheme of internal improvements was first entered upon. Isolated by its inland position from all practicable access to the sea-board, except by the circuitous and at that time dangerous route of the St. Lawrence—and that closed one-half of the year, it offered few inducements to industry and enterprise—for who would wish to accumulate what he can not enjoy?

Hence the settler, albeit inured to habits of industry, for lack of finding a profitable market for his surplus produce, would gradually, but surely, sink into habits of indolence and sloth. Content with his humble dwelling, just affording him a covering from the storm, he would aspire to nothing better, to use a homely but expressive term, than "to live from hand to mouth." Thus circumstanced, the very geniality of the climate and the fertility of the soil, would prove a curse rather than a blessing to him. For by so much less time required to procure the bare necessaries of life, just so much more time would be left him to while away in idleness and sloth—the prolific parents of many vices. Need I adduce any testimonials for the truth of this proposition? Does any man on this floor question its truth and accuracy? If so, I invoke my witness—I call upon gentlemen who resided at the time in our western country, and were well acquainted with its physical, moral, and intellectual condition, previous to the opening of its resources to market, to answer, whether things were not then tending, fast tending, in the direction which I have indicated and pointed out? Whether indolence and its resulting voices were not becoming prevailing characteristics—whether that tendency was not immediately counteracted and checked by the opening of avenues to trade and consequent inducements to industry? Whether the husbandman, the artizan and the day laborer did not spring from his drowsey couch at an earlier hour, and with freer, loftier tread, and with a more cheerful and hopeful spirit, and more concentrated energy, engage in his daily toil? And with what results?

Then, sir, that country was overspread with tangled forests, where now are cultivated fields. Then there was scarcely a passable carriage road through the whole length and breadth of the land. Indeed, it is an historical fact, that during our last war with England, cannon and other material of war cost, in their transportation from Springfield or Harper's Ferry to Buffalo, the enormous price of one dollar a pound. Now, careering along her pathway of iron, the stately engine speeds with lightening rapidity and the lightening's energy.—Then was only seen the frail canoe, constructed of birch bark or hewn from the pine log, threading its devious course along the Black River, the Owsego or the Genesee, or moving stealthily along the shores of Erie and Ontario; for the mighty waters beyond were scarcely known by by name. Now, sir, we daily see hundreds of barks ascending and descending an artificial channel, scooped out of earth's bosom, freighted with wealth beyond the treasures of Tyre and Sidon, of Venice and Genoa; while in the background of the picture is spread out a boundless watery expanse, whitened with the sails of a thousand ships. This is but an outline. For filling up the canvass, clustered in rich profusion, are seen thriving villages, populous and flourishing cities, teeming with all the arts which enrich, improve, adorn and embellish. A thousand church spires point to heaven, the home of the soul, and indicate the pathway to eternal blessedness; while the choral hymn of praise ascends to the christian's God, from myriads of glad voices and devout hearts, where but a few short years since was only heard the howling of the savage beast or the startling yell of the red man of the forest.

Look at this picture and then at that, and tell me if the history of the world affords another example of so sudden, so glorious a transformation! On the Place Vendome in Paris, stands a brazen column near two hundred feet in height, constructed from the cannon captured by Napoleon in the champaign of the Um, decorated with inscriptions to commemorate the victories of that child of destiny, of whom it was proudly boasted, that "he chained victory to his chariot wheels." Approaching the Eternal City the traveler beholds, rearing itself aloft against the clear Italian sky, the stately Pillar of Trajan, richly sculptured over with alto relievos, representing the spoils of conquered nations, with the images of twelve captive kings bound in chains, to stand as lasting monuments of the bloody triumphs of the Cesars.

Mr. Chairman let despots drive their scythed cars, and plant their iron heel upon the necks of prostrate millions, and wave their bloody sceptres over, and erect their thrones upon countries laid desolate, cities delivered to conflagration, and the crushed forms of bleeding humanity. Ours be the arts and triumphs of peace; we bind no captives to the dread car of Moloch—we unshackle the limbs—we enfranchise the mind, and give it wings to soar, free as the air we breathe, and expansive as the vault of heaven. And tell me, sir, whether the scenes of prosperity, of peace, and of plenty, so feebly, so inadequately described, do not exceed in brightness and splendor, the richest diadem that ever encircled the brow of kings? How just and reasonable, then, the conclusion, that he who, under God, was the chief instrument in producing results so useful, so glorious, would have secured to himself the confidence of all his countrymen. Alas for human nature! the fact was far otherwise. Even Clinton did not escape the prosecution induced by envy, always dogging the heels of merit and good desert." He was said to be ambitious. 'Twas a noble, an enlightened, a patriotic, a self-sacrificing ambition. He, doubtless, had high and lofty aspirings. He doubtless desired that, having lived for his country, his name should ever by her be held in cherished remembrance. Doubtless he courted an honest fame, as who does not, when he well knows that he deserves it, and ardently aspired to a position whence he might exclaim with fairer hopes than those of Rome's greatest lyric bard:—Exegi monumen un acre perennius,"—I have constructed a monument more durable than brass.

He was charged with corruption, and for alleged corruption, was ignominiously thrust, by an unscrupulous faction from an office he had worthily and usefully filled. Nothing that bitter hate, and gnawing envy, and "jealousy, that green-eyed monster, that makes the meat it feeds on," could suggest, was left untried—nothing that inventive villany did not utter, to blast his fair fame and reputation. And when his enemies had exhausted the whole vocabulary of detraction and slander, they scowled upon him their envenomed, their unuttered and unutterable hate. But unaffected and undisturbed, he stood amidst the storm of hate and whelming tide of detraction, obloquy and abuse, serene and self-possessed.

"Like some tall cliff, that lifts its awful form,
Springs from the vale, and midway leaves the storm;
Tho' round its breast the rolling clouds are spread
Eternal sunshine settles on its head."

Wisely and manfully had he performed his duty, and nobly and gratefully was that duty repaid by his generous, his confiding countrymen. And now, sir, when long years have rolled away, and with the rolling years the ordinary recollections of those times, their loves and their hatreds are growing dim amid the departing shadows, the remembrance of his merits and his achievements "grows broader and bighter and brighter as it grows old," and gathers strength and intensity with the lapse of time.

We, Mr. Chairman, have succeeded to a rich inheritance; shall we, with spendthrift profligacy, squander it away? or shall we husband it with prudent care? Sated with success, shall we fold our arms in inglorious ease, and unconcerned, behold our sister States reap the rich harvest of the seed our own hands have sown? Shall we, with coward fear, even now, when complete, perfect, ultimate, success is within our grasp, yield the palm to those whom we, in our pride of strength, had challenged to the contest? Shame on such a dastard spirit! We can conquer if we will; but to conquer will demand the exercise of all our skill, of all our prudence. For, following in our footsteps, already has Maryland burst the stony barriers of Cumberland, and Pennsylvania, with eagle flight, has scaled the rocky heights of the Alleghanies, to grasp the trade of the West, and pour its teeming wealth into their own bosom. Now, if it is a fact known, or which should be known to every gentleman upon this floor, that for some years past, a large portion of the tobacco and cotton, and nearly all of the pork trade of the valleys of the Ohio, the Tennessee, and the Cumberland rivers, has been diverted from New Orleans, their former mark't, and is now brought across Ohio and Lake Erie, and thence finds its way through the Erie Canal to the port of New York. This trade is increasing year by year, and is capable of being increased to an almost unlimited extent. How are we to keep this trade?—Only, sir, by opening and maintaining cheaper avenues of communication with seaboard, than can elsewhere be found—And it is a problem yet to be solved, whether Philadelphia and Baltimore do not now possess superior advantages over New York in the race of competition for the trade of the West; one thing is at least certain, that the business of the Pennsylvania canals is increasing by a far higher ratio than that of ours—a fact which imperatively demands of us a speedy enlargement of the Erie Canal.

But, sir, it is not f[rom] tion of Maryland and Pennsylvania that we have the most to fear. A rival far more formidable threatens us—a rival later, indeed, in the field, but wielding unbounded resources, and possessing advantages far superior to both the others. Through the instrumentality of the Lachine, the Beauharnois and the Welland Canals, vessels of 400 tons burthen can now ply seven months in the year, between England and our lage ports, carrying thence without breaking bulk, our marketable commodities, and that, too, by a route nearly as short on account of its higher latitude, as that between Liverpool and New York. And to open the trade the entire year, a railroad is now in the process of construction from a point opposite Detroit, to Halifax, and thence to Canso Bay, less than 2000 miles from Lands End. The track of this road is to be of seven feet guage, and its highest elevation not exceeding twenty feet in a mile, and to construct which loans are freely offered at three per cent.

Now it seems plain to me, that here are circumstances of peril to our canals, which should cause us to look about us—that the danger is imminent—that no time is to be lost. Sir, are we, the sons of Revolutionary sires, to sit still and see our old enemy steal from us what she could not wrest from them by force of arms?

I say enemy—for attempt to disguise it as she may, whether in peace or war, and in peace more than in war, England is our great rival—our implacable enemy—and we must look out for her with untiring with sleepless vigilance, knowing full well, that she is perfidious in peace, as she is relentless in war. Is it well with thee, my brother? was the hypocritical salutation of Joab to the noble and confiding chief of David's host, but while the honeyed words dropped from the traitor's lips, his pointed steel drank the warm life's blood of his unsuspecting victim. Let us be wise in time.—Is it not enough that England, by her treacherous wiles, has unhappily succeeded in convincing the democracy of our country, besotted with the fooleries of free trade, that it is our true national policy and interest to delve at the plough and the spade and import from them our fabrics and our principles of political economy? Is it not enough that hundreds of millions, invested by our cities in manufacturing establishments, under a wiser and more patriotic system of policy, have been lost, forever lost? But must our public works, the pride and glory of the State, be abandened, or at the best be forced to endure a living death, to gratify the whims of narrow minded, impracticable political economists, and thus promote the interests and fill the coffers of England? Sir, this must not be.—It will not be; for I am sure that there are yet some drops of the blood of '76 coursing through our veins—that there are yet some lingering recollections of those later times, when inspired with the battle cry of free trade and sailors rights,

"With our arm bared for battle we breasted the shock,
And rolled back her powers like the wave from the rock."

Next to the faith and fear of God, as the true basis of every political virtue, stands the principle of patriotism—the love of one's country—and in a country like ours, associated with the yet fresh recollections of trials endured, and perils past, and glory achieved, and prosperity enjoyed, palsied be the arm that would not strike in her defense, and cold be the heart as death could make it, which would not warm to her name!

"Lives there the man with soul so dead,
Who never to himself hath said,
This is my own my native land;
Whose heart has not within him burned,
As slow his footsteps he has turned,
From wandering on some foreign strand.
If such there be, go mark him well,
For him no minstrel raptures swell,
High tho' his titles, proud his name,
Boundless his wealth, as wish could claim,
In spite of titles, power and pelf,
The wretch concentered all in self,
Living shall forfeit fair renown,
And, doubly dying shall go down
To the vile dust from whence he sprung,
Unwept, unhonored and unsung."

Sir, I will not believe that sentiment extinct in the American heart. I will not believe, that when our country calls to us, in the hour of her need, her voice will fall upon deaf ears, or cold, unfeeling hearts. I believe that a deep, and abiding love of country, and a heartfelt devotion to her interests now pervade this Hall—a love and a devotion which the waters of strife cannot drown, nor the foil spirit of party extinguish. And I trust, that before this session shall close, all parties, and every individual member of each, impelled by a like spirit of enlightened patriotism, will, with united heart and hand, come up to the work, and with combined, concentrated purpose, subserve the public weal, and show to this State and to the world, that we are not unmindful of our solemn trust, nor regardless of the duties of our station; that we love our country with an equal love—that whether in wealth or adversity, we will cherish, protect, and defend her—and that all the little bickerings and party strifes, which, sometimes, disturb the harmony of our deliberations, are but the light foam that crests the billow, while the silent ocean depths, teeming with springs of health and treasures of pearl, lie undisturbed below.

A Washington correspondent of the N. Y. Herald says: "An anonymous writer in the Evening Star says Marcy is surely going Minister to France, and Thomas H. Benton will be Secretary of State. This is looked upon as doubtful."

'How Foolish.'

The Hon. ROBERT G. SHAW, died in Boston a few days since. During his life time his contributions for benovolent purposes amounted to $400,000. [Ex.

Why, what an old fool! Give away four hundred thousand dollars! Why in the world did'nt his friends put a guardian over him, and have him sent to an Insane Asylum? Four hundred thousand dollars less to be squandered by his heirs! It is really to sad to think of. What a splendid equipage it would have furnished each of those heirs—how many tours to Saratoga!—what a series of splendid parties!—what an array of jewels, of gold and precious stones! What could the old gentleman have been thinking about?—Madness! madness!

But was he indeed mad? Look again. Take up the daily papor and read—

Accident.

"M——J——a respectable mechanic in the employ of N——H——, on the new block on W. St., was instantly killed this morning by the falling of the scaffolding. He leaves a wife and three children."

And thousands read the item and thought no more of it. But there was one who did not forget it. This old crazy man who gave away his money, found out the widow.

The deceased had been an industrious, steady man; with a real wife and help mate, and three children to love and labor for, he had purchased a plain, neat cottage in the suburbs of the city, and in a few months the last payment, of two hundred dollars, was due. On the completion of the "new block, he would have sufficient earned to pay it," and have a home of his own. He had worked but two weeks, and was killed, as related. The widow could never pay the debt; and in the hands of a selfish man, she must soon be homeless. With a home of her own, she could with her own exertion support the children—with rent to pay, she must starve, or do worse. What did this old inquisitive man? "Gave away his money again! and the widow was saved with a home to live in. And thus, and in a thousand others ways, this foolish old man "gave away his money."

But was he foolish? Tell us, ye modern Dives, when ye strive in vain to turn your palsied dying limbs, in the last hours of death, will you be consoled with the wisdom of the thought that you never "gave away your money?" Tell us ye spendthrifts, as in your drunken revels you see the foreshadowings of the demons which hover around your burning brain, and you feel the imaginary creeping over your fevered form of the undying worm; will you rejoice that your father never "gave away his money?"

Tell us, ye fair ones, whom "fortune" in your father's wealth has favored; when you find yourselves the wife of a heartless scoundrel, who to win your wealth, became in your eyes, an angel of light then will you rejoice that your father was never so foolish as to "give away his money?"

ROBERT G. SHAW needs no blessing from us. The gratitude and blessings of hundreds who have been the recepients of his benevolence, following him to his rest. —[Michigan Expositor.

The Flogging of a Prince.

The London correspondent of a North German paper relates a story with regard to the way in which Prince Albert disciplines his children, which The Tribune translates as follows:

"The young prince stood one day in his room in the royal palace at Winsdor, at the window, whose panes reached to the floor. He had a lesson to learn by heart, but instead was amusing himself by looking out into the garden and playing with his fingers on the window. His governess, Miss Hilliard, an earnest and pious person, observed this, and kindly asked him to think of getting his lesson. The young prince said: 'I don't want to.' Then,' said Miss Hilliard, 'I must put you in the corner.' 'I won't,' said he, knocking out a second pane. The governess then rang, and told the servant who entered to say to Prince Albert that she requested the presence of his Royal Highness immediately on a pressing matter connected with his son. The devoted father came at once, and heard the statement of the whole matter, after which he turned to his little son and said, pointing to an ottoman, 'sit down there, and wait till I return.' Then Prince Albert went to his room and brought a bible. 'Listen, now,' he said to the Prince of Wales, 'to what the holy Apostle Paul says to you and other children in your position.' Hereupon he read Galat. iv. 1 and 2. 'Now I say that the heir, so long as he is a child, differeth nothing from a servant, though he be lord of all; but is under tutors and governors until the time appointed of the father.' 'It is true,' continued Prince Albert, 'that you are the Prince of Wales, and if you conduct properly you may become a man of high station, and even after the death of your mother, may become King of England. But now you are a little boy, who must obey his tutors and governors. Besides, I must impress upon you another saying of the wise Solomon in Proverbs xiii. 24: 'He that spareth his rod, hateth his son; but he that loveth him chasteneth him betimes.' Hereupon the father took out a rod and gave the heir to the throne of the weightiest empire of Christendom a very palpable switching, and then stood him up in the corner, saying, 'You will stand here and study your lesson till Miss Hilliard give you leave to come out. And never forget again that you are now under tutors and governors, and that hereafter you will be under a law given by God.' This, adds the correspondent, is an excellent Christian mode of education, which every citizen and peasant who has a child may well take to his heart as a model.

It may be proper to add that the youngster who is represented to have received this paternal admonition is but 11 years old.

Smuggling a Passenger.

A funny affair occurred on one of our New England railroads a few days since. A passenger was superintending the operation of transferring his baggage, and when the baggage master placed a long black box upon end in the car, he was startled by a voice crying out—

"Don't—don't stand me on my head."

The baggage-master, who, by the way, was about as thick-headed as many of the officers of the Old Colony road, stared in round eyed wonder.

The occupant of the box repeated, with some impatience—

"I'm on my head, I tell you. Turn me over quick."

The frightened baggage master, with considerable trepidation, placed the box in a horizontal position, when the voice cried out

"That won't do. You've put me on my face—O! O!

The manipulator of trunks and carpet bags reversed the position of the trouble some box, when a sort of grunt of satisfaction issued from within, and wiping the perspiration from his brow, he addressed the owner of the baggage, a comical looking little man, with large eyes and iron-grey hair, who was walking rapidly towards the passenger cars, with—

"I say! look here! You must pay for this young gentleman in the box."

"O, no," was the reply. "I've carried him more than fifty thousand miles upon railroad, and never paid his fare yet."

"Can't help it. You can't smuggle nobody over this 'ere road; and if you don't fork over I'll send him out on the platform, and leave him standing on his head; you kin depend on that, old feller."

The incensed official was about suiting the action to the word, when the conductor of the train approached the disputants, and he recognized in the proprietor of the box no less a personage than the renowned Signor Blitz, the ventriloquist and wizard. The conductor had witnessed the Signor's performances in Boston more than once and when he understood that the only occupant of the said box was the automaton boy "Bobby," who figures in the ventriloquial scenes during the performances of the "Wizard," he readily allowed him to pass as a "dead head."

After the train had gone, the perplexed baggage-master found in one of his breast pockets a quarter of a dollar, which he declares must have been placed there by magic.

LOVE AND SUICIDE.—The Springfield Republican relates a melancholy suicide committed in Harwick, Mass., on the 2 ult, by Mrs. Olinda Doane. She was a woman of unimpeachable character, had been married but a few weeks, and a year or so previous to her marriage, she had received visits from a respectable young man by the name of Hall, to whom she engaged to be married. Her parents opposed her choice, and favored the suit of a widower of considerable property, named Doane. Hall soon after married another when the parents of the deceased prevailed on her to marry Doane. The friends were invited, but before the time for the ceremonies to commence, the young lady excused herself and retired. Not returning her sister went to her room, saw blood on the mirror and on the floor, went to the bed, and turning down the clothes, found her sister with her throat cut and her bed robes saturated with blood. Assistance was called, her wounds dressed, and she recovered. Soon after, she was married since which time she has been occasionally deranged. She fainted in church a few sabbaths since, on seeing Hall and his wife enter; and last Monday week, at 2 o'clock P. M., while the god of day animated nature with his refulgence, she stole from the authors and scenes of her ruin, to close the tale of suffering & wrong. The manner in which she made her final exit is not stated. What a warning to traders on the affections of woman! Yet thousands such warnings have been, and thousands still will be, ere the course of true love will run smooth.

An Appeal to the Farmers and Mechanics of Essex County, and to their Wives and Daughters.

The N.Y. State Ag. Soc. holds its annual Fair at Saratoga on the 20th,21st,22d, & 23rd, days of Sept. next. Arrangements will be made with all public conveyances to cary at half price. This section has ever been considered a "Siberian region"—located near the North Pole—but we have farmers and mechanics of the very first order—equal to the best in any part of the State, or anywhere else, and they owe it to themselves and the section in which they live to show themselves and their products at Saratoga in all their strength and pride. We quote from the list of premiums some of the most interesting portions.

Private letters from London state that Chevalier Wykoff, of whose strange love adventures the public have been apprized, had reappeared in that city in company with Miss Gamble, (at whose instigation he was locked up, at Genoa, we believe,) and the story now is that the pair are such warm friends that their marrige is looked for at any moment; in fact, that their intention of marriage has been publicly avowed by them.

This marriage would be among the facts that are stranger than fiction. And yet Shakspeare, who understood these things so well, provided that woman may be "woo'd" and "won" in almost any "humor."

Miss Gamble would have married the "Chevalier" but for the impression that it was her Fortune rather than herself, that moved him. He had known her intimately, "in her best days," when there was youth and beauty in her favor. But these attractions failed to interest him. And for several years preceding the death of the relative whose Fortune she inherited, she was forgotten. As soon, however, as she was mistress of all she surveyed, the "Chevalier" appeared pressing marriage with the ardor that distinguished "Sir Arey M'Sycophant" in his pursuit of the "Rich Widow." At this her pride revolted; yet, with many circumstances and influences in his favor, the "Chevalier" might, with a better knowledge of Woman's nature, have won the prize without his year's probation in a Sardinian Prison.—[Albany Journal.

THE MAINE LAW IN THE N, Y, LEGISLATURE.—The Maine Law, or something akin to it, came up in our State Senate yesterday, and produced as much consternation in that grave body as a lighted bomb would have done. Mr. Beekman (Whig, of New-York,) wanted to kill it by striking out the enacting clause. Mr. Pierce (Democrat) was for facing the music. Mr. Beekman opposed a submission of the bill to the people; there was law enough now if it is only carried out. Mr. Bristol (Democrat) favored a submission to the people. Mr. Cooley (Democratic) made a strong appeal for the law. Mr. Conger (Democratic) denied the constitutionality of a submission to the people of any question of law or moral. Mr. Williams (Whig) favored the bill. Mr. Platt (Whig) wished to vote upon it at once, without reference to the people. Mr. Wright (Whig) cautioned the friends of the bill against amendments, which would be made only to kill the law. Finally the bill was recommitted, by the casting vote of the Lieut. Governor. It was then moved by Mr. Cornell (Dem.) and carried, that the Senate go into Committee of the Whole upon the same bill. Mr. Otis (Dem,) moved an adjournment, which was carried by the casting vote of Lieutenant Governor Sanford E. Church (Dem) So ends the first trial upon the Rum Question. The great desire of the opponents of the bill seemed to be to prevent the people from having a chance to voto upon it.—[Tribune.

THE VANDERBILT EXCURSION. Mr. Vanderbilt, of New York, a gentleman who amassed a very large estate by his enterprise in steam navigation, has sailed upon the family excursion of which mention has been made in the papers. The vessel is called the North Star, and is fitted up in the utmost splendor. The company is composed almost exclusively of the family of Mr. V., being his sons and daughters, and their wives and husbands. Rev. Mr. Choules, and Dr. Jared Linsly, (chaplin and physician to the company,) with their wives, are the only exceptions. They will visit England, and proceed thence up the Baltic. Returning they will call at Havre, and thence proceed through they Bay of Biscay, and into the Mediterranean. There the Italian ports will be visited, whence the Star will steam it for the shores of Turkey and Greece, the company visiting the principal places of attraction in that delightful portion of the earth. It is supposed the excursion will cost "Commodore" Vanderbilt about half a million of dollars. He is a self made man, about 60 years of age, and 33 years ago was merely master of a small steam craft running between New York city and Staten Island.

MORIAH, June 6, 1853.

COL. TARBELL,

Dear Sir:—I copy the following from the Springfield (Ohio) Republic, of May 27th. Please publish. Yours, &c.

"Married on Saturday, May 21, at Blanchester, Warren county, Ohio, by B. B. Getzendiner, Mr. Thomas H. Simonds, formerly of Moriah, Essex county, N. Y., to Miss Mary Morrill, of Maineville, Warren county, O. The ceromony took place at a Pic Nic, in a grove, under a beautiful bower, after which many happy hearts and smiling faces pressed around the happy couple to offer their congratulations. Long may they live to enjoy the sweets of matrimonial bliss, and may their path be strewn with life's brightest flowers."

KEESEVILLE:
Saturday Morning, June 18.

"The Union of Lakes, the Union of Lands,
The Union of States none can sever,
The Union of Hearts, the Union of Hands,
The Flag of Our UNION—Forever."

Our Offer.

We perceive we were not sufficiently explicit last week. Those who are in arrears are liable to us at the rate of $2, a year.—We will, however, give those who continue another year 30 days to pay up at the rate only of $1,50 a year. We will also give all who are on our list and all new, responible subscribers the same time to forward us the advance for the present year. (N. B. This does not interfere with any special bargain any subscriber may have with us). Our friends will see at once that we cannot afford to be to the expense of collecting our dues at these rates. We must be saved all expense, and whether we continue this offer more than one year depends upon our friends. We can do it only by a large increase of good, paying durable subscribers. We shall immediately forward bills to all our friends and for their convenience we will appoint agents in the several towns of the county in the course of the coming week so as to give a list in our next. In the mean time our friends can be making preperations to pay, and we hope, will each have a new subscriber.

N. Y. Legislature.

ASSEMBLY, June 11, 1853.

REPORTS.

Mr. Temple, complete, the Militia bill.

We do not know the features of this bill but we hope it is a good one, and if so, that it will become a law. It has been customary to ridicule the militia, and truly, before the new organization it had ran down to a low ebb. But, we are one who believes the militia to be the right arm of free institutions. The founders of this Republic declared a "well organized militia to be necessary to the security of a free State.' and we believe the Declaration to be no less true now than then. We may boast of the spread of light and knowledge and the diffusion of the principles of peace, but the disturbed state of the world, the warlike attitude of several nations, the encroaching propensities of more than one powerful monarchy—the excitable disposition of our own people, and above all the fact that human nature is the same now that it was in the days of Alexander, and Napoleon, confirmed as it is by the history of the world for the last five or six years in the triumph of absolutism on the continent of Europe, warns Americans that, in a well organized citizen soldiery is their only safety to repel invasion, enforce the laws, and suppress insurrections. When the time shall come, that the people become enervated and effeminate, the militia abandoned, and a standing army substituted and greatly increased, the downfall of this Republic is at hand. Let the people look with a jealous eye upon an increase of the Army, but encourage the militia. So shall it be well with the Republic.

Concert

We hope we have the pleasure now of announcing a concert 'as is a concert.' It is said that the press is in the habit of 'puffing' every thing that comes along. It is perhaps too much the case. As to our practice, we have not intended to give unqualified endorsements unless so endorsed to us by some acquaintance. We have been thus deceived ourself and perhaps have thus innocently deceived others.—'Puffs,' however, should be read with care, for when given on the strength of other 'puffs,' or on the recommendation of 'agents' of concert goers, they are generally qualified in some way—not full and explicit.—In the present case, we speak from general notority—the universal expression of the press and of those who have heard Mr. Dodge. Of the latter are several in the village. Of the former we quote only one. The young ladies will recognize him as the author of many of their favorite songs.—Being thus endorsed we endorse him to our friends. That Dodge will furnish a 'heap o'fun' and a 'power' of music there seems to be little reason to doubt, and few enjoy either better than the people of Keeseville. A rich treat of the kind affords a pleasant respite from the constant cares of business, and the 'quarters' thus spent are far from squandered.

"Of Dodge, individually, we need not speak, as every body knows the man who paid $625 for the best seat at Jenny Lind's first concert in Boston, and offered Prince Albert $10,000 for the use of the Crystal Palace one day and evening, for a monster concert—the editor of the spiciest and best literary journal in America, and the vocalist who can draw out five thousand people in this city at twenty-four hours' notice, in any weather. An editor giving concerts is something new; but what cannot an editor do?—Boston Daily Times.

John Keese residing at the 'Union,' Peru 5 miles from Keeseville, has Manny's mowing and reaping machine, and Ketchum's mowing machine, which farmers who wish can have the pleasure of inspecting by calling at his house. There is likely to be a great scarcety of 'help' this year, and it may be important to farmers to provide a substitute. Mr. Keese has no agency at present, but will accept one if the [illegible] desire it.

The Catholic Irish.

Every little while we are treated to a flourish in the democratic Journals of whig hatred and democratic love for this class of citizens. The riots in Philadelphia, N. Y. and Boston are charged upon whigs, albeit democrats led off in the "Native" movement. The defeat of the present Post Master Genl. as candidate for judge of Pa. is charged upon whigs, tho. he was on a ticket with 4 other democrats, all of whom were elected by large majorities, so that his defeat was owing to the fact that his own party withheld their votes from him. It is also true that some of the present democratic state officers are members of secret native societies. And though no act of hostility can be charged upon whigs and tho. whigs alone have moved in measures desired by catholics, and are now moving one in the N. Y. Legislature; Yet they are generally democrats, and are taught by their democratic leaders to regard whigs as their peculiar foes

Now we detest all these appeals to passions, and prejudices, classes, and creeds, as such. We regard no man for his birth, or creed, but for his moral worth alone. He who is the best citizen, and truest friend, we admire most. It so happens that among the latter are some of foreign birth and the catholic creed. All who tread this soil should be Americans, not protestants, not catholics, not Irish, not natives, but true worshipers of the stars and stripes, and the American Eagle as the Emblems of Republican institutions. Such should be honored while the enemies of freedom should be denounced, without regard to birth, or creed. We make these remarks by way of reply to charges constantly rung by democrats, and for the purpose of introducing a new and rare specimen of democratic love for catholics. At a recent election in La. the whigs put in nomination a Roman Catholic for dist. atty. whereupon the democracy put forth the following insulting handbill. Such is democracy everywhere and even here if catholics dared to vote the whig ticket they would be hunted down by the democracy as hunters do beasts of prey. It should be noted that so fierce were the democracy they called a meeting of democrats, exclusively, for private consultation on Sunday, the election being the next day.

CITIZENS OF NEW ORLEANS!—You have an important duty to perform to morrow in the election of a distriot Attorney. That duty must be performed faithfully and boldly. A Mr. E. J. CARRELL has been brought forward as a candidate, he must be, DEFEATED. Father Mullen and the Jesuits cannot longer rule this city. We defeated them last Monday, and we can defeat them again to-morrow. Mr. Carrell is a ROMAN CATHOLIC, a bigot: all his family are Catholics. He is a man of strong prejudices. All Ireland and Germany would rejoice in his election, and the great victory obtained in the election of Judge Larue would avail nothing.—RECOLLECT that the District Attorney has the power to discharge a person, and such power MUST not be placed in the hands of E. J. Carrell. He would discharge every person brought before the Criminal Court, provided he is a creole of Ireland or Germany.

Americans! Shall we be ruled by the Irish and Germans? Your answer must be NO. You have it in your power to defeat them. You did so last Monday; you can do so again to-morrow. Remember that on last Monday all Ireland was at work against Judge Larue; they worked hard; they boasted loudly; they were confident of success, they bet their money on the result. But Americans rallied to the rescue of an honest Judge, and the glorious result proved that we have the power—that that power must and shall be shown again to-morrow.

Do not neglect to vote—the office is an important one—do not, by the election of Carrell, do away with the glorious result obtained last Monday. Our victory was then complete—our power has been shown. We must retain that power. Voters! go to the polls to-morrow, and vote AGAINST E. J. CARRELL. Give a long pull, a strong pull, and pull altogether, and Carrell will be defeated. Our power will be shown, and in future we control our own elections without the aid of Foreigners.

The Canals.

The Committee of Conference appointed by the two Houses of the Legislature to confer upon the Canals, have agreed upon a plan—being substantially the Hunker and Whig plan of the Senate, to which the Barnburners have been compelled to yield by the "force of circumstances." As we said last week, had the Barnburners persisted in their opposition it would have scattered them and the party to the four winds. They will of course now claim to be the friends of the Canals again, and very likely they will be retained in power. It would be no more of a burlesque on consistency than what has often been done before. We shall see what we shall see.

We give it up.—We thought we had the most attractive sign in the village, but 'there's no use in talkin' since Cardwell put out his new one. It is ahead of all competition. Grandy, the maker, has done himself infinite credit, and we hope both will have an increased business, as their merits deserve.

There is a new bank at Plattsburgh, called the Mercantile Bank, capital $50,000, J. M. Noyes, Prest. We believe it is found[illegible] the instrumentalities of, O. A.

The World at Large.

Riots, wars and rumors of wars are the chief topics of the week.

Montreal and Quebec have been the scenes of serious riots on the occasion of the Lectures of Gavazzi, the Italian refugee, upon what he alleges to be the abuses of the Roman Catholic Church in Italy.—At Quebec he was attacked with great fury, but defended himself stoutly, resisting assaults with most determined resolution.—Numerous blows were given and received, severe wounds were inflicted, and considerable blood spilt, but no lives lost. Gavazzi was rescued by his friends.

At Montreal, more serious consequences followed. The military were called out, who firing into the mob, killed a great many. A tremendous excitement occured, a public meeting was held, and the Mayor was requested to resign for inefficiency.—Gavazzi was promised protection, but he did not conclude his lectures. He left immedately for N. Y. passing through Burlington. We have received Montreal papers giving the details of these unfortunate affairs, but do not think further particulars would be interesting to our readers.

EUROPE & ASIA.—The Chinese rebellion is progressing to a successful conclusion, according to the last accounts.—Rumors of war between Turkey and Russia are current and give occasion for a great variety of speculations. The best authorities say that England and France will back Turkey. Good! Switzerland is menaced by her overbearing neighbors. The tocsin of war once sounded on the continent and Europe will be one scene of strife and blood.

SOUTH AMERICA.—A serious flare-up has occurred between Bolivia and Peru, which is likely to lead to war, but this is not uncommon, nor very serious in that latitude.

"The President of Peru has issued a most important decree relative to the navigation of the Amazon, and offering the greatest encouragement to settlers—such as exemption from export and import duties, grants of land, and freedom from taxation for twenty years, the free grant of seeds, implements for cultivating the land, &c. The exploration of the branches of the Amazon in Peru will be made by Government steamers, provided expressly for the service."

MEXICO AND THE U. S.—Affairs between these two countries are growing "no better every day." Mexico sent an army to protect the people of the Misella Valley against the authorities of the U. S., but finding neither people nor authorities they retired. Coming to the knowledge of the United States Government this caused an immediate movement of troops, and war would again have "existed by the act of Mexico," but when our troops arrived on the disputed territory they could not find the enemy, So a collision was averted for a time.—Both governments are doing their best to get up a brush, and the occasion will not long be wanting. Santa Anna is harassing American travelers on their way to California, and according to Pierce's inaugural "declamation" that "Americans are to stand unabashed before princes, and where ever they may roam to feel that the American flag floats above them," of course they are to be protected "at all hazards."

☞Yet it by no means follows that there must be a war. Mexico—poor, weak, distracted, wholly at our mercy—a nation to which war with the United States must be annihilation—is in no position easily to provoke to ultimate measures either the government, or the people of the United States. It is therefore, on all accounts, to be hoped, and, as we believe, it is to be expected, that in response to such a spirit, the Mexican authorities will, upon due reflection, abandon their purpose of holding the Mesilla valley by arms.—Washington Union.

Magnanimous nation that we are! Mexico is 'poor,' 'weak,' and 'wholly at our mercy'—therefore, let us rob her. It is easy and safe to take it—therefore, let it be taken. Jack Shepard or Dick Turpin never reasoned more logically. Stand and deliver, Mexico! The Mesilla Valley or your life!—Albany Evening Journal.

A friend writing us says: "Although universally whipped last fall I hope we are all individually ALIVE." In this casual remark is matter for a sermon. Who believes that those heretofore honestly entertaining whig sentiments have, or will ever, become locofocos? Acording to the vote of the late election there were 1,385,936 votes who are opposed to robbing our weaker neighbors, opposed to fillibustering in all its shapes, opposed to highhanded tyranny under the name of democracy, opposed to the inconsistant coalition which elevated Pierce and to the corupt abandonment of principle for paltry offices, opposed to the demoralising, corrupt, anarchical tendencies of democracy, in favor of internal improvements, land for the landless and protection to Home Industry. Party names may change, but these principles and these voters, NEVER. Though 'universally whipped' they are 'individually ALIVE' and lack only a leader to unite and rally them once more to the onset. While waiting for such a person, let whigs show that they are 'individually alive.' Let them be 'alive' in the dissemination of their doctrines and keep their armor in readiness for battle at a minutes warning. That a Moses will arise to lead us out of this worse than Egyptian bondage we have the most abiding faith. Pass it round then, that though 'universally whipped' whigs are 'individually alive.'

"Give the Devil his Due."

The National Administration has instructed our foreign ministers to appear in the simple dress of an American, and not imitate the "Court-dress" of foreign countries, and to make Franklin their model 'as far as the interests of their country will permit.' So far so good, but these instructions should have been 'imperative.' We don't believe the interests of this country require of her ministers on any occasion to dress in the "gew-gaw" of France, in the small shoes of China, the turban and slippers of Turkey, or in the paints, beads, and blankets of some Hottentot. If an American minister must have a "court-dress" let it be "home made," and of plain material. If with this he can't be admitted to all proper places, let him stay away. The effect would be far better than to imitate king-craft.

But while the Administration is thus professing simplicity in style to tickle the ears of the multitude at home, it has been increasing the salary of foreign ministers the better to enable them to enjoy the follies and vices of corrupt and corrupting courts if they do not imitate their dress.—We are for simplicity and republicanism in fact as well as theory. Democracy as practiced by those who profess it is a sheer humbug, and whoever is deceived thereby is a fool.

POUGHKEEPSIE, May 26, 1853.

The Grand Lodge of Knights of Jericho, held its annual meeting at this place.

The order was well represented from all parts of the State and a lively and confiding interest seemed to pervade the whole body that the great and glorious principle of Temperance would at no very distant day succeed and rid our glorious country of the pestilence, Alcohol.

The following are the names of the officers elect for the ensuing year.

G. W. C. Daniel Cady, Esd., Lansinburgh.
G. W. V. C. Doct. C. H. Andrus, Poughkeepsie.
G. W. R. Col. S. F. Judd' Ogdensburg.
G. W. Treasurer, John Ames, Lansingburgh.
G W. Chaplain, Rev. E. Taylor, do.
G. W. M. William A Alexander do.
G. W. S. R. W. Frost, Poughkeepsie.
P. G. W. C. Rev. Theodore S. Brown, Canaan.

The following members were elected Representatives to the National Lodge.

G. W. C. D. Cady, Esq.,
G. W. V. C. Doct. C. H. Andrus,
G. W. R. Col. S. F. Judd, H. Atkins, and John Ames.

The following were assigned a committe on Circulars.

Doct. S. Ford, of Raquette Lodge, Norfolk, St. Lawrence Co.
Doct. C. H. Andrus, Union Lodge, Poughkeepsie.
Rev E. Taylor, Fidelity Lodge, Lansingburgh.
Rev. T. S. Brown, Canaan.
Rev. P. Ward, Crystal Lodge, East Chatham.

The Grand Lodge decided to hold its next meeting at Essex, in Essex county, in September next.

☞In publishing the marriage of Miss Carrie Kane of Plattsburg to Dr. L. G. Robinson of Detroit, the Editor of the Michighan Expositor thus pleasantly discourses:

WELL, well, Doctor; you may as well forward us that fishing tackle of yours, now. It will do us good service yet—you will find more call for "clothes lines" than fish lines; and "pot hooks" will come in play for you much better than those sharp pointed fellows we used to take so much care of. Alas! Doctor, no more "trolls" on Chautauque Lake, or the St Lawerence! Oh! we knew you would get "caught," yourself, one of these days—the "fish" on Champlain were to much for you; and so you "compromised" the matter, and "saved the Union." Well, God bless you and yours; and may fair days and sunny skies greet, and many years hence, a glorious peaceful sunset await you.

Several communications filed for insurtion are necessarily deferred. Our friends must indulge us. We publish no anonymous communications without the authors name confided to us for our protection. We have on hand a pretty piece of poetry in a neat and beautiful hand, which cannot appear until we have the name of the writer.

We call the attention of our readers to the speech of Judge Burnett on our first page. It is an elegant and able production and will well repay a perusal, which we hope all our friends will find time to do.

☞We learn by a friend from Jay, that during a thunder storm on Thursday, the Congregational Church at the upper village in that town was struck by lightning and burnt to the ground. Probable loss $1000. Probably not insured.

BOOT & SHOE STORE!

THE Subscribers having bought the Boot and Shoe Establishment heretofore known as F. E. Shandrew and Co.'s, are now prepared to manufacture anything in that line. We have also a large stock of Ready-Made Work, selected with great care by Mr. Shandrew, and warranted to be a better article than can be found in any shop Shoe Store in town. Our ready made Boots and Shoes are made by some of the best workmen in New York city,—in the most fashionable style, and every pair warranted to give satisfaction or the money refunded. We are permanently in the business, and of course expect to furnish a better article for less money than our neighbors can who, do not manufacture.

Ladies and gentlemen—you need not go to Burlington, nor any where else, expecting to do better than you can with us, as we have in our employ some of the best workmen in the State, and can give you perfect fits. We hope and expect that our own mechanics and village will be patronized in preference to the States Prison convicts, whose worthless trash is brought into competition with the labor of honest workmen. In addition to every article in the line of Boots and Shoes, we have a well selected stock of

SHERIFF'S SALE.

By virtue of two executions issued out of the Supreme Court of the State of New-York, to me directed and delivered against the goods and chattels and chattels real of James W. Taggard, I have seized and taken all the right title and interest which the said James W. Taggard had on the 6th day of August 1852 or which he may since have acquired of in and to all that certain piece or parcel of land situate, lying and being in the Town of Chesterfield, in the Village of Keeseville, County of Essex and State of New York, bounded as follows: Begining at the South west corner of a lot of land sold and deeded to Irish Durkee and John Johnson running thence east, twenty three degrees south twenty rods, thence south twenty three degrees west eight rods thence west twenty three degrees north twenty rods, thence north 23 degrees east eight rods containing one acre of ground excepting & reserving out of the north west corner of the above described premises a piece of land extending thirty feet on the road bounding the westerly part of said premises and fifty feet back or easterly from said road and containing fifteen hundred superficial feet of land being the same parcel or lot of land sold by Robert Forsyth Junior, now deceased to Irish Durkee. Also, that certain piece or parcel of land situate lying and being in the village of Keeseville, in the Town of Chesterfield and State aforesaid. Begining at the south east corner of a lot of land heretofore sold by Robert Forsyth Jr. now deceased, to Irish Durkee on which said Durkee has erected a building and runs thence south twenty two degrees west along the line of the highway 35 feet, thence east twenty two degrees south fifty feet thence north twenty two degrees east thirty five feet thence west twenty two degrees north fifty feet to the place of beginning. Also all that other certain piece or parcel of land situated in the village, town and county aforesaid, beginning at the south east corner of the aforesaid lot and runs from thence east twenty seven feet from thence north fifty four feet from thence west twenty seven feet and from thence south fifty four feet to the place of beginning. Also all that certain other piece or parcel of land situate lying and being in the village, town, county and state aforesaid, in a patent of thirteen thousand acres of land granted to Zepheniah Platt and others, and is lot number twenty one in the village survey made by Edwin F. Johnson, and is bounded as follows: Begining at the south east corner of lot number twenty in said survey, running thence south twenty three and a half degrees west along the west line of vine street two chains thence north sixty six and a half degrees west one chain thence north twenty three and a half degrees east along the line of Robert Forsythis Junior, now deceased, two chains thence south sixty six and a half degrees east one chain along the line of lot number twenty to the place of beginning containing one fifth of an acre of land. Excepting and reserving from the premises last described the following lot or parcel of ground, viz: Beginning on the west line of vine street at the south east corner of the Johnson lot, so called, thence south twenty four degrees, west fifty two feet six inches thence north seventy six degrees west two chains nineteen links thence north twenty four degrees east fifty two feet six inches thence south seventy six degrees east two chains nineteen links to the place of begining, being the same premises sold by Robert Forsyth Junior, in his life time to George Hubbard, and which said three pieces or parcels of land as hereinbefore described compose the farm lot and premises owned and occupied by Robert Forsyth Junior in his life time and being the same now in posession of Sabina Forsyth, the widow of the said Robert Forsyth Junior, deceased, one of the parties of the first part to these presents. Also the right of taking and using water from the lot on vine street in said village the same as it now is used and taken for the use of said farm house and premises and from the same spring and place on said lot that is now taken from and none other. Together with the right at all times of entering upon said lot for the purpose of keeping said spring in repair and of putting down and repairing the logs or pipes used to convey the water from the same and for no other purpose whatsoever. Also, all that house and lot situate in the village of Keeseville, in the town of Chesterfield, in the county of Essex, being the house and lot conveyed by Heman Rockwell and Harry Rackman to Nathan Eastabrook by deed bearing date the 20th day May, 1826, and by the said Nathan to Gardiner Stow and now occupied by the said Gardiner Stow as his office. All of which aforesaid real property, I shall expose for sale at the Adirondac Hotel, in said village and county, on the 18th day of July next, at 12 o'clock at noon of that day. Dated at Keeseville this 3d day of June 1853.

Celebrated Centre Draughts—All Sizes

THESE Ploughs wherever introduced, are fast superseding all others

The most thorough trials of Ploughs on record in this country, and at the World's Fair in London, have demonstrated the important fact, that the Centre draught Plough is of much easier draught than any other, and therefore used with less fatigue to both Plough man and Team; and, also owing to its peculiar form, it pulverizes and prepares the ground for seed more perfectly than any other, leaving less work for the harrow, and securing better crops than by any other method of Culture.

The following Implements, among others, of the best quality, and of the latest and most approved patterns, are constantly on hand, viz:

Harrows, Seed Sowers, Corn Planters, Corn Shellers, Straw Cutters, Corn and Cob Crushers, Cheese Presses, Threshing Machines, Potato Hoes, Manure Hooks, Cast Iron Ox Scrapers, Pruning Shears, Tree Scrapers Bidding and Pruning Knives, Hay Knives, Barn Door Rollers, Agricultural Furnaces, Corn Knives, Post Hole Augers, Wheelbarrows, Sheep Shears etc., etc.

Being agents of Messrs. D. Prouty and Co., we can furnish the CENTRE DRAUGHT PLOUGHS at the Boston wholesale prices, with the addition of freight.

INVITES the attention of those who wish to purchase

DRY GOODS,

Carpets and Oil-Cloths.

Owing to the large increase of patronage, I have found it necessary from time to time, to make many improvements and additions to my store.

This spring I have united the stores No. 7 and 9, State St., making a spacious and beautiful room, fitted up expressly for the sale of all the various styles of

Silks, Shawls, Cloaks & Mantillas.

This connects with the main store, No. 202, River St. (the old stand occupied by the subscriber for nearly 30 years,) which is devoted to a general assortment of

STAPLE AND FANCY DRY GOODS,

comprising every variety to meet the wants of all classes of buyers. Besides these, four large rooms over the stores 200, 202 and 204 River St., are occupied as

CARPET WARE-ROOMS,

where I am constantly receiving the newest and most desirable patterns of Velvet, Tapestry, Brussels, Three-ply, Ingrain and Venetian Carpets. Also, Oil-Cloths of every quality and width, and every style of Druggetts, Rugs, Mats, Matting, Stair-Rods, &c.

All these departments combined making an extensive and complete Establishment, conducted on such principles, that customers can trade with confidence, and to their own advantage, my sales being always for cash, and the only price asked, being the lowest cash price. G. V. S. QUACKENBUSH.

20 Years Experience.

OLD ESTABLISHED HOSPITAL.

Quick Cures and Low prices. Private Diseases and their Antidote.

Dr. LISPENARD, author of the Marriage Guide, or Private Medical Treatise, Professor of Diseases of Women and Children, and Licentiate of the College of Physicians and Surgeons of the United States University, &c., &c., continues as heretofore to be confidentially and successfully consulted on all forms and variety of

PRIVATE DISEASES,

at his old quarters, No 5 Beaver-street ALBANY, N. Y.

The great success attending the use of Doctor L.'s remedies in secret diseases, and the many remarkable cures daily effected by him in recent as well as lingering attacks, is conclusive evidence that the well ...

SICK AND UNFORTUNATE

can do no better than consult the Doctor, whose whole time is devoted to the exclusive treatment of this much neglected branch of practice.

LOOK AT THIS.

Dr. Lispenard cures recent cases of disease in from three to six days, and chronic or long standing diseases in a very short period of time, without the use of Mercury, without the loss of time, change of diet, or detention from

DAILY EMPLOYMENT.

In Syphilis, Gonorrhœa, Gleet, Strictures, Enlargement of the Testicles and Cords, Bubo, Chancres, Pimples and Scaly Eruptions, Sore Throats and Noses, Chancres on the tongue, tender shin bones, and diseases of the skin, and impure blood, Dr. Lispenard's remedies are above all praise, and frequently cure when all others had failed.

EVEN TO RELIEVE.

More than 5,000 patients have during the past year experienced the benefit of the Doctor's extraordinary skill in treating secret diseases—among which, diseases of the bladder and kidneys have formed a goodly proportion.

YOUNG MEN,

who by indulging in secret habits have injured their health and prostrated their intellectual faculties, and thereby deprived themselves of the pleasure of married life, should consult Dr. Lispenard without a moment's delay. Hundreds have been restored to health, society and friends, under my peculiar mode of treatment, although vast sums of money had been sacrificed without any benefit. My remedy for this disease is pleasant to take, has no offensive smell and

CURES WITHOUT FAIL.

Persons so unfortunate as to be disserved, although they may have visited half a dozen Doctors, and had medicine sent them a dozen times with no benefit, would exhibit wisdom by making their case known to that FRIEND OF THE SICK, Dr. Lispenard, who never charges for advice and warrants all his cures. The sick are often at a loss where to apply for relief, AND THE NO WONDER, as hundreds stand ready to plunder the unfortunate victim of PRIVATE DISEASES, or secret habits, with not one thought for his life and health. All thus deceived will find a friend, and moderate charges, in consulting the Doctor who USES NO MERCURY and cures every time.

N. B.—Persons from a distance when visiting the city in search of a physician and friend will be fortunate if they succeed in escaping the many dens of imposition, conducted by unprincipled men, destitute of character knowledge or name, who fleece the unfortunate victim of disease of his hard earned money, and his remaining health. Patients who have no acquaintance in the city should make inquiry of some respectable citizen, or the editor or proprietor of any of the city papers, to ascertain who is the most reliable physician to apply to.

FEMALE DISEASES.

Dr. Lispenard from an experience seldom or never enjoyed by any other medical man, is enabled to treat, with every hope of success, all and every variety of Female Complaints—with safe and pleasant remedies—and has without doubt cured within the past five years more than 3000 females afflicted with diseases of the Bladder, Womb, &c. &c. Ladies afflicted with suppression or stoppage of their monthly turns, will recollect that Dr. Lispenard is still the sole American agent for,

DR. VICHOP'S

FEMALE MONTHLY PILLS.

The unprecedented sale of more than 15,000 boxes of these excellent Pills, and the good results which always follow their use, is conclusive evidence of their utility in stoppages, &c. Caution—Married Ladies in certain delicate situations should not use them—for reasons see directions with each box. Price $1. Sent by mail to all parts of the world.

Married Persons and those about to Marry, should enclose 12½ cents post paid to Dr. Lispenard, and obtain a copy of his Marriage Guide, or Private Treatise, a bewitching little work of nearly 191 pages, illustrated. Every thing that married persons can desire or wish to know is here explained. Persons who from poverty or sickness have no desire to increase their family, will find necessary instruction in the Marriage Guide. One copy 12½ cents; 5 copies 50 cts; 12 copies $1—mailed free to any part of the world.

N. B.—Patients treated by letter, and medicines sent with full directions for use, to the writer's address. All communications destroyed or returned.

No mercury used in any case, and all cures warranted.

No boys or precocious students allowed: timid persons take notice.

Friends of Dr. L. when recommending patients to our care, will recollect our number, 5 Beaver st., three doors from South Broadway.

Hospital open from 7 A. M., to 9 P. M., and on Sundays from 1 to 4 P. M.

No charge for advice, although no medicine may be desired.

Good board and private rooms for those who desire to remain in the city.

MORTGAGE SALE

DEFAULT has been made in the payment of the debt secured by a certain mortgage, dated the 21st day of October, 1847, executed by William Galusha and Sophia, his wife, then of Wilmington, in the County of Essex, State of N. Y., to Uriah D. Mihills of Keene, in the county and state aforesaid, and recorded in the office of the clerk of Essex county, in volume N. of Mortgages, pages 283 and 284, on the 28th day of December, 1847, at nine o'clock, A. M.—Said mortgage was duly assigned by said Mihills to Willard Bell, January 14th, 1848, and by said Bell duly assigned to Reuben Patridge, January 30, 1849, and by said Patridge duly assigned to M. Finch, Amos Avery and Charles Malbone, assignees of Reuben Sanford, January 1st, 1849, who are now the owners of said mortgage. There is claimed to be due on said mortgage, at the time of the first publication of this notice, the sum of $167,93. Now therefore, notice is hereby given that the premises described in said mortgage, will, by virtue of a power of sale contained in said mortgage, and pursuant to the statute in such case made and provided, be sold at public auction, at the Adirondac Hotel, in Keeseville, in said county, on the 8th day of June next, at 1 o'clock, P. M.

Said mortgaged premises are described in said mortgage as follows: All that certain piece or parcel of land situate in the town of Wilmington, in the county of Essex, being a part of lot No 34, of Mallory's grant, bounded as follows: beginning at a stake and stones standing on the North line of the Sampson lot, 141 rods from the centre of the road leading from the Carpenter house to Blish and Burdick's forge, being the South-West corner of Ephraim French's land, and running East on said line to the West line of said grant, thence North on the line of said grant to the centre of the road leading from Sanford's to St. Armand, thence running Easterly in the centre of said road to a stake and stones, being the North-West corner of a piece of land occupied by David Hatch, thence South 42 degrees, West six rods to the South bank of Mill Brook, thence Easterly along the South bank of said brook 30 rods to a stake and stones being the South-East corner of said Hatch lot, thence North 35 degrees East to the centre of said road, thence Easterly in the centre of said road to the North-West corner of the Carpenter lot, thence South on the line of said Carpenter lot to the South-west corner of said lot, thence East on the line of said lot to the brook, thence up the brook in the centre thereof to a point ten rods below the sawmill, and thence on the South bank of said brook on the line of Ephraim French's lot to the North-west corner thereof, thence South 43 degrees west on the line of said French's lot 126 rods to the place of beginning, containing seventy-five acres, be the same more or less.

SHERIFF SALE.

BY virtue of an execution issued out of the Essex County Court, to me directed and delivered against the personal and real property of Nathaniel Mason, I have seized and taken all the right, title, and interest which the said Nathaniel Mason had on the eleventh day of January, 1853, or at any time thereafter, in and to the following described real estate, to wit:—All those certain pieces of land situate in the town of Willsboro, in Essex County and being part of a lot of land in Peru Bay Tract, and bounded and described as follows:—

Beginning at a stake in centre of the highway where a spruce tree formerly stood in the South line of lot Number (62) sixty-two of the aforesaid tract, from thence West on the said South line of lot No. sixty two thirty five chains and eighty one links, thence North partly on the line of a piece of land formerly owned by William S. Flack, even chains and sixteen links, thence east thirty four chains and seventy five links and from thence Southerly to the place of beginning, containing thirty five acres of land, more or less.

Also, one other piece of land being a part of lot Number thirteen Peru Bay tract commonly called the Thompson lot, and bounded as follows, to wit:—Beginning at at a stake in the centre of the highway where a Spruce tree formerly stood in the South line of lot sixty two of the aforesaid tract and from thence South nineteen degrees and thirty minutes east, fourteen chains and six links to a stake and stones on the east branch of a small stream of water thence South forty two degrees west, forty one links to a hemlock stump, thence North 55° west five chains and seventy links to a stake thence North forty six degrees West thirteen chains and fifty links to the South line of lot Number sixty two in a small brook, from thence to the place of beginning, containing nine acres and seventy two rods of land, more or less, the two lots above described being the same lots described in two Deeds of conveyance executed by Robert Flack and Sarah his wife to Lawrence Edwards, one Dated January 26, 1842, and the other dated May 20th 1843.

Also, one other piece of land in said town of Willsboro, being a part of Lot Number (63) in said Peru Bay tract and commencing on the North line of lot Number 62, in said tract in the centre of the Highway, which runs through said lot 62, thence North sufficient distance to make fifty acres by coming due east to the east line of said lot 63, thence around to the place of beginning, so as to make the aforesaid number of fifty acres from the north side of said lot (63.)

Which said real estate I shall expose for sale at public vendue at the Inn of David Judd in the town of Elizabethtown, in said county of Essex on the 13th day of June next at 10 o'clock, in the forenoon.

THE WONDER OF THE WORLD.

DEVINES' COMPOUND

PITCH LOZENGE,

A safe and pleasant Remedy for Colds, Coughs, Croup, Whooping Cough, Asthma, and if lungs enough are left to sustain life, A CERTAIN CURE FOR CONSUMPTION, safe for the Infant or the Invalid, in any stage of weakness.

"The statements that consumption cannot be cured, has destroyed more lives than the disease itself.—[Dr. Warren

Read the following, which a candid mind places this "Great Remedy," like Cæsar's wife "above suspicion."

TO THE PUBLIC!

We, the undersigned, citizens of Lee, Mass., are acquainted with Mr. Devines, the Proprietor and Manufacturer of Devines' Compound Pitch Lozenge and from what we know of it ourselves and have learned from others of its beneficial effects, in cases where it has been used, give it as our opinion that it is a valuable remedy in diseases for which it is recommended and is worthy of public confidence. A. G. Hulburt, Leonard Church, F. G. Taylor, Wm. Taylor, S. A. Bliss, S. A. Hulburt, Josephus Crafts, T. P. Eldridge.

If any individual is to be pitied, and needs sympathy, it is the consumptive—always expecting to get well, and yet the painful evidence of decay almost "makes the inner soul shrink with the outer flesh."

"Some bloom as roses bloom, and live as roses live, A single morning space!"

While others, in more mature life—by some imprudence and a slight cold neglected—in the hectic flush—the painful cough.

"The prints of their departing steps appears."

BUT HERE IS HOPE! Mr. Wm. Devines, the originator and manufacturer of the Pitch Lozenge, under Providence, was raised to perfect health by the use of these Lozenges alone, after he was pronounced by his physician to be almost dying with consumption.

This fact is generally known in Berkshire County and in the neighborhood talk, and wonder in Lee, and in Great Barrington, Mass.

From Dr. Brown, of Lee, Mass.

This certifies that I have made use of Devines' Compound Pitch Lozenge for cold and cough, and found immediate relief. Therefore I would recommend it to the public as being a safe and sovereign remedy. H. C. BROWN.

MORSE'S

COMPOUND SYRUP OF

Yellow Dock Root,

THIS is a Purely Vegetable Compound, scientifically prepared from the best Roots and Herbs of the Materia Medica, and has gained a universal reputation for the following effects, viz: Regulating and Strengthening the Liver and Digestive Organs, and Cleansing the Stomach and Bowels, and curing all Billious Diseases, Liver Complaints, Dyspepsia, Indigestion, Costiveness, Piles Headache, Fever and Ague, Jaundice Nausea, Loss of Appetite, &c., and causing the food to nourish and support every part, PURIFYING THE BLOOD, and thus curing all Humors, Cutaneous Eruptions, Scrofula, Salt Rheum, Erysipelas, Scald Head, Canker, Pimples on the face, Blotches, Ulcers, Tumors, Mercurial Diseases, Cancers, &c. Regulating the secretory Organs, and by enabling them to perform their proper functions, preventing and curing many painful and dangerous diseases; Strengthening and Quieting the nervous system, thus allaying Nervous Irritation, and curing all Diseases of the Nerves, as Hysteria, Neuralgia, Cramps, &c.

It is unrivalled in the cure of all FEMALE COMPLAINTS, as weakness, general debility, Irregularity, Obstructions, Swelling of the Feet, Limbs, Joints, &c., caused by weakness; also, Lung and Throat Complaints, as Colds, Coughs, Asthma, Consumption, &c., also, Dropsy.

Having made use of the Compound Syrup of Yellow Dock Root, prepared by C. Morse and Co., either ourselves or in our families, and finding it to be a very salutary and effectual preparation, we do most cheerfully recommend it to the public as a very valuable medicine.

E. Bourne, Esq., Cashier National Bank, Providence, R. I.; A. W. Spencer, Esq., Cashier Lime Rock Bank, do do; Rev. William Phillips, Rev. J. B. Richmond, C. S. Jones, editor Providence Gen. Advt., Wm. Field, M. W. G. M. Cyrus Fisher, M. E. H. P. James Hutchinson, G. S. Dea., V. J. Bates, Doct. Benj. Colby, and one hundred others of the most respectable families of Providence.

This certifies that I have for a number of years been acquainted with the composition and mode of manufacture of Morse's Compound Syrup of Yellow Dock Root. I have also been acquainted with its modus operandi in disease, and can say that in all respects it is admirably calculated to remedy that class of Diseases for which it was designed. It is especially valuable in Indigestion and all its attendant symptoms, it excites to healthy action the Liver, removes Torpor, and inactivity of this organ, and stimulates healthy action in all the system. As a Depurator or purifier of the Blood it has no superior.

Poetry.

[For the Republican.]

Dash down yon Cup of Samian Wine.

Byron.

A moon-lit grove my scene—the rustling leaves
So softly moving to the summer air;
One pendant bough a graceful crown inweaves
To deck the head of one unearthly fair.

Pale, silent, thoughtful, fair Ianthe stood—
Some potent spell had bound her to the spot;
Some strong, subduing passion thrilled her blood, [wealth was caught.
From still, deep fountain, strange, rich

What soul could catch the impress of her soul,
And send its echoes with a pulse of fire?
What genius win that "spirit's pure control."
And draw sweet music from the echoing lyre?

She dwelt among earth's loveliest; yet her smile
In spirit-light the fairest could outshine;
Its voiceless teaching, bitterest thought beguile;
Its sweetness seemed—was it not all divine?

A youth of generous and noble mien
Had oft beheld it—with deep rapture saw!
An angel smile was never more serene,
Never more full of soul-inspiring awe!

'Tis rapture thus to gaze—another grace
My own fulll heart, absorbed in this alone,
Could never crave; but ah, that upturn'd face
Is breathing life, a life not all its own!

She speaks; and not the thrill of seraph choir
Whispers more harmony, or tells of bliss
More deep enchanting: she is wrapt in prayer!
Impassioned gazer, wilt thou ponder this?

She heed not, worshiper, that thou art near;
Yet she remembers souls of kindred thought—
Those sacred words may temper thy career,
So near the Throne may fervent prayer be brought.

Years fly apace: those beings blent in one,
Move on their course—what blight hath struck them now?
What stroke of death could steal that bliss ful tone,
Could snatch the calm of that angelic brow?

The tempt'r came, his burning scathing breath
Touch'd the young husband—'twas a touch of fire!
The poison cup bore darker seeds of death
Than Upas tree—more deadly in its ire!

The wife grew paler each succeeding day—
Each hour she toiled, some scanty life to keep—
To mark that form of gently moulded clay
Thus waste away, must make an angel weep!

Yet ever as she toiled, the star of Eve
Would smile serene and bid her still press on!
She gazed, delighted: could she but believe
She acted rightly, though her star was gone!

She dared not leave him, while the faintest ray
Of cheering light illumed the darken'd sky.
When hope died out, she would not go away
Would "never leave him there alone to die."

The infant souls, she wisely trained for Heav'n,
And kept all scathless from the wiles of death,
Sweetly arose, and noble thoughts had given,
Ere life exhaled, as morning's purest breath!

But he that bowed his manhood to the dust,
Could he be worthy this devotion deep?
Worthy that high, almost angelic trust,
The pledge he forfeits, should she wish to keep?

A moment more—the flickering lamp of life
Sadly goes out; and the inebriate's grave
Shuts silently; the years with terror rife
Are closed to him—her power could not save!

No friendly hand, but her's, would soothe his pain—
No friendly hand to save from ruin tried—
Her spirit shrank from gifts of sordid gain;
His perjured soul vanished—and he died!

She to the realms of deep, unbounded bliss
Hath quickly passed, and there, before the Throne
To pour her spirit, free from death's abyss,
In endless praise, to mortals all unknown!

Ah, man of sin, who quaffs the sparkling wine,
What wrathful pen shall speak thy certain doom?
None, save the pages of a book Divine!
Then turn thee, while the sun is yet at noon!

Aye, dash that brimming cup forever down,
And see thou never touch or taste it more!
Then earest not for man's relentless frown,
Then bow to His, whose vengeance maketh sore!

CORA FLEMING.

The Faithful Clerk.

BY MRS. E. WELLMONT.

You cannot stop the course of cupid's arrows; they will hit where least expected, and leave a mark that no patent medicine can cure. Mr. Boswell went to the great city, full forty years ago, as a poor boy; but he worked his way up by "clerking it," until he went into buisness for himself. He then hired poor young men, like his former self, and among the rest took Sam Offing as a boy to do messages and run of errands. In particular, Sam was always despatched with small notes to his master's house, and while he was sitting in the entry waiting for "ma'am" to return an answer—for she was a terrible slow penman—little Nancy, the rich man's daughter, made his acquaintance. Sam was a bright boy, rather precocious, had an entertaining way to amuse the little girl, so that by and by she used to enquire of her father "if he were not coming of some erraud again soon?" And there was never any long suspension in his calls, for it either rained and his master wanted an umbrella, or a friend was invited to dinner, or he had heard something of importance to communicate, so Sam was despatched with the message. And then he was a great favorite with the old lady—for, he was very exact and truthful—two excellent traits in any messenger.

For years this sort of transmitted intelligence was conveyed by Sam. He was no longer the little boy, but a tall graceful youth, and little Nanny was some way in her teens. Now, he used to be invited by the daughter into the sitting-room; he was no longer called "Sam," but Samuel. Miss Nancy and he discoursed of concerts and theatrical exhibitions, and once in a while Samuel attended the same church, and used to peep over to his master's pew and catch a glimpse of Nancy's black, lustrous eyes. "But what if she did return the glance," thought he, "I am the son of a poor widow, and only a clerk; it is all nonsense to think of being a favorite, only as I am faithful in the old man's service." But somehow Nancy did show winning ways. She half invited him to come and take a seat in the pew—or rather, she said, "we have always room enough,"—and when she gave her birthday party she insisted upon Samuel's being invited. The old lady thought at first it would never do, but Nancy pleaded so hard, at last she told her father in consideration of his faithfulness he ought to be invited, and none of the company would recognize him, yet she should delight to introduce him as Mr. Offing!

She did so, and many inquiries were made by sundry young belles to know "who was that handsome young man?" All this flattered Nancy's vanity, and increased her affections. She now had low conversation when he came of errands, and once her mother detected her in writing a note to him. She reproved her for her temerity, which seemed not a whit to abate her attachment. Finally her mother thought of sending her from home to abate the silly girl's love, and being obliged to tell the secret to the father, he protested she should be sent to a convent rather than disgrace herself in this way.

But Samuel was so well versed in his mercantile affairs he knew so much better than himself the characters of his customers, and had such a ready tact at detecting any evasive artifice, that he saved him thousands anually; and this fact was not to be overlooked by dismissing him from service. But the affair with Miss Nancy was not to be passed over without a reproval. Boswell had always been on the most intimate terms with his clerk, and how he could so reprimand him as to accomplish his purpose and destroy his attachment for his daughter, was to him a puzzling origma. He was mistaken, however, in one of his conclusions, which was that no father ever had so difficult a matter to adjust before. After a sleepless night, Mr. Boswell called his clerk into his presence. At that very moment he was reading a note which ran on this wise:

"My parents may banish me to some foreign shore, or they may immerse me in the walls of a convent; yet I will surmount all barriers and eventually be yours. They may cramp my movements' but they shall never destroy the affection nor the love in my heart towards the 'despised clerk.' N."

"Offing," said Mr. Boswell, "is there any buisness on hand requiring immediate attention?"

"None, sir," replied the young man, "save a few unanswered letters to some cotton dealers;" and he twirled the loving note in his hand as if one of them.

"Samuel," said Mr. B., with a loud hem; "Sam I hear there is a strong attachment existing between you and my daughter. Report yourself like a man—is it so?"

"It is, sir," replied Samuel, manfully; "but allow me to say, sir, I will never marry her without your consent."

"Keep her affection and not marry,—hey,—boy,—do I understand you?"

"The affections are her own, sir. I will use no improper means to retain them Mr. Boswell—but perhaps you are too late in pushing these inquiries."

"Offing!—you scapegrace!" replied Boswell, half, indignant, and half playful, "you always will have the last word."

He then changed his tone, and, inquired about the liabilities of Pettengill & Co.

Mr. Boswell, evidently, was a relieved man. He had done his duty in reprimanding the young man, and he could inform his wife of it, and let her proceed as she thought proper.

Nancy, in the meantime, showed no reluctance to be driven whithersoever they might send her, and the convent in a Southern State was selected. Her outfit was now rapidly purchased and made ready, and the day arrived ready for her departure. Samuel manifested no outward signs of regret, and the great object seemed to unobservant eyes to be accomplished.

Nancy, upon her arrival, wrote back concerning the delightful home she had entered. She seemed docile and obedient, —loved her parents more than ever, and begged to assure them that they need have no anxiety on her behalf. She stayed a year with the Lady Superior, really improving in all the graces of feminine loveliness, when her father was suddenly taken ill, and she was summoned at his bedside.

The interview was a long and private one—but Mr. Offing the clerk, was likewise found by his bedside the same afternoon. "Samuel," said Mr. Boswell, "I am about to leave this world. At such a time everything but one's character seems of little worth. You have been all in all to me in my buisness transactions. Do you love my daughter, still?" said he, pressing his hand.

"Our affections are unchanged!" remarked Samuel.

"Then," said Mr. Boswell, "she is yours. Call her."

"Nancy, you have my dying approbation to marry this young man, and remember it is in consequence of the discreet and implicit obedience you have both rendered us when we were opposed and indignant at the thought of your marriage. Here is my will; call your mother. Samuel read it, and see if it is satisfactory." He did so, and they were all moved to tears.

Samuel appointed his executor—he was likewise his successor in buisness, with a cash capital of fifty thousand, deposited in his own name for his benefit, besides most ample provision for his widow and daughter. "And in consideration of the sterling integrity and a manifest desire to please," was inserted before the devise Samuel Offing.

The clerk now succeeded his master; the marriage soon followed, and the happy couple are still respected, affluent and beloved—an example to all aspiring young men, early restricted by poverty, to be faithful to their employers, being assured that this is not a solitary instance where a promotion ensues as the reward of undeviating rectitude.

Pencillings of Every-Day Life.

Over the village—and over its buisy dusty streets, the deep tones of the village clock have told the hour of five—the waning of a bright and sultry afternoon. Now we look forth from our window; and watch this panorama of good and evil—and the worst phase of the last is presented.

There he stands again—the besotted drunkard—in the door of that dwelling we have watched so often—his fist is clenched—his face is livid with beastly rage. And there stands his wife—holding in her arms an infant that looks up in its fathers face and smiles—smiles, like the out breaking of some lone star in the midnight tempest—and then too by her mothers side all trembling with fear—is one who has just commenced to tread the vestibule of life—a drunkards daughter. Listen! Open the shutters wider still and listen! The distance is considerable, but muttered words that sound like curses float up to us—and the wife turns with her babe to go.

Heaven restrain us from flying to the scene! He draws his hand as she turns to go down the steps, and with one deep and cruel blow fells both her and her child to the earth! What comes next? A moment has passed, and there the wife lies motionless and still, another and still another passes and she does not move!

Is she dead! Has he killed her? Have we been indeed witness to a drunken murder? No—but it is not ended yet. Now she rises slowly—slowly for the blow was awfully deep, and heavy, and stunning—and the warm blood gushes out from it—and we see her bow her head upon her breast and crawl slowly along to an adjoining out-house.

Thank Heaven we can watch her through the door? Is her infant dead? Motionless it lies in her lap; but now it rises, and rolls its eyes wildly on its mother. Again we thank Heaven that it lives, again we wonder what unseen power stayed the drunkards hand from murder.

One more hour has passed—and out again over the rich and poor—six signal strokes have been flung on the dusty air—like beats in the pulse of the dying day.—Then all the long hour has that wife remained with her drunken babe—and there too at the door of the house has sat the drunken husband guarding the entrance.

But now he rises and strggers down the steps. Is he again about to begin the work of abuse? See! she closes the door we have watched her through, and shrinks in from him as from a monster—but he disturbes her not, and reels around the corner of the house out of sight. A moment passes, and the wife slowly opens the door and steals along to the house again, but she leaves her babe—asleep on the straw in the cheerless barn—better would it be were it never to waken more.

Again he returns the drunken monster, and staggering over the scene of his brutal blow, finds his wife and little daughter once more within. How do we tremble for them, for worse than an untamed tiger is entering their door—worse than a lion is treading the vestibule of their house—a drunken man!

Listen once more. He closed the door behind him, but still their screams float up to us, and the breeze bears on its wings, words fraught with the very impress of agony. "Father, oh! Father, don't, oh! don't strike me so!"

Thus have we watched these scenes, and day by day brings only their repetition, for the power that moves the whole is exhaustless in its energies—yes, law and license uphold it! Not only amid the ignorant and ppor but, sometimes, among the rich and wise, and such scenes as these enacted, and even here they break the twilight's hush, and startle us up at midnight's hour, like the oversweep of some thunder cloud in this vault of life and joy.

Is it wrong to wonder why this is called an enlightened age? Is it wrong to wonder at the wisdom, and moral perception, of those men who tell us that vending rum is honorable and just? Is it wrong to question the justice of those laws which protect this traffic? Is it wrong for such wives and such children to ask for peace to themselves, and for life to their family—yes, even to lay seige to our legislative halls and ask a mitigation of their wrongs? Is it wrong to cry out against the cause of all such scenes, and is it right for men to sit thus listlessly by, and, while they are falling a prey to Intemperance, raise not a hand to stay the sale of Alcohol!

Perhaps it is! Now a-days men are very wise, some of them know much more than they can believe God to know! but—by and by, "when the clear broad light of Eternity shines full on men's crooked paths," His book of recording will tell!

LEM LOOKOUT.

[For the Republican.]

Mr. EDITOR:—Hearing many charges daily laid at the door of the legal profession, I feel constrained, through a sense of duty, to urge all members of the bar, and the young especially, to put forth their highest endeavors to gain and sustain, generally, a reputation for it, which shall not be discreditable, but on the contrary, enviable.

Since, and even before the memorable war, pronounced against the "Scribes and Pharisees," and "you also ye, Lawyers," by our Saviour, the word Lawyer has often been used as synonymous with the word rogue—been considered to apply to the personification of trickery.

Cicero, in his day, did much to elevate the reputation of the Roman Bar—often declaiming against his great rival Hortensius, on account of the art and trickery frequently made use of by that distinguished orator; and every age since has produced its great lawyers—men of unblemished character, uncorrupted by the voluptuousness of court and their hearts untrammeled by the shackles of chicanery.

To such we must look for examples; for they have gained by the uniformity of their actions a reputation worthy to be sought after.

But, besides these pre-eminent examples, there have been others, in every age, secondary only in talent—an ornament to their profession and the whole human race.—These are the men that take to a great extent, the honors incident upon civil life.

But lastly, there ever has been a class, quite formidable, who not only prey upon the widow's mite and feed on fleshless misery, but also aspire to High Places; favored and fawned upon by the devotees of artifice, who never expect to gain a cause by right—so accustomed are they to apply the weapons of art.

Such have ever been a curse to the profession—casting the baneful influence of artifice and extortion around them, so that apparently a stain spreads itself over the whole profession. This should not be so; and let the bar at the present day, labor strennously to cast off the stigma which, to them as a profession, should not attach—but only to the individuals, guilty and condemned.

Young men! there is ample sphere for honorable action in this profession; then of course there is no necessity for branching off into the by-paths of artifice—condemned by the universal voice of the world.

The poet has said:—

"An honest man is the noblest work of God."

Well could it be said;

"An honest lawyer is the noblest ornament of civil life!"

Laws of New York.

[Every Law, unless a different time shall be prescribed therein, shall commence and take effect throughout the State, on and not before the twentieth day after the day of its final passage, as certified by the Secretary of State. Sec. 12, title 4, chap. 7, part I, Revised Statutes.]

[Every Law so published in the State Paper, may be read in evidence from the paper in which it shall be contained, in all courts of justice in this State, and in all proceedings before any officer, body or board, in which it shall be thought necessary to refer thereto, until three months after the close of the session in which it became a law. Sec. 8, title 7, chap 1, Revised Statutes, and laws of 1845, chap. 280.]

CHAPTER 184.

AN ACT relative to the incorporation of Colleges and Academies. Passed April 13, 1853.

§ 1. The regents of the university shall by general rules and regulations to be established by them from time to time, prescribe the requisites and conditions for the incorporation by them of any college, university, academy or other institution of learning, pursuant to the power vested in the said regents by the act entitled "An act relative to the University," passed April 5, 1813, and by the revised statutes of this state; the said regents are hereby empowered at any time by an instrument under their common seal, which shall be recorded in the office of the secretary of state, to incorporate any university or college, or any academy, or other institution of learning, under such name, with such number of trustees or other managers, and with such powers and privileges and subject to such limitations and restrictions as may be prescribed by law or as the said regents shall deem proper in conformity thereto, and every institution so incorporated in addition to the powers which may be vested in them as aforesaid, shall have the general powers of a corporation under the revised statutes of this state.

§2. The said regents may at any time on sufficient cause shown and by an instrument under their common seal to be recorded as aforesaid, alter, amend or repeal the character of any college, university, academy or other institution of learning which may hereafter be incorporated by them, and may on the petition of any college, academy or other institution of learning in this state, now existing and subject or which may hereafter become subject to their visitation or modify the character, and the rights, powers and privileges of such institution in such manner and on such terms and conditions as they may deem proper.

§3. The trustees of any academy possessing a capital stock pursuant to the act, chapter five hundred and forty-four, of the laws of eighteen hundred and fifty-one, may by their by-laws prescribe the mode and manner of electing trustees of the said academy and may make all necessary rules and regulations relative to such election; and the said trustees may, if they so determine, be divided into three classes as nearly equal as may be, who shall serve respectively one, two and three years, such terms of service to be determined by drawing therefore under the direction of the said trustees; and the trustees thereafter elected shall serve three years. The trustees may fill all vacancies occurring in their number by death, resignation, removal from the state or otherwise; and any election of trustees by any academy under said law heretofore held, is hereby affirmed and made valid, provided, that this act shall not effect any action heretofore brought arising out of any such election.

§ 4 The capital stock of any such academy shall not exceed fifty thousand dollars.

§ 5. Six members of the board of regents shall hereafter be necessary to form a quorum for the transaction of business.

§ 6. Any citizens not less than ten in number, of whom a majority shall be inhabitants of this state, who may desire to found and endow a medical or surgical college or school within this state, may make, sign and acknowledge before some officer authorized to take the acknowledgement of deeds, a certificate in writing, in which shall be stated the corporate name of the proposed institution, the names of the persons proposed for first trustees, the plan on which, and the funds with which, it is intended to found and provide for said institution, and the name of the town or city in which it is proposed to locate the same; and shall file such certificate in the office of the secretary of state, and transmit a duplicate thereof to the presiding officer of the regents of the university of the state of New York.

§ 7. If it shall appear to the satisfaction of the regents of the university, that the sum of fifty thousand dollars has been subscribed in good faith for the endowment of such institution by the valid subscription of responsible parties, and at least two thirds of that sum has been actually paid in or secured in such manner as the regents may approve, to be invested in buildings and site for college, museum, library, apparatus, and other needful appurtenances of a medical college, or in bonds and mortagages on unincumbered real estate or stocks of the United States or of this state, they shall by act under their seal, grant a charter pursuant to the provisions of this act, for the incorporation of such college, (naming therein as first trustees the persons specified in said certificate,) for a term of five years, the trustees of said college shall present to the regents satisfactory evidence that there has been paid in and invested as above prescribed, the whole of said sum of fifty thousand dollars, the charter thereof shall be made perpetual. Upon the fulfilment of said condition, or upon the payment in the first instance of the sum of fifty thousand dollars, the said regents shall grant said college a perpetual charter.

§ 8. Such college may hold and possess real and personal property to the amount of two hundred thousand dollars, but the funds or property thereof shall not be used for any other purpose than for the legitimate bussiness of such institution in the promotion of medical and surgical science and instruction in all departments of learning connected therewith.

§ 9. Such college shall be subject to the general provision of the revised statutes, so far as the same are applicable, regulating the practice of physic and surgery within this state. It shall be subject to the visitation of the regents of the university, and shall make an annuall report to the on oath, of the condition of said college and the various matters required by law to be reported by other colleges and academies, and of the investment of the funds of said college; and if at any time it shall appear that the sum required to be paid in has not been invested in the manner specified by the seventh section of this act, the regents of the university are hereby empowered to vacate and annual said charter.

§ 10. Every institution incorporated under this act, shall have and possess all the powers and privileges, and be subject to the provisions, liabilities and restrictions of the eighteenth chapter of the first part of the revised statutes so far as the same are applicable and have not been repealed. The board of trustees, which shall consist of not less than ten nor more than twenty-four persons, shall have power to make all needful by-laws and rules for the government and regulation of said college, the appointment of professors, instructors, and other officers thereof, the term of office and election of trustees, and so forth, not inconsistent with this act and the laws of this state. Such by laws may be altered or amended by a vote of two thirds of the members constituting said board, notice being given at a previous regular meeting of said board.

§ 11. The trustees for the time being of every college incorporated pursuant to this act, shall have power to grant and confer the degree of doctor of medicine upon the recommendation of the board of professors of said college and on at least three curators of the medical profession appointed by said trustees. But no person shall receive a diploma conferring such a degree, unless he be of good moral character and of the age of twenty one years, and shall have received a good English education, and shall have pursued the study of medicine and the sciences connected therewith for at least three years after the age of sixteen years, and have received instruction from some physician and surgeon fully qualified to practice his profession, until he is qualified to enter a medical college, and (except in cases hereafter provided) shall also after that age have attended two complete courses of lectures delivered in some incorporated medical college.

§ 12 The board of trustees of every such college shall, upon payment of matriculation and demonstrators fees (which shall not exceed the sum of five dollars each), admit to its course of instruction, without further charge, any number of young persons of the state of New York (not exceeding ten at any one time), of good scholarship and moral character, who are in indigent circumstances; the evidence of qualification shall be a certificate from the judge of the county in which the applicant resides.

§ 13 This act shall take effect immediately, and all statutes and acts of the legislature inconsistent with the provisions of this act are hereby repealed.

CHAPTER 245.

AN ACT in relation to Plankroads. Passed April 15, 1853.

The People of the State of New York, represented in Senate and Assembly, do enact as follows:

§ 1. Instead of the toll authorized to be demanded and received on Plankroads, by section thirty five of the act entitled "An act to provide for the incorporation of companies to construct plankroads, and of companies to construct turnpike roads," passed May 7, 1817, the following rates of tolls may hereafter be demanded and received:—For every vehicle drawn by one animal, one cent per mile, and one cent per mile for each additional animal; for every vehicle used chiefly for carrying passengers, drawn by two animals, three cents per mile, and one cent per mile for each additional animal; for every horse rodo, led or driven, three-quarters of a cent per mile; for every score of sheep or swine, one and a half cents per mile; and for every score of neat cattle, two cents per mile.

§ 2 Sections twelve and thirteen, of title four, chapter thirteen, part one, of the Revised Statutes, shall apply to plankroad companies

§ 3. This act shall take effect immediately.

State of New York, } I have compared
Secretary's Office } the preceding with the original law on file in this office, and do certify that the same is a correct transcript therefrom and of the whole of said original.

Jealousy.—The London Times thus speculates on the rebellion in China, and of the connexion of Americans therewith:

The Times says:—"It is a rather suspicious circumstance that just now, when their very smart missionaries have given the Americans more intelligence of the nature and progress of the rebellion than our British representatives and merchants were ever likely to do, they have in those waters the largest armament ever seen in the East under their flag. What if the army, apparently intended for the chastisement of Japan and the opening of Jeddo, should really have another object—to hold the balance of Chinese parties, and to slip in at the right moment and grasp the prize?" The Times adds:—"The possession of an idea would break up the federal Union as surely—as immediately—as the conquest of Europe destroyed the old constitution of Rome.

ANOTHER FREAK OF NATURE.—Mr. Robert Seeley, of this village, laid upon our table a Shanghai hen's egg, measuring 8 1-2 by 6 3-4 inches in circumference, one end of which he had broken to extract the yolk for the purpose of keeping the shell as a curiosity, and discovered another regularly formed egg within, which appeared to be completely surrounded by the yolk and white of the large egg.—Danville Dem.

Gavazzi in Canada.

We are glad to see that a meeting of Roman Catholics of Montreal a few days since, Father Gavazzi was in effect invited, to return to that city, and complete the lectures which were so summarily cut short by the rioters. No doubt no inconsiderable portion of the Catholic population of Montreal see plainly that the liberty of speech cannot be put down. Catholics every where must see this, and if they are wise they will not molest whoever undertakes to oppose or denounce their doctrines.—Troy Whig.

Prices Reduced.

The Republican for $1, in advance, $1,50 during the year, $2, at the end of the year.

Those in arrears, who continue another year can settle at the rate of $1,50 a year any time before the 18th of next month, after which time we shall exact the full terms ($2, a year.) Those settling arrears and discontinuing will be charged at the rate of $2, a year.

N. B. These terms do not interfere with special bargains. A short time is also always given to responsible subscribers.

These reductions are made to induce our subscribers to settle and to extend our circulation. Friends, shall we be disappointed? Have you not many neighbors who would like a country paper, & who will take the Republican by the asking? With government patronage all in the hands of our opponents our dependence is upon your friendship and aid. We not only want a large addition to our subscription list, but we want advertising and job work. We ask whigs to control and direct these matters, and not suffer these to be diverted on any pretense whatever. The friends of other papers never forget nor neglect these things, but work with a determination, which will not take a denial. Whigs should heed the example.

The Canal Triumph.

The Correspondent of the Courier and Enquirer, says:

The whole thing is a complete and full victory of the Whig policy in relation to Canals. It is returning to the law of 1851, after a loss of years. The whigs having by the Administration of Gov. Seward and Gov. Hunt given the "new impulse" to the prosperity of the Canals—these great works will go forward under the whig policy. The talk about the repudiation of the contracts is all a contemptible smoke raised to cover a disastrous defeat. The thing stultifies itself. Not even the State of New York, great as it is, can "repudiate a contract." It gave up that wrong—it never was a right, when it entered the Union and became a partner to the Federal Constitution. All these amendments do, is to provide that the money raised under their provisions shall not be applied on those contracts of 1851. If those are, indeed, contracts, the State of New York will find money in some other department of her resources to pay all its honest and just debts. Defeated on every side, the only consolation the Barnburners have is, that while they are memorable in political history as the power that destroyed the Democratic party in 1848, they are now in highest power and in greatest favoritism with President Pierce.

The Committee did not—notwithstanding all the reports, present the result of their labors to the Legislature. On the contrary, a report was circulating that the Senate Committee had flounced! Of course, all this was only a vain attempt to put a feather bed under the Barnburners in their fall.

The 4th of July.

The proposed celebration at Plattsburgh will probably be deferred to the 11th of Sept. on account of the small pox.

At Essex there is to be a union celebration in which the military (the new uniformed militia,) the Sons of Temperance, Rechabites, and citizens are to take part.

The military will parade at 9 o'clock, A. M. and will be addressed by the Editor of this paper by special invitation. About eleven o'clock, the procession will be formed, composed as above. Addresses are expected from Rev. Mr. Meeker, Jas. B. Ross, P. E. Havens, W. D. Ross and others.

Notes by the Ways; or, Incidents of Collecting Tours.

MORIAH.—Continued.

We learn from Palmer's History of Lake Champlain that all the territory on the west side of the Lake was originally embraced in Washington County. In 1788, Clinton county was organized, embracing the territory now in the present Counties of Clinton, Essex and Franklin. Essex was taken from Clinton in 1799. In 1788, the towns of Willsboro and Crownpoint were organized. Willsboro included the present towns of Essex, Lewis, Chesterfield in Essex Co., and what was Old Peru in Clinton county. Crownpoint included all the present towns between Essex and Lake George. We learn from the records in that town that Moriah was taken from Crownpoint in 1807, and that the first town meeting was held in April, 1808, at the house of William Heaton in that town.

William McKenzie was appointed Supervisor, Sanders Littlefield and William McKenzie, Justices; Nathan Sherman, Town Clerk; Calvin Trask, Pound Master. William McKenzie and Nathan Sherman were for years the first men of that town, and their descendents at the present time form a numerous and reputable portion of the population of that town. McKenzie was a Scotchman, and a relation of the Mckenzie who discover'd 'McKenzies River," and of W. L. McKenzie of Canadian notoriety. When the latter fled from Canada he stopt with his relations in Moriah on his way south. The widow of William McKenzie died recently at the advanced age of over 100 years. She tended ferry at Cedar Point, and with her child in one end of the boat she paddled many a passenger over the lake in a canoe, a distance of 2 1 2 miles. She distinctly remembered to have seen the flag on the Fort at Crownpoint and to have heard the morning and evening guns, and the beating of "Tattoo" and "Reveille." The first general election was held in Moriah on the 25th, 27th, and 28th days of April, 1803. For Congress, Wm. Bailey of Clinton Co. reed. 8 votes, and John Thompson, reed. 4 votes; for State Senator, David Hopkins, reed. 6 votes, and Isaac Sargents, reed. 4. For member of Assembly, Benjamin Pond, (father of Byron Pond of Elizabethtown,) reed. 43 votes; and Theodorus Ross, 14. The record is entered in the neat and distinct hand of Nathan Sherman. When the "last war" broke out Mr. Sherman sen all his boys to Plattsburgh to fight for his country, while he, an old man, stayed at home to work the farm, do the chores and take care of the women. Unfavorable news reaching him, he dropt his hoe in the field and without waiting to change his clothes hastened towards the scene of battle. On his way he heard of the victory, and returned. Alexander McKenzie, now of Moriah, and son of Wm., was Captain of a company of horse, and scoured the country from Keeseville to Plattsburgh, and thence to Schuyler Falls, on the "look out." Moriah and Crownpoint turned out almost en masse.

The first judgt. in a justice court in Moriah was in the nature of a 'specific decree,' that the deft. pay to the plff. 6 bs. potatoes according to agreement."

In those days there were no "classes" in society. At the huskings, quiltings, apple bees, raisings, and the like, every family in town had an invitation.

Passing over the early history of that town, we will for the present content ourself with a brief notice of "Big Hollow."—Not a very classic name to be sure, yet it is what its name purports. In company with the District Attorney we made this place a visit, and deem it highly worthy of a note. It is in the south part of the town, on what is called "Coot Hill," so called by emigrants from "Coot Hill" in Ireland. It is a mighty "big hollow." Ascending first a hill about 800 feet above the lake, it is seen down, down, "in the depths a lower depth," till the sight is lost in what appears to be a 'bottomless pit.' It is about 1-2 a mile long, and almost 600 feet across. The tallest trees growing at the bottom seem to be, as seen from the top, but little shrubs. The immensity of its craggy sides can only be conceived by the imaginative mind, as the battlements in the fabled battles of the Gods. Eagles build their nests in their terrific sides safe from the approach of man, and their voices ring amid its cavorns. As we approached a majestic fellow sailed away, not above, but below, and was soon lost to view. From the heighth, is seen at one view, all the surrounding villages, the lake, and Vorment, as far as the eye can reach, and there beneath the feet, this mighty chasm. The scenery is all grand, and imposing. Here, on the very spot where we stood, "Old Put" and his men kept "watch and ward" for nights, watching an opportunity to make a descent on Crownpoint Fort, seen just at the foot of and within the shadows of the hill. Thus in association, in magnificent scenery, and as a wonderful freak of nature, 'Big Hollow' is not excelled by the far famed wall'd banks of the Ausable. We shall never forget the awe, the astonishment, the admiration inspired by this visit to a spot once trod by heroes and patriots, and where Omnipotence has displayed its wonderful workings and power.

'UNIVERSITY INVINCIBLES.'—This corps is a 'fixture' of Burlington College. It had its origin in the days when the Students had to 'train.' Its annual appearance has now become as 'fixed a fact' as the recurrence of the 1st of June. It seems that the last parade eclipsed all which have preceded it, and each successive 'muster' is destined to add to the interest of this truly droll anniversary. We hope previous notice will hereafter be given through all the papers in the champlain valley, that spectators may go and see. If we could only be reminded of it we should certainly be there, and would go further than to see the Hippodrome.

From the details of the last parade in the Burlington Free Press we make the following brief extracts being hardly sufficient to characterize the doings in all their laughter provoking absurdities.

The number on parade, horse, foot, and spectators, could not have been short of five thousand souls. The tout ensemble we have never seen surpassed. It constituted a perfect microcosm, turned wrong side out, t'other end to, and hind side before, and caricatured to the last degree.—Every branch of the service, regular and irregular, heavy and light, cavalry, infantry, artillery, high privates, and horse marines, was there. Every race of men, Ethiopian, Indian, Malay, plain white, and the rest of mankind; every age and sex; every profession—clergy, army, navy, law and physic—each had its representative. The great and good in history, from Louis Napoleon to 'Mrs Stone and Uncle Tom; and not beings of this world alone, but demons, departed spirits, and shapes and visions dire, "if shapes they could be called that shape had none," mingled in the motly cavalcade, which, mounted on spildags, equine skeletops, and horses; in chariots, ox teams, and wheelbarrows, or marching, with every variety of gait, took its way through our streets in all the "pomp and circumstance of glorious war."

As usual, their line of march was from the Hill to Water street, and so round to the Seminary. Here they made their first halt, and, heralded by a blast of martial music from the Shawnees, hewgags, swinedanas, locofodcons and tang alangs, evidently modeled after those which blew down Jericho of old, Miss Lucy Stone harangued the young ladies.

The Invincibles moved on to the Square, where they were reviewed and harangued by their valiant leader, Col. John Quincy Adams Brick.

He said in trumpet tones;

"Invincibles, Horses and Soldiers!" The past year has been fraught with the "pride and circumstance of war." The engagements and defeats of the army have been many and glorious. And you have evinced a spirit which forcibly reminds me of the ancients, and gives indubitable proof of your being the descendants of your ancestors. Many brave fellows have fallen victims of foul machinations, and our sorrow is doubly oppressive with the knowledge that under the present arrangement, not only the body, but the spirit returns to dust."

The Stars and Stripes however still wave over this 'great republic,' with a few more stripes than stars. The American eagle soars aloft and feeds profusely on foreigners. In fact, your Colonel now apprehends no immediate danger of the downfall of the union, unless the bottom should fall out.

The Colonel recommended to his comrades "a sublime admiration for the benevolence and profundity of the Legislature of Vermont," the "encouragement of free trade between Port Kent and Burlington," and "annexation of the State of Matrimony"—it being "first in war."

He wound up by the mournful announcement that he himself was going down to Posterity.

On the next training day "may we be there to see."

"The Old Guard."

Not of Waterloo, but of democracy' waver, and O, alas, if they should break and fly! In N. Y. Me. Ohio, Miss. Mo. La. Ala. Ga. and other states the ranks of this veteran corps are Pierced, through and through, and with spy glass in hand the leaders are watching the progress of events with the most alarming anxiety.

We have before us the particulars of divisions, wranglings, indignation meetings, new democratic papers projected in opposition to Pierce, &c., &c. but we have room only for the following in proof:

TROUBLE IN THE CAMP.—The New Hampshire Patriot, Gen. Pierce's organ, in his own State, mourns over the disaffection in the Democratic ranks. In its issue of June 14th, it employs this emphatic language:

"What are the charges constantly made by these factious men, against the President? They assert that he has filled a large portion of the offices with Northern abolitionists and Southern disunionists—that he has forfeited his pledges and betrayed the party by conferring offices upon the enemies of the Democratic platform—that he has sacrificed the interests of the party to promote his own ambitious views. These are the charges made against Frank Pierce, by men calling themselves New Hampshire Democrats."

Such, according to the Patriot, are the charges brought against the President by his own party, in his own State, by men who know him best. They say, "he has sacrificed the interests of his party, to promote his own ambitious views." Let the Democracy throughout the country ponder these things.—Boston Atlas.

GEORGIA.—The State Rights faction of the Democracy triumphed at the recent State Convention, and on the 58th ballot, Hon. Herschell V. Johnson, (U. S. Senator, and a prominent Secessionist,) was nominated for Governor by the following vote: On the fifty-eighth ballot, Johnson received 235; Haralson, 85; Stark, 12; Starnes, 3; Benning, 1.

The Mammouth (N. J.) Enquirer says, that the farmers of that vicinity experience great difficulty in obtaining sufficient help. Five hundred additional laborers could, it is thought, obtain immediate employment, and fair wages.

☞It is a singular fact in the history of Lowell, Mass., that in 1818, an engineer from Boston, employed to make a survey of that town with a reference to manufacturing purposes, reported that there was no water-p. icilege in Lowell!

☞Over 15,000 persons arrived at San Francisco during the first quarter of this year, and about 9,000 departed therefrom in the same time. The amount of U. S. revenue collected during the quarter, was within a fraction of $780,000.

FREE MASONRY.—Mount Zion Lodge, No. 312, is the title of a Lodge, for which a charter was granted for this city, last week—JNO. S. PERRY, W. M. It has already about 40 members of the right stamp. Troy Post—

The Portland Argus says, the Eastern District in Lincoln county, Maine has chosen a lady for Register of Deeds, in the person of Miss Olive Rose, formerly an assistant in the office. Miss Rose has two thirds of the votes.

LONG FLOOR PLANK.—Those Georgia pitch pine planks, lying in Fulton street, for flooring the new portion of the American Hotel, are some of them fifty feet in length, without a knot; all dressed and ready to be nailed into their place.—Troy Post.

The Wooster (Ohio) Republican says that the Hessian fly is ravaging the wheat fields throughout the state to a serious extent. In Wayne County the prospect is that the crop will be very light. The insect does not attack every field, one man's crop is left flourishing, while another's is destroyed.

"THERE was not an abolitionist in the land that did not droop his head, when President Pierce was elected.—[Washington Union.

And yet President Pierce has managed to raise those "drooping heads," while the hearts of the "National Democracy" are sinking like leaden bullets.

Here is Fanny Fern's idea of female friendship:

Two women joining the Mutual Admiration Society; emptying their budget of love affairs; comparing bait to entrap victims; sighing over the same rose leaf; sonnetizing the same moon-beam; patronizing the same milliner, and exchanging female kisses! (Betty, hand me my fan!)

"Too much of a good thing."—We learn from New Orleans Coml. Bulletin that in April the people of that State were called upon to elect Supreme Judges, in May, District Judges, and more recently, a district Atty. and they are soon to be called out to elect a clerk of the court. This was done by a democratic legislature elected under the amended constitution, and doubtless with a view to make the ballot odious to the people. Democracy is a queer fish.

The Editor of the Troy Post, on a visit to Rutland on the 16th makes the following "note:"

"About 2 o'clock P. M. Rutland was the scene of a violent hail storm; the wind blew a perfect hurry-cane; the blinds were torn from the windows of the Bardwell house. [illegible] on the ground broken in pieces.—[illegible] chimneys on the same hotel were thrown to the ground in great confusion, we saw a double carriage upset in a instant by the violent wind. In about ten minutes the storm abated and it became calm. Of all the showers the most beautiful followed which continued some fifteen minutes.—The water flowed down the streets in torrents. The clouds soon broke away and it cleared off pleasant again.

☞Punch has favored the world with the following song, sung before her majesty by a Chinese lady. It looks rather difficult at first, but if the reader studies it attentively he will see how easy it is to read Chinese:

"If the reader studies it attentively" he will discover it to be a fashionable song fashionably sung.

☞The Honorable Dr. Kittredge of New Market, member elect to Congress, has, we learn from the Dover Enquirer, after much effort effected the removal of a worthy widow of a soldier of the war of 1812, who has for a number of years past most acceptably discharged the duties of Postmistress in the town of Durham. A gallant feat this, and well worthy of an administration whose organ eulogises the woman-flogging government of Russia! The noble Doctor probably ascertained that Mrs. Page voted against him at the last election, or perhaps her offence was that her husband was a Democrat of the old school and fought once for his country! Certain it is that the change was made against the wishes of nearly every citizen of Durham.—Boston Atlas.

Pierce started in life a Federal, if democratic testimony is to be relied on. He has for associates and supporters all the old leading federals. Bryant of the Evening Post, wrote a satire on Jefferson commencing thus:

"And thou the scorn of every patriot name,
Thy country's ruin, and her council's shame."

And Croswell, the famed Editor of the Argus, was indicted for a libel upon the same great "father of democracy." The place being wanted for some flaming democrat who had told the biggest and most lies, and got the heaviest in debt, during the campaign, of course a widow of a soldier of the last war must make room for him.—There's democracy for you!

GRAND LODGE OF N. YORK.—The Grand Lodge of Free and Accepted Masons of New York, has elected and installed the following officers for the ensuing year:

Reuben Hyde Walworth, Saratoga Springs, Grand Master.
Joseph D. Evans, Brooklyn Dep. Grand Master.
Jarvis M. Hatch, Rochester, Sen Grand Warden.
Finlay M. King, Port Byron, Jun. Grand Warden.
James M. Austin, New York, Gr. Secretary.
Charles L. Church, " Gr. Treasurer.

Mr. King was re appointed by the Grand Master as Chairman of the Committee on Foreign Relations

The Chancellor took his obligations as Grand Master on the same Bible on which Gen. George Washington was sworn into office as first President of the United States!

THE REVOLUTION IN VENEZUELA.—Advices from Laguayra of May 26th, give some further information as to the progress of the revolution in Venezuela. Pronunciamentos were coming in from all quarters. A large number of the leading men of the country had joined the revolutionist. Two bodies of troops under Captain Limasosas were advancing upon Caraccas. In a day or two, it was thought, the final blow would be struck, and General Paez proclaimed President of the country. The government were endeavoring to enroll troops, but with no success.

The Legislature.

Some time since Judge Burnett offered a resolution asking the Governor, "what if any measures had been taken to execute the laws and punish the anti-rent outrage committed lately within twenty miles of the Capitol, upon officer Lawrence," but the Governor is "mum."

On the 6th, Mr. Burnet had consent to introduce a resolution calling upon the Canal Commissioners to report to the House the number of days which the Erie & Champlain canals have been interrupted in navigation and causes thereof, during the last ten years. [Laid over under the rule.

Resolutions of impeachment against the Lt. Govr., Atty. Gen., and Comptroller, were shuffled off by objections, points of order, and an adjournment.

On the 17th, the Temperance Bill came down from the Senate. Messrs. Burroughs, Hendee, Forsyth, J. Rose, and Clapp, advocated the reference of the bill to the committee of the whole. They regarded it as too important a matter to refer to a select or standing committee, and Messrs. Champlin, Hastings, and Peters favored the motion to refer to the standing committee on internal affairs of towns and counties, deeming that the contrary course might be the death of the bill.

The question was finally taken on the motion to instruct the committee to report complete, and lost—ayes 58, noes, 69.

On the 20th, the House refused to take up the bill by a vote of 35 to 30.

On the 21st, it was taken up and put down again several times by very emphatic votes, indicating nervousness and fright, tho' the members were handling a torpedo. The bill was finally laid upon the table, and ordered printed.

Mr. I. N. Ely offered a resolution recapitulating certain alleged charges against Levi S. Chatfield, Attorney General, in the matter of perquisites of office, and improper action in the lettings of 1851—in the matter of certain taxes, &c.—and concluding with a resolution declaring Levi S. Chatfield impeached for High Crimes and Misdemeanors.

Unanimous consent having been given, the resolution was entertained.

In the Senate, several nominations were sent in by the Governor when a rich and "harmonious" scene occurred. The conduct of the Governor, of his peculiar friends, of the Committee in charge of the nominations, of the fitness of the candidates, were freely canvassed by the democratic Senators, the whigs sitting by as spectators. Mr. Cooley closed some remarks by saying, "untrammelled, and unharnessed, he would do his duty." Mr. Cooley is a brick.—These are family affairs, however, in which we have no interest only to tell the news.

A NEW REPUBLIC PROPOSED.—Mexican pronunciamentos are so common that they do not count for much. One of more than usual interest, however, is issued by the Governor of Tamaulipas, as we learn by the New Orleans paper. The substance of it is contained in Art 5. The coalition of the States of New Leon, Coahuila, Chihuahua, and Zacatecas, is invited for the defence of the nationality of the independence of the Republic, in case of invasion either by forces organized in the territories of America, or of other adventurers.

The cooperation of the Governors of these States is requested, and the leadership tendered to the Governor of Chihuahua.

☞Bond's Cornet Band, of Boston, have been engaged for the commencement of the University of Vermont, on the first Wednesday in August next.

MORE IMPEACHMENTS.—It will be perceived that a movement has been made in the Assembly, having for its object the impeachment of Lieut. Gov. Church, Attorney General Chatfield and Comptroller Wright. The movement proceeds from high Hunker quarters, and admirably illustrates the harmony and peculiar honesty of the democracy. What scamps they must be when they employ their time in impeaching each other!—Troy Whig.

☞We learn by private letter that the passenger train of the Rutland and Burlington Road, on Friday night, just below Burlington, ran over a flock of imported sheep belonging to Jewett & Morse of Shelburn, killing 50, valued at $10,000—Ogdensburgh Sentinel.

We have received several letters highly commending "Sabbath Reading" which we have at times furnished our readers. We are pleased with these expressions and will gratify them in this respect with as much regularity as other matters will permit.

An article from the Wesleyan in review of Colonization has been handed in with a request to publish. It shall appear next week.

☞SOLOMON JEWETT, Esq., of Middlebury, Vt., has just imported another lot of fine wooled sheep from the flocks of M. M. Gilbert & Ceynot, in the interior of France. This lot (111 in number) cost about $10,000. Mr. J. has imported more valuable sheep within the last few years than any three men in the United States. The Middlebury Register says that, including the last flock, he has already expended $50,000 for sheep purchased by himself in Europe. These "animals" are to be exhibited at the annual state fair, to be held at Montpelier in September next.

Married,

Married, June 23rd, by Rev. G. C. Wells, Mr. Charles E. Palmer, of Orisbana, N. Y., to Miss Roba M. Hays of Keeseville.

June 23d at the Episcopal Chapel in this village by the Rev. F. C. Putnam, Mr. Oliver Keese Jr. to Miss. Jane Field, all of Keeseville.

The nuptial ceremonies were performed at 7 1-2 o'clock P. M. after which the happy couple returned to the residence of the bride, Mr. Wm. Kingsland, where they received the congratulations of their friends and were "at home" for that purpose from 8 to 11. About 300 cards of invitation were issued, and we presume that number of guests presented their offerings of the hearts best wishes for their future happiness—in which all who have the pleasure to know them cordially join.—*Ed. BOOT & SHOE STORE!

THE Subscribers having bought the Boot and Shoe Establishment heretofore known as F. E. Shandrew and Co.'s, are now prepared to manufacture anything in that line. We have also a large stock of Ready-Made Work, selected with great care by Mr. Shandrew, and warranted to be a better article than can be found in any slop Shoe Store in town. Our ready made Boots and Shoes are made by some of the best workmen in New York city,—in the most fashionable style, and every pair warranted to give satisfaction or the money refunded. We are permanently in the business, and of course expect to furnish a better article for less money than our neighbors can who, do not manufacture.

Ladies and gentlemen—you need not go to Burlington, nor any where else, expecting to do better than you can with us, as we have in our employ some of the best workmen in the State, and can give you perfect fits. We hope and expect that our own mechanics and village will be patronized in preference to the States Prison convicts, whose worthless trash is brought into competition with the labor of honest workmen. In addition to every article in the line of Boots and Shoes, we have a well selected stock of

SHERIFF'S SALE.

By virtue of two executions issued out of the Supreme Court of the State of New-York, to me directed and delivered against the goods and chattels and chattels real of James W. Taggard, I have seized and taken all the right title and interest which the said James W. Taggard had on the 6th day of August 1852 or which he may since have acquired of in and to all that certain piece or parcel of land situate, lying and being in the Town of Chesterfield, in the Village of Keeseville, County of Essex and State of New York bounded as follows: Begining at the South west corner of a lot of land sold and deeded to Irish Durkee and John Johnson running thence east, twenty three degrees south twenty rods, thence south twenty three degrees west eight rods thence west twenty three degrees north twenty rods, thence north 23 degrees east eight rods containing one acre of ground excepting & reserving out of the north west corner of the above described premises a piece of land extending thirty feet on the road bounding the westerly part of said premises and fifty feet back or easterly from said road and, containing fifteen hundred superficial feet of land being the same parcel or lot of land sold by Robert Forsyth Junior, now deceased to Irish Durkee. Also, that certain piece or parcel of land situate lying and being in the village of Keeseville, in the Town of Chesterfield and State aforesaid. Beginning at the south east corner of a lot of land heretofore sold by Robert Forsyth Jr. now deceased, to Irish Durkee on which said Durkee has erected a building and runs thence south twenty two degrees west along the line of the highway 35 feet thence east twenty two degrees south fifty feet thence north twenty two degrees east thirty five feet thence west twenty two degrees north fifty feet to the place of beginning. Also all that other certain piece or parcel of land situated in the village town and county aforesaid, beginning at the south east corner of the aforesaid lot and runs from thence east twenty seven feet from thence north fifty four feet from thence west twenty seven feet and from thence south fifty four feet to the place of beginning. Also all that certain other piece or parcel of land situate lying and being in the village, town, county and state aforesaid, in a patent of thirteen thousand acres of land granted to Zephaniah Platt and others, and is lot number twenty one in the village survey made by Edwin F. Johnson, and is bounded as follows: Begining at the south east corner of lot number twenty in said survey running thence south twenty three and a half degrees west along the west line of vine street two chains thence north sixty six and a half degrees west one chain thence north twenty three and a half degrees east along the line of Robert Forsyths Junior, now deceased, two chains thence south sixty six and a half degrees east one chain along the line of lot number twenty to the place of beginning containing one fifth of an acre of land. Excepting and reserving from the premises last described the following lot or parcel of ground, viz: Beginning on the west line of vine street at the south east corner of the Johnson lot, so called, thence south twenty four degrees, west fifty two feet six inches thence north seventy six degrees west two chains nineteen links thence north twenty four degrees east fifty two feet six inches thence south seventy six degrees east two chains nineteen links to the place of begining, being the same premises sold by Robert Forsyth Junior, in his life time to George Hubbard, and which said three pieces or parcels of land as hereinbefore described compose the farm lot and premises owned and occupied by Robert Forsyth Junior in his life time and being the same now in possession of Sabina Forsyth, the widow of the said Robert Forsyth Junior, deceased, one of the parties of the first part to these presents. Also the right of taking and using water from the lot on vine street in said village the same as it now is used and taken for the use of said farm house and premises and from the same spring and place on said lot that is now taken from and none other. Together with the right at all times of entering upon said lot for the purpose of keeping said spring in repair and of putting down and repairing the logs or pipes used to convey the water from the same and for no other purpose whatsoever. Also, all that house and lot situate in the village of Keeseville, in the town of Chesterfield, in the county of Essex, being the house and lot conveyed by Heman Rockwell and Harry Rackman to Nathan Eastabrook by deed bearing date, the 20th day May, 1826, and by the said Nathan to Gardiner Stow and now occupied by the said Gardiner Stow as his office. All of which aforesaid real Property, I shall expose for sale at the Adirondac Hotel, in said village and county, on the 18th day of July next, at 12 o'clock at noon of that day. Dated at Keeseville this 3d day of June 1853.

Ploughs! Ploughs!!

PROUTY & MEARS'

Celebrated Centre Draughts—All Sizes

THESE Ploughs wherever introduced, are fast superseding all others.

The most thorough trials of Ploughs on record in this country, and at the World's Fair in London, have demonstrated the important fact, that the Centre draught Plough is of much easier draught than any other, and therefore used with less fatigue to both Ploughman and Team; and, also owing to its peculiar form, it pulverizes and prepares the ground better and more perfectly than any other, leaving less work for the harrow, and securing better crops than by any other method of Culture.

The following Implements, among others of the best quality, and of the latest and most approved patterns, are constantly on hand, viz:

Harrows, Steel Saws s, Corn Planters, Corn Scrapers, Straw Cutters, Corn and Cob Crushers, Cheese Presses, Threshing Machines, Potato Hooks, Manure Hooks, Cast Iron Ox Shoes, Premium Shears, Tree Scrapers Bobbing and Pruning Knives, Hay Knives, Barn Door Rollers, Agricultural Furnaces, Corn Knives, Post Hole Augers, Wheelbarrows, Sheep Shears, etc. etc.

Being agents of Messrs. D. Prouty and Co., we can furnish the CENTRE DRAUGHT PLOUGHS at the B's on wholesale prices, with the addition of freight.

DRY GOODS,

Carpets and Oil-Cloths.

Owing to the large increase of patronage, I have found it necessary from time to time, to make many improvements and additions to my store.

This spring I have united the stores No. 129 and 9, State St., making a spacious and beautiful room, fitted up expressly for the sale of all the various styles of Silks, Shawls, Cloaks & Mantillas.

This connects with the main store, No. 262 River St. (the old stand occupied by the subscriber for nearly 30 years,) which is devoted to a general assortment of

STAPLE AND FANCY DRY GOODS

comprising every variety to meet the wants of all classes of buyers. Besides these, four large rooms over the stores 260, 262 and 264 River St., are occupied as

CARPET WAREROOMS,

where I am constantly receiving the newest and most desirable patterns of Velvet, Tapestry, Brussels, Three-ply, Ingrain and Venetian Carpets. Also, Oil-Cloths of every quality and width, and every style of Drugget, Rugs, Mats, Matting, Stair Rods, &c.

All these departments combined making an extensive and complete Establishment, conducted on such principles, that customers can trade with confidence, and to their own advantage, my sales being always for cash, and the only price asked, being the lowest cash price.

Quick Cures and Low prices. Private Diseases and their Antidote.

Dr. LISPENARD, author of the Marriage Guide, or Private Medical Treatise, Professor of Diseases of Women and Children, and Licentiate of the College of Physicians and Surgeons of the United States University, &c., &c., continues as heretofore to be confidentially and successfully consulted on all forms and variety of

PRIVATE DISEASES,

at his old quarters. No 5 Beaver-street ALBANY, N. Y.

The great success attending the use of Doctor L.'s remedies in secret diseases, and the many remarkable cures daily effected by him in recent as well lingering attacks, is conclusive evidence, that the well

SICK AND UNFORTUNATE

can do no better than consult the Doctor, whose whole time is devoted to the exclusive treatment of this much neglected branch of practice.

LOOK AT THIS.

Dr. Lispenard cures recent cases of disease in from three to six days, and chronic or long standing diseases in a very short period of time. without the use of Mercury, without the loss of time, change of diet, or detention from

DAILY EMPLOYMENT.

In Syphillis, Gonorchœa, Gleet. Strictures, Enlargement of the Testicles and Cords, Bubo, Chancres Pimples and of the Scaly Eruptions, Sore Throats and Noses, Chancres on the tongue, tender skin bones, and disease of the skin, and impure blood. Dr. Lispenard's remedies are above all praise, and frequently cure when all others had failed

EVEN TO RELIEVE.

More than 5,000 patients have during the past year experienced the benefit of the Doctor's extraordinary skill in treating secret diseases—among which, diseases of the bladder and kidneys have formed a goodly proportion.

YOUNG MEN,

who by indulging in secret habits have injured their health and prostrated their intellectual faculties, and thereby deprived themselves of the pleasure of married life, should consult Dr. Lispenard without a moment's delay. Hundreds have been restored to health, society and friends, under my peculiar mode of treatment, although vast sums of money had been sacrificed without any benefit. My remedy for this disease is pleasant to take, has no offensive smell and

CURES WITHOUT FAIL.

☞ Persons so unfortunate as to be diseased, although they may have visited half a dozen Doctors, and had medicine sent them a dozen times with no benefit, would exhibit wisdom by making their case known to that FRIEND OF THE SICK, Dr. Lispenard, who never charges for advice and warrants all his cures. The sick are often at a loss where to apply for relief, AND TIS NO WONDER, as hundreds stand ready to plunder the unfortunate victim of PRIVATE DISEASE, or secret habits without one thought for his life and health. All thus deceived will find a friend, and moderate charges, in consulting the Doctor who uses no MERCURY and cures every time.

N. B.—Persons from a distance when visiting the city in search of a physician and friend will be fortunate if they succeed in escaping the many dens of imposition, conducted by unprincipled men, destitute of character knowledge or name, who fleece the unfortunate victim of disease of his hard earned money, and his remaining health. Patients who have no acquaintance in the city should make inquiry of some respectable citizen, or the editor or proprietor of any of the city papers, to ascertain who is the most reliable physician to apply to.

FEMALE DISEASES.

Dr. Lispenard, from an experience seldom or never enjoyed by any other medical man, is enable to treat, with every hope of succes, all and every variety of Female Complaints—with safe and pleasant remedies—and has without doubt cured within the past five years more than 3000 females afflicted with diseases of the Bladder, Womb, &c. &c. Ladies afflicted with suppression or stoppage of their monthly turns, will recollect that Dr. Lispenard is still the sole American agent for.

DR. VICHOP'S

FEMALE MONTHKY PILLS.

The unprecedented sale of more than 15,000 boxes of these excellent Pills, and the good results which always follow their use, is conclusive evidence of their utility in stoppages, &c. Caution—Married Ladies in certain delicate situations should not use them—for reasons see directions with each box. Price $1. Sent by mail to all parts of the world.

Married Persons and those about to Marry, should enclose 12½ cen's post paid to Dr. Lispenard, and obtain a copy of his Marriage Guide or Private Treatise, a bewitching little work of nearly 100 pages, illustrated. Every thing that married persons can desire or wish to know, is here explained. Persons who from poverty or sickness have no desire to increase their family, will find necessary instruction in the Marriage Guide. One copy 12½ cents; 5 copies 50 cts; 12 copies $1—mailed free to any part of the world.

MORTGAGE SALE

DEFAULT has been made in the payment of the debt secured by a certain mortgage, dated the 21st day of October, 1847, executed by William Galusha and Sophia, his wife, then of Wilmington, in the County of Essex, State of N. Y., to Uriah D. Mibills of Keene, in the county and state aforesaid, and recorded in the office of the clerk of Essex county, in volume N. of Mortgages, pages 283 and 284, on the 28th day of December, 1847, at nine o'clock, A. M. Said mortgage was duly assigned by said Mibills to Willard Bell, January 14th, 1848, and by said Bell duly assigned to Reuben Patridge, January 30, 1849, and by said Patridge duly assigned to M. Finch, Amos Avery and Charles Malbone, assignees of Reuben Sanford, January 1st, 1849. who are now the owners of said mortgage. There is claimed to be due on said mortgage, at the time of the first publication of this notice, the sum of $167,93. Now therefore, notice is hereby given that the premises described in said mortgage, will, by virtue of a power of sale contained in said mortgage, and pursuant to the statute in such case made and provided, be sold at public auction, at the Adirondac Hotel, in Keeseville, in said county, on the 8th day of June next, at 1 o'clock, P. M.

Said mortgaged premises are described in said mortgage as follows: All that certain piece or parcel of land situate in the town of Wilmington, in the county of Essex, being a part of lot No 34, of Mallory's grant, bounded as follows; beginning at a stake and stones standing on the North line of the Sampson lot, 141 rods from the centre of the road leading from the Carpenter house to Blish and Burdick's forge, being the South-West corner of Ephraim French's land, and running East on said line to the West line of said grant, thence North on the line of said grant to the centre of the road leading from Sanford's to St. Armand, thence running Easterly in the centre of said road to a stake and stones, being the North-West corner of a piece of land occupied by David Hatch, thence South 42 degrees, West six rods to the South bank of Mill Brook, thence Easterly along the South bank of said brook 30 rods to a stake and stones being the South-East corner of said Hatch lot, thence North 35 degrees East to the centre of said road, thence Easterly in the centre of said road to the North-West corner of the Carpenter lot, thence South on the line of said Carpenter lot to the South-west corner of said lot, thence East on the line of said lot to the brook, thence up the brook in the centre thereof to a point ten rods below the sawmill, and thence on the South bank of said brook on the line of Ephraim French's lot to the North-west corner thereof, thence South 43 degrees west on the line of said French's lot 126 rods to the place of beginning, containing seventy-five acres, be the same more or less.

SHERIFF SALE.

BY virtue of an execution issued out of the Essex County Court, to me directed and delivered against the personal and real property of Nathaniel Mason, I have seized and taken all the right, title, and interest which the said Nathaniel Mason had on the eleventh day of January, 1853, or at any time thereafter, in and to the following described real estate, to wit:—All those certain pieces of land situate in the town of Willsboro, in Essex County and being part of a lot of land in Peru Bay Tract, and bounded and described as follows:—

Beginning at a stake in centre of the highway where a spruce tree formerly stood in the South line of lot Number (62) sixty-two of the aforesaid tract, from thence West on the said South line of lot No. sixty two thirty five chains and eighty one links, thence North partly on the line of a piece of land formerly owned by William S. Flack, even chains and sixteen links, thence east thirty four chains and seventy five links and from thence Southerly to the place of beginning, containing thirty five acres of land, more or less.

Also, one other piece of land being a part of lot Number thirteen Peru Bay tract commonly called the Thompson lot, and bounded as follows, to wit:—Beginning at at a stake in the centre of the highway where a Spruce tree formerly stood in the South line of lot sixty two of the aforesaid tract and from thence South nineteen degrees and thirty minutes east, fourteen chains and six links to a stake and stones on the east branch of a small stream of water thence South forty two degrees west, forty one links to a hemlock stump, thence North 55° west five chains and seventy links to a stake thence North forty six degrees West thirteen chains and fifty links to the South line of lot Number sixty two in a small brook, from thence to the place of beginning, containing nine acres and seventy two rods of land, more or less, the two lots above described being the same lots described in two Deeds of conveyance executed by Robert Flack and Sarah his wife to Lawrence Edwards, one Dated January 26, 1842, and the other dated May 20th 1843.

Also, one other piece of land in said town of Willsboro, being a part of Lot Number (63) in said Peru Bay tract and commencing on the North line of lot Number 62, in said tract in the centre of the Highway, which runs through said lot 62, thence North sufficient distance to make fifty acres by coming due east to the east line of said lot 63, thence around to the place of beginning, so as to make the aforesaid number of fifty acres from the north side of said lot (63.)

Which said real estate I shall expose for sale at public vendue at the Inn of David Judd in the town of Elizabethtown, in said county of Essex on the 13th day of June next at 10 o'clock, in the forenoon.

THE WONDER OF THE WORLD;

DEVINES' COMPOUND

PITCH LOZENGE,

A sure and pleasant Remedy for Colds, Coughs, Croup, Whooping Cough, Asthma, and if lungs enough are left to sustain life, A CERTAIN CURE FOR CONSUMPTION, safe for the Infant or the Invalid, in any stage of weakness.

"The statements that consumption cannot be cured, has destroyed more lives than the disease itself.—[Dr. Warren

Read the following, which to a candid mind places this "Great Remedy," like "Cæsar's wife" above suspicion."

TO THE PUBLIC!

We, the undersigned, citizens of Lee, Mass. are acquainted with Mr. Devines, the proprietor and Manufacturer of Devines' Compound, Pitch Lozenge and from, what we know of it ourselves and have learned from others of its beneficial effects, in cases where it has been used, give it as our opinion that it is a valuable remedy in diseases for which it is recommended and is worthy of public confidence. A. G. Hulburt, Leonard Church, F. G. Taylor, Wm. Taylor, E. A. Bliss, S. A. Hulburt, Josephus Crafts, T. P. Eldridge.

If any individual is to be pitied, and needs sympathy, it is the consumptive—always expecting to get well, and yet the painful evidence of decay almost "makes the inner soul shrink with the outer flesh"

"Some bloom as roses bloom, and live as roses live, A single morning space!"

While others, in more mature life—by some imprudence and a slight cold neglected—in the hectic flush—the painful cough.

"The prints of their departing steps appears."

BUT HERE IS HOPE! Mr Wm. Devines, the originator and manufacturer of the Pitch Lozenge, under Providence, was raised to perfect health by the use of these Lozenges alone, after he was pronounced by his physician to be almost dying with consumption.

This fact is generally known in Berkshire County and is the neighborhood talk, and wonder in Lee, and in Great Barrington, Mass.

From Dr. Brown, of Lee, Mass.

This certifies that I have made use of Devines' Compound Pitch Lozenge for cold and cough, and found immediate relief. Therefore I would recommend it to the public as being a safe and sovereign remedy. H. C. BROWN.

MORSE'S

COMPOUND SYRUP OF

Yellow Dock Root.

THIS is a Purely Vegetable Compound, scientifically prepared from the best Roots and Herbs of the Materia Medica, and has gained a universal reputation for the following effects, viz: Regulating and Strengthening the Liver and Digestive Organs, and Cleansing the Stomach and Bowels, and curing all Billious Diseases, Liver Complaints, Dyspepsia, Indigestion, Costiveness, Piles, Headache, Fever and Ague, Jaundice Nausea Loss of Appetite, &c., and causing the food to nourish and support every part, PURIFYING THE BLOOD, and thus curing all Humors, Cutaneous Eruptions, Scrofula, Salt Rheum, Erysipelas, Scald Head, Canker, Pimples on the face, Blotches, Ulcers, Tumors, Mercurial Diseases, Cancers, &c. Regulating the secretory Organs, and by enabling them to perform their proper functions, preventing and curing many painful and dangerous diseases; Strengthening and Quieting the nervous system, thus allaying Nervous Irritation, and curing all Diseases of the Nerves, as Hysteria, Neuralgia, Cramps, &c.

It is unrivalled in the cure of all FEMALE COMPLAINTS, as weakness, general debility, Irregularity, Obstructions, Swelling of the Feet, Limbs, Joints, &c., caused by weakness; also, Lung and Throat Complaints, as Colds, Coughs, Asthma, Consumption, &c., also, Dropsy.

Having made use of the Compound Syrup of Yellow Dock Root, prepared by C. Morse and Co., either ourselves or in our families and finding it to be a very salutary and effectual preparation, we do most cheerfully recommend it to the public as a very valuable medicine.

E Bourne, Esq. Cashier National Bank, Providence, R. I.; A. W. Spencer, Esq. Cashier Lime Rock Bank, do do Rev. William Phillips, Rev. J. B Richmond, C. S Jones, editor Providence Gen. Advt, Wm. Field, M. W. G. M. Cyrus Fisher, N. E. H. P. James Hutchinson, G. S. Dea., V. J. Bates, Doct Benj. Colby, and one hundred others of the most respectable families of Providence.

This certifies that I have for a number of years been acquainted with the composition and mode of manufacture of Morse's Compound Syrup of Yellow Dock Root. I have also been acquainted with its modus operandi in disease, and can say that in all respects it is admirably calculated to remedy that class of Diseases for which it was designed. It is especially valuable in Indigestion and all its attendant symptoms, it excites to healthy action the Liver, removes Torpor, and inactivity of this organ, and stimulates healthy action in all the system. As a Depurator or purifier of the Blood it has no superior.

COLONIZATION.

This selfish scheme of American tyrants and their cowardly parasites, has been so thoroughly exposed and exploded in years gone by, that many of us have assumed that it was dead, plucked up by the roots.—Indeed, the public have seemed to coincide with this view of it for years past, by leaving the public meetings on its behalf, and the starveling press in its interest to care of themselves. The more agreeable process of spontaneous emigration northward has met with such success at little cost, that the old scheme of dipping out the Atlantic with a pint mug, has been laid a ide altogether.—Scores and hundreds have disappeared in a night. This has encouraged a system so completely antagonistic to Colonization, that it has been almost forgotten.

Recently it has had a resurrection from a dishonored grave. And the period that marks its return to life and activity, is significant of its affinity for oppression. The enactment of the odious law for the return of fugitives, seemed to give a turn in the tide of affairs, setting strongly against the sympathy now extensively cherished for the colored American on the soil. A reaction was supposed to have begun antagonistic to the anti-slavery interest. Just at this point Colonization revives it power. Papers are started anew. Agents are sent out to solicit funds. Donations begin to be announced more frequent and large. Hence, soon after another phase appears. State authorities move forward in a threatening attitude and enact cruel laws bearing only on the free colored inhabitants.

A few years ago Maryland assayed to expel from her lands or prohibit the approach thereon of such persons. But it was too much for slavery even, and the effort failed. Now, Indiana, nominally free, stoops to make herself an abject vassal, by an act of barbarism that is an everlasting disgrace.—Positively, American States enact laws against the colored man, that find no parallel in the atrocities of European despots.

Pennsylvania moves off in the same direction, but may be so much like her own Dutch teams as to fail of reaching the depot in time for the cars. And more lately Gov. Hunt of the Empire State, falls into the same "rank and file." A Convention was called by the colored people, and held in the City Hall, Albany, January 20, 1852.

The address of that Convention to the people of New York, is so well adapted to meet the whole case and refute the ignorant assumptions of their foes that copious extracts are introduced in our columns.

After quoting the Governor's statements respecting the wretchedness and increasing misery of the free colored people, the usual language of their enemies, the address presents the following formidable array of facts correcting the Governor's statements:

"The cities of New York, Brooklyn and Williamsburg, contain more than a third of the entire colored population of this State. A hurried investigation, in which many instances have been overlooked, and all the estimates rendered low, shows that colored persons have, invested in business carried on by themselves:—

In New York city,	$755,000
In the city of Brooklyn,	79,200
In the city of Williamsburg,	4,900
Total,	$839,100

And that, apart from business, colored persons hold real estate, deducting incumbrances:

In the city of New York,	$733,000
In the city of Brooklyn,	276,000
In the city of Williamsburg,	151,000
Total,	$1,160,000

And these sums are distributed among a large number of individuals engaged in business or holding real estate, no account being taken of personal property.

Twenty years ago, the same class held in these cities:

Real estate,	$350,000
Business investments,	511,000
Total,	$861,000

That is to say, while this population has increased twenty-five per cent., its value has increased one hundred per cent.

As to the condition of the masses of our population in these cities, we adduce the respectable authority of the "New York Tribune" for the statement, that colored beggars are extremely scarce in New York, except such as come from "the South, asking money wherewith to buy their own muscles, blood and bones."

By the second annual report of the governors of the Almshouse of New York, for the year 1850, it appears that there was expended by them during that year:

For the poor generally,	$406,852 60
For the colored poor, to wit:
The Colored Home,	$7,664 58
Colored Orphan Asylum,	2,607 13
Total,	$10,271 71

The Colored Home and Orphan Asylum contain all the colored poor, dependent on public support, with a very few exceptions. From the above, it seems that one fiftieth of the amount expended, has been for the colored poor. In New York city the colored population to the white, fairly estimated, is 1 to 25; hence, the colored population of that city are 27 per cent. less burdensome than is the white population, to the poor fund. And this happy state of things has arisen, in part, from the fact that the former class have mutual benefit societies with a cash capital of $20,000, from which they take care of their sick and bury their dead.

It is further proof of the improved condition of the colored population, in the city of New York, that the proportion of deaths among them decreased, gradually, from 1 to 22 in 1821, to 1 to 41 in 1845; which latter has been about the proportion since the last date; and statistics agree, that the mortality of a people is always a fair measurer of their comforts.

The sending of children to school is a fair test of the intelligence of a people.—During the year 1850, there were 3,393 colored children in attendance in common schools, in New York city, which is nearly the same proportion as there were white children attending the same class of schools.

In reviewing these facts it must be borne in mind, that but one quarter of a century has elapsed, since a large portion of the colored population of New York has been freed from slavery; and that during the earlier portion of this time, the very possession of newly gotten freedom had in it an enjoyment so full and perfect, that the getting of money became a second consideration, to say nothing of the dependent and thriftless habits which slavery had engendered. Nor should it be forgotten, that during the same fourth of a century, we have borne the brunt of competition, with a flood of emigrants from the old world; for nearly all such emigrants were immediate and direct competitors in our callings, having on their side the odds of complexion, sympathy and political influence from the moment of their landing upon our shores.

May we not be permitted, fellow citizens, to express some degree of pride in the fact, that we have not merely survived but also surmounted all these difficulties, with peace, comfort, and growing prosperity; and may we not also be suffered solemnly to protest against the false witness borne against us by the chief magistrate of the State, when, with these facts at his command, he has pronounced our condition deplorable in the extreme, and incapable of any improvement?"

Then follows a searching analysis of the argument on the assumed decrease of the colored population which is ably refuted.—After which the address concludes as follows;

"And now, fellow citizens, we are done. It is a grave thing for men, in the quiet pursuit of their lawful avocations; men who have neither burdened the State by their improvidence, nor disturbed it by their importunity; for these men to be suddenly summoned, in the midst of a most inclement season, at a distance from their homes, to show cause why they shall not be removed, as a common nuisance, from their native State.

We have endeavored to the best of our humble ability, to show that his statements are incorrect, and we earnestly and solemnly protest against the adoption of his recommendation, to appropriate funds for our removal to Africa, or anywhere else.

First, because the appropriation is unconstitutional. The 10th section of the 7th article of the constitution states, that "the credit of the State shall not in any manner be given or loaned to, or in aid of, any individual association or incorporation." The American Colonization Society is an "association," foreign to the State, and unknown to its laws. By granting, no matter what sum to that society, the good faith of the State would be pledged to the cruel and monstrous doctrines on which that society is founded; that a man has no right to live in the land of his birth.

Secondly—Because such appropriation is entirely unnecessary. Of the colored population of this state, there are not fifty persons, all told, who desire to emigrate to Africa. Even the New York and Liberia Agricultural Association, no longer held together by the cohesive powers of elemosynary plunder is organized to send other persons to Africa—other persons having been conjured up for the purpose of lining the pockets of the members of the association.

We need no State appropriation; should it ever occur that we shall be called upon to leave our native state, having means of our own, we shall not burden the public fund in our departure, any more than we do while remaining at home. In consulting the mysteries of Providence, touching such departure, and with his face turned toward the East, our worthy chief magistrate has not been vouchsafed the true reading of the auguries: Intonuit laevum: the road is short to Canada; from whose fertile fields and equal institutions, we might be permitted to witness the prosperity of that State, which, in giving us birth, has entwined in its common weal every fibre of our being; this would take away half the bitterness of our exile, and would leave us the privilege, should peril come to her, of bareing the breasts of black men as a shield to whatever blows might be hurled against the heart of the Empire State.

Thirdly—We protest against such appropriation, because the American Colonization Society is a gigantic fraud, professing to love, whilst it systematically encourages hate among mankind; professing to liberate the slave, whilst it wields more firmly the chains of the enthralled; professing to give peace whilst it is the last stronghold for the organized disturbances of the entire Union; professing to evangelize Africa, whilst it hurries to its shores a population which has the best reason to hate the Christianity which sends them there; with no other merit than that of a cold, crafty, implacable hatred of the colored Americans, it pushes its Jesuit head among high and low, a moulder of and profiter by a diseased public opinion, it keeps alive an army of agents who live by plundering us of our good name.

And lastly—We protest against this appropriation, because "we remember them that are in bonds, as bound with them;" bone of our bone and flesh of our flesh, may evil betide us when the hope of gain, or the fear of oppression, shall compel or persuade us to forsake them to the rayless gloom of perpetual slavery."

Adopted by the colored citizens in the City Hall, Albany, Jan. 20th, 1850.

J. W. C. Pennington, Pres't.
Henry Hicks, } Secretaries.
William Mathews. }

For the publication of these extracts and the endorsement of the views therein, the Agent alone is responsible, as the editor is abroad. The assumption of one class of our citizens to determine for another class that they ought to leave the country and return to the home of their remote ancestry, is a monstrous absurdity. How men can meet and consult together on such a scheme with even the appearance of seriousness, exceeds all power of explanation, except, indeed, on one of two principles. Either that they are urged thereto by this peculiar class as a body, by earnest remonstrance, and convincing argument, or that they are deliberately acting the tyrant toward a weak and hated people.

Now it is plain that the appeals are all on the other side—against any such removal. If any exception exist, they are few and far between. The conclusion forces itself on every mind that the effort to send off a portion of our native born citizens, springs from a spirit of oppression. Some may ignorantly and innocently favor it, but its origin among slave holders, the pro-slavery sympathy of its supporters, stamps the scheme as worthy of the execration only of the liberty loving everywhere. Movements for voluntary emigration—the establishment of colonies—or efforts to evangelize Africa, by the descendants of Africa, prompted among themselves from prudential or benevolent considerations are altogether another affair. These matters may properly claim a share of public favor hereafter, if such schemes are first acted upon by the colored people themselves. L. C. M.

The True Dignity of the Female Character.

BY A LADY OF KEESEVILLE.

The soul of youth, uncontaminated by contact with a selfish world, is generous, its passions ardent, and the moral sentiments truly ennobling. At this period the love of honorable distinction is exceedingly natural to the heart. Surveying this beautiful scenery of earth, and the grandeur of that theatre on which we are to act the great drama of our existence, the inquiry arises 'How shall I attain the true dignity which Heaven has assigned me in the scale of being?' To aid such in the development of this purest, noblest feeling of the soul, is the design of this essay.

We enquire, 'in what does the true dignity of female character consist?' Is it in what are called polite accomplishments?—The passion for these in the present day, seems to be all-absorbing, and largely inflated, and the genuineness of that taste in these, which now prevails, is to be questioned. Whether an ardent, inherent love for music, and the accompaniments of polished life, is the incentive to attainment, or to be numbered among those who would fain be aristocratic, and who deem these essential to admission to their circles, is at least a subject admitting question. We do not decry real politeness, or genuine taste, this were treason to civilization and religion; but we do deny that female accomplishment, consists chiefly in touching gracefully the keys of the piano, chattering in foreign tongues, or familiarity with sickly and effeminate romance; and this especially while destitute of the simple substantials of elementary knowledge. Let none suppose we intend dishonor to the heavenly art of music—we love it too well for this; yet while we can appreciate the skill and charms of instrumental performance—we count this less valuable than vocal powers of song, and disproportioned when unconnected with substantial mental discipline.—To be able to bring forth a harmony of sweet sounds from the piano, with the skill of a Mozart, is inappropriate and absurd, if pursued to the neglect of mental discipline.—That young lady who neglects her intellectual being, to pursue these epidemorals, is preparing not for life and its duties; but to breathe only in the giddy rounds of pleasure and in the ideality of unconscious life.—Such is the rage for accomplishment, that if our daughters maintain position in society they must attend a fashionable boarding school, where it is to be lamented in very many instances these accomplishments constitute the climax of intellectual female attainment, and when their education is said to be finished, (!) they return with all the airs of Parisian life. To be able to enter a drawing room with becoming grace—converse volubly upon subjects that are not found, within the range of intelligence or good sense—gibbering the cant phrases of fashionable life, with the skill of a parrot or mocking bird, are the essentials of their being. And here let me casually observe that no gentleman of intelligence, or literary attainment would select a companion for life among these, did not the unrepublican idea of caste or position in society, associated with the fact of what is usual, the attainment of wealth by the union, enter into the account, biasing the judgment, and forming most unequal and often unhappy connections.

If ladies were to live only in the drawing room, as objects of curiosity or amusement, it might suffice to chat in French, make a variety of instrumental music—to smile, and bow most sentimentally, and never learn that woman should possess a soul, and aspire after the dignity of an immortal being. But life is not a matter of ideality; its sterner duties, measurably are the lot of all. Accomplishments (in the modern acceptation of the term) leave but an unaccomplished character. The distinction they give is but superficial and ephemeral, leaving the heart untouched and cold to all the real sympathies of life, confining the most noble principles of the being within a narrow circle of equally vain and worthless ones. More than this, they often lead to dissipation and impiety. Let not those be called accomplishments, which cannot prepare for the proper discharge of duty, and the maintenance of whatever is lovely and amiable in woman's character.

Is it in the enjoyment of wealth? This affords distinction, it elevates its possessor to the enjoyment of power—gives scope to the benevolent feelings of the heart, and the gratification of worldly desire, yet be it remembered, that this distinction and true dignity are not to be confounded. Fortune is but a blind goddess, dispensing her favors often to the covetous, the ignoble, and the mean. Wealth falls to the lot of few, even among the worthy, while those who have most adorned and blessed society, have usually, in their begining, struggled through poverty for their attainment. Examples of illustrious worth—statesmen, philosophers and poets, emerging from their hamlets among rocks and sterile hills, are recorded among the benefactors of our race; while the wealthy and luxurious have lived and died in their inanity, unblest, unknowing, and unknown. Envy not the possession of wealth for true dignity is not bound to the fickle car of earthly fortune.

Shall we find true dignity in position in society, or the patronage of friends?—These may bestow a momentory consequence, even upon insignificancy itself, but are often found, only to present more obtrusively imbecility of character. Worthless, must be the gratification of that elevation in society which the character is unfitted to sustain, connected, as it must be, with the secret contempt of the wise and discerning. These reliances comport, it may be, with aristocratical institutions, where rank predominates over worth; but not with the genius of American dignity and republican feeling. Here this basis, like the shifting sands is fluctuating and uncertain, and earthly friendships, tho' cheering and beautiful as the tints of a morning sky, are still like them, ever fading. In the history of the world's affairs, power and patronage often exchange place with humility and dependence. Here then is not the true elevation, for

"Honor and shame from no condition rise;
Act well your part—there all the honor lies."

Is it in an assumed independence? So precious is the youthful mind, that many, before they have parted with the green days of girlishness, far surpass in wisdom their antiquated parentage. Guardianship, by common consent, (if not by civil law) ceases much earlier now, than in days of yore, and submission to authority is almost absolute. But I here make the statement that none are really independent, much less woman who is constitutionally formed for association. As well may the tender vine, which climbs the sturdy oak for its support, boast of its independency, or the blushing rose-bud, or the lily bending to its mother earth. So far from being indicative of true dignity is self sufficiency that it is ominous of disaster.

Again does the proper dignity of woman consist in aspiring to direct the affairs of state or to wield the reforms of the day?

Ambition for this in the female sex is preposterous, yet such ambition, in certain quarters, has been developed. The advocates of "Woman's Rights" have mounted the rostrum, and in tones of melting eloquence portrayed her wrongs, and even woman has so far degraded her own humanity, as to assume the appearance of her liege lord and "Bloom" in all the glory of man's attire. O shame! where is thy blush; and Modesty where dost thou dwell? Shall we be thus degraded longer? Nay, let woman, pure minded woman, frown upon such innovations, and exhibit that gentleness of appearance and demeanor which becomes her proper sphere. And in the reforms of the day, woman's influence is indispensible, but not to lead and guide them. The pursuits and responsibilities of life are numerous, and there is a wise distribution of these to each sex according to the law of adaptation. If each pursue their proper work, seeking to excel in it, and thus benefit the common whole, the harmony of society will be sustained, and the issue happy; but if jealousy arise against the order of Heaven, disquietude and misrule must result. Woman struggling amid the whirlpool of Political life; its strife and turmoil shared by her! But what position shall she occupy in the degrading struggle? Shall she be a demagogue? This were too much. The mere feeble echo of a party? This were too little. Make her then a standard bearer among the political legions, leading on the van, not to the rescue of liberty, but to battle with a mighty windmill! See the female partisan! In a free and elective government like ours, party spirit rages with dangerous power. Shall fuel be added to this already destructive flame, by calling in the sympathies of woman?—Shall the fair daughters of our land forsake the peaceful domestic circle, and the altar of their God to mingle in the fearful storms of political excitement without? If so, we have not seen the fulness of discord into which society is yet to be plunged. The domestic altar and the social circle, when the peaceful spirit of woman presides, is now our safety against the leprosy of party politics. Here the angry waves of civil discord are calmed, and the perturbed bosom of man finds a resting place from its commotion. May it thus ever be!

"Cousins of Temperance," is the title of a new Cold Water army in New Jersey.

Irish Eloquence.

Irish eloquence is certanly of the most powerful character. If it is somewhat too florid it nevers falls into English dullness. The following is the conclusion of a very eloquent speech delivered by the celebrated Dr. Cahill, at the dinner in honor of St. Patrick's day, given in Galway, Ireland, on the last day of the Irish tutelary Saints. It is certainly a magnificent extract:

Fellow countrymen—this is certainly a great day for Ireland. As your chairman has given me credit for having some knowledge of astronomy, I must take the liberty of informing the people of Scotland that the length of the day and night in Ireland is twenty-four hours, [loud laughter]—and that it was twelve o'clock noon in our colonies in the east at about four o'clock this morning in Ireland; and, again, that at about this present hour, while we are filling our sparkling glasses, the Irish are just going to mass, with the shamrocks in their hats, at twelve o'clock in America. The Irish soldier, therefore, on this morning, at four o'clock, saluted the glorious memory of St. Patrick at the mouth of the Ganges; he began the shout in the east as the glorious sun culminated over Pekin, and as the day advanced, the shout rolled along the foot of Hymalya, it swept across the Indus, passed over the tract of Alexander the Great, was heard in ancient Byzantium, disturbed the slumber of the sleeping brave in the gray field of Marathon, reverberated along the seven hills of Rome, and almost awoke about ten o'clock this morning old Romulus on the banks of the Tiber. Owing to the mysterious destinies of Ireland, and of our scattered race, there is not a spot from the yellow sea to the pillars of Hercules, from Garryowen to Melbourne, in which some merry Irishman does not on this day fix the green shamrock in his cap, and, with overflowing soul and wild transport of native joy, sing the inspiring air of his country, and chaunt aloud the magical tune of "St. Patrick's Day in the Morning." [Loud cheers for several minutes.]

But the commemorating voice of this day through primæval Asia and old Europe is weak in comparison to the power it attains when it has crossed the Atlantic, and reached the friendly crowded shores of young and vigorous America. There many a fond Irish heart welcomes the well known cheers as they burst in the patriot skies of Bunker's Hill; there the shout assumes the magesty of thunder as it rolls in peals, again and again repeated, over the boundless prairies that skirt the Mississippi, and is echoed and reechoed along the chiselled Alleghanies, until it dies away into silence about two o'clock to night, as it reaches the placid boundless bosom of the Pacific. [Great cheering.] Thus round and round the globe, is the voice of Ireland this day heard by all mankind—thus her scattered and fated children sing the wild song of their native land to the stranger—thus they pour fourth the patriot strains of their beloved country to the idolatrous Tartar, to the polished European, and the savage Indian; thus they stretch their united hands to each other on this day, and round the entire world they form a girdle of national love and patriotism which reaches from the east to the west, and we couple the north and the south poles within the wide circle of our exiled but glorious affections. [No one except those who heard the conclusion of the sentence can form any idea of the wild enthusiasm which followed. After a while silence was again restored, and every ear again on the strain to drink in eagerly the burning language of the gifted orator.] He proceeded—listen for a moment, about 12 o'clock to night, and you will hear our own harp pour forth its Irish plaintive voice from N. York across the broad enraptured waters of the Atlantic. Even now, if you will be quiet, you can audibly distinguish the shout of joy raised by seven millions of our blood, and our race, and our faith all along the free shores of glorious, hospitable America. Oh! America, how I love your green fields, because they are now the resting pace, of the wandering children of my country!

I worship your lofty mountains and your rich valleys, because they afford an asylum and a barrier against the storms of adversity which have swept away and withered the ancient homesteads of Ireland. I bless your majestic rivers, your magnificent lakes, because I behold the friendly canvas of your marine spread on their joyous waters, conveying my forlorn countrymen to a peaceful and plentiful home. I long to behold the country where the broken heart of Ireland is bound, her daughters protected, her sons adopted; where conscience is free, where religion is not a hypocrisy, where liberty is a reality, where the gospel is a holy profession of divine love and not a profligate trade of national vengeance. (Enthusiastic shouts of applause.) How long, O Lord, will thou hold thy omnipotent scourge over Ireland, the most faithful of all the kingdoms that possess the divine revelations from Heaven? But till Providence is pleased to staunch the flowing blood of Ireland and to heal the wounds, we, her persecuted sons, are bound to raise the cry of horror against our relentless oppressors, to keep up through each coming year and each century the watchword of our sires for freedom till the happy day of our deliverance. It is glorious to struggle for the redemption of one's country; it is basetamely to submit to the tyrant's frown—liberty and then death, is preferable to slavery and life. Oh, eternal Liberty—inheritance of the soul!

"Better to bleed for an age at thy shrine
Than to sleep for one moment in chains."

(The learned gentleman sat down amidst an enthusiasm of applause and a demonstration of respect by waving of handkerchiefs and continued cheering, such as we have never before witnessed in this city.)

Laws of New York.

AN ACT making appropriations for the payment of certain state bonds and interest on certain state stocks. Passed April 8, 1853. Three-fifths being present.

The People of the State of New York, represented in Senate and Assembly, do enact as follows:

§ 1. The sum of four hundred and sixty-seven thousand dollars, or so much thereof as may be necessary, is hereby appropriated from the general fund state debt as was created by an issue of comptroller's bonds in the year one thousand eight hundred and forty five, by chapter one hundred and fourteen of the laws of one thousand eight hundred and forty two, for loans from individuals, and which became due on the first day of July, one thousand eight hundred and fifty two.

§ 2. The sum of twelve thousand three hundred and seventy five dollars is also hereby appropriated from the general fund debt sinking fund, to pay the interest which became due on the first day of July, one thousand eight hundred and fifty three, on the one hundred and fifty thousand dollars of state stock issued to the Hudson and Berkshire railroad, by chapter one hundred and seventy eight of the laws of one thousand eight hundred and forty, and bearing an interest of five and one half per cent.

Chapter 138.

AN ACT to punish gross frauds and to suppress mock auctions. Passed April 9, 1853.

The People of the State of New York, represented in Senate and Assembly do enact as follows.

§ 1. Whereas, a failure of justice frequently arises from the subtle distinction between larceny and fraud, and whereas certain evil disposed persons, especially in the city of New York, have for several years past by means of certain fraudulent and deceitful practices, known as mock auctions, most fraudulently obtained great sums of money from unwary persons, to their great impoverishment.

§ 2. Each and every person who shall through or by means of the aforerecited deceitful and fraudulent practices, or by means of any other gross fraud or cheat at common law, designedly and with intent to defraud, obtain from any other person, any money or any goods, wares, merchandize or other property, or shall obtain, with such intent, the signature of any person to any written instrument, the false making whereof would be punishable an forgery, shall, on conviction, be punished by imprisonment in the state prison for not more than three years, or in the county jail not exceeding one year, or by fine not exceeding one thousand dollars, or by both such fine and imprisonment; provided always, that if upon the trial of any person indicted for such fraud it shall be proved that he obtained the property in question in any such manner as to amount in law to a larceny, he shall not by reason thereof be entitled to an acquittal, and no person tried for such fraud shall be liable to be afterwards prosecuted for larceny upon the same facts.

§ 3. All auctioneers doing business in the city and county of New York shall hereafter be required between the first and fifteenth of June in each and every year to obtain from the Mayor of said city license to engage in and carry on such business and occupation upon filing a bond with two good securities in the penal sum of two thousand dollars.

§ 4. The Mayor on the complaint of any person having been defrauded by any auctioneer, or the clerk, agent or assignee of such auctioneer doing business in the city and county of New York, is hereby authorized and directed to take testimony under oath relating thereto, and if the said charge shall in his opinion be sustained, then he shall revoke the license granted under the provisions of this act, and commit the parties for trial according to law, and direct the said bonds to be forfeited as provided for in the preceding section.

§ 5. All acts and parts of acts conflicting with the provisions of this act are hereby repealed.

§ 6. This act shall take effect immediately.

AN ACT to amend an act entitled "An act in relation to suits by and against joint stock companies and associations," passed April 7, 1849.

Passed April 11, 1853.

The People of the State of New York represented in Senate and Assembly do enact as follows:

§ 1. The fourth section of the act entitled "An act in relation to suits by and against joint stock companies and associations," is hereby amended so as to read as follows:

§ 4. Suits against any such joint stock company or association in the first instance, shall be prosecuted in the manner provided in the first section of the said act, But after judgment shall be obtained against any such joint stock company or association as above provided, and execution thereon shall be returned unsatisfied in whole or in part suits may be brought against any or all of the shareholders, or associates individually, as now provided by law; but no more than one suit shall be brought and maintained against said shareholders at any one time, nor until the same shall have been determined an execution issued and returned unsatisfied in whole or in part.—No death, removal, resignation of officers or shareholders, or sale or transfer of stock shall work a dissolution of any such joint stock company or association as against the parties sueing or being sued by such company as herein provided, or as against any creditor or person having any demand against such company at the time of any such death, removal, resignation, sale or transfer.

§ 2. This act shall take effect immediately.

CHAPTER 159.

AN ACT Making appropriations for the continuance and enlargement of the State Asylum for Idiots.

Passed April 11, 1853, three-fifths being present.

The People of the State of New York, represented in Senate and Assembly do enact as follows;

§ 1. The sum of twenty thousand dollars is hereby appropriated out of any moneys in the treasury belonging to the general fund, for the purchase of suitable grounds, and the erection thereon of plain and convenient buildings, for the reception and accommodation of the pupils of the state asylum for idiots; the said sum to be expended under the direction of the trustees of said asylum.

§ 3. The trustees of the said asylum are authorized to draw upon the treasurer, from time to time, for any moneys appropriated by this act, in convenient sums as the same shall be wanted for use, which shall be paid upon the warrant of the comptroller, and shall be accounted for by the said trustees to the comptroller.

§ 3. There shall be received and be supported gratuitously in the said asylum, sixty-four pupils, to be selected in equal numbers near as may be, from each judicial district, from those whose parents or guardians are unable to provide for their support therein, and such additional number of idiots, as can be conveniently accommodated, may be received into the asylum, by the trustees, on such terms as they may deem just.

State of New York, } I have compared
Secretary's Office } the preceding with the original law on file in this office, and do certify that the same is a correct transcript therefrom and of the whole of said original.

Secretary of State.

An Army of Peace.

Congress at its last session appropriated $150,000 to bear the expenses of their surveys for a Pacific Railway, to be expended under the direction of the War department. That branch of the government could not be better employed. It has just brought a small army of peace into the field, divided into four divisions, commanded by officers of U. S. Engineer corps; as follows:

I. A party, under the superintendence of Major Stevens (the first Governor of the new territory of Washington,) will start from Fond du Lac, proceed through Minesota to Pugent Sound, (latitude 47 to 48;) also through the northwest territory and the new territory of Washington. This survey will be mostly confined to the regions immediately north of 49° of latitude.

II. A Second party commanded by Capt. Gunnison, of the army, will leave Fort Leavenworth on or before July 1st. They will take the central route, so called; commencing near Kansas, Missouri, following up the Kansas river, in lat 38°, thence through the Coochutope pass, or gate, of the Rocky Mountains, near the point where Col. Fremont's party lost their way in the winter of 1848-9; thence to the Valley of the Colorado, and further by way of Vegas do Santa Clara, thence by way of Walker's pass of the Sierra Nevada, and Lake Tulare and the San Joaquim River, to San Francisco. The lowest point proposed to be reached by this party is in latitude 35°

The 7th inst was the period fixed on for the rendezvous of the party at St. Louis. The party consists of several officers of the army and some civilians, on horseback, escorted by a guard of the U. S. troops.—From St. Louis the party will proceed by steam to Fort Leavenworth, where their observations will commence:

III. A portion of the third party, commanded by Lieut. Whipple, of the army, will take their departure from Fort Smith, on the Arakansas river, and on the Western borders of that State. Another portion of this party will probably connect the general line of the survey with the S. W. terminus proposed of the Pacific Railroad in Missouri. The two divisions will meet on the Canadian river, lon. 24°, and proceed on their Western tour, through or near Santa Fe (lat 35°;) thence to the Walker pass of the Sierra Novada, where they will probably meet Capt. Gunnison's party from the central route.

IV. A fourth party will leave San Francisco under command of Lieut. Wilkinson, and will examine the route in a south easterly direction from San Francisco to Walker's Pass, and other localities in that region.

Surveys and Examinations are in progress under private auspices who do not doubt that at least one Road to the Pacific—and two or three ultimately will be built. The Iron Horse will soon wake up the desert with his hoarse yell, and scream from the mountain sides as he leaps on his way, following the sun to the Pacific.—Troy Whig.

Price Reduced.

The Republican for $1, in advance $1,50 during the year, or $2, at the end of the year. Papers delivered by the carrier same as heretofore.

We are making out and forwarding bills to our agents as fast as possible.—They are authorized to settle with those in arrears as follows; 1. Where a special bargain exists they will settle accordingly. 2. Where no special bargain exists and the subscribers continue another year they will receive arrears at the rate of $1,50 a year and $1, in advance. 3. Those who prefer can settle arrears at the rate of $1,50 a year and continue at the same rate, payable during the year. 4. When a paper is to be stopt they will exact arrears at the full rate of $2, a year in all cases. 5. Our agents are also fully empowered to act in all cases as shall best subserve our interests. Lastly, all who remain in arrears after the 18th of July will be charged at the highest rates.

The Law of Newspapers.

1. Subscribers who do not give express notice to the contrary, are considered wishing to continue their subscription.

2. If subscribers order the discontinuance of their papers, the publisher may continue to send them till all cash charges are paid.

3. If subscribers neglect or refuse to take their papers from the offices to which they are directed, they are held responsible till they have settled their bill, and order their paper discontinued.

4. If subscribers remove to other places without informing the publishers, and the paper is sent to the former direction, they are held responsible.

5. The courts have decided that refusing to take a paper or periodical from the office, or removing and leaving it uncalled for, is "prima facie" evidence of intentional fraud.

The Glorious 4th.

We trust this day will be celebrated with becoming ceremonies by every American wherever he may be. The events of which it is commemorative should be brought to mind and for one day at least be the subject of reflection, conversation, reading, or public rehearsal. We should recommend that the Declaration of Independence and Washington's Farewell Address together with a few patriotic orations be read in every family and at every gathering on that day. The past history of the country ought to be reviewed, party bitterness allayed, landmarks for future action adopted, and on the whole every body made the wiser and the better, as well as neighbors as citizens.

Our Table.

Graham and Godey.—As these monthlies are published in the same city, generally received about the same time, and are rivals for popularity, we notice them this month together. We believe the only material difference is that Graham is preferred by the gentlemen, and Godey by the ladies for fashions, needle work, crotchet work, embroidery &c. They both hold out great inducements in the way of contents, embelishments, prices, &c.

Arthurs Home Magazine is meeting with unparalled success. It has commenced giving engravings. Four copies for $5.—Arthur is a guaranty of a variety of interesting matter.

We are indebted to Hon. Ja. Burnett for legislative documents.

DEATH BY A BULL.—A laborer by the name of Threehouse in the employ of Wm. N. Page of this town was so seriously injured on Friday last by a bull belonging to N. Page and Joseph Beach that he died the next day. The bull was at Mr. Beech's and in the yard with other cattle.—Threehouse being there at milking time in the morning went out to protect the women while milking. Treating the bull rather carelessly and roughly he turned upon him suddenly, first knocking him down as he whirled towards him, and then springing furiously upon him. Threehouse seized him by the horns and was several times thrown into the air and dashed upon the ground. He was not gored, but died of bruises. Dr. Talmadge made a post mortem examination.

On Tuesday morning as Mr. Beach was going into the barn to take the bull to Mr Page's the brother of Threehouse with gun in hand stept before him, ordering him back if he did not want to be shot himself, whereupon he fired upon the bull, killing him instantly. The animal cost $65, and it was the intention of the owners to shut him up and kill him in the fall.

STEAM ENGINE.—Messrs. Green & Conro are manufacturing a steam engine of 70 horse power for Messrs. G. V. Hoyle and others of Champlain. It will be highly finished and as beautiful and perfect as science and art can make it. People should go up and see how much toil these splendid structures cost.

S of T.—The Dist. Deputy requests the several papers of this section of the State to notice the meeting of the Grand Division of Eastern N. Y. at Essex on the 13th at 2 o'clock, P. M. A public meeting is to be held, and a general attendence is desired. Further particulars will undoubtedly be communicated to the public in some way. This meeting was to have been held at Plattsburgh, but on account of the small pox at that place it is transferred to Essex.

Raising.—R. H. Fuller of this village, has put up a two story frame building, on Vine street, 46 by 27 feet. The lower story is to be used as a blacksmith shop for himself, and the upper story is to rent. This is evidence of prosperity that we like to see. When mechanics thrive business is in a healthy condition.

☞We call attention to the advertisement of Kingsland, Baber & Co. This is one of the most extensive establishments in Northern N. Y. occupying a double store, with two sets of clerks, and doing a business of $100,000 a year.

CATHOLIC MEETING.—On Sunday the 26th inst. Bishop McCloskoy, of Albany, Roman Catholic Bishop of the Diocese of Northern New York, assisted by the Rev. Jas. Keveny, parish Priest of this place, Rev. Jas. Rooney of Plattsburgh, Rev. Thos. Keveny of Fort Covington, and Rev. W. McGowan, of St. Albans, Vt. celebrated Mass in the Catholic Church in this place, on which occasion the Bishop delivered to his hearers a very interesting and imposing sermon in which he endeavored to impress, solemnly, upon their minds, the bountiful, wonderful, and miraculous works of God; and the urgent necessity of adhearing strictly to his Commandments.

On the following Tuesday, the Bishop assisted by the Rev. James Keveny and Rev. Jas. Rooney administered the sacrament of Holy Communion and of Confirmation to upwards of 200 souls mostly youths from 12 to 20 years of age who being dressed in white made an interesting appearance.—COMMUNICATED.

Daily Cost of Legislation.

We have endeavored, as nearly as possible to ascertain the daily expenses of the Legislature, applicable as well to the regular as to extra session. They are about as follows:

Lieutenant Governor	$ 6,00
Members of both Houses, 160, at $3 each	481,00
Clerks of each House, $12 each	24,00
Deputy Clerks, 8, at $8 each	64,00
Other Officers, 19, at $3 each	57,00
Messengers, 26, at $1,50 each	39,00
Women, 10, at $2 each	20,00
Misoellaneous, say	100,00
Daily expense	$791,00
Printing	681,00

In round numbers, the daily expenses may be safely put down at $1,500. For the regular session of one hundred days, this would give $150,000. Of the extra session, which, at $1,500 per day, would give $40,500 as the cost, so far.

Should the Legislature sit till the Erie Railroad excursion, on the 15th July, the additional expense would be $33,000.

[Albany Atlas.

As the extra session is wholly unnecessary, having been brought about by the factious course of the barnburners, the latter are responsible to the people of the State for the unnecessary expenditure of about $80,000. This will be very cheap, however, if the result shall be to open the eyes of the people to the faithlessness and corruption of this faction of the democratic party.

RIOT IN NEW YORK.—A terrible riot occurred on Wednesday night, at the residence of Dr. George A. Wheeler, in 17th street, New York, caused by the finding of some human bones on the premises. A mob of three thousand collected, armed with clubs, axes, and stones. Dr. W's store and dwelling were attacked, the inmates driven out, and the premises completely gutted. Nobody killed, though some police officers were in[illegible]

Then—Now.

The National Democrat has an article foreshadowing the determination of the Democratic party to turn our Charter Reform to the elevation of the worn-out, hobby-riding hacks of that faith—the unambitious Bradys, the disinterested Cochranes, the modest Sheppards the law-loving Sicklees, the spotless Ryckers, &c., who made such spasmodic efforts to feel at home among honest Reformers on the night previous to the vote. The Democrat says:

"This is a Democartic City. The Reforms in our City Government were petitioned for by Democrats. The Legislature which passed the Reform Bill was Democratic. The new Charter was almost unanimously voted for by Democrats."

Without pointing out the two self-evident fibs in these four lines, we beg to observe that our Democratic cotemporary might have added: "The Aldermen are Democratic; the Assistants are Democratic; they were elected by Democrats; robbed a Democratic treasury; violated the law of a Democratic Court, were arrested by Democratic officers, convicted and sentenced by a Whig Judge, and appealed to a Democratic Court of last resort; that two of the Aldermen, both Democrats, were indicted for high crimes, while sitting as Judges on the Bench; that two more of them, (both Democrats) are doing all they can to prevent the execution of justice upon a notorious Democratic ruffian; and these men, all and singular, are specimens of the choice selections of rulers for the people furnished by the Democratic party."—Tribune.

The barnburners opposed the Canal Enlargement without stint, or scruple till forced to yield by the power of public sentiment, but now they claim to have been the champions of the measure. The Democracy bankrupted the State & the Whigs coming" into power, the former cried out "$40,000,000 debt." Once the Democracy were for banks, but ruining them for purposes of speculation they soon deranged the currency and then cried out against them. Once they were for a national bank, but being unable to use it for political purposes they denounced and destroyed it. They profess to be deadly hostile to a national debt, but Polk saddled the country with one of $100,000,000 for a slice of Mexico and Pierce is ready to give $200,000,000 for Cuba. During the late Presidential campaign they were all for a tariff for protection but that they have now forgotten. So they profess to be the pre-eminent friends of Catholics, but their friendship rests upon profession only for their acts have ever been hostile, as proved by hundreds of facts. So we might proceed, ad infinitum, but enough for the present.

Vermont Items.

From the papers of the Green Mountain State we select a few interesting items within the bounds of the Champlain Valley.

At a whig Convention recently held at Middlebury, the following nominations for Addison Co. were made:

For Senators, Erasmus D. Warner, New Haven, Rollin J. Jones, Cornwall.

For Assistant Judges, Joseph Hayward, Panton, Roswell Bottum, Jr., Orwell.

For Sheriff, David S. Church, Middlebury.

For High Bailiff, Gains A. Collamer Bristol.

For State's Attorney, John W. Stewart, Middlebury.

For Judge of Probate, New Haven Dis. Harvey Mellsill, Bristol.

RUTLAND AND BURLINGTON R. R.—The stockholders of this corporation held their annual meeting at Bellows Falls. The report shows that the earnings of the Road, for the year ending May 31, have been $495,397,45, expenditures $228,859,33; net income over expenses $266,539 12—a gain of 60 per cent, over last year. The cost of the Road so far as has been $5,477-466. The bonded debt is $2,429,100, capital stock $2,397,000; floating debt $485,466.

A LIQUOR CASE IN MONTPELIER.—REMARKABLE IMPEACHMENT OF A WITNESS.—On Saturday justice Barnes was occupied nearly all day in trying Wm. Storrs on a charge of furnishing liquor contrary to law. A breech of the law was sworn to point blank, but the testimony did not satisfy the jury, whose verdict was "not guilty." In this case a witness, who had been put upon the stand to impeach another, swore that "the character for veracity of the witness for the state might be good enough for common affairs, but on a fox hunt he was the allfiredest liar he ever did see."

"David Moore, of Burlington, Vt., on the night of the 28th ult., lost 21 sheep and 12 lambs, being the whole of his flock except six sheep and four lambs. They were all killed by wolves." So say the papers but the fact is doubtful.

One of the most distressing sights we were ever called on to witness we met a few days since in the person of Leland Murray, of Orwell. Many of our citizens will recollect Mr. M. as once a student here and a young man of more than ordinary talent. Judge then of our surprise when called to where he was standing, to find the young, gay, and talented man and guide of yesterday, a shattered wreck and dependent, his person horribly mutilated, and his precious priceless eyes forever gone. It was very shocking. Mr. Murray's story is short and sad. He was aboard the "Buckey Belle" when her owner blew her up, and was rendered in an instant what he is—the green fields, the waving woods, the glorious sunlight, and the faces of his wife and child, shut from his gaze forever. Verily, make this round globe one perfect crysolite, and for it we would not swop our eye-sight.—Let riches take to itself wings, let hopes be blasted and ambition fail, and welcome death; but in the noon of life spare us from the calamity that has befallen this brother.—[Brandon Post.

A TRAMP.—News has been received from Mississippi that Gov. Foote intends to [illegible] the State.

OUR NEW TERMS.—We have endeavored to prepare them in the most liberal manner to meet the wishes of all. We look for prompt responses on the part of our friends, as well in paying arrears as in new subscribers. We wish to return our thanks to those who have stood by us faithfully, and would if the Republican was $5, a year, and to assure them that they shall never be forgotten.

We also wish to remind our friends of our superior facilities for doing job work. This and advertising are far more important than subscribers and absolutely necessary to the support of a party paper.—Will our friends keep these things in view and see that we have them?

Whoever has read the Republican with attention must be satified that we lack only proper support to make such a paper as the party desires. As it is we have assurances from many of our subscribers that they "look for the arrival of the Republican with anxiety, and read it with pleasure and attention." God bless such friends—we want more such.

Friends, will you help us?

Anniversary of St. John, at Worcester Mass.

A very large gathering of the Masonic Fraternity participated in the festivities of this anniversary which was happily developed under the auspices of the Morning Star Lodge, of Worcester. Numerous Masonic bodies from this and other States were represented; among the former were large delegations from the Boston Encampement of Knight Templars, De Molay do.; and Worcester County do.; also the Royal Arch Chapter, and the Grand Lodge of Massachusetts; Mount Tabor and Baalbec Lodges, of East Boston; Morning Star Lodge, of Worcester; and several other Lodges in other sections of the State.

The procession was formed at 1 o'clock, P. M., under escort of the Knight Templars, Gen. Day, of Worcester, Chief Mars'l, an eloquent, & exceedingly appropriate oration was delivered by M. W. Br. Philip C. Tuckor, Grand Master of the Grand Lodge of Vermont. The oration and its attendant exercises were listened to by a large and attentive audience.

The company subsequently formed in procession, and proceeded to Wright's Mammoth Tent, previously erected upon the Common, where a magnificent banquet, provided by Mr. Wright, was enjoyed with hearty relish, after which came the feast of intellectual pleasures, in which speeches, sentiments, music, etc., filled up two or three happy hours.

The dinner was provided originally for 1000 persons, but Mr. Wright came amply prepared for a large number, and some 1200 ladies and gentlemen did justice to his bountiful and luxurious viands.—[Boston Atlas.

"LITTLE FREDDY."—Few items have touched a more sensitive chord in our heart than the one subjoined. We know many a "Little Freddy," and who does not? Their parents doat upon them, and being "bright little fellows, have won the hearts of numerous friends, whose hearts would break and whose eyes would be moistened if it was known they were drowned." In our imagination we behold Freddy's struggle, and hear the heart-rending shrieks of his poor mother when the sad news was broken to her; and we are pained as we reflect that possibly this sad event all comes of disobeying parents. We pen these reflections and give this item with especial reference to the moral it conveys, "Children obey your parents."

[From the Whitehall Chronicle.]

DROWNED.—On Friday, the 17th inst., our villagers were startled with the report that "Little Freddy Hall," son of Dr. A. Hall, Postmaster of this place, was drowned. He was bathing in the Lake, and unfortunately got beyond his depth. No help was near enough to assist him, and after a few fruitless struggles he sank. Wm Patterson, Jr., a lad on the opposite side of the Lake from him, swam across and succeeded in finding and bringing him to the shore.—Every effort was immediately made to resuscitate him, but all in vain—"Freddy" was dead! He was a bright little fellow, only five or six years old, and had won the hearts of numerous friends. Many eyes were moistened when it was known that he could not be saved.

LOUISIANA, THEIR FIRST PLANK ROAD, DOUBLE CELEBRATION—The N. O. Com. Bulletin says.

On the fourth of July, the cittizens of East and West Baton Rogue propose to celebrate the day of Independence, not only in the usual way, but by inaugurating the opening of the first plank road in Louisiana, by the firing of cannon, and other demonstrations of satisfaction. The Plank Road commences at a point opposite the State capital and is to run to Grosse Tete, passing through a sugar country of unsurpassed fertility. We believe it is to become thirty miles in length. It will be of great advantage to the country, and cannot fail to pay the stockholders good dividend. Plank roads in the North and in Canada, have generally paid well, and are looked upon as important adjunets, or rather, feeders, of the more expensive railroads, in the West, they are called the Farmers' Railroads, and with much propriety. They are peculiarly applicable to the level surface of our State, and we should not be surprised if the opening of this road caused them to be brought into general use in a few years.

☞The National Intelligencer confirms the report of the sale of Mount Vernon; price $200,000. It is stipulated that Washington's remains are never to be removed. There is a reservation allowing the government to re-purchase. It was bought by northern and southern capitalists.

THE Chenango Telegraph says:

We had sweet dreams the other night,
When all around was still—
We dreamed we saw a host of folks
Pay up their Printer's bill!

The following lines were written by a lady now in the Utica Insane Asylum. They were contained in a letter to her mother, which we were permitted to read. It will add to the interest if we should say, as we are permitted to do, that the lady is Mrs. L. D. Winters, and the mother Mrs. B. H. Estes of Chesterfield. There is a melancholy sweetness in these lines which cannot fail to make a strong impression upon the mind of the reader as they did upon our own.

Lines to My Husband.

Oh, tell me, early chosen, still-loved friend,
Am I by thee entirely forsaken—
And dost thou now refuse me that regard
I fancied once too firm to e'er be shaken?

Why is it that no cheering word from thee,
E'er comes to bless me like a ray from heav'n?
Oh, tell me have I wronged or grieved thy Too deeply or too much to be forgiven? [heart

If so, pray tell me how, and when, and where,
For o'er suspense's dark flood I still am
Again I ask thee, shall I ask in vain? [driv'n.
What have I done that cannot be forgiven?

Do we not both need mutual pardoning love,
Akin to that which lifts the soul to heav'n?
To make us faithful followers of Him,
Whose words were these: "forgive and be [forgiven?"

[For the Essex County Republican.]

Let me roam once more o'er the green clad
Of my own dear mountain home, [hills,
And stand once more by the gurgling rill,
Of this, my country home!

Let me lave once more my throbbing brow,
In its rippling waters pure—
As in youth on its banks I was wont to bow,
And drink from its stream so clear.

Let me wander once more thro' the meadows
In search of wild flowers sweet; [fair.
As oft I've strayed with my playmates there,
The the lark's sweet song to greet.

Let me muse on the years, as I wander here,
Of my childhood's faded track;
And the friends in early days so dear,
Ah! who shall call them back?

"Oh, home, sweet home!" thou hast lost the
That were once around thee thrown! [charms
As a stranger now thro' thy halls I roam,
In search of the loved ones gone!

"AMA."

The Good Samaritan.—John Ives presented us on Thursday with a basket of the nicest strawberries we have seen this year. They were picked some 5 or 6 miles out of town, and Mr. Ives said he should "step out again some morning before breakfast and get another basket full." Mr. Ives is the gentleman who never waits for steamboats or rail roads, and says he "expects to live till he dies, if let alone." Mr. Ives has a Carte blanche to draw on "our folks" for any dish that can be made of strawberries, or anything else he prefers.

SUICIDE.—Mrs. Laurinda Gowatt, aged 22 years committed suicide at her fathers in Lewis on the 25th ult. by taking opium. Coroner Wilder and a jury held an inquest on the body. Dr. Smith of Lewis performed the post mortem examination. No cause is assigned for the act.

☞The courteous Daguerrean Artist, H. S. TOUSLEY, after a short absence, has again returned to his old quarters in the Adirondac Building. Mr. Tousley is so well known in this vicinity as an Artist of rare ability, and has given such unqualified approbation for the past two years, that endorsement from us is unnecessary.

A CONQUEST.—Mr. Beman, of Washington co., this morning entered the list of debate on the Temperance Bill with so much zeal and eloquence that after he had finished, he was summoned to the Lobby and presented with a large and beautiful boquet by a young lady from Brockville, Canada, who was in the Ladies' Gallery in company with her father, David Jones, Esq., listening to Mr. B.'s speech. The affair produced considerable sensation, and was, it will be seen by the report, brought to the attention of the House under a question of "bribe" but more probably a spirit of envy prompted the notice.—[Albany Atlas.

☞A contributor to the Rutland Herald gives a parody on the "Burial of Sir John Moore," which closes with the following pathetic stanza:—

"Slowly the barrel aside we laid,
The whiskey all poured or flung out;
We carved not the owner's name on the head,
But left it alone with the bung out."

☞A sentimental chap in Rhode Island intends to petition Congress, at its next session, for an appropriation to improve the channels of affection, so that the "course of true love may run smooth."—Ex

He will undertake a very difficult task. Besides being an up hill task, the odds are all against him; but we hope he may succeed.—Albany Journal.

General Clarke of New York, Ex Gov. Paine of Vermont, P. Greely of Boston, and D. W. C. Clarke of Vermont, composing the exploring party sent out by the Pacific Railroad Company in New York, to examine the country for a line of road through Texas, had arrived at Austin.—They were to leave for Fort Graham, to meet General Rusk, with whom the will explore the country West of El Paso.

GEO. DREW, a "miscellaneous thief," was arrested at Manchester, N. H., last week. Upon searching his house there was found 1000 papers of pins, a printing press, five hogsheads of molasses, the stock of a small dry goods store and a carpenter's shop, besides many other articles, "too numerous to mention"—all stolen.

Why No.

"Judas, dy'e see that 'ere man?"

"Yes, I see that 'ere man."

"Well, Judas, I gave that man a start in life."

"The deuce you did!"

"Yes sir! I started him out of town two months ago for debt."

Our Contents.—We hope no one will fail to read Irish eloquence on our first page.—The article on Colonization is published by request. We need hardly say that our columns are open to free discussion. We have favored Colonization, but we are in favor of that only which is purely voluntary—without coercion deceit, or indirect.

☞Read Jenkins advertisement in another column, then go and examine his stock, which is very judiciously selected.—He promises to give his patrons good bargains.

Married,

At Baker's Saranac House, June 25th, by Samuel Smith Esq., Henry Cullen, of Charleston, Mass., to Miss. Maria Colo of Raquette River. At the same time and place, Joseph Gay, of Bombay, to Miss Mary Cole of Raquette River.

(Northern papers please copy.)

The mere announcement of the above leaves the reader but half informed. Were the matches of love and romance? And were the parties in high life, or low? are questions which will occur to every reader. To satisfy the curious, we will say that though not natives and "to the Manor born," they are nevertheless genuine representatives of the western wilderness, coming the distance of about 50 miles beyond the utmost bounds of civilization over the mountains, down the rivers and across the lakes, to Col. Bakers to be made "one flesh." The brides are sisters, were attended by their mother and younger sister, "paddled their own canoe" in white dresses, without bonnets, or gloves, and could shoot a dear 60 rods, whip a bear, skin a catamount, or tomahawk an Indian with the most perfect ease. Nevertheless, they are healthy, vigorous, virtuous, and are the kind of people who produce Ethan Allens, Putnams, Sumpters, Marions, Starks—in short—heroes, in times that 'try men's souls.'

THE ILLUSTRATED

WEEKLY RECORD

OF THE

New York Exhibition of Industry of all Nations, under the direction of

Prof. B. SILLIMAN, Jr.,

Aided by eminent writers in each department of Science and Art.

THIS Journal, as it implies, will record the history, progress and results of the New York Industrial Exhibition.

The Literary portion of the paper will be prepared under competent Editorial supervision, by the ablest literary, scientific and practical men and will include essays descriptions and criticism in the following departments.

I. Natuaal Science—Raw Materials, &c.
II. Machine y.
III. Manufactures—in Subdivisions.
IV. Fine Arts.

General Essays may be expected on the condition and results of the several departments, on the natural resources of our country, and on the methods by which they may be made most valuable to American Art, and to artistic and industrial manufactures. Other articles of a more general scope, on the topics naturally suggested by the Exhibition, will be occasionally admitted. It is intended that all the descriptions and criticisms shall be accurate, and strictly impartial and independent. The Essays will be free as possible from mere technicalities, and every effort will be made to render them attractive and interesting to general readers.

The Letterpress will be illustrated by engravings of the most beautiful, interesting, and suggestive of the various objects exhibited including, as far as possible, all such as may gratify and instruct. The Record will thus supply sources of instruction to Artizans and Manufacturers, of every class, and render the Exhibition permanently and practically useful long after the contents have been dispersed.

The Illustrated Record will be issued weekly from the opening to the close of the Exhibition, and will be completed in twenty-six numbers, besides a probable supplement.

Each number will consist of four double-columned pages of letterpress, of the size and quality of the Prospectus: four pages of Illustrations, and four pages devoted to the circulars of the Exhibitors. The first No. will contain four extra pages, including Architectural Details of the Building, and the designs by Sir Jos. Paxton and the late A. J. Downing, and will be published on the day of the Opening of the Exhibition.

Office of the Association for the the Exhibition of the Industry of all Nations.
New York, 21st January, 1853.

Messrs. G. P. Putnam & Co.,

Gentlemen:—The proposals made by you, in conformity with the advertisement, issued from this office on the 22nd November, having been accepted, and a contract made thereupon, you have become Exclusively entitled to the privilege of publishing, under the authority and sanction of this association, an Illustrated Catalogue and Illustrated Newspaper relating to the Exhibition, now in course of preparation, and of printing and selling the same in the Exhibition Building. You have also become contractors for the publication of the Hand Catalogue. For the compilation, publication, and sale of these works, you will receive all the facilities that the Board of Directors can reasonably afford you.

You are well aware that the object of the Association, in making an arrangement of this kind, is not pecuniary gain, but to secure a publication of a superior grade of typographical, literary, and artistic merit. To this you have assented; and if the very high standard agreed on be reached by you, the result will, it is hoped, be of great and lasting beneficial influence.

I am very respectfully, gentlemen,
Your obedient serv't,
W. WHEPPEN, Secy.

Terms.—For the 26 Nos. and Supplement, post paid, $3, in advance.

☞A handsome Cover for the Volume will be furnished to Subscribers, price 50 cents.

Mr. H. W. Quin has contracted for the advertising in each number of the above work.

GEO. P. PUTNAM & CO.
10, Park Place, New York.

Country papers giving the above prospectus two insertions, will receive the "Record" free of charge for the whole term.

"Man Know Thyself."

An Invaluable Book for 25 Cents.

"EVERY FAMILY SHOULD HAVE A COPY."

20,000 Copies sold in less than 5 months. A new edition, revised and improved, just issued.

Dr. Hunter's Medical Manual and Hand Book for the Afflicted—

Containing an outline of the origin, progress, treatment and cure of every form of disease, contracted by promiscuous sexual intercourse, by self abuse or by sexual excess, with advice for their prevention, written in a familiar style, avoiding all medical technicalities, and everything that would offend the ear of decency, from the result of some twenty years successful practice, exhlusively devoted to the cure of diseases of a delicate or pirvate nature.

To which is added, receipts for the cure of the above diseases, and a treatise on the cause, symptoms and cure of the Fever and Ague.

Testimony of the Prof of Obstetrics in Penn. College, Philadelphia—"Dr. Hunter's Medical Manual."—The author of this work unlike the majority of these works who advertise to cure the diseases of which it treats, is a graduate of one of the best Colleges in the United States. It affords me pleasure to recommend him to the unfortunate, or to the victim of malpractice, as a successful and experienced practitioner, in whose honor and integrity they may place the greatest confidence.

JOSEPH LONGSHORE, M. D.

From A Woodward M. D., of Penn. University, Philadelphia—It gives me pleasure to add my testimony to the professional ability of the author of the "Medical Manual." Numerous cases of diseases of the Genital Organs, some of them of long standing have come under my notice, in which his skill has been manifest in restoring to perfect health, in some instances where the patient has been considered beyond medical aid. In the treatment of Seminal weakness, or disarrangement of the functions produced by Self-abuse, or Excess of every, I do not know his superior in the profession. I have been acquainted with the Author some thirty years, and deem it no more than justice to him as well as a kindness to the unfortunate victim of early indiscretion, to recommend him as one, in whose professional skill and integrity they may safely confide themselves. ALFRED WOODWARD, M.D.

This is, without exception, the most comprehensive and intelligible work published on the class of diseases of which it treats. Avoiding all technical terms, it addresses itself to the reason of its readers. It is free from all objectionable matter and no parent, however fastidious, can object to placing it in the hands of his sons. The author has devoted many years to the treatment of the various complaints treated of, and with too little breath to puff,' and 'too little presumption to impose,' he has offered to the world at the merely nominal price of 25 cents, the fruits of some 20 years most successful practice."—Herald.

"No teacher or parent should be without the knowledge imparted in this invaluable work. It would save years of pain, mortification and sorrow to the youth under their charge."—People's Advocate.

A Presbyterian clergyman in Ohio, in writing of "Hunter's Medical Manual," says: "Thousands upon thousands of our youth, by evil example and influence of the passions, have been led into the habit of self-pollution without realizing the sin and fearful consequences upon themselves and their posterity. The constitutions of thousands who are raising families have been enfeebled, if not broken down, and the do not know the cause or the cure. Anything that can be done so to enlighten and influence the public mind as to check, and ultimately to remove this widespread source of human wretchedness, would confer the greatest blessing next to the religion of Jesus Christ, on the present and coming generations. Intemperance (or the use of intoxicating drinks), though it has slain thousands upon thousands, is not a greater scourge to the human race. Accept my thanks on behalf of the afflicted, and, believe me, your co-worker in the good work you are so actively engaged in."

One copy, (securely enveloped,) will be forwarded free of postage to any part of the United States for 25 cents, or 6 copies for $1.—Address (Post paid) COSDEN & Co., publishers, Box 196, Philadelphia. 478y

☞Booksellers, Canvassers and Book Agents supplied on the most liberal terms.

STATE OF NEW YORK. } The under-

Signed at the sheriff's office, in said county, on the 23d day of June, 1853. C. W. ENSIGN, Sheriff.

CHEAPER THAN EVER.

Regular Opposition Store.

Mammoth Stock of Clothing just received at Cardwell's celebrated Cheap One Price Clothing Store, every style of garment usually kept in any Clothing Store. My facilities for buying are such as challenge competition. The monthly arrivals of boxes (from the South,) and the daily clearances of innumerable bundles clearly establishes the fact that I sell cheaper than any other establishment in this section, and what is more I mean still to continue to do so. I will not be undersold. Bring out your big guns, I am ready for the whole combined forces.

Ploughs! Ploughs!!

PROUTY & MEARS'

Celebrated Centre Draughts—All Sizes

THESE Ploughs wherever introduced, are fast superseding all others.

The most thorough trials of Ploughs on record in this country, and at the World's Fair in London, have demonstrated the important fact, that the Centre draught Plough is of much easier draught than any other, and therefore used with less fatigue to both Plowman and Team; and, also owing to its peculiar form, it pulverizes and prepares the ground for seed more perfectly than any other, leaving less work for the harrow, and securing better crops than by any other method of Culture.

The following Implements, among others of the best quality, and of the latest and most approved patterns, are constantly on hand, viz:

Harrows, Seed Sowers, Corn Planters, Corn Shellers, Straw Cutters, Corn and Coin Crushers, Cheese Presses, Threshing Machines, Potato Hoes, Manure Hooks, Cast Iron Ox Scrapers, Pruning Shears, Tree Scrapers, Bedding and Pruning Knives, Hay Knives, Barn Door Rollers, Agricultural Furnaces, Corn Knives, Post Hole Augers, Wheelbarrows, sheep Shears, etc., etc.

Being agents of Messrs. D. Prouty and Co., we can furnish the CENTRE DRAUGHT PLOUGHS at the Boston wholesale prices, with the addition of freight.

202 RIVER & 7 & 9 STATE STREETS,
TROY, NEW YORK,

INVITES the attention of those who wish to purchase

DRY GOODS,
Carpets and Oil-Cloths.

Owing to the large increase of patronage, I have found it necessary from time to time, to make many improvements and additions to my store.

This spring I have united the stores No. 7 and 9, State St., making a spacious and beautiful room, fitted up expressly for the sale of all the various styles of silks, Shawls, Cloaks & Mantillas.

This connects with the main store, No. 202, River St., (the old stand occupied by the subscriber for nearly 30 years,) which is devoted to a general assortment of

STAPLE AND FANCY DRY GOODS,

comprising every variety to meet the wants of all classes of buyers. Besides these, four large rooms over the stores 200, 202 and 204 River St., are occupied as

CARPET WARE-ROOMS,

where I am constantly receiving the newest and most desirable patterns of Velvet, Tapestry, Brussels, Three-ply, Ingrain and Venetian Carpets. Also, Oil-Cloths of every quality and width, and every style of Druggetts, Rugs, Mats, Matting, Stair-Rods, &c.

All these departments combined making an extensive and complete Establishment, conducted on such principles, that customers can trade with confidence, and to their own advantage, my sales being always for cash, and the only price asked, being the lowest cash price.

SHERIFF'S SALE.

By virtue of two executions issued out of the Supreme Court of the State of New-York, to me directed and delivered against the goods and chattels and chattels real of James W. Taggard, I have seized and taken all the right title and interest which the said James W. Taggard had on the 6th day of August 1852 or which he may since have acquired of in and to all that certain piece or parcel of land situate, lying and being in the Town of Chesterfield, in the Village of Keeseville, County of Essex and State of New York, bounded as follows: Begining at the South west corner of a lot of land sold and deeded to Irish Durkee and John Johnson running thence east, twenty three degrees south twenty rods, thence south twenty three degrees west eight rods thence west twenty three degrees north twenty rods, thence north 23 degrees east eight rods containing one acre of ground excepting & reserving out of the north west corner of the above described premises a piece of land extending thirty feet on the road bounding the westerly part of said premises and fifty feet back or easterly from said road and containing fifteen hundred superficial feet of land being the same parcel or lot of land sold by Robert Forsyth Junior, now deceased to Irish Durkee. Also, that certain piece or parcel of land situate lying and being in the village of Keeseville, in the Town of Chesterfield and State aforesaid. Beginning at the south east corner of a lot of land heretofore sold by Robert Forsyth Jr. now deceased, to Irish Durkee on which said Durkee has erected a building and runs thence south twenty two degrees west along the line of the highway 35 feet, thence east twenty two degrees south fifty feet thence north twenty two degrees east thirty five feet thence west twenty two degrees north fifty feet to the place of beginning. Also all that other certain piece or parcel of land situated in the village, town and county aforesaid, beginning at the south east corner of the aforesaid lot and runs from thence east twenty seven feet from thence north fifty four feet from thence west twenty seven feet and from thence south fifty four feet to the place of beginning. Also all that certain other piece or parcel of land situate lying and being in the village, town, county and state aforesaid, in a patent of thirteen thousand acres of land granted to Zephaniah Platt and others, and is lot number twenty one in the village survey made by Edwin F. Johnson, and is bounded as follows: Begining at the south east corner of lot number twenty in said survey running thence south twenty three and a half degrees west along the west line of vine street two chains thence north sixty six and a half degrees west one chain thence north twenty three and a half degrees east along the line of Robert Forsyths Junior, now deceased, two chains thence south sixty six and a half degrees east one chain along the line of lot number twenty to the place of beginning containing one fifth of an acre of land. Excepting and reserving from the premises last described the following lot or parcel of ground, viz: Beginning on the west line of vine street at the south east corner of the Johnson lot, so called, thence south twenty four degrees, west fifty two feet six inches thence north seventy six degrees west two chains nineteen links thence north twenty four degrees east fifty two feet six inches thence south seventy six degrees east two chains nineteen links to the place o' begining, being the same premises sold by Robert Forsyth Junior, in his life time to George Hubbard, and which said three pieces or parcels of land as hereinbefore described compose the farm lot and premises owned and occupied by Robert Forsyth Junior in his life time and being the same now in posession of Sabina Forsyth, the widow of the said Robert Forsyth Junior, deceased, one of the parties of the first part to these presents. Also the right of taking and using water from the lot on vine street in said village the same as it now is used and taken for the use of said farm house and premises and from the same spring and place on said lot that is now taken from and none other. Together with the right at all times of entering upon said lot for the purpose of keeping said spring in repair and of putting down and repairing the logs or pipes used to convey the water from the same and for no other purpose whatsoever. Also, all that house and lot situate in the village of Keeseville, in the town of Chesterfield, in the county of Essex, being the house and lot conveyed by Heman Rockwell and Harry Rackman to Nathan Eastabrook by deed bearing date the 26th day May, 1826, and by the said Nathan to Gardiner Stow and now occupied by the said Gardiner Stow as his office. All of which aforesaid real property, I shall expose for sale at the Adirondac Hotel, in said village and county, on the 18th day of July next, at 12 o'clock at noon of that day. Dated at Keeseville this 3d day of June 1853.

BOOT & SHOE STORE!

THE Subscribers having bought the Boot and Shoe Establishment heretofore known as F. E. Shandrow and Co.'s, are now prepared to manufacture anything in that line. We have also a large stock of Ready-Made Work, selected with great care by Mr. Shandrew, and warranted to be a better article than can be found in any slop Shoe Store in town. Our ready made Boots and Shoes are made by some of the best workmen in New York city,—in the most fashionable style, and every pair warranted to give satisfaction or the money refunded. We are permanently in the business, and of course expect to furnish a better article for less money than our neighbors can who, do not manufacture.

Ladies and gentlemen—you need not go to Burlington, nor any where else, expecting to do better than you can with us, as we have in our employ some of the best workmen in the State, and can give you perfect fits. We hope and expect that our own mechanics and village will be patronized in preference to the States Prison convicts, whose worthless trash is brought into competition with the labor of honest workmen. In addition to every article in the line of Boots and Shoes, we have a well selected stock of

SOLE AND UPPER LEATHER;

Morocco, White, Red and Russet sheep Linings; Bindings; Lastings of different colors; Lasts; Nails; Pincers; Hammers; Files; Knives; Awls, &c., &c.; all of which we shall sell at very low prices for Cash or good credit.

20 Years Experience.

OLD ESTABLISHED HOSPITAL.

Quick Cures and Low prices. Private Diseases and their Antidote.

Dr. LISPENARD, author of the Marriage Guide, or Private Medical Treatise, Professor of Diseases of Women and Children, and Licentiate of the College of Physicians and Surgeons of the United States University, &c., &c., continues as heretofore to be confidentially and successfully consulted on all forms and variety of

PRIVATE DISEASES,

at his old quarters, No 5 Beaver-street, ALBANY, N. Y.

The great success attending the use of Doctor L.'s remedies in secret diseases, and the many remarkable cures daily effected by him in recent as well as old lingering attacks, is conclusive evidence that the well

SICK AND UNFORTUNATE

can do no better than consult the Doctor, whose whole time is devoted to the exclusive treatment of this much neglected branch of practice.

LOOK AT THIS.

Dr. Lispenard cures recent cases of disease in from three to six days, and chronic or long standing diseases in a very short period of time, without the use of Mercury, without the loss of time, change of diet, or detention from

DAILY EMPLOYMENT.

In Syphillis, Gonorrhœa, Gleet, Strictures, Enlargement of the Testicles and Cords, Bubo, Chancres Pimples and Scaly Eruptions, Sore Throats and Noses, Chancres on the tongue, tender shin bones, and diseases of the skin, and impure blood. Dr. Lispenard's remedies are above all praise, and frequently cure when all others had failed

EVEN TO RELIEVE.

More than 5,000 patients have during the past year experienced the benefit of the Doctor's extraordinary skill in treating secret diseases—among which, diseases of the bladder and kidneys have formed a goodly proportion.

YOUNG MEN,

who by indulging in secret habits have injured their health and prostrated their intellectual faculties, and thereby deprived themselves of the pleasure of married life, should consult Dr. Lispenard without a moment's delay. Hundreds have been restored to health, society and friends, under my peculiar mode of treatment, although vast sums of money had been sacrificed without any benefit. My remedy for this disease is pleasant to take, has no offensive smell and

CURES WITHOUT FAIL.

Persons so unfortunate as to be diseased, although they may have visited half a dozen Doctors, and had medicine sent them a dozen times with no benefit, would exhibit wisdom by making their case known to that FRIEND OF THE SICK, Dr. Lispenard, who never charges for advice and warrants all his cures. The sick are often at a loss where to apply for relief, AND TIS NO WONDER, as hundreds stand ready to plunder the unfortunate victim of PRIVATE DISEASE, or secret habits, with but one thought for his life and health. All thus deceived will find a friend, and moderate charges, in consulting the Doctor who USES NO MERCURY and cures every time.

N. B.—Persons from a distance when visiting the city in search of a physician and friend, will be fortunate if they succeed in escaping the many dens of imposition, conducted by unprincipled men, destitute of character knowledge or name, who fleece the unfortunate victim of disease of his hard earned money, and his remaining health. Patients who have no acquaintance in the city should make inquiry of some respectable citizen, or the editor or proprietor of any of the city papers, to ascertain who is the most reliable physician to apply to.

FEMALE DISEASES.

Dr. Lispenard from an experience seldom or never enjoyed by any other medical man, is enable to treat, with every hope of success, all and every variety of Female Complaints—with safe and pleasant remedies—and has without doubt cured within the past five years more than 3000 females afflicted with diseases of the Bladder, Womb, &c. &c. Ladies afflicted with suppression or stoppage of their monthly turns, will recollect that Dr. Lispenard is still the sole American agent for

DR. VICHOP'S

FEMALE MONTHLY PILLS.

The unprecedented sale of more than 15,000 boxes of these excellent Pills, and the good results which always follow their use, is conclusive evidence of their utility in certain stoppages, &c. Caution—Married Ladies in certain delicate situations should not use them—for reasons see directions with each box. Price $1. Sent by mail to all parts of the world.

Married Persons and those about to Marry, should enclose 12½ cents post paid to Dr. Lispenard, and obtain a copy of his Marriage Guide, or Private Treatise, a bewitching little work of nearly 100 pages, illustrated. Every thing that married persons can desire or wish to know, is here explained. Persons who from poverty or sickness have no desire to increase their family, will find necessary instruction in the Marriage Guide. One copy 12½ cents; 5 copies 50 cts; 12 copies $1—mailed free to any part of the world.

N. B.—Patients treated by letter, and medicines sent, with full directions for use, to the writer's address. All communications destroyed or returned.

No mercury used in any case, and all cures warranted.

No boys or precocious students allowed: timed persons take notice.

Friends of Dr. L. when recommending patients to our care, will recollect our number, 5 Beaver st., three doors from South Broadway.

Hospital open from 7 A. M., to 9 P. M., and on Sundays from 1 to 4 P. M.

No charge for advice, although no medicine may be desired.

Good board and private rooms for those who desire to remain in the city.

THE WONDER OF THE WORLD.

DEVINES' COMPOUND

PITCH LOZENGE,

A sure and pleasant Remedy for Colds, Coughs, Croup, Whooping Cough, Asthma, and if lungs enough are left to sustain life, A CERTAIN CURE FOR CONSUMPTION, safe for the Infant or the Invalid, in any stage of weakness.

"The statements that consumption cannot be cured, has destroyed more lives than the disease itself."—[Dr. Warren.

Read the following, which to a candid mind places this "Great Remedy," like "Cæsar's wife" above suspicion."

TO THE PUBLIC!

We, the undersigned, citizens of Lee, Mass., are acquainted with Mr. Devines, the Proprietor and Manufacturer of Devines' Compound Pitch Lozenge and from what we know of it ourselves and have learned from others of its beneficial effects, in cases where it has been used, give it as our opinion that it is a valuable remedy in diseases for which it is recommended and is worthy of public confidence. A. G. Hulburt, Leonard Church, F. G. Taylor, Wm. Taylor, S. A. Bliss, S. A. Hulburt, Josephus Crafts, T. P. Eldridge.

If any individual is to be pitied, and needs sympathy, it is the consumptive—always expecting to get well, and yet the painful evidence of decay almost "makes the inner soul shrink with the outer flesh"

"Some bloom as roses bloom, and live as roses live,
A single morning space."

While others, in more mature life—by some imprudence and a slight cold neglected—in the hectic flush—the painful cough.

"The prints of their departing steps appears."

BUT HERE IS HOPE! Mr Wm. Devines, the original inventor and manufacturer of the Pitch Lozenge, under Providence, was raised to perfect health by the use of these Lozenges alone, after he was pronounced by his physician to be almost dying with consumption.

This fact is generally known in Berkshire County and is the neighborhood talk, and wonder in Lee, and in Great Barrington, Mass.

From Dr. Brown, of Lee, Mass.

This certifies that I have made use of Devines' Compound Pitch Lozenge for cold and cough, and found immediate relief. Therefore I would recommend it to the public as being a safe and sovereign remedy. H. C. BROWN.

MORSE'S

COMPOUND SYRUP OF

Yellow Dock Root.

THIS is a Purely Vegetable Compound, scientifically prepared from the best Roots and Herbs of the Materia Medica, and has gained a universal reputation for the following effects, viz: Regulating and Strengthening the Liver and Digestive Organs, and Cleansing the Stomach and Bowels, and curing all Billious Diseases, Liver Complaints, Dyspepsia, Indigestion, Costiveness, Piles Headache, Fever and Ague, Jaundice, Nausea, Loss of Appetite, &c., and causing the food to nourish and support every part, PURIFYING THE BLOOD, and thus curing all Humors, Cutaneous Eruptions, Scrofula, Salt Rheum, Erysipelas, Scald Head, Canker, Pimples on the face, Blotches, Ulcers, Tumors, Mercurial Diseases, Cancers, &c. Regulating the secretory Organs, and by enabling them to perform their proper functions, preventing and curing many painful and dangerous diseases; Strengthening and Quieting the nervous system, thus allaying Nervous Irritation, and curing all Di eases of the Nerves, as Hysteria, Neuralgia, Cramps, &c.

It is unrivalled in the cure of all FEMALE COMPLAINTS, as weakness, general debility, Irregularity, Obstructions, Swelling of the Feet, Limbs, Joints, &c., caused by weakness; also, Lung and Throat Complaints, as Colds, Coughs, Asthma, Consumption, &c., also, Dropsy.

Having made use of the Compound Syrup of Yellow Dock Root, prepared by C. Morse and Co., either ourselves or in our families and finding it to be a very salutary and effectual preparation, we do most cheerfully recommend it to the public as a very valuable medicine.

E Bourne, Esq., Cashier National Bank, Providence, R. I.; A. W. Spencer, Esq., Cashier Lime Rock Bank, do do Rev. William Phillips, Rev, J. B. Richmond, C. S Jones, editor Providence Gen. Advt., Wm. Field, M. W. G. M. Cyrus Fisher, M. E. H. P. James Hutchinson, G. S. Dea., V. J. Bates, Doct Benj. Colby, and one hundred others of the most respectable families of Providence.

This certifies that I have for a number of years been acquainted with the composition and mode of manufacture of Morse's Compound Syrup of Yellow Dock Root. I have also been acquainted with its modus operandi in disease, and can say that in all respects it is admirably calculated to remedy that class of Diseases for which it was designed. It is especially valuable in Indigestion and all its attendant symptoms, it excites to healthy action the Liver, removes Torpor, and inactivity of this organ, and stimulates healthy action in all the system. As a Depurator or purifier of the Blood it has no superior.

Sheep Shearing Festival.

The statistical report of the Sheep Shearing of A. L. Bingham, of Cornwall, Vt, which was given in our notes last week, though in itself very important, is not the whole, or the most generally attractive part of a farmer's festival. We are well aware that very many are ready to say that private enterprise and Yankee shrewdness lie at the bottom of all such gatherings, and we admit the fact; but after all results farther reaching than individual profit, grow ultimately out of them. The public are reliably informed of the exact yield of wool from a flock of pure bred sheep, and thus have the means of knowing the real profit to be derived from them. The tendency of all accurate experiments is to promote care in the management of business, and to stimulate exertion. And no occupation is so much in need of an impulse in this direction as farming, and nothing will be so effectual in this respect as actual example. Private success always prepares the way for a more extended trial, and the efforts of a single individual to promote his own interest, have very frequently resulted in the general adoption of measures calculated to benefit the entire public.

Another reason why these occasions are productive of good, is that farmers are brought together by them, and made to feel that they are a body of men having common interests and aims, common experience and trials, and also common pleasures and rewards. The lords of the soil are disposed to foster a kind of isolated spirit, and to feel that every man lives for himself, instead of claiming to be as they might be, a body confederates, acting for the greatest good of the greatest number. It should be the maxim, of every agriculturist to make farming the most profitable and honorable employment, and his farm the best one in the land. This spirit is fostered by the meeting of farmers from different parts of the country, the exchange of views, and a comparison of success. This more remote effect is not to be lost sight of, and everything which tends to unite conflicting interests, to strengthen bonds of union and create new ones, should receive the countenance of our farmers. Those who attend such festivities from mere curiosity often carry away an impression which will be as lasting as time. We therefore fully agree with the sentiment that the Sheep Shearing Festival is founded in correct notions, and may be made useful in promoting the wool growing interists.

Hyde's Hotel, the place of holding this Festival, has no farther attraction in point of location, than that it is in one of the lovely valleys which abound in Vermont, where green pastures and still waters, in pleasing combination with cultivated fields, peaceful residences, and church spires, make up all the landscape. It affords the comforts of a quiet, secluded, country home, with the luxury of an excellent table, and the greater one of pure air. Mr. Hyde was born a hotel keeper, and without seeming to have will of his own, has peculiarly happy manner of pleasing every one in his own way.

The shearing took place in a building near the hotel, and the monotonous click of the shears was often relieved by a band of music in attendance, and also by the singing of the "Amphions"—quartette company who have some celebrity as vocalists. The mechanical part of the shearing was completed about two o'clock in the afternoon of Thursday, June 2d., after which the audience assembled around the veranda of the hotel, upon which the speakers and the singers were seated. The veranda and the rooms within, hearing, were crowded with ladies, who received very unqualified compliments from the speakers. Edgar A. Ormsbee, Esq., of Rutland, Vermont, announced that a song had been written for the occasion by the celebrated Vermont poet, John G. Saxe, which he would deacon to the audience, verse by verse, in the good old fashioned way, and then the Amphions, assisted by Prof. Wood and family of Albany, would sing it. The song was admirably adapted to the occasion, full of beautiful allusions and humor, and we regret that we have failed to receive the copy of it which was promised us, as it would add as much to this description, as it did to the exercises. In the absence we are compelled to trust entirely to recollection, and cannot do justice to the speakers.

After the singing of the first verse, Mr. Samuel Greeley of Boston, Mass., an elderly gentleman who has retained the freshness and vivacity of youth in the maturity of age, made some happy remarks, in which he alluded to the beautiful scenery of Vermont, the intelligence and prosperity of her inhabitants, the opulence of her native resources and the importance of developing them. The value of mental and moral culture was made the subject of remark to the young. Everything Mr. Greeley said was listened to with marked attention, and he sat down amid hearty cheers.

Judge Kerse of Keesville, N. Y., next spoke of the early history of the state, and of the rapid progress which had been made in agriculture, in the facilities for transacting business, and for acquiring education, and ended with an appropriate sentiment.

A verse of the song which paid a fitting tribute to the beauty and excellence of the "Green Mountain Girls," was replied to by Mr. Pixley of the Amphions in a manner which showed that he was well versed in the beauties of female character, while his humorous language freed him from the charge of being excessively sentimental.

Solon Burroughs Esq. of Vergennes, Vt. responded to the choice compliment given to the Morgan and Black Hawk horses:—Every state has a right to be vain of something, and Vermont may be of her horses. They were known in every part of Union, and every Vermont boy and girl, youth and maiden, man and woman, knew all about their merits. The speaker introduced some capital strokes of wit in his allusion to the enthusiasm which prevails in the state with regard to the "fast horses."

T. C. Peters, Editor of the Wool Grower, made an amusing speech, in which praise and caricature were mingled. He acknowledged the excellence of Vermont horses and sheep; but he stigmatised certain individuals who hailed from the State as "sharpers." He said that people out west were afraid to trust them, and advised the leaving off the use of "Cornwall finish" and the practice of honesty. Mr. Peters spoke in so good natured a spirit, that no one could take offence, and closed by giving farmers and their sons and daughters very sound advice.

"The Golden Fleece," was the theme of one of Mr. Saxe's verses, the mythology of which was aptly explained by Edgar A. Ormsbee, Esq., who made a practical and impressive application of the idea it symbolises. Jason was obliged to turn his attention to breaking cattle and plowing the land, before he could recover the lost treasure and win himself renown.

The two other verses of the song, were replied to by a member of the Amphions, and by Prof. Wood of Albany, but for want of the song itself, we were unable to report their remarks. The song was well sung, and received with hearty cheers by the audience. Immediately after, the following toasts were read by Solon Burroughs Esq.

Vermont—The first daughter of the old thirteen; she will never disgrace the family.

Old Addison—Noted for her improvement of stock, may her wealth keep pace with her enterprise.

Rutland County—May her agriculture advance with her increasing advantages.

Rutland and Addison—Divided in name only, they are united in interest. May they become as famous for farms as they are distinguished for natural beauty!

The Improvers of Stock—Like inventors of machinery, at first hooted at, they are always applauded afterwards.

The Sheep Shearing Festival—Founded in correct notions, may it become an established holiday.

A. L. Bingham—Though absorbed in wool, anything but woolen. He cannot be counterfeited by "Cornwall Finish."

John A. Taintor, Solomon W. Jewett and George Campbell, Importers of French Merinos—Posterity will award the title of benefactors of their race.

"Our Native Hills"—Every where to be honored, but first and foremost the "Hill" of Black Hawks.

"Our Host,—Like old wine, age improves his flavor and mellows his temper. His guests never want 'Heidsick.' (Hydesick.)

The Albany Cultivator and The Country Gentleman—The first, with its points worn brighter by age, stirs deeply the soil and the mind—the second, its able coadjutor, is ever welcome at our farms and firesides.

This last sentiment was briefly responded to by Joseph Warren, who thought the entire Agricultural Press should have received the compliment. Agricultrul Journals have kept paco with the improvements of the day, and are becoming more and more important to the farmer. The stability of farming interests demands a like character in the publications which advocate and influence them.

Mr. Bingham then announced that the farmers interest in the rearing of sheep, would at the State Fair, organize a "Vermont Sheep Shearing Club," for the purpose of accurately testing the relative merits of all the different breeds; and the audience, who had given patient attention for more than two hours, dispersed to see the display of horses, and to their homes; all seeming well satisfied with this pioneer farmer's festival.

Good For Farmers' Wives.

Fanny Fern, in the Boston Olive Branch, makes the following sensible inquiries and suggestions, which we commend to the country readers of The Organ:

Can anybody tell why country people so universally and pertinaciously persist in living in the rear of the house? Can any body tell why the door and windows are never opened, save on Fourth of July and Thanksgiving time? Why Zechariah, and Timothy, and Jonathan, and the old farmer himself, must go round the house, in order to get into it? Why the whole family (obvious of six empty rooms,) take their "vapor bath," and their meals, simultaneously, in the vicinity of a red hot cooking range, in the dogs days? Why the village artist need paint the roof, and spout, and window frames bright crimson and the doors the color of a mermaid's tresses? Why the detestable sunflower (which I can never forgive Tom Moore for noticing) must always flaunt in a garden? Why the graceful, plain poplar, fit emblem of a stiff old bachelor, is preferred to the swaying elm, or drooping willow or majestic horse chestnut?

I should like to pull down the green paper window curtains, and hang up some of snowy muslin. I should like to throw wide open the hall door and let the wind play through. I should like to go out in the woods, and collect fresh, sweet, wild flowers to arrange in a vase, in place of the dejected dried grasses, and old maid "everlastings." I should like to show Zechariah how to nail together some bits of boards, for an embryo lounge. I should like to stuff it with cotton, and cover it with neat "patch." I should like to cushion all the chairs, after the same fashion. Then I should like, when the white haired old farmer came panting up the road at twelve o'clock, with his scythe hanging over his arm, to usher him into the cool, comfortable room; set his bowl of bread and milk before him, and after he had discussed it, coax him, (instead of tilting back on the hind legs of a hard chair,) to take a ten minutes nap on my "model" sofa, while I kept my eye on the clouds, to see that no thunder shower, played the mischief with the hay.

I should like to place a few common sense, practical books on the table, with some of our fine daily and weekly papers. You may smile; but these inducements, and the comfortable and pleasant air of the apartment, would bring the family oftener together after the day's toils; by degrees they would lift the covers of the books, and turn over the newspapers. Constant interchange of thought, feeling and opinions, with discussions of the important and engrossing questions of of the day, would of course necessarily follow.

The village tavern-keeper would probably frown upon it; but I will venture to predict for the inmates of the farm-house a growing love for "home," and an added air of intelligence and refinement, of which they themselves might possibly be unconscious.

The Lily's Love—A Fable.

BY MRS. ELIZABETH J. EAMES.

Through the depths of a secluded and beautiful valley, there ran in ancient times a broad, blue stream, clear as crystal, and shining as the fabled mirror in the Halls of the Fairies.

Among the flowers ("for which the poet hath no name,") that grew on the green borders of that stream, there stood, apart from the others, and the fairest of the fair, a snow-white Lily. Not far from her, clad in a splendid robe, that made him the admiration of all flowers, there dwelt a tall, handsome Tulip: while 'neath a leafy bower, in the midst, the Angel of the flowers had taken up his abode.

Now the Angel loved all of his blooming proteges, but the Tulip and the Lily were his special favorites. These it was his custom to visit every day.

So early one fine summer morning, just as the sun was rising amid clouds of silver and rosy purple, and while yet the dew thickgemmed the grass-blades, the Angel took his way to the Tulip's dwelling.

After a long chat with him (for flowers could talk in those days, though we doubt whether they improved the privilege to the degree that mortals do now,) the Angel proceeded to visit the fair young Lily. Sure the Lily was not in general a sleepy thing, but on this eventful morning her long satin leaves were closely folded, her head drooped, and her pearly lids hung languidland heavily, as tho' she had kept vigil.

The Angel was touched and grieved at this unlooked-for position in his best beloved child, and he began casting about in his mind for the cause. "Ah," said he, at length, clearing his perplexed brow, "I have it now. My poor Lily loves her neighbor the Tulip, and she is suffering 'concealment, like a worm, to feed upon her [not damask, gentle reader, but] delicate cheek.' The message I bring her this morning will gladden her young heart."

So, gently touching her with the tip of his pretty silver wand, he woke her, and whispered in her ear the Tulip's pompous declaration of love.

Never a look or word returned the Lily; but she grew paler than ever, and bowed her slender head lower over the stream that reflected her pure image.

"Why answerest thou not?" asked the Angel; "the Tulip is a lively, sweet spoken gentleman—he will love thee better than all the flowers he will be fond and true; he will cherish thee ever, and shield thy form from the stormy tide, the wind and the cloudy, weather. Speak silent one, dost thou prefer his suit?"

Moved by a strong and sudden impulse, the timid Lily modestly but faintly replied: "Gracious guardian, the gay and statdly Tulip would soon grow weary of a companion like myself; and though he now honors, the poor Lily, with fine compliments and flattering professions, it would not be long before he would forsake her for a more beautiful love. I have seen the red rose and the brilliant poppy, the humble violet and the lowly mignonette, alike made glad by the Tulip's changeful smile. And would he be true to the pallid flower, that bends to the tranquil stream below, or the lonely hour and the desolate heart would be the deserted Lily's portion. Dear, indulgent guardian, I pray thee let me remain as I am."

A change came over the spirit of the Angel's dream. "Dost thou love another?" he inquired; "tell me—the whole truth, fair lily; where doth he abide?"

"If thou will come again at twilight," faltered the Lily, "I will show thee his home."

Alas for the Lily! She had gazed on the glorious star that rose each twilight over the still water till a subtle pleasure, unknown before, fostered her inmost soul, and pervaded her being—till she dreamed of an existence, spiritual and lovely as its own, far removed from this dull earth and its coinbid cares. The face of nature was no longer fair to her eyes as in the days of old; the gushing music of the streamlet had no response in her ear; and the fragrance that breathed from leaf and flower, after the warm summer rain, wafted no incense to her. It was the bright beauty of the star, which alone constituted her worship and she gazed until she dreamed and believed that he would indeed stoop from his high estate, to look lovingly on her.

The sun almost dead in the evening sky, found the lily gazing with a look of rapture, upon the glorious star, which was now in the zenith, surrounded by a halo of purple, with here and there a violet tinted cloud reposing in delicate beauty. One single star, large, lustrous, and serene, (like a gem of great price on the brow of the beautiful,) rested on its high throne. The Angel stood at the Lily's side. "And now, thy lover, sweet Lily."

The Lily lifted her meek blue eye to the deepning Heaven, and with tremulous finger, pointed to the star, whose soft silvery rays shone so wooingly on her lovely face.

Slowly the Angel turned his lifted eye from the star downward to the Lily. "Unthinking child," he sorrowfully said—"the glittering shrine at which thou kneelest is higher than thou canst reach. Alas for thy simplicity! thou knowest not that a star can be as heartless and inconsistent as a Tulip, or a man. There is not a leaflet on the tree-top, not a drop of evening dew, not a golden sand sparkling on the sea shore, not a pearl gleaming in the deep waters, but hath felt the magic influence of his faithless beams! Wait thou till the storm's cloud and the driving rain shall come—till the smooth stream is ruffled, and thy frail frame is shaken by the rude night blast. Oh then, fair Lily, he will not come from his fair home in the sky to shield and save thee."

Alas, for the too confiding Lily! she heeded not the warning.

When suddenly the black cloud arose, when the tempest raged, and the wave rose high, she lifted her soft eyes, in the beautiful security of trusting love, to the star. But she looked in vain—his glorious light was shrouded from her presence; and washed by the whelming billow, she shrank 'neath the stormy tide! and the Tulip—he flirted as usual with every pretty flower, and the star—he rose the next eve, to warm, with his faithless beams, another believing Lily!

The Wrong Man.

Justly so, reader! A gentlemen of this country once took a notion that he would keep a Hotel in a neighboring village, and not being able to build a very fine house, he built a log cabin, which was very small, and contained two beds. One single and the other double. So one night a Yankee came in very much inebriated, called for a bed, and the landlord put him in the single bed. Directly an Irishman came in, called for loging, and went into the house; he had imbibed so much of the morning dew, he could think of but one thing, and that was, he had promised a friend to meet him at a certain place (the distance of which was twelve miles,) and charged the landlord particularly, to wake him up early next morning. So he retired to bed. Directly a colored gentleman rode up, and asked to stay all night. The landlord studied some moments about permitting him to stay, as he had but two beds, and a white man in each of them. So at last he thought to himself that the negro's money was not to be despised, so he concluded to let the darkey stay, and put him in bed with Pat. After the negro had gone to bed some time, he found out that the Irishman was intoxicated, and concluded he would play him a trick. So the negro rose and took a burnt cork and blacked the Irishman as black as the old gentlman who inhabits the regions below.

Next morning the Irishman, turning about in the bed, discovered that he had a bedfellow: so he raised up and looked at the negro, and falling back, went to sleep again. Directly the landlord went into the room to wake him as he had promised, and Pat got out of bed and was dressing in a great hurry, when, happening to cast his eye on his hand he discovered that it was black, he said to the landlord: "Landlord is that hand black?" The landlord told him it was. He looked at the other, and saw that it was black; he stood and looked with perfect astonishment and said: "Landlord 'taint possible my face is black, is it?"

"Yes" the landlord told him.

After standing and looking with astonishment for some moments a new idea popped into his head, and he said to the landlord, (looking at him with a pleasing countanance:)

"I have just found out the mistake—you have waked the negro, not me!" and Pat jumped into bed again, feeling satified that the landlord had not waked him.

☞The Catholic Bishop of Massachusetts, says the New Haven Daily Palladium, is understood to be a warm friend of the public schools of Massachusetts. He was educated in them himself, and understands the subject better than clergymen from abroad, who, however familiar with their church policy, have not a clear view of the peculiar character of this Government and its Constitution.

☞The Woonsocket Patriot editor makes merry over the mistake of an old Shanghae hen of his, that has been 'setting' for five weeks upon—two round stones and a piece of brick! "Her anxiety," quoth he, "is no greater than ours to know what she will hatch. If it proves a brick yard—that hen is not for sale."

From the New-York Tribune

Mr. Charles Astor Bristed, our city's distinguished representative at the high Court of Fashion, who writes to The Home Journal from "Numero 20, Rue Barbet de Jouy," that he can find in Paris no gloves fit to wear, though he has "not a bad hand," and his glove bill exceeds $400 per annum, appears to have been fallen in with during his travels by our dear countryman, J. Ross Browne, who, in his "Yusef," just published, daguerreotypes him as follows:

"When I first saw him, he was on the way from Florence to Milan, in quest of a pair of pantaloons of a particular style. No man in Europe understood cutting except Pantaletti.—There was a set in Pantaletti that made him indispensable. He had tried the Parisian tailors, but they were deficient in the knees. It was his intention to proceed at once from Milan to Leipsic for boots; the Germans were the only people who brought boots to perfection, and decidedly the best were to be had at Leipsic. He expected to be obliged to return to Paris for shirts; there was a set in the collar of the Parisian shirts that suited him. His medicines he always purchased in London; his cigars he was forced to import from Havana; his Latakia tobacco he was compelled to purchase himself in Smyrna, and this was partly the occasion of his present visit. As to wines, it was nonsense to undertake to drink any but the pure Johannisberg—which he generally saw bottled on the Rhine every summer, in order to avoid imposition. His winters he spent chiefly in Spain; it was the only country where good cream was to be had; but the coffee was inferior, and he sometimes had to cross the Pyrenees for want of a good cup of coffee. No mode of traveling suited him exactly—in fact, he disliked traveling. Riding he hated, because it jolted him; walking, because it tired him; the snow, because it was cold; the sun, because it was warm: Rome, because it was damp; Nice, because it was dry; Athens, because it was dusty. (By the way, I disliked Athens myself, chiefly on that account; Bimby was right there.) But it was impossible for him to live in America again. What could any man of taste do there? No pictures, no ruins, no society, no opera, no classical associations—nothing at all, except business, and all sorts of business he despised. It was a ridiculous as well as a vulgar way of spending life. In fact, the only decent people he had met with were the French; a man might contrive to exist a while in Paris. Not that he approved altogether of the French language: it wanted depth and richness; the only language worthy of a man of sense was the Sanscrit. As soon as he had suited himself with boots at Leipsic, he was going to perfect himself in Sanscrit at the University at Berlin; after which he hoped to recover the effects of hard study by a tour through Bavaria, which was the only country on the face of the earth where the beer was fit to drink."

Rather Inquisitive.

We heard a friend relate the accompanying incident the other day, with not a little zest, and to the amusement of a good many by-standers:

Jumping into an old fashioned stage-coach, last month, in company with nine others, to jostle over ten miles of unfinished road, between Pittsburg and Philadelphia, I was very much amused with the following characteristic dialogue between a regular question-asking 'Down-Easter, and a high-heeled Southerner. We were scarcely seated, before our Yankee began:

'Travelling East, I expect?'

'Yes, sir.'

'Goin' to Philadelphia, I reckon?'

'No, sir.'

'Oh, ah; to New York, maybe?'

'Yes, sir.'

'Calc'latin' to buy goods, I presumo?'

'No, sir.'

'Never ben there before, I wouldn't wonder?'

'No, sir; never.'

'New York is a wonderful place.'

'Such is my impression, sir.'

'Got letters, I expect?'

'Yes sir; I am provided with letters of introduction.'

'Wouldn't mind showin' you round myself a spell, if you wanted.'

'I thank you, sir; but I shall not require your assistance.'

This last remark of the polite but reserved stranger, was a poser; and the 'inquisitor' fell back a moment to take breath, and change his tactics. The ball suppressed smile upon the faces of the other passengers soon aroused the Yankee to still further exertions; he began again:

'Stranger, perhaps you are not aware, how almighty hard it is for a Yankee to control his curiosity. You'll please excuse me, but I really would like to know your name, and residence, and the business you follow. I expect you ain't ashamed of either of 'em; so now won't you just obleege me?'

This last appeal brought out our Southern friend, who, rising up to the extremest height allowed by the coach, and throwing back his shoulders, replied;

'My name is General Andrew Washington. I reside in the State of Mississippi.—I am a gentleman of leisure, and I am glad to be able to say, of extensive means. I have heard much of New York, and I am now on my way to see it; and if I like it as I am led to expect, I intend to—buy it!'

Then, was heard a shout of stentorian laughter throughout the stage-coach; and this was the last of that conversation!

CHAPTER 174.

AN ACT in relation to laying out private roads, and discontinuing public highways.

Passed April 12, 1853.

The People of the State of New York, represented in Senate and Assembly, do enact as follows:

§ 1. An application for a private road shall be made in writing, specifying its width and location, courses and distances, and the names of the owners and occupants of the land through which the road is proposed to be laid out.

§ 2. The commissioner or commissioners to whom such application shall be made, shall thereupon appoint as early a day as the convenience of the parties interested will allow, when at his office a jury will be selected for the purpose of determining upon the necessity of said road, and to assess the damages by reason of the opening thereof.

§ 3. Such commissioner or commissioners shall thereupon deliver to the applicant a copy of such application, to which be added a notice of the time and place appointed for the selection of such jury, addressed to the owners and occupants of said land.

§ 4. The applicant, on receiving such copy and notice, shall on the same day, or the next day thereafter, cause such copy and notice to be served upon the persons to whom it is addressed, by delivering to each of them who reside in the same town a copy thereof, or in case of his absence, by leaving the same at his dwelling house, and upon such as reside elsewhere, by depositing in the post office a copy thereof to each addressed to them respectively at their places of residence, and paying the postage thereon, or in case of infant owners, by like services upon their parent or guardian.

§ 5. At such time and place, on the proof of the service of such notice, such commissioners, or in a town where there are more than one, either of them shall present a list of the names of eighteen persons, residents of the said town, and qualified to act as jurors in courts of records, who are in no wise of kin to such applicant, owner or occupant, or either of them, and not interested in such lands.

§ 6. The owners or occupants of such lands may strike off from such list any number of names not exceeding six; the applicant may in like manner strike off six names or less, and the persons whose names are not stricken off, or if more than six names are left on the list, shall be the jury for the purpose aforesaid.

§ 7. The commissioner shall then appoint some convenient time and place for the jury to meet, and be sworn in the premises, and shall summon them accordingly.

§ 8. If at the time and place last mentioned, all the persons named as such jury shall meet, they shall be sworn well and truly to determine as to the necessity of said road, and to assess the damages by reason of the opening thereof; if one or more of such six persons shall not appear, the commissioner shall summon of the bystanders or others, so many free from all legal objection, as will be sufficient to make the number six, who shall be sworn as aforesaid.

§ 9. Such commissioner is hereby authorized to swear the jury, and administer any oath necessary to carry this act into effect.

§ 10. The jury shall view the premises, and, after hearing the allegations of the parties, and such witnesses as they may produce, shall proceed to deliberate and make up their verdict, and if they shall determine that the proposed road is necessary, they shall assess the damages to the person or persons through whose land the same is to pass, and deliver their verdict in writing to the commissioner.

§ 11. If the necessity of such private road has been occasioned by the alteration or discontinuance of a public highway running through the lands belonging to the same person or persons, through which the private road is proposed to be opened, the jury shall take into consideration the value of the road so discontinued, and the benefit resulting to such person or persons by reason of such discontinuance, and shall deduct the same from the damages assessed for the opening and laying out of such private road.

§ 12. The commissioners shall annex to such verdict, the application mentioned in the first section of this act, and hand the same to the town clerk, who shall file the same, and the commissioner or commissioners shall lay out and make a record of said road, as described in the petition of the applicant.

§ 13. In case of accident shall prevent any of the proceedings required by this act to be done on the day assigned, the proceedings may be adjourned to some other day, and the commissioner shall publish announce such adjournment.

...s assessed by the jury, ... the party for whose bene... ...s laid, before the said road shall ...ed or used. But in case the asses ...of said town shall certify that the dis... ...ontinuence of a public highway, such dam... ages shall be paid by said town, and refun... ...ded to the applicant.

§ 15. Whenever any public highway, or any part thereof, by reason of alterations made therein, or by the opening of a new road, or in any other way, shall be abandoned by the public, and is no longer used as a public road, the commissioners or commissioner of highways shall file in the town clerk's office of the town, a description in writing signed by them or him of the road so abandoned, and the same shall thereupon be discontinued.

§ 16. Whenever a public or private road shall be laid along the division line between the lands of two or more persons, and wholly upon one side of said line, and the lands upon both sides of said division line shall be cultivated or improved, then and in that case the person owning or occupying the lands joining said road shall be paid for building and maintaining such additional fence as he may be required to build or maintain by reason of the laying out and opening said road which said damages shall be ascertained and determined in the same manner that other damages are now ascertained and determined in the laying highways or private roads.

§ 17. The act entitled "An act in relation to laying out private roads," passed March eighth, eighteen hundred and forty-eight, and the tenth section of the act entitled an act to amend an act entitled 'An act to reduce the number of town officers and town and county expenses, and to prevent abuses in auditing town and county accounts,' passed May tenth eighteen hundred and forty five, passed December fourteenth, eightden hundred and forty-seven, are hereby repealed.

§ 18. This act shall take effect immediately.

CHAPTER 185.

AN ACT to provide for the care and instruction of idle and truant children.—Passed April 12, 1853.

The People of the State of New York, represented in Senate and Assembly do enact as follows:

§ 1. If any child between the ages of five and fourteen years, having sufficient bodily health and mental capacity to attend the public schools, shall be found wandering in the streets or lanes of any city or incorporated village, idle and truant, without any lawful occupation, any justice of the peace, police magistrates or justices of the district courts in the city of New York, on complaint thereof by any citizen on oath, shall cause such child to be brought before him for examination, and shall also cause the parent guardian or master of such child if he or she have any, to be notified to attend such examination. And if, on such examination, the complaint shall be satisfactorily established, such jtstice shall require the parent, guardian or master to enter into an engagement in writing, to the corperate authorities of the city or village, that he will restrain such child from so waudering about, will keep him or her on his own premises, or in some lawful occupation, and will cause such child to be sent to some school at least four months in each year, until he or she becomes fourteen years old. And such justice may, in his discretion, require security for the faithful preformance of such engagement. If such child has no parent, guardian or master, or none can be found, or if such parent, guardian or master refuses or neglect, within a reasonable time, to enter into such engagement, and to give such security if required, such justice shall, by warrant under his hand, commit such child to such place as shall be provided for his or her reception, as hereinafter directed.

§ 2. If such engagement be habitually or intentionally violated, an action may be brought thereon by the overseers of the poor or either of them, of such city or village, in the name of the corporate authorities thereof, and on proof of such habitual or intentional violation, the plaintiff shall recover therein a penalty of not more than fifty dollars, with costs. And thereupon, the magistrate or court before whom such recovery shall be had, shall, by warrant, commit such child to the place so provided for his or her reception as aforesaid.

§ 3. The corporate authorities of every city and incorporated village shall provide some suitable place for the reception of every child that may be so committed, and for the employment of such child in some useful occupation, and his or her instruction in the elementary branches of an English education, and for his or her proper support and clothing. Every child so received shall be kept in such place until discharged by the overseers of the poor or the comissioners of the almshouse of such city or village, and may be bound out as an apprentice by them or either of them, with the consent of any justice of the peace or any of the aldermen of the city, or any trustee of the incorporated village where he may be, in the same manner, for the same periods, and subject to the same provisions all respects, as are contained in the first article and fourth title of the eighth chapter and second part of the Revised Statutes, with respect to children whose parents have become chargeable on any city or town.

§ 4. The expenses of providing and maintaining such place for the reception, clothing, support and instruction of such children, shall be defrayed in the same manner as charges for the support of paupers chargeable upon such city or village; and the corporate authorities of every city and village shall certify to the board of supervisors of the county at their annual meetings, the amount necessary for said purposes, which amount the said supervisors shall cause to be levied and collected as part of the taxes for the support of the poor, chargeable to such city or village.

§ 5. It shall be the duty of all police officers and constables who shall find any child in the condition described in the first section of this act, to make complaint to a justice of the peace as provided in the said section.

§ 6. The fees of justices for services performed under this act, shall be the same as allowed by law in cases of vagrancy, and shall be paid by the city or village in which they were rendered.

§ 7. This act shall take effect immediately.

The 4th at Essex.

Though not as large as was expected, the day at this place was very agreeably spent. Neither the Sons, nor Rechabites took part in the ceremonies owing we suppose to the fact that they are preparing for a great demonstration on the 13th. There were, however, a large number of people of all ages, and sexes out to hear the addresses, which were delivered in a beautiful grove just out of the village where seats were prepared for the occasion, and a speaker's stand erected, decorated with evergreen and the American flag. Prayer was made by the Rev, Mr. Meeker, the Decleration of Independence was read by Palmer E. Havens Esqr. and Orations were pronounced by Jas. B. Ross, and Wm. D. Ross, which were listened to attentively, were frequently applauded, and highly complimented on all sides.

The committee were disappointed in the non appearance of the military from other towns so that in this part of the attractions of the day they were compelled, very much to their regret, to disappoint others, those belonging in Essex only being present. Further additions to the military were looked for till afternoon, and their appearance was not given up till the last moment. In the expectation of their arrival the Address to have been made to them by the Editor was deferred till after dinner, when, not having had any increase to the number of military present, a few remarks only were deemed appropriate.—Not contented with this, however, our friends called us out on the steps of the Hotel where we again spoke briefly by way of keeping the ball rolling. So far as we are personally concerned this dissappointment was a matter of no sort of consequence and we assure our friends that we enjoyed the day heartily and had a first rate good time, and we have no doubt this is the language of every one present. *

We had a delightful ride down and back, renewed many old acquaintances, made several new ones, and were gratified with all we saw, and heard.

The ladies of Essex opened a Saloon during the day for the sale of Ice Cream, &c. the receipts for which were to be applied in aid of a new Presbyterian Church there, about being built by that Society. It was well patronized, and every way successful. A gentleman from this place, well known for his liberality at home, gave them a five dollar bill for some Ice Cream and refused to receive any change in return. He was, however, presented with a pair of worked slippers.

We had the pleasure of viewing the interior of Col. Noble's new house, and must pronounce it the most completely finished, and perfectly arranged establishment we ever saw. After partaking of the Col's politely tendered & generous hospitality he presented us (Mrs. T.) with a large and magnificent boquet, when we took our departure for home.

During the day two men were seriously, but not dangerously injured by the premature discharge of a cannon, caused by carlessness. Their faces and hands were pretty badly burned. Some disturbances were threatened in the streets, but the authorities with commendable zeal worthy of imitation, promptly arrested those who disturbed the peace. Mr. R. Allen, of Allen's Hotel, has our thanks for prompt, and polite attentions.

* We make these remarks more particularly because the young men at Essex belonging to the military seemed to feel the absence of their friends keenly. They have no cause, however, to regret the general results of the day. They were creditable and agreeable. Nor the slimness of their military parade, for their regiment is in its infancy, and it will have to be built up by effort, and agitation. Its ultimate success is not doubtful. The discussion brings out at once, every patriotic sentiment, perpetuity of the union, admiration of our forefathers, love of country and its institutions. We have seen far feebler beginings result in the successful establishment of a respectable standard of military reform, and it can be done again.

Argument is all on one side, and scoffs, and revilings at feeble military efforts serve only to arouse every true American to redoubled exertions. We give our friends then this sentiment: The 31st. Reg. N. Y. State Militia: Notwithstanding its feeble display on the 4th, succeed it ought, succeed it must, succeed it SHALL.

Local Items.

THE 4th.—There was a glorious celebration at Wilmington on the 4th. Elder Sawyer delivered the oration. There was a great collection of people.

We understand there was a celebration also at St. Armand. Will our friends send us the particulars?

Man Killed.—At Ausable Forks a man named Ryan was killed on the 4th by the bursting of a roller, bored and used as a cannon. We hear that his head was literally torn from his body. He was of course killed instantly.

Fire.—At about 12 o'clock, noon, on Tuesday, our village was alarmed by the cry of fire and the ringing of bells. The fire proved to be in the roof of Mr. E. K. Smart's dwelling house on Catholic Hill, and tho' fanned by a strong wind blowing at the time, it was subdued by the vigilance and activity of the citizens, who in five minutes time gathered in great numbers.—At times the flames threatened to overpower every effort, but by the boldness & determination of J. J. Stacks, A. Conro, J. Sheriden, and others who ascended the roof, they were conquered by unroofing the house and throwing water furnished by a line of citizens from the house to the river, a distance of 80, or 40 rods. Damage supposed to be about $60. No insurance.

"When the cats are away,
The mice will play."

This old couplet was exemplified in this village on the 4th. In the absence of the village sentinels, we should judge from all we hear that the Gods of wine and music appeared and presided over the doings of the day. Fire crackers and anvils served for "booming cannon," gongs, shells, tangalangs, formed the music, and 'spirits' we suppose were conjured from the 'vasty deep.' At least the women, boys, and 'greeks' had the undisturbed possession of the village from sunrise to midnight of the 4th.

☞Hon. Ira Harris is holding a term of the Supreme Court at Buffalo. The Buffalo Courier says:—

Judge Harris is winning "golden opinions from all sorts of people" from the manner in which he presides over the Court and dispatches business. We regard him as one of the ablest men upon the Bench of the Supreme Court of the State—possessing one of those clear, comprehensive, searching legal minds which are necessary to constitute an eminent jurist.

"It is pleasant to read these complimentary notices of our townsman; and it is still more gratifying to know that they are deserved."—Albany Journal.

"These complimentary notices" are deserved, as all who know Judge Harris can testify. The Judge once held the Essex Circuit, when all were captivated with the happy combination of urbanity, decision, dignity, and learning, in his character.

John Adam's Letter.

PHILADEPHIA, July 5th, 1776.

Sir:—Yesterday the greatest question was decided which was ever debated in America, and greater, perhaps, never was or will be decided among men. A resolution was passed, without one dissenting colony, that THESE UNITED STATES ARE, AND OF RIGHT OUGHT TO BE, FREE AND INDEPENDENT STATES.

The day is passed. The 4th of July, 1776, will be a memorable epoch in the history of America. I am apt to believe it will be celebrated by succeeding generations as a great Anniversary Festival—it ought to be commemorated as the DAY OF DELIVERENCE, by solemn acts of devotion to Almighty God. It ought to be solemnized with pomps, shows, games, sports, guns, bells, bonfires, and illuminations, FROM ONE END OF THE CONTINENT TO THE OTAER from this time forward and forever. You will think me transported with enthusiasm, but I am not. I am well aware of the toil and blood, and treasure, that it will cost to maintain this Declaration, and support these States, yet through all the gloom, I can see the rays of Light and Glory—I can see that the end is worth more than all the means, and that posterity will TRIUMPH, although you and I may rue, which I hope we shall not.

I am, &c, JOHN ADAMS.

WHERE IS THE WEST?—On Friday, at 4½ P. M., Samuel Lawrence, Esq., was in Boston, having left Lasalle, Illinois, at 3 o'clock, P. M., Wednesday. He came by way of Chicago, looked in upon Cleveland, called at Buffalo, was sped over the plain by the "lightning express" train to Albany and whisked over the Western and Worcester Railroads to Boston! Once, and within the memory of the middle aged man of this day, Buffalo was considered quite "out west." Chicago, but yesterday, was a "far-off land." Now, a merchant shakes hands and bids good-bye to his customers, 100 miles west of that, and in two days and one hour and a half greets his friends in Boston! It is in fact only eleven hundred and fifty miles.—Boston Atlas.

☞Rev. Henry Ward Beecher states in the New York Independent, that it is not true that any part of the avails received by Mrs Stowe, from the sales of "Uncle Tom's Cabin," or the "Key," are to be used for building a house for Prof. Stowe and family at Andover. The dwellings for the Professors are furnished by the Corporation.—The avails are to be appropriated for the establishment of an institution for the education of the colored race in this country, as also will be the contributi... receives in Europe.

Letter to the Editor.

Mapedon, Wayne Co., N. Y.,
June 27th, 1853.

J. TARBELL, Esq.—

Respected Friend:—Having a little leisure, I will just write a few lines to you, as I see you have not forgotten me, as each week brings your paper and new recollections of Keeseville.

To show the difference in the time spent in traveling now and when we were towed along the canal a few years since, I will state that we left Port Kent about 9 o'clock, P. M., on board the beautiful steamer "America," Capt. J. O'Grady. At 7 next morning we found ourselves in the ancient city of Schenectady. Fearing that we should get along too fast, we rested four hours and viewed the city; took the cars at 11 o'clock, A. M., and before 7 P. M., reached the city of Rochester, 350 miles. I could but compare this with the time spent in getting to Troy but a few years since—from thirty-six to forty hours. On reaching Rochester, the first thing that attracted our attention was a large flag stretched across the street, containing a notice of the "Womens' State Temperance Convention" then in session in Corinthian Hall. We dropped in here also for a while, and I could wish that those men who sneer at the efforts of woman in any other sphere than 'at home raising a family," were there to have heard those women, and seen that splendid hall filled with men and women listening to such women as Mrs. Stanton, Miss Brown, Miss Anthony, Mrs. Nichols of Vermont, Miss Stone of Massachusetts, and many others.

I have traveled considerably in three counties. The wheat looks very fine, and a prospect of a heavy crop if it is not injured by the insect in the head. It is said they are making their appearance in many fields already.

I have been stopping a short time near the Railroad and Canal. It is nothing uncommon to see 5 or 6 trains of cars, and 10 or 15 boats in one hour. A few days since one train of cars passed, thirty-eight in number, drawn by one engine, loaded with cattle going to an eastern market.—Since the direct road was opened from Rochester to Syracuse, (which by the way shortens the distance twenty-four miles,) it is said that there is scarcely an up grade between Buffalo and Albany, which enables them to carry much greater loads than before. It is said that the water in Lake Ontario has not been as high as at the present time in many years. Indeed, I saw many large trees washed out by the roots along its shore, where the ground was said to have been dry before.

P. S.—What has become of that Railroad through Keeseville?

I subscribe myself,
YOUR FRIEND.

[The writer of this letter will be recognised by his friends by the place whence this letter bears date. As to "What has become of the Railroad thro' Keeseville?" it is a question frequently asked of us, but we are unable to give a satisfactony answer. We suppose the Engineer is preparing his report of the survey, and that we shall hear from it in due time.—Ed. Rep.]

The True Dignity of the Female Character.

BY A LADY OF KEESEVILLE.

We come now to enquire, In what does true greatness in woman consist? The true dignity of any being consists in properly fulfilling the purposes of their creation and the original purpose in reference to woman, was to be the companion and helpmate of man. She is thence destined to share his dignity and fortunes, and to sustain her part in the great duties and responsibilities of life. By common consent as well as adaptation, in these responsibilities, her sphere is peculiarly her own; and her dignity is identified with a proper discharge of them. Her department is not the stormy bustling world without, but the sacred, peaceful world of home. The beauty and renown of female character stands connected with the retirement of social life. Her citadel is the affections and the heart. This, her throne and dominion. Here she presides with dignity and grace, swaying her powerful sceptre. Nor is this a weak dominion or vain distinction.—Mark a single element of her power—woman's love. What wonders has it wrought? what sublimity has it exhibited? A virtuous woman's love, is holy, like the fountains of eternal life. It comes like the refreshing dews and the sunshine to the soul of man—it is a sweet all-controlling and all-conquering energy! "Many waters cannot quench it, neither can the floods drown it!" Often has it worn out the depravity of man's heart. It is the semblance of that power which calls back the wanderer to God and Heaven. Nay, it has called down Heaven to earth, and oft conveyed spiritual life to the 'dead in trespasses and sins.' We repeat it, woman's love is omnipotent—it is her element of power, both to defend and captivate. It pours the stream of blessing along the pathway of life and without it earth with all its beauties would be but a wilderness of shade. In the domestic circle her acquirements tell most powerfully on human happiness. As wife and mother, how potent her influence for good or ill! Moulding of character is all her own, and her offspring present the embodiment of her worth or imbecility more vividly than the glowing canvas reflects the limner's genius and skill. Here, in her impress—here springs the immortality of renown.

As wife she wields an influence coextensive with eternity for the eternal destiny of earth, and so intimate connexion affects the whole being. But here, she steps not forth upon the stormy surface of society to manage its affairs; this work is given to man; he rides upon the storm lashed ocean and guides the keel that freights the destinies of our race. He makes the nations laws, and fights her battles, while woman retiring from the scene is quietland secure. She may urge, and move on the mighty strife, but she, s not forth as the hero; she is interested in the success of those ... and by encouragement, stimulates to victory, but her hand should be unseen.—In a qualified sense, 'she moves the hand that moves the world' for poets, philosophers, philanthropists and statesmen, have toiled at her bidding, and for her smiles have often dared the battle field and dangers thickest fray.

It may be safely assumed that woman is responsible to a great extent, for the social order of any community. Against her remonstrance, man will not long persevere in moral debasement, and without her sympathy, few will rise to noble attainment. Her kind but firm frown upon immorality will banish it from the open day, and her encouraging smile, will prompt to morality and religion.

O! woman hath in every phase
Controlling influence o'er man's ways;
But chief as man's companion high
'Tis hers to guide his destiny.
And from that day our parent's erst
Were driven from Eden's blissful shade
Where both had fallen—yet woman first,
Man, by her weakness, then betrayed—
All potent still, for good or ill
Hath been the force of woman's will,
And mightier each added year
Grows woman's Power, in Woman's sphere.

In the prosecution of this inquiry, we remark, the true dignity of woman is inseperable from moral worth Man, may shine by the splendor of talents and achievement, while still covered with depravity; but vice in woman is like a stain upon an angels robe, degrading and ineffacable. No personal accomplishments, natural or acquired can be accepted in compensation, for the absence of purity in woman; and proportioned to her degradation by vice, is her exaltation by truth, and active piety.—Active, yet unobtrusive benevolence in either sex, is ennobling and godlike. The memories of Howard and Wilberforce, come to us like refreshing breezes from the shores of immortality; and glorious are those of consecrated heroines, like Judson, Newell, Fry and others, whose missionary souls have pourd the streams of life into the dark habitations of pagan land. For them, while living, there was unutterable gratitude; for them, when they died, were tears as for angels fled.

For them, there are sweet and hallowed, spirit-moving thoughts; and for their eternal joy, souls were redeemed by their ministry. To woman as the companion of man in missionary toil, the world is opened for action—every spot is holy ground—a missionary field—the great harvest is ripening, and woman must bear no humble part in ushering in the millenial glory; and for this work, she must posse s a soul enlarged and purified, and taught to pulsate with Jehovah's love.

The American Flag.

On the 4th of June, 1777—seventy-six years ago—the Continental Congress passed a resolution adopting the design of the ensign now known throughout the world as the American Flag. The flag was not designed by any one person, but was the result of many suggestions from various parties and boards of officers. No less than twenty-one members of Congress and officers of the army were united in the selection of the ensign. The colors of the flag—red, white and blue—were adopted for the reason that white denotes purity and innocence; red, hardiness and valor; blue, vigilance, perseverance and justice. The stripes are the pales of heraldy. The constellation of stars in the field of blue denote a new state or nation taking its place among the independent powers of the earth.

The resolution of Congress adopting the ensign was officially announced September 3, 1777. The flag was used for the first time in the army at the surrender of Burgoyne, October 17th, 1777. The flag was unchanged till May, 1795, when the number of stars was increased to fifteen, to represent the number of States. In 1818, the flag was again altered, and a return was made to the thirteen stripes, as it was found that the flag would become unwieldly, if a stripe was added on the admission of each new State. The resolution of Congress affecting this change was in the following words: "Be it enacted, &c, that from and after the fourth day of July next, the flag of the United States be thirteen horizontal stripes, alternate red and white; that the Union, be twenty stars, white, in a blue field. And that, on the admissin of a new State into the Union, one star be added to the union of the flag; and that such addition shall take effect on the fourth day of July next, succeeding such admission."—Troy Whig.

The Mission of "Friendship, Love and Truth."

BY A LADY OF KEESEVILLE.

Hail! blessed Trio! Friendship, Love and Truth—
Blest emblem of the Triune One above,
Hail! lovely sisters! harbingers of bliss,
Arrayed in beauty, holiness and love.
How came you e'er to seek a world like this,
Who in the courts of Heaven, were wont to shine?
Is there not joy enough amid that throng, and bliss
To make you happy in that brighter clime?
Did you not join in the seraphic throng,
And have a seat fast by the throne of God,
Your prices tuned to harmony Divine—
And love, supreme, yours in that blest abode?
Or, did the lost condition of our race,
Fo pity move the Great Eternal Mind,
And bid you leave, that holy, happy place,
And come to earth, to bless all human kind?
O! it was worthy of that Mighty Power,
Which called the world from utter nothingness,
To look on Earth in man's most trying hour,
And send bright heralds, such as you, to bless.
O! happ ones! we wait with listening ears,
As earth borne should, to hear a Heavenly strain.
Begin your story; quell our rising fears,
And your sweet labor, shall not be in vain!

Then Friendship, with upturn'd eye, and meek,
Her mission, thus to earth, essayed to speak:
I come, to bless the wretched sons of men,
With happiness, and peace, and cheer with hope
The widow's heart, console the lonely one,
With joys immortal, and buoy their spirits up;
I come, to cheer the home of orphaned ones,
With gushing sympathies, and glowing love,
To stand beside afflictions couch, and bathe the fevered brow
With heartfelt warmth, to point to joys above.
I come, to stay the hand of want, and heartfelt woe,
And cause to sing for joy, hearts, who only sorrow know.
This, this, my mission, and when all fulfilled—
Will I replume my wings, and to my native home return,
And there remain forever blest, faithful to my holy trust.'

Then Love, as fair as morning light, and pure
As limpid streams of blessedness, stood forth to speak.
A golden halo, bound her brow, emitting corruscations
Of a brighter ray, and more resplendent worth
Than beam from hero's honors, or from kingly crowns.
With silvery tones, all musical, she thus her work described:
'I come, to build an altar pure, in every heart,
On which my offerings may be securely placed—
An altar, sacred to the holy work,
Of mercy's deeds, devotion's purest sacrifice.
Its incense holy, as the breath of Heaven
I waft to earth's remotest bounds,
And tell the sons of men, to them is given,
The glorious joys, of Heavenly love, profound!
I come to bind with sympathetic cheer, the spirit broken,
And lift with pitying hand, the bowed down.
To weep with those who weep, and joy with those enliven'd
By prosperous winds,—by earthly honors crowned.
I come, to bid all strife to cease, my banner when unfurl'd,
Displays upon its waving folds, Peace, to all the world.
I come, to bind all kindred hearts, together into one—
And bid them love, as they shall love, around the throne.
This, this my mission, and when my work is o'er,
To yonder world, where all is love, I'll soar.'

Then Truth with calm benignant air, as when Descending from the sky, she told her errand
Down to earth, in strains of solemn melody:
'I come, to sweep the deadly foes of human kind,
From off the earth, Deceit, with all its train
Of hellish kind, and calumny, foul child of sin.
I come, to purify and cleanse the homes of men.
Their minds to bless, with peaceful consciousness—
To throne within the empyreal domain, of human hearts,
The upright sense of Heaven's approving glance!
This, this my mission, and when all fulfilled
Will I rejoin the blissful Trio in the upper world,
But ere I leave, I point you to the words of God,
The Book of Books—the Truth of Truths—
Here's Friendship, Love and Truth combined,
Each personated, and yet a Trinity in One!
Here's mysteries grand, and glorious as grand!
Here's knowledge high, and wonderful as high!
This glorious gift—Heaven's choicest boon—
Is sent from God—to guide you home.—

Fast Travelling.—C. Slater Esqr. of Wadham's Mills in this County, left Conneaught, Ashtabula Co. Ohio, on Thursday at a quarter before eleven, A. M. He stopt 2 hours at Buffalo, and 3 hours at Schenectaday, and landed at Westport on Friday at a quarter past 1 o'clock, P. M. Distance 600 miles. Time 26 1-2 hours. We shook hands with him on the boat and had the fact from his own lips.

CHEVALIER WIKOFF.—There has been rumors in the papers lately that Chevalier Wikoff is actually going to be married to Miss Gamble, the young lady at whose suit he was sent to prson, in Genoa, for the term of two years. We are happy to know that the rumor is not unfounded. Mr. Wikoff has written to a friend in this city that his marriage with Miss Gamble will soon be consummated, and that they are now on the best terms possible.—[Sunday Courier.

MASONIC CELEBRATION.—The several Lodges in this vicinity celebrated St. John's day in this village on Tuesday the 28th inst. The day was fine, and the attendance large. A procession marched from the Lodge room to the Episcopal church, where an address was delivered. Afterwards the company dined sumptuously at the Phoenix Hotel.—St. Albans (Vt.) Messenger.

"Man Know Thyself."

An Invaluable Book for 25 Cents.

"EVERY FAMILY SHOULD HAVE A COPY."

20,000 Copies sold in less than 5 months. A new edition, revised and improved, just issued.

Dr. Hunter's Medical Manual and Hand Book for the Afflicted—

Containing an outline of the origin, progress, treatment and cure of every form of disease, contracted by promiscuous sexual intercourse, by self abuse or by sexual excess, with advice for their prevention, written in a familiar style, avoiding all medical technicalities, and everything that would offend the ear of decency, from the result of some twenty years successful practice, exclusively devoted to the cure of diseases of a delicate or private nature.

To which is added, receipts for the cure of the above diseases, and a treatise on the causes, symptoms and cure of the Fever and Ague.

Testimony of the Prof. of Obstetrics in Penn. College, Philadelphia:—"Dr. Hunter's Medical Manual."—The author of this work unlike the majority of those works who advertise to cure the diseases of which it treats, is a graduate of one of the best Colleges in the United States. It affords me pleasure to recommend him to the unfortunate, or to the victim of malpractice, as a successful and experienced practitioner, in whose honor and integrity they may place the greatest confidence.

JOSEPH LONGSHORE, M. D.

From A. Woodward M. D., of Penn. University, Philadelphia,—It gives me pleasure to add my testimony to the professional ability of the author of the "Medical Manual." Numerous cases of diseases of the Genital Organs, some of them of long standing have come under my notice, in which his skill has been manifest in restoring to perfect health, in some instances where the patient has been considered beyond medical aid. In the treatment of Seminal weakness, or disarrangement of the functions produced by Self-abuse, or Excess of venery, I do not know his superior in the profession. I have been acquainted with the Author some thirty years, and deem it no more than justice to him as well as a kindness to the unfortunate victim of early indiscretion, to recommend him as one, in whose professional skill and integrity they may safely confide themselves. ALFRED WOODWARD, M.D.

This is, without exception, the most comprehensive and intelligible work published on the class of diseases of which it treats. Avoiding all technical terms, it addresses itself to the reason of its readers. It is free from all objectionable matter and no parent, however fastidious, can object to placing it in the hands of his sons. The author has devoted many years to the treatment of the various complaints treated of, and with too little breath to puff, and too little presumption to impose, he has offered to the world at the merely nominal price of 25 cents, the fruits of some 20 years most successful practice."—Herald.

"No teacher or parent should be without the knowledge imparted in this invaluable work. It would save years of pain, mortification and sorrow to the youth under their charge."—Peoples Advocate.

A Presbyterian clergyman in Ohio, in writing of "Hunter's Medical Manual," says: "Thousands upon thousands of our youth, by evil example and influence of the passions, have been led into the habit of self-pollution without realising the sin and fearful consequences upon themselves and their posterity. The constitutions of thousands who are raising families have been enfeebled if not broken down, and the do not know the cause or the cure. Anything that can be done so to enlighten and influence the public mind as to check, and ultimately to remove this wide-spread source of human wretchedness, would confer the greatest blessing next to the religion of Jesus Christ, on the present and coming generations. Intemperance (or the use of intoxicating drinks,) though it has slain thousands upon thousands, is not a greater scourge to the human race. Accept my thanks on behalf of the afflicted, and, believe me, your co-worker in the good work you are so actively engaged in."

One copy, (securely enveloped,) will be forwarded free of postage to any part of the United States for 25 cents, or 6 copies for $1.—Address (post paid) COSDEN & Co., publishers, Box 196, Philadelphia. 478y

Education for the People.

On the first day of May, Part First of the Popular Educator will be published at No. 17 Spruce Street, New-York, price, twelve and a half cents.

This will be the most comprehensive Educational Periodical ever issued from the Press. It will include a regular course of instruction in every department of knowledge. It proposes to introduce the People to all the departments of Human Knowledge, and to afford to individual man the means of a complete secular education.

The following Programme can be made over the whole field of Human Knowledge. Each number of the Educator will contain articles in several of the departments. The Lessons in Geography will be accompanied with maps engraved on copper; and the Lessons in every other Department which can admit of it will be illustrated by Diagrams, Engravings and Drawings. Nothing which artistic skill can do, to embellish the several subjects, will be neglected.

The following schedule presents the Departments and Subjects which will be embraced in the POPULAR EDUCATOR:

I. Language. This includes, Language, Grammer, Philology, and Belles Letters.

II. Natural History, Geography, Botany, Zoology, Mineralogy, and Geology.

III. Mathematics. Arithmetic, Algebra, Geometry, Mensuration, &c.

Ploughs! Ploughs!!

PROUTY & MEARS'

Celebrated Centre Draughts—All Sizes

THESE Ploughs wherever introduced, are fast superseding all others.

The most thorough trials of Ploughs on record in this country, and at the World's Fair in London, have demonstrated the important fact, that the Centre draught Plough is of much easier draught than any other, and therefore used with less fatigue to both Ploughman and Team; and, also owing to its peculiar form, it pulverizes and prepares the ground better and more perfectly than any other, saving one team in five for the harrow, and securing better crops than by any other method of Culture.

The following Implements among others of the best quality, and of the latest and most approved patterns, are constantly on hand, viz:

Plows, Seed Sowers, Corn Planters, Corn Shellers, Straw Cutters, Corn and Cob Crushers, Cheese Presses, Threshing Machines, Potato Hoes, Manure Hooks, Cast Iron Grafting Saws, Pruning Shears, Tree Scrapers, Budding and Pruning Knives, Hay Knives, Barn Door Rollers, Agricultural Furnaces, Corn Knives, Post Hole Augers, Wheelbarrows, Sheep Shears, etc., etc.

Being agents of Messrs. D. P. Olmy and Co., we can furnish the CENTRE DRAUGHT PLOUGHS at the Boston wholesale prices, with the addition of freight.

THE ILLUSTRATED

WEEKLY RECORD

OF THE

New York Exhibition of Industry of all Nations, under the direction of

Prof. B. SILLIMAN, Jr.,

Aided by eminent writers in each department of Science and Art.

THIS Journal, as it implies, will record the history, progress and results of the New York Industrial Exhibition.

The Literary portion of the paper will be prepared under competent Editorial supervision, by the ablest literary, scientific and practical men, and will include essays, descriptions and criticism in the following departments.

I. Natural Science—Raw Materials, &c.
II. Machinery.
III. Manufactures—in Subdivisions.
IV. Fine Arts.

General Essays may be expected on the condition and results of the several departments, on the natural resources of our country, and on the methods by which they may be made most valuable to American Art, and to artistic and industrial manufactures. Other articles of a more general scope, on the topics naturally suggested by the Exhibition, will be occasionally admitted. It is intended that all the descriptions and criticisms shall be accurate and strictly impartial and independent. The Essays will be free as possible from mere technicalities, and every effort will be made to render them attractive and interesting to general readers.

The Letterpress will be illustrated by engravings of the most beautiful, interesting and suggestive of the various objects exhibited, including, as far as possible, all such as may gratify and instruct. The Record will thus supply sources of instruction to Artisans and Manufacturers, of every class, and render the Exhibition permanently and practically useful long after the contents have been dispersed.

The Illustrated Record will be issued weekly from the opening to the close of the Exhibition, and will be completed in twenty-six numbers, besides a possible supplement.

Each number will consist of four double-columned pages of letterpress, of the size and quality of the Prospectus: four pages of Illustrations, and four pages devoted to the circulars of the Exhibitors. The first No. will contain four extra pages, including Architectural Details of the Building, and the designs by Sir Jos. Paxton and the late A. J. Downing, and will be published on the day of the Opening of the Exhibition.

Office of the Association for the Exhibition of the Industry of all Nations. }
New York, 21st January, 1853.

Messrs. G. P. Putnam & Co.,

Gentlemen:—The proposals made by you, in conformity with the advertisement, issued from this office on the 22nd November, having been accepted, and a contract made therewith, you have become Exclusively entitled to the privilege of publishing, under the authority and sanction of this association, an Illustrated Catalogue and Illustrated Newspaper relating to the Exhibition, now in course of preparation, and of printing and selling the same in the Exhibition Building. You have also become contractors for the publication of the Hand Catalogue. For the compilation, publication, and sale of these works, you will receive all the facilities that the Board of Directors can reasonably afford you.

You are well aware that the object of the Association, in making an arrangement of this kind, is not pecuniary gain, but to secure a publication of a superior grade of typographical, literary, and artistic merit. To this you have assented; and if the very high standard agreed on be reached by you, the result will, it is hoped, be of great and lasting beneficial influence.

I am very respectfully, gentlemen,
Your obedient servt.,
W. WHETTEN, Secy.

Terms.—For the 26 Nos. and Supplement, post paid, $3. in advance.

☞ A handsome Cover for the Volume will be furnished to Subscribers, price 50 cents.

Mr. H. W. Quin has contracted for the advertising in each number of the above work.

SHERIFF'S SALE.

By virtue of two executions issued out of the Supreme Court of the State of New-York, to me directed and delivered against the goods and chattels and chattels real of James W. Taggard, I have seized and taken all the right title and interest which the said James W. Taggard had on the 6th day of August 1852 or which he may since have acquired of in and to all that certain piece or parcel of land situate, lying and being in the Town of Chesterfield, in the Village of Keeseville, County of Essex and State of New York, bounded as follows: Begining at the South west corner of a lot of land sold and deeded to Irish Durkee and John Johnson running thence east, twenty three degrees south twenty rods, thence south twenty three degrees west eight rods thence west twenty three degrees north twenty rods, thence north 23 degrees east eight rods containing one acre of ground excepting & reserving out of the north west corner of the above described premises a piece of land extending thirty feet on the road bounding the westerly part of said premises and fifty feet back or easterly from said road and containing fifteen hundred superficial feet of land being the same parcel or lot of land sold by Robert Forsyth Junior, now deceased to Irish Durkee. Also, that certain piece or parcel of land situate lying and being in the village of Keeseville, in the Town of Chesterfield and State aforesaid. Beginning at the south east corner of a lot of land heretofore sold by Robert Forsyth Jr. now deceased, to Irish Durkee on which said Durkee has erected a building and runs thence south twenty two degrees west along the line of the highway 35 feet thence east twenty two degrees south fifty feet thence north twenty two degrees east thirty five feet thence west twenty two degrees north fifty feet to the place of beginning. Also all that other certain piece or parcel of land situated in the village, town and county aforesaid, beginning at the south east corner of the aforesaid lot and runs from thence east twenty seven feet from thence north fifty four feet from thence west twenty seven feet and from thence south fifty four feet to the place of beginning. Also all that certain other piece or parcel of land situate lying and being in the village, town, county and state aforesaid, in a patent of thirteen thousand acres of land granted to Zephenaiah Platt and others, and is lot number twenty one in the village survey made by Edwin F. Johnson, and is bounded as follows: Begining at the south east corner of lot number twenty in said survey running thence south twenty three and a half degrees west along the west line of vine street two chains thence north sixty six and a half degrees west one chain thence north twenty three and a half degrees east along the line of Robert Forsyths Junior, now deceased, two chains thence south sixty six and a half degrees east one chain along the line of lot number twenty to the place of beginning containing one fifth of an acre of land. Excepting and reserving from the premises last described the following lot or parcel of ground, viz: Beginning on the west line of vine street at the south east corner of the Johnson lot, so called, thence south twenty four degrees, west fifty two feet six inches thence north seventy six degrees west two chains nineteen links thence north twenty four degrees east fifty two feet six inches thence south seventy six degrees east two chains nineteen links to the place o' begining, being the same premises sold by Robert Forsyth Junior, in his life time to George Hubbard, and which said three pieces or parcels of land as hereinbefore described compose the farm lot and premises owned and occupied by Robert Forsyth Junior in his life time and being the same now in posession of Sabina Forsyth, the widow of the said Robert Forsyth Junior, deceased, one of the parties of the first part to these presents. Also the right of taking and using water from the lot on vine street in said village the same as it now is used and taken for the use of said farm house and premises and from the same spring and place on said lot that is now taken from and none other. Together with the right at all times of entering upon said lot for the purpose of keeping said spring in repair and of putting down and repairing the logs or pipes used to convey the water from the same and for no other purpose whatsoever. Also, all that house and lot situate in the village of Keeseville, in the town of Chesterfield, in the county of Essex, being the house and lot conveyed by Heman Rockwell and Harry Rackman to Nathan Eastabrook by deed bearing date the 26th day May, 1826, and by the said Nathan toGardiner Stow and now occupied by the said Gardiner Stow as his office. All of which aforesaid real property, I shall expose for sale at the Adirondac Hotel, in said village and county, on the 18th day of July next, at 12 o'clock at noon of that day. Dated at Keeseville this 3d day of June 1853.

BOOT & SHOE STORE!

THE Subscribers having bought the Boot and Shoe Establishment heretofore known as F. E. Shandrew and Co.'s, are now prepared to manufacture anything in that line. We have also a large stock of Ready-Made Work, selected with great care by Mr. Shandrew, and warranted to be a better article than can be found in any slop Shoe Store in town. Our ready made Boots and Shoes are made by some of the best workmen in New York city,—in the most fashionable style, and every pair warranted to give satisfaction or the money refunded. We are permanently in the business, and of course expect to furnish a better article for less money than our neighbors can who, do not manufacture.

Ladies and gentlemen—you need not go to Burlington, nor any where else, expecting to do better than you can with us, as we have in our employ some of the best workmen in the State, and can give you perfect fits. We hope, and expect that our own mechanics and village will be patronized in preference to the States Prison convicts, whose worthless trash is brought into competition with the labor of honest workmen. In addition to every article in the line of Boots and Shoes, we have a well selected stock of

SOLE AND UPPER LEATHER;

Morocco, White, Red and Russet sheep Linings; Bindings; Lastings of different colors; Lasts; Nails; Pincers; Hammers; Files; Knives; Awls, &c., &c.; all of which we shall sell at very low prices for Cash or good credit.

Private Diseases and their Antidote.

Dr. LISPENARD, author of the Marriage Guide, or Private Medical Treatise, Professor of Diseases of Women and Children, and Licentiate of the College of Physicians and Surgeons of the United States University, &c., &c., continues as heretofore to be confidentially and successfully consulted on all forms and variety of

PRIVATE DISEASES,

at his old quarters, No 5 Beaver-street ALBANY, N. Y.

The great success attending the use of Doctor L.'s remedies in secret diseases, and the many remarkable cures daily effected by him in recent as well old lingering attacks, is conclusive evidence that the

SICK AND UNFORTUNATE

can do no better than consult the Doctor, whose whole time is devoted to the exclusive treatment of this much neglected branch of practice.

LOOK AT THIS.

Dr. Lispenard cures recent cases of disease in from three to six days, and chronic or long standing diseases in a very short period of time, without the use of Mercury, without the loss of time change of diet, or detention from

DAILY EMPLOYMENT.

In Syphilis Gonorrhoea, Gleet Strictures, Enlargement of the Testicles and Cords, Bubo, Chancres Pimples and Scaly Eruptions, Sore Throats and Noses, Chancres on the tongue, tender shin bones, and diseases of the skin, and impure blood. Dr. Lispenard's remedies are above all praise, and frequently cure when all others had failed

EVEN TO RELIEVE.

More than 5,000 patients have during the past year experienced the benefit of the Doctor's extraordinary skill in treating secret diseases—among which, diseases of the bladder and kidneys have formed a goodly proportion.

YOUNG MEN,

who by indulging in secret habits have injured their health and prostrated their intellectual faculties and thereby deprived themselves of the pleasure of married life, should consult Dr. Lispenard without a moment's delay. Hundreds have been restored to health, society and friends, under his peculiar mode of treatment although vast sums of money had been sacrificed without any benefit. My remedy for this disease is pleasant to take, has no offensive smell and

CURES WITHOUT FAIL.

Persons so unfortunate as to be diseased, although they may have visited half a dozen Doctors, and had medicine sent them a dozen times with no benefit would exhibit wisdom by making their case known to that FRIEND OF THE SICK. Dr. Lispenard, who never charges for advice and warrants all his cures. The sick are often at a loss where to apply for relief, AND TIS NO WONDER, as hundreds stand ready to plunder the unfortunate victim of PRIVATE DISEASE, or secret habits with not one thought for his life and health. All thus deceived will find a friend, and moderate charges, in consulting the Doctor who uses no MERCURY and cures every time.

N. B.—Persons from a distance when visiting the city in search of a physician and friend will be fortunate if they succeed in escaping the many dens of imposition conducted by unprincipled men, destitute of character knowledge or name, who fleece the unfortunate victim of disease of his hard earned money, and his remaining health. Patients who have no acquaintance in the city should make inquiry of some respectable citizen, or the editor or proprietor of any of the city papers, to ascertain who is the most reliable physician to apply to.

FEMALE DISEASES.

Dr. Lispenard from an experience seldom or never enjoyed by any other medical man is enable to treat, with every hope of succes, all and every variety of Female Complaints—with safe and pleasant remedies—and has without doubt cured within the past five years more than 3000 females afflicted with diseases of the Bladder, Womb, &c. &c. Ladies afflicted with suppression or stoppage of their monthly turns, will recollect that Dr. Lispenard is still the sole American agent for

DR. VICHOT'S

FEMALE MONTHLY PILLS.

The unprecedented sale of more than 15,000 boxes of these excellent Pills, and the good results which always follow their use, is conclusive evidence of their utility in stoppages, &c. Caution—Married Ladies in certain delicate situations should not use them—for reasons see directions with each box. Price $1. Sent by mail to all parts of the world.

Married Persons and those about to Marry, should enclose 12½ cents post paid to Dr. Lispenard, and obtain a copy of his Marriage Guide, or Private Treatise, a bewitching little work of nearly 100 pages. Illustrated. Every thing that married persons can desire or wish to know, is here explained. Persons who from poverty or sickness have no desire to increase their family, will find necessary instruction in the Marriage Guide. One copy 12½ cents; 5 copies 50 cts; 12 copies $1—mailed free to any part of the world.

N. B.—Patients treated by letter, and medicines sent, with full directions for use, to the writer's address. All communications destroyed or returned.

No mercury used in any case, and all cures warranted.

No boys or precocious students allowed; timid persons take notice.

Friends of Dr. L. when recommending patients to our care will recollect our number, 5 Beaver st., three doors from South Broadway.

Hospital open from 7 A. M., to 9 P. M., and on Sundays from 1 to 4 P. M.

No charge for advice, although no medicine may be desired.

Good board and private rooms for those who desire to remain in the city.

THE WONDER OF THE WORLD.

DEVINES' COMPOUND

PITCH LOZENGE.

A sure and pleasant Remedy for Colds, Coughs, Croup, Whooping Cough, Asthma, and if lungs enough are left to sustain life, A CERTAIN CURE FOR CONSUMPTION. safe for the Infant or the Invalid, in any stage of weakness.

"The statements that consumption cannot be cured, has destroyed more lives than the disease itself.—[Dr. Warren

Read the following, which to a candid mind places this Great Remedy, "like Cæsar's wife "above suspicion."

TO THE PUBLIC!

We, the undersigned citizens of Lee, Mass., are acquainted with Mr. Devines, the Proprietor and Manufacturer of Devines' Compound Pitch Lozenge and from what we know of it ourselves and have learned from others of its beneficial effects, in cases where it has been used, give it as our opinion that it is a valuable remedy in diseases for which it is recommended and is worthy of public confidence. A. G. Hulburt, Leonard Church, F. G. Taylor, Wm. Taylor, E. A. Bliss, S. A. Hulburt, Josephus Crafts, T. P. Eldridge.

Many individuals is to be pitied, and needs sympathy, it is the consumptive—always expecting to get well, and yet the painful evidence of decay almost "makes the inner soul shrink with the outer flesh"

"Some bloom as roses bloom, and live as roses live,
A single morning space."

While others in more mature life—by some imprudence and a slight cold neglected—in the hectic flush—the painful cough.

"The prints of their departing steps appears."

BUT BE OF GOOD HOPE! Mr Wm. Devines, the originator and manufacturer of the Pitch Lozenge, under Providence, was raised to perfect health by the use of these Lozenges alone, after he was pronounced by his physician to be almost dying with consumption.

This fact is generally known in Berkshire County and is the neighborhood talk, and wonder in Lee, and in Great Barrington, Mass.

From Dr. Brown, of Lee, Mass.

This certifies that I have made use of Devines' Compound Pitch Lozenge for cold and cough, and found immediate relief. Therefore I would recommend it to the public as being a safe and sovereign remedy. H. C. BROWN.

MORSE'S

COMPOUND SYRUP OF

Yellow Dock Root.

THIS is a Purely Vegetable Compound, scientifically prepared from the best Roots and Herbs of the Materia Medica, and has gained a universal reputation for the following effects viz: Regulating and Strengthening the Liver and Digestive Organs, and Cleansing the Stomach and Bowels, and curing all Billious Diseases, Liver Complaints, Dyspepsia, Indigestion, Costiveness, Piles Headache, Fever and Ague, Jaundice Nausea Loss of Appetite, &c., and enabling the food to nourish and support every part, PURIFYING THE BLOOD, and thus curing all Humors. Cutaneous Eructions, Scrofula, Salt Rheum, Erysipelas, Scald Head, Canker, Pimples on the face Blotches, Ulcers, Tumors, Mercurial Diseases, Cancers, &c. Regulating the secretory Organs, and by enabling them to perform their proper functions, preventing and curing many painful and dangerous diseases. Strengthening and Quieting the nervous system. thus allaying Nervous Irritation, and curing all Diseases of the Nerves, as Hysteria, Neuralgia, Cramps, &c.

It is unrivalled in the cure of all FEMALE COMPLAINTS, as weakness, general debility, Irregularity, Obstructions, Swelling of the Feet, Limbs, Joints, &c. caused by weakness; also, Lung and Throat Complaints, as Colds, Coughs, Asthma, Consumption, &c., also, Dropsy.

Having made use of the Compound Syrup of Yellow Dock Root, prepared by C. Morse and Co., either our selves or in our families and finding it to be a very salutary and effectual preparation, we do most cheerfully recommend it to the public as a very valuable medicine.

E. Bourne, Esq., Cashier National Bank, Providence, R. I.; A. W. Spencer, Esq., Cashier Lime Rock Bank, do do Rev. William Phillips, Rev. J. B. Richmond, C. S. Jones, editor Providence Gen. Advt., Wm. Field, M. W. G. M. Cyru. Fisher, M. S. H. P. James Hutchinson, G. S. Dea., V. J. Bates, Doct. Benj. Colby and one hundred others of the most respectable families of Providence.

This certifies that I have for a number of years been acquainted with the composition and mode of manufacture of Morse's Compound Syrup of Yellow Dock Root. I have also been acquainted with its modus operandi as disease, and can say that in all respects it is admirably calculated to remedy that class of Diseases for which it was designed. It is especially valuable in Indigestion and all its attendant Symptoms, it excites to healthy action the Liver, removes Torpor, and inactivity of this organ, and stimulates healthy action in all the system. As a Depurator or purifier of the Blood it has no superior.

☞The Rev. E. A. Chapin, one of the most eloquent Divines of the age, at a recent Religious Festival in Faneuil Hall, in reply to a sentiment complimentary to New York said:—

New York has noble souls in it ready to act upon noble impulses. That mighty State is not all gross and sordid. It bears something more than matured harvests on its ample bosom or the diadem of commerce on its sea washed brow.—But when a man would send out the organ music of inspiring truth; when he would sweep the entire diapason of patriotic and Christian sentiment; when he would wake the land with a mighty old passage of the past, of some jubilant strain of the future, let him set his foot upon the pedal of Plymouth Rock, and strike the keys of Faneuil Hall.

Laws of New York.

[Every Law, unless a different time shall be prescribed therein, shall commence and take effect throughout the State, on and not before the twentieth day after the day of its final passage, as certified by the Secretary of State. Sec. 12, title 4, chap. 7, part 1, Revised Statutes.]

[Every Law so published in the State Paper, may be read in evidence from the paper in which it shall be contained, in all courts of justice in this State, and in all proceedings before any officer, body or board, in which it shall be thought necessary to refer thereto, until three months after the close of the session in which it became a law. Sec. 8, title 7, chap 1, Revised Statutes, and laws of 1845, chap. 280.]

CHAPTER 195.

AN ACT for the reimbursement to counties of the expenses of criminal proceedings in certain cases.

Passed April 12, 1853,—three-fifths being present.

The People of the State of New York, represented in Senate and Assembly do enact as follows:

§ 1. Whenever under the order of any court of competent jurisdiction, the pleadings and issue in any indictment or prosecution for any crime or misdemeanor shall have been sent down to any county of this state for trial therein, in consequence of any inability to obtain an unprejudiced or impartial jury in the county in which the venue was originally laid, the expenses of the trial of said indictment or prosecution shall be a charge upon the county from which the same was transferred, and in case they shall have been assessed on any county in which any such issue shall have been determined, the same, with interest thereon shall be reimbursed to the treasury of such county by the county treasurer in the county from which such proceedings have been sent down, and the boards of supervisors of the county liable to pay such expenses as aforesaid, are hereby authorised to include the same in their annual levy of taxes.

CHAPTER 198.

AN ACT for the relief of assessors for enrolling the militia in the year eighteen hundred and fifty-two.

Passed April 12, 1853,—three-fifths being present.

The People of the State of New York, represented in Senate and Assembly do enact as follows;

§ 1. The board of supervisors of the city and county of Albany, are hereby directed to audit and allow to the assessors thereof, (whose accounts have not already been audited,) for enrolling the militia for the year eighteen hundred and fifty two, the sum of one dollar and twenty five cents per day, for each day necessarily spent in the performance of said duty.

§ 2 The sum so allowed to each assessor shall be paid in the same manner as for other services performed by them.

§ 3. This act shall take effect immediately.

CHAPTER 62.

AN ACT to regulate the construction of roads and streets across railroad tracks.

Passed March 29, 1853.

The People of the State of New York represented in Senate and Assembly do enact as follows:

§ 1 It shall be lawful for the authorities of any city, village or town in this state, who are by law empowered to lay out streets and highways to lay out any street or highway across the track of any railroad now laid or which may hereafter be laid without compensation to the corporation owning such railroad; but no such street or highway shall be actually opened for use until thirty days after notice of such laying out has been served personally upon the president, vice president, treasurer, or a director of such corporation.

§ 2. It shall be made the duty of any railroad corporation, across whose track a street or highway shall be laid out as aforesaid, immediately after the service of said notice, to cause the said street or highway to be taken across their track as shall be most convenient and useful for public travel, and to cause all necessary embankments excavation and other work to be done on their road for that purpose, and all the provisions of the act passed April second, eighteen hundred and fifty, in relation to crossing streets and highways already laid out by railroads, and in relation to cattle guards and other securities, and facilities for crossing such roads, shall apply to streets and highways hereafter laid out.

§ 3. If any railroad corporation shall neglect or refuse for thirty days after the service of the notice aforesaid, to cause the necessary work to be done and completed, and improvements made on such streets or highways across their road, they shall forfeit and pay the sum of twenty dollars for every subsequent day's neglect or refusal, to be recovered by officers laying out such street or highway, to be expended on the same, but the time for doing said work may be extended not to exceed thirty days, by the county judge of the county in which such street or highway or any part thereof may be situated, if, in his opinion the said work cannot be preformed within the time limited by this act.

§ 4. This act shall take effect immediately.

CHAPTER 78.

AN ACT to amend chapter 332 of the Laws of 1849, entitled "An act to amend tled of public instruction." Passed April 11, 1849."

Passed April 2, 1853.

The People of the State of New York, represented in Senate and Assembly, do enact as follows:

§ 1. The sixteenth section of chapter three hundred and eighty two of the laws of eighteen hundred and forty nine is hereby amended, to read as follows:

§ 16 Sections fifteen, eighty three, one hundred six, one hundred and seven, one hundred and eight of chapter four hundred and eighty of the laws of eighteen hundred and forty seven, and section three, of chapter two hundred and fifty eight, laws of eighteen hundred and forty seven, are hereby repealed.

§ 2. This act shall take effect immediately.

CHAPTER 80.

AN ACT to amend section twenty two, of chapter twenty, of title one, of the first part of the Revised Statutes, (fourth condition), in relation to the superintendents of the poor.

Passed April 2, 1853.

The People of the State of New York represented in Senate and Assembly, do enact as follows:

§ 1. Section twenty two of chapter twenty, of title one, of the first part of the Revised Statutes, fourth edition, is hereby amended so as to read as follows;

§ 22. No supervisor of any town, or county treasurer, shall be elected or appointed to hold the office of superintendent of the poor, nor shall any superintendent of the poor be appointed to the office of keeper of the poor house in any county of this state.

§ 2. This act shall take effect immediately

Baby Haters.

We copy from one of our Sunday contemporaries the following anathema against "Baby Haters," a class of monsters whose existence we were not before aware

"Whenever you find a man that hates babies, you will be quite safe in batting him. No one that does not deserve to be shunned or disliked ever shows an antipathy to babies. What! hate a little creature with a cotton-ball head that can only manifest its joy by smiles, kicks, and an inarticulate gurgle; that, in anguish, cannot tell the seat of its pain, but must endure martyrdom while you are guessing out the source of its agonies; that has the holiest of all claims on human sympathies—utter helplessness, utter dependence? What hate the thing which you yourself were and from which you would never have grown to man's estate if your parents had been like you, a baby hater? Fie on you! Even dogs love babies, and will surround them to bestride them, pull their ears, buffet them by the hour, without resenting to their annoyances with even a growl. Mothers, if you happen to know any misanthropist that dislikes the species in its infancy, don't if you can help' it, suffer him to marry one of your female friends or acquaintances. Be sure he will make a surly, morose, icy-hearted husband.

"But what shall we say of baby-hating women? We have known some of this sort—married ones, that had babies, that did hate them, and, as we verily believe would have gladly put them to bed for the last time, where they would require neither rocking nor paregoric, under the sod. Yes, we have known such—the Lord forgive them!

"If there be any spinster who has in her virgin heart a distaste for the fruits of matrimony, may she never have an opportunity of raising any, but be left barren, childless, budless, and unproductive, beyond the range of love's sunshine, and never have her sensibilities warmed by a kiss or embrace, or even a chuck under the chin."

[Written for the Olive Branch.]

"What is the height of a woman's ambition? Diamonds."—[Punch.

☞Sagacious Punch! Do you know the reason? It is because the more diamonds" a woman owns, the more precious she becomes in the eyes of your discriminating sex. What pair of male eyes ever saw a 'crow's foot." grey hair, or wrinkle in company with a genuine, diamond? Don't you go down on your marrow bones and swear that the owner is a Venus, a Hebe, a Juno, a sylph, a fairy, an angel? Would you stop to look (connubially) at the most bewitching woman on earth whose only diamonds were "in her ears." Well, it is no great marvel, Mr. Punch. The race of men is about extinct, and then you will meet with a specimen but I'm sorry to inform you that the few of them are nothing but coat tails, vanity behind a moustache, destitute of sufficient energy to earn their own cigars and "cæsar," preferring to dangle at the heels of a diamond wife, and meekly receive their allowance, as her mama's pride and her own inclinations may suggest.

It is out of my power to express to the veneration I feel for such a dignified donkey, Mr. Punch. If I owned one I imagine I should slip my bridal (bridle)

We publish this work, the list of Premiums offered by this Society for 1853. In doing so, we wish to say a word particularly to the people of Keeseville—the merchants, the mechanics, and the ladies. It is well known that the exhibitions of this society have not been what they should be. Much of blame has been applied to the people of this village. They have the power to make the show to excel anything of the kind in the State, but have hitherto neglected to present their productions. In consequence of this, the removal of the annual Fair to the north of here has been seriously agitated. This is a result no one in Keeseville would like to have take place. The buildings and the grounds are already prepared at considerable expense, and the annual recurrence of these gatherings is certainly agreeable and to be desired. They can only be retained here by a general and liberal movement on the part of the people. If they will step forward at the coming fair, with their products and their wares, making the Exhibition what it ought to be, and what it can easily be made, it will perhaps result in continuing the location at this place, and at the same time greatly advance the interests of the society.

We throw out this suggestion only at this time, leaving its further discussion to others, or to another time, hoping, however it will be favorably received, and generously responded to. We think the subject worthy of some public action.

PROFESSIONAL JEALOUSY.—It is a very common and a very true remark that two of a trade never agree. A case has just occurred here causing considerable excitement. Doctors Talmadge and Allen a few days ago amputated the arm of a French lad just below the elbow, which had been cut by a circular saw through the hand and wrist. It seems that some other physician who saw the part amputated expressed the opinion that it could have been cured.—This, of course, incensed the parents of the boy, and the amputating physicians were called on to vindicate their professional character. They sent to Clintonville, Burlington, and Plattsburgh, and obtained the first surgeons from those places, who came, and after making a proper examination, were unanimous and decided in favor of the course adopted.

We speak of this to condemn such kind of petty, and contemptible attempts to impose upon an ignorant, but honest family, for the purpose of undermining and injuring others of the same calling It deserves the reprehension of the community. But for the preservation of the hand, and its examination by surgeons whose skill could not be impeached, these physicians might have been ruined. Dr. Allen is young, having entered upon the practice of his profession but a year or so ago, but we believe is well educated, and bids fair to be a superior surgeon and physician. Dr. Talmadge is older, and it is of him we wish to speak more particularly. Not that his reputation is likely to suffer, but it is to caution people against being duped by tricks of this kind. As complete as Dr. Talmadge is in every thing pertaining to medical science, as thoroughly educated, both by study and experience, not excelled perhaps by any physician in Northern New York, people ought to hesitate before they are made to believe him guilty of gross mal-practice. The remark is equally applicable to every physician of ability, but we make use of it in this case because it is one which has enlisted a great deal of public attention.

The N. Y. Organ has entered upon a new volume, greatly improved, and in a new dress. The proprietors ask for 20,000 new subscribers and we hope they may get them, as they are deserving. Though principally temperance, it is an excellent family paper, most discreetly and ably conducted.

The Albany Knickerbocker recently donned a new dress, in which it looks fine, and reads well. It is an original, spicy, and able paper, and its new dress is evidence of its success, which, it affords us pleasure to record.

The St. Albans Messenger, also recently put on a new suit, and it is a complete fit. The Messenger is a whig Sentinel and Champion of whig principles in the Green

Local Items.

A friend writing us from Willsboro says: "Ransom Ellsworth of this town sheared recently from one Spanish Buck 17 lbs. 2 oz. of clean washed wool, and from yearlings from this buck from 5 1 2 to 6 1-2 lbs. per head. These sheep had only grass and hay feed. Get away Taintors."

Who beats that?

Port Henry.—The wharf at the steamboat landing at this place is being repaired—an improvement very much needed.

Boatmen with boats can obtain profitable jobs by calling on G. W. Goff, agent of the Port Henry furnaces.

"Devil's Oven."—Not the 'broad road' wherein so many travel, but the steps leading to this part of the Ausable are so much out of repair as to make it impossible to descend to this romantic retreat, rendering a visit to High Bridge incomplete. The fact does not speak well for the public spirit of Keeseville, nor the demolition of the steps to the self respect of those who destroyed them. They are those who, we are confident, are taking downward steps in that other and broader road alluded to.

P. S.—The steps are being repaired.

Neglected Friends.—The following items were overlooked last week, and we trust our friends will excuse us as it was purely accidental;

1. The meeting of the S. of T. Essex.—It is too late now. We can only record the doings.

2. The best incident on the 4th at Essex was a volunteer national song sung by Mr. Hikok and his daughter, who unexpectedly presented themselves to the crowd at Allens Hotel. It was beautifully sung, and was received with rapturous applause. Several other songs were called for by the crowd, and sung with affect.

3. Barrett's Grammar.—This is a book of some 300 pages designed to simplify the study of the English, French, Latin, Greek German and Spanish Languages. It has received the approbation of some of the first scholars of the country. The author is now in town in pursuit of subscribers.—We have no doubt of the merits of the work, so far as we are qualified to judge.—Not that every man who buys one of these books will be able to acquire even a smattering of the several languages alluded to—we would not be so simple as to say this—but that it will prove a great aid to the student, and a convenient book of reference to literary men there is no doubt.

The boats.—We wish to suggest to the people on this side of the lake that the America and Canada are the boats for them to patronise. This should be done on the principle of encouraging one's friends.—These boats touch at all the landings from Plattsburgh to Whitehall, and their present arrangements have never been better, affording an opportunity to go each way, twice every 24 hours. But for these boats what should we have had? Probably nothing but at most not more than one boat, and that runing simply to a Vt. rail road. Indeed we probably see in the present arrangements about what we should have had without the America and Canada. It matters not that the Saltus and States are partially opposition, or that in the 'patronage of them we take a partial revenge on some who were once against our favorite boats. At present, the interest of the people on this side of the lake and of the Canada and America are indentical. The destruction of these boats would throw us into the hands of a Vt. rail road, and we have only to imagine these boats hauled off to behold the arrangements that would be extended to us.

The General News.

The papers are speculating on the probable results of the Chinese rebellion, and the probabilities of a war between Russia and Turkey. No decisive news has been received. We shall look for the next arrivals from Europe with a great deal of anxiety, bringing as they will news of peace, or war—liberty or tyranny to millions.—The first gun that shall be fired will be the signal for a general rising of the masses of Europe. Woe, then, to their oppressors. Let it come.

MODERN FLIRTATIONS, a Novel; by Catharine Sinclair, author of "Beatrice." New York: Striuger & Townsend.

This is an able, and powerfully written book, and deals a heavy blow in a vigorous style at the absurd follies practised by the fashionable society of the present day. The heartless flummery and insipid nothings of belles and beaus, are depicted in a manner that must result in permanent good. Its moral teachings and religious fervor cannot be too highly prized, for their subduing and elevating tendency. It is one of those rare novels that may not only be put in the hands of every young person, and read without danger, but with extreme profit.—The publishers have our thanks. "Union and Harmony."

Quoting both sets of resolutions recently adopted by the Assembly of this State, the democratic organ at this place thus concludes:—

"We may now congratulate our democratic friends upon an event which must silence forever, or triumphantly refute, the assertions of factionists that the views and acts of our President are not according to the views and wishes of the democracy of the Empire State."

Apologizing to our readers, for introducing this sheet into so respectable a company as appears in this article, we add a few facts by way of contrast:

1. Early in the regular session, Mr. D. B. Taylor, Hunker democrat of N. Y. city, introduced a sesies of resolutions into the Assembly, endorsing in plain and unequivocal language, the Inaugural of President Pierce, and especially the Fugitive Slave Law. Action upon those resolution was staved off by the Barnburners to the 30th ult., when they were brought to a vote.—Every expedient was resorted to to avoid a vote in vain. The whigs held the noses of the Barnburners to the grind-stone, while the Hunkers turned the crank. Finding that action could no longer be delayed, the Speaker called a whig to the chair and 'vamoosed the ranch,' followed by Mr. Loomis and all the leading Barnburners.

Mr. Mills moved to excuse whigs from voting. Mr. Marsh denounced the resolution as "damnable." A voice cried "Glory to God!" Mr. Marsh thanked whigs for the only favors shown him in the House.—Some of the Barnburners refused to vote: but, amid motions to adjourn, to lay on the table, to amend, calls of the house, and motions to declare members in contempt, the resolutions were adopted. An analysis of the vote of the democracy on the last resolution was a follows; Ayes 41, Noes 4, Absent 27,

Such is the vote that "must silence forever, or triumphantly refute, the assertions of factionists that the views and acts of our President are not according to the views and wishes of the democracy of the Empire State."

2. On the first inst. Mr. Champlain (barnburner democrat) introduced another series endorsing Genl. Pierce and all his acts and appointments indiscriminately.—The resolutions laid over under the rule, and came up for action on the 8th. A debate followed from which we quote: Mr. Clapp said he understood the adoption of these resolutions was the price of a foreign mission.

Mr. Shaw stated that he had already voted upon a series of resolutions endorsing the President. This set called upon us to endorse the men the President had selected. This he was not prepared to do; for he could not say whom the President had appointed to office in many cases—certain he was that he had not taken his advice in some cases.

The Speaker: The gentleman from New York will confine his remarks to his motion.

Mr. Shaw: I am doing so.

The Speaker: The gentlemen was not.

Mr. Shaw: I am at liberty to judge myself of their relevancy. I am assigning a reason why I shall vote on this resolution.

The Speaker: Then it is not an excuse for not voting.

Mr. Shaw: Speaker! You and I have had several passages before, and it is hardly worth while for me to get up another I regard the resolution merely as a piece of party claptrap. Voted 'no.'

Mr. D. B. Taylor, asked to be excused from voting, and gave his reasons.

The Speaker: The gentleman is discussing the merits of the question.

Mr. D. B. Taylor intended to speak to his motion to be excused—to give the reasons. He said that he could not vote consistently for the resolutions, because he believed they were conceived in sin and brought forth in iniquity—that the movers of them had stole the livery of heaven to serve the devil in.

The Speaker: The gentleman is out of order again.

Mr. D. B. Taylor contended that the resolutions were offered by a man who until recently did not belong to the Democratic party.

The Speaker: The gentleman is again out of order.

Mr. D. B. Taylor desired to be in order.

The Speaker: The gentleman must take his seat if he does not continue in order.

Mr. D. B. Taylor again designated the source from which the resolutions emanated. [Not excused.] He then said, that as corrupt as it was, and as he would be misrepresented, he voted 'aye.'

Mr. Payne asked to be excused, for the reason that the previous question had been ordered and he was prevented from making an amendment—which would have been to substitute 'Buffalo' for 'Baltimore' in the platform.

The Speaker: The gentleman is discussing the merits of the question.

Mr. Payne: Another reason. The first resolution speaks of the 'brotherhood.'

The Speaker: The gentleman is again out of order.

Mr. Payne voted 'no.'

The first resolution having been adopted, and the second being under consideration.

Mr. D. B. Taylor asked to be excused, resuming his remarks, with a notice to the Speaker that he need not be prepared to call him to order, as he was going to speak to the question of excuse. that he was not prepared to resolution, because it confe truth on its face.

The Speaker: The gentle

The Speaker: The gentleman is again out of order

Mr. D. B. Taylor continued—and to appoint no more—for they have had no affinity with the National Democracy for years past—they are wolves in sheep's clothing—and never will be any thing else——

The Speaker: The gentleman is out of order.

Mr. D. B. Taylor continued: He detested Barnburners, and regarded their influence upon the body politic of the country as fatal as the upas tree. He hoped General Pierce would appoint no more, and remove those now in office—as a majority of Gen. Pierce's acts he could approve of, he should be constrained to vote 'aye.'

3. In regard to the policy of General Pierce in buying up the Barnburners, the Argus says:—

"The scheme, aside from its effect in the other direction—we speak of the true, men who have been compelled to stand aside that returning Prodigals, husky and thirsty, might revel in the spoils of office—is obviously a failure, regardod only in the light of a scheme to conciliate free soilism. It was a very great mistake—a positive blunder—to suppose that the partizans who stood upon anti-slavery ground in '48, and who stand there still, were worth purchasing at any price—or that they would be content with any price, when satisfied that they had found a buyer. The result thus far proves that it was worse than a blunder—and the future will corroborate the truth, that instead of harmonising and consolidating, the effect has been the reverse."

4. Our readers are aware that a 'fire brand' was thrown into a recent convention in N H. in the shape of resolutions censuring the policy of Pierce in raising the 'drooping heads' of the barnburners & secessionists. Being handled rather roughly by the 'toadie's' of the President, the author, the Hon. Edmund Burke, Coms. of Patents, under Polk, thus speaks out in reply:

I avow the resolutions in whole and in part, and will stand by them. Not designing to cast any censure upon the President, I did design to preserve the consistency of the Democratic party of the United States, especially with regard to the slavery question and the compromse. And such I believe to be the sentiments of a decided majority of the convention, and of the Democracy of New Hampshire.

And I go farther. Treating the mandate of the New Hampshire Patriot with the scorn it deserves, I frankly say to the world that I do not approve of the appointment to office of Freesoilers, Coalitionists, Disunionists or Whigs, until they have brought themselves within the purview of the fourth resolution adopted by the late convention. If the President has appointed a man to his Cabinet who but a short time since was a leading Federalist, I say frankly that I do not approve of it. And I have not seen the first sound Democrat that does approve of it. If he has appointed a leading disunionist to the Cabinet, I do not approve of it. I would say this to him personally, as I now say it publicly to the people of New Hampshire, not in any spirit of unfriendliness or hostility, but with a sincere desire that the administration should be conducted successfully and gloriously for himself and his country. And thousands upon thousands of the true Democracy of the Union, to whom he owes his triumphant election, I know entertain precisely the same sentiments.

5. But not to rely wholly upon evidence from a distance, we will add what every one knows, or can know, by taking the trouble to enquire, that the Hunkers right about home are utterly dissatisfied with the course of Pierce, and in their hearts loathe him worse than ever whigs did John Tyler, and with as good reasons.

Reflections.—The quotation which heads this article seems almost inexplicable.—Is that Editor really so ignorant as to fancy the bitter heartburnings in this State all suddenly healed by two sets of resolutions? Hardly. Is it possible that any man can be so vile as to state deliberately what he knows to be false? It were hard to believe this. Is this the kind of service required by Pierce for which he gives Post Offices in reward? If it is, God protect the country, for this kind of patriots wont. To whigs then, the quotation we have made is a mere burlesque. To well informed democrats who read the Atlas or Argus, it is a barefaced falsehood, subserving neither the cause of truth, justice, or honor, but perverting the mission of the press, and the writer will be appreciated accordingly. To ignorant democrats, who depend upon the Gazette for their politics, it is a gross and unpardonable deception, (as Mr. D. B. Taylor said of the resolutions which "must silence forever, or triumphantly refute, the assertions of factionists that the views and acts of our President are not according to the views and wishes of the democracy of the Empire State," "conceived in sin and brought forth in iniquity."

The import of railroad iron from Europe since January amount in value to $2,250,000, showing an increase of $1,578,000 over the same period of last year.

The True Dignity of the Female Character.

BY A LADY OF KEESEVILLE.

We come now to inquire what are the requisites of this dignity? To fit her for her proper sphere, she must be educated.—This only can give her rank in the scale of intellectual being. That her susceptibilities are equal to the task, is undoubted—at this age—and in America, it were insult to argue this; if it were necessary, we might call up the memories of many gifted and accomplished daughters of this and other lands—scholars, poetesses, philosophers and authors, who have bequeathed to us proofs unquestionable, of mental greatness. Who among poets have sung more sweetly than Mrs. Hemans and Mrs. Sigourney? Who written more usefully than Hannah Moore? or more brilliantly than Miss Porter? Or who sketches to the life, makes to breathe and burn, truth when applied in delineation of character or principle, more vividly than Mrs. Harriet Beecher Stowe? Yet it is not for such celebriety that woman should be educated, tho' some might attain it; but for the every day responsibilities of life. All her relations, present and prospective, require intellectual improvement. As daughters it is our safety, and promise of elevation, as instructors of the young it is indispensible; and as related to society it will enable her to appreciate civil and religious liberty.—It is necessary to make us true patriots, and every American lady should be one. During those days of war and blood shed, who sustained and fed the fires of freedom? Whose gushing sympathies went forth with our troops to give energy and success to the deadly strife?—the wives, the sisters and mothers of that day 'which tried men's souls.' For freedom they toiled and sacrificed, and if their daughters, forgetting their noble ancestry, shall give themselves up to inglorious ease, extravagence, and fashionable follies, which are the bane of other lands, then, woe be unto us! Ichabod will be written upon our altar fires.—Who was the wife of John Adams? and who the mother of our Washington? Such wives and mothers there must be many, or, woe shall be upon us; and education and piety alone, will give such. . . . . To what extent females should be taught in the sciences, is a question upon which there is conflicting opinion, and it might appear presuming in me to venture suggestions; still we will say we have never discovered any good reason for restriction in the academic course; but whatever the standard—we affirm that it should be substantial, not superficial, solid first, afterward ornamental—chiefly to discipline the mind, yet not neglecting the manners. . . . . And in this connection—we will add Tuition in domestic duties. These are the calling of woman alone. To her, habits of order, industry and economy are essential. May we be allowed to tell a truth of some women, that their husbands and fathers are ruined by their extravagance? that they toil day and night, to maintain a vanity of appearance in their households? and that at the demand of these they hold dear? while these household dolls, never give one thought of the mental torture, which is the cost of this display? Were such capable of reason, we would expostulate. Was woman created for inglorious inaction, or to sport and shine a mere butterfly of existence? Is she to be such a thing of inanity as a statue or picture, and never add to the sum of human happiness? Is she so delicate and ethereal that to participate in household labors, will contaminate her very soul? And yet some ladies (?) even boast of this as tho' it were a mark of elevation. Tell it not of the republican daughters of America! 'All such rejoicings are evil.'—Why, this subject, is worthy, and has employed the pen of inspiration itself! Solomon in beautiful portraiture has sketched woman 'working willingly with her hands' feeding the poor and needy, opening her mouth in wisdom while the law of kindness was upon her tongue—looking well to the ways of her household and eating not the bread of idleness.

The crowning and controlling excellence in women is piety. Without this she cannot be truely great or true to the interests of our race; faithlessness here is treason to society. To christianity woman is indebted for all she is, and all history demonstrates this truth. Among savage and barbarous nations she ever has been and is now in abject slavery, is treated as inferior, with neglect and contempt, and made a beast of burden. Where christianity comes not to her aid, woman is only the creature of amusement—as servant or a sovereign—discarded or adorned. But pass to the land of Religion and view her there. Here only can she be seen in her Heaven-appointed ministry, and her genuine worth.—Here she participates with man the joys of earth and shares the hopes of Heaven—The work of benevolence here is hers—the work of intellect—to soothe the aching head—to guide the youthful mind—to plant the seeds of life and imortality in tender hearts—subdue the soul of man, and meekly guide that soul to God and Heaven. Piety then is the interest of woman. The Gospel is the great charter of her rights, and its wisdom is more valuable infinitely more than India's gems, or all the adornments of person, or mind, without its grace. The Bible, that great statute book of Heaven, shall be loved and obeyed by woman, for it is her Elevator-her Savior from degradation and ruin. Could we breathe but one prayer for those of our sex, who read these thoughts, it would be, that they might fill, fully and properly their spheres, here know the path of life, and enter the abodes of the righteous where all is light and life and love.

The sugar planters of Louisiana have taked measures to prevent the introduction of sugar into the United States under the name of concentrated molasses. It is alleged that it has been done in St. Louis, to avoid the payment of duties on

THE SPOILS—THE SPOILS.—We present our readers today the extensive and comprehensive catalogue of the foreign and domestic appointments of the present administration, as made up from official sources expressly for the New York Herald. And what a chapter for study, yea, for a brown study, and for the profoundest philosophical analysis, is here spread before the astonished eyes of the ordinary thin-skinned and narrow sighted politicians!

Does General Pierce show the slightest inclination to the contracted political heresies of Native Americanism? Not a bit of it. Native Americans, Englishmen, Scotchmen, Irishmen, Welshmen, Frenchmen, Dutchmen, Spaniards, Italians, and others, mingling, as they do, in the great mass of the nation, come in for a share of the roast beef and plum pudding.

And, Presbyterian as he is, honorary, if not a full communicant, does the President show any disposition to trim down the whole democratic party to the cut of his cloth?—By no means. No, sirs, by no means.—Standing upon the ramparts of the constitution, he carries out his oath in maintaining our fundamental principles of civil and religious liberty. Hence we find Catholics and Roundheads, and Methodists and Israelites, and Socialists—in a word, we find men of all religious creeds known among us, including the Mormons, and men of no religion at all, honored alike.—The State has nothing to do with the church in this country, nor has the church anything to do with the State, or what would have become of the great apostle and founder of the democratic party?. We say that the Mormons are included; for although the President has not yet decided what he ought to do with Gov. Young, of Utah, the Prophet and High Priest of the Latter Day Saints at the Great Salt Lake, we presume that the Governor's late proclamations against the Mexicans, and against all apostates from the true faith, will make it all right with him at Washington. Besides, Gov. Young, if we are not mistaken, is a democrat, venerating the name of Old Hickory—holding a regular democratic opinion of the merits of Gen. Taylor as a civilian; and going in for the largest liberty to the saints in matrimony, thus carrying out the doctrine of "manifest destiny" in the rapid multiplication of the American people.

Furthermore, this official catalogue showeth that General Pierce is not a sectional man in his views:

"No pent-up Utica contracts his powers."

For, from the eastern fishing grounds to Puget's Sound—from the Lake of the Woods to the Brazos—from the Adirondac to the Wahsatch mountains—from the coral reefs of Florida to the golden gulches of the Moquelumne—every quarter and corner of the Union has shared in the division of the plunder.

Nor is Gen. Pierce a man tied up or tied down to any particular clique, coterie or faction of the great democratic party, North or South. "No! no!—a thousand times no!" Clay whigs, Harrison whigs, Tyler whigs, Taylor whigs, Webster whigs, all sorts of whigs, (except Scott whigs,) who were inside of the eldventh hour, have been invited to the feast decreed to the invincible democracy by both parties at Baltimore; and all sorts of democrats who came into the vineyard before the November election, have been called in to share and share alike. In our catalogue there are hard shells and soft shells, Union men and disunion men, compromise and anti-compromise men.—Wilmot proviso and anti-Wilmot proviso men, Taylor democrats and Tyler democrats, abolitionists and fire-eaters, high tariffites and free traders, strict constructionists and latitudinarians, the disciples of Young America and "manifest destiny," and the most hide-bound "old fogies" of all the tribe—all fraternizing together over the spoils, as if the very millennium of democracy had come. And if this schedule is not large enough, and liberal enough, to cover the Baltimore platform, we should like to know what is. Yes, we should like to know.

It may be all true enough that the "old guard" of the party—the Bourbons, the Cass men, the Dickinson men, the Compromise platform men—are grumbling and threatening revenge. But what can they do? Answer that. What can this Cass and Dickinson conspiracy do against our administration and its party—a party which comprehends all creation, all factions, all sections, all religious creeds, and most anti-religious creeds, which is backed up by Roundheads and Jesuits, Israelites and Gentiles, Socialists and Mormons, at home or abroad? What can these grumblers and mumbling hard shells—these outsiders—do against our President and his cabinet, with all the spoils in their hands, and with such a tremendous party to support them? They can't do a thing. They may foment discord—they may kick up a row in the next Congress, with the aid of Old Bullion. But what does all that amount to, in view of the overshadowing and paramount question, will there be war?—N. Y. Herald.

A companion for the Young Lady who wears the breeches.—Facts brought to light on Saturday evening, prove conclusively that the young lady who so recently visited many cities in the Union in male attire, is not the only person dissatisfied with her caste in life. She donned the breeches to travel. A man named Michael Bellows, in this city, has donned the petticoats to the more successfully charm young men.—It is stated that Michael has assumed this garb for the purpose of inducing young men to accompany him home, and then extort money from them. He was arrested on Saturday evening, and yesterday committed to answer the charge of deception.—Albany Argus.

EFFECTS OF HEAT.—The N. Y. Times states that sixteen inquests were held in the city of New York, on Wednesday, on cases of death by "Sun stroke" most of them Irish laborers.

It also states that Broadway was strewn with the carcasses of dead horses; the weather and the driving were too much for them.

POST CARD

Couldn't ! cos he sung so !

Leaning idly over a fence, a few days since, we noticed a little four-year-old 'lord of the creation' amusing himself in the grass by watching the frolicsome flight of birds which were playing around him. At length a beautiful bobolink perched himself upon a drooping bough of an apple tree, which extended to within a few yards of the place where the urchin sat, and maintained his position, apparently unconscious of the close proximity to one whom birds usually consider a dangerous neighbor.

The boy seemed astonished at his impudence, and after regarding him steadily for a minute or two, obeying the instinct of his baser part, he picked up a stone lying at his feet, and was preparing to throw it, steadying himself carefully for a good aim. The little arm was reached backward without alarming the bird, and Bob was within an ace of damage, when, lo! his throat swelled, and forth came Nature's plea: "A link—a link—a l-i-n-k, bob-o-link! a-no-weet! I know it—I know it!—a-link—a-link—a-link! don't throw it!—throw it, throw it," etc., ect. And he didn't.—Slowly the little arm subsided to its natural position, and the despised stone dropped. The minstrel charmed the murderer! We heard the songster through, and watched his unharmed flight, as did the boy, with a sorrowful countenance. Anxious to hear an expression of the little fellow's feelings, we approached him and enquired: "Why don't you stone him, my boy? You might have killed him and carried him home."—The poor little fellow looked up doubtingly, as though he suspected our meaning; and with an expression half shame and half sorrow he replied: "Couldn't! cos he he sung so!" Who will aver that music hath no charms to soothe the savage breast? Melody awakened Humanity, and Humanity—Mercy! The angels who sang at the creation whispered to the child's heart.—The bird was saved, and God was glorified by the deed.—Clinton Courant.

AN ARKANSAS "NOATIS."—In a recent tour through one of the wildest and most sparsely settled regions of Arkansas (the land made classic by the effusions of that versatile genuis "Pete Whetstone,") I arrived at the Ferry in Chache River. A little log house grocery stood on the near bank, about fifteen steps from where the ferry flat lay, tied to a snag in the edge of the water. Several bear skins, deer skins, and coon skins, were nailed up to dry against the walls of the grocery, but the door was closed, and no bar keeper, ferry man, or other person was in sight. I hallooed at the top of my voice some half a dozen times, but no one answered. Seeing an advertisement on the door, I read as follows:—

ef enny boddy cums hear arter liker, or to git Akross the Ruver They kin gest blo This here Horne and ef i dont cum when my wife Betsey up at the Hous be es the Horne a bloin shele cum down and sell the licker or set om Akross the ruver imo guine a Fishin no creddet whem ime awe from Hoame john wilson NB them that that cant rode will hev too go too the house arter Betsey taint but a mile thar j w

In obedience to the "noatis," I took the blowing horn, which stuck in a crack of the wall close by the door, and gave it a "toot" or two, which reverberated far around through the cane and swamp, and in a few moments was answered by a voice scarcely less loud and reverberating than that of the horn—it seemed to be about half a mile distant up the river; and in about fifteen minutes a stalwart female made her appearance, and asked if I wanted "licker."

"No madam, I want to cross the river, if you please."

"Don't ye want some licker fust?"

"No, Madam—don't drink—never touch liquor."

"Never fetch licker! Why, ye must be a preacher then, aint ye?"

"No, Madam, I'm only a Son of Tem- you please; do you row the boat?"

"Oh, yes! I can take you over in less than no time. Fetch up yer hoss!"

I obeyed asking, as I led the horse into the boat—"Did your husband write that advertisement on the door there?"

"No, sir-ree! Schoolmaster Jones writ that.—John haint got no larnin!"

And the good woman rowed the boat safely across the ugly stream; and handing her the ferriage-fee, I bads her good mornig, believing then, as I still do, that she was one of the happiest women, and best wives, I ever saw—perfectly contented with her lot, because she knew no better.—[New York Spirit of the Times.

THE following are worthy of being printed in letters of gold, and being placed in a conspicuous position in every household:

1. From your children's earliest infancy, you must inculcate the necessity of instant obedience

2. Unite firmness with gentleness. Let your children always understand that you mean exactly what you say.

3. Never promise them anything, unless you are sure that you can give them what you promise.

4. If you tell a child to do something, show him how to do it, and see that it is done.

5. Always punish your children for wilfully disobeying you, but never punish in anger.

6. Never let them perceive that they can vex you or make you lose your self command

7. If they give way to petulance and temper wait till they are calm, and then gently reason with them on the impropriety of their conduct.

8. Remember that a little present punishment has the same or greater, is much more effectual than the threatening of a great punishment should the fault be renewed.

9. Never give your children anything because they cry for it.

The Zephyr Spirit.

I sat in a flowery arbor. The rich perfume of orange groves and spicy bowers filled the air. Soft on my ravished ear stole the sweet notes of the nightingale.—Sweet summer night! Night much to be remembered! My fancy was in a maze of wondering delight. Wherefore, I asked, am I permitted to taste so much of sweetness? Through what mysterious medium is that power conveyed, that holds my sense enraptured? I turned—a bright spirit was at my side. "Foolish mortal!" she said, in a voice of music, "art thou then ignorant of thy benefactress? What power, thinkest thou, stirs the leaves of yonder willow? What fans thy cheek, and cools thy fevered brow? What wild nymph plays with yonder waves so lightly, yet so perfectly that, scarce touching the shore, their every approach to it falls sweetly on thy ear! Hearest thou that deep toned harp? Who sweeps over its strings with seraph hand?"

I answered not, though I recognized the Fairy stranger—for the Spirit of the Zephyr had breathed on my inmost soul.

I listened yet longer to the earthly music, and breathed yet longer the perfumed air: for the music whispered to my soul of the harmony in heaven, where angels sweep golden harp-strings whose tone shall never change; and the atmosphere seemed filled with angel whispers. But speaks not my Fairy Spirit of earth's deep sorrows?

Hark! dismal sounds float from afar,
They tell of turmoil dark, and war—
They tell of deep, unknown distress,
Of sadly mourning loveliness.

Ah, sorrow fills my heart, once light,
That thus I whiled away the night,
Unthoughtful of the sad and lone,
The Zephyr Spirit calls her own.
Yet to my soul she breathes of Heaven,
Of mercy to poor mortals given.

AT a Surrogate Court held at the County Judge's Office in Elizabethtown, in and for the County of Essex, on the 20th day of June, A. D., 1853.

Present, J. E. McVINE, Essex Co. Judge.

In the matter of the application of Charles Morhous, a creditor of Rensselaer Morhous, deceased, to have the real estate of the said deceased, mortgaged, leased or sold for the payment of debts.

An Order having been heretofore made on the application of Charles Morhous, a creditor of Rensselaer Morhous, late of the County of Essex, deceased, intestate, requiring Emeline Morhous, administratrix, and Abraham Weldon and David W. Morhous, administrators of all and singular the goods, chattels, and credits of the said intestate, personally to be and appear before the County Judge and Surrogate of the county of Essex, at his office in Elizabethtown, on the 20th day of June ult., at 10 o'clock, A. M., to shew cause why they should not be required to mortgage, lease, or sell so much of the real estate of said deceased as shall be necessary to pay his debts. And the said administratrix and administrator Abraham Welden, having appeared, as also the said Petitioner by Orlando Kellogg his Proctor, and the said administrators having shown no cause to the contrary.

It is ordered that all persons interested in the estate of said Rensselaer Morhous deceased, intestate, appear before the county Judge of the county of Essex, at his office in the town of Elizabethtown, on the 15th day of August next, at 10 o'clock in the forenoon of that day, then and there to shew cause why authority should not be given to the said administrators and administratrix to mortgage, lease, or sell so much of the Real Estate of the said deceased as shall be necessary to pay his Debts

"Man Know Thyself."

An Invaluable Book for 25 Cents.

"EVERY FAMILY SHOULD HAVE A COPY."

20,000 Copies sold in less than 5 months. A new edition, revised and improved, just issued.

Dr. Hunter's Medical Manual and Hand Book for the Afflicted—

Containing an outline of the origin, progress, treatment and cure of every form of disease, contracted by promiscuous sexual intercourse, by self abuse or by sexual excess, with advice for their prevention, written in a familiar style, avoiding all medical technicalities, and everything that would offend the ear of decency, from the result of some twenty years successful practice, exhlusively devoted to the cure of diseases of a delicate or private nature.

To which is added, receipts for the cure of the above diseases, and a treatise on the causes, symptoms and cure of the Fever and Ague.

Testimony of the Prof. of Obstetrics in Penn. College, Philadelphia.—"Dr. Hunter's Medical Manual."—The author of this work unlike the majority of those works who advertise to cure the diseases of which it treats, is a graduate of one of the best Colleges in the United States. It affords me pleasure to recommend him to the unfortunate, or to the victim of malpractice, as a successful and experienced practitioner, in whose honor and integrity they may place the greatest confidence.

JOSEPH LONGSHORE, M. D.

From A Woodward M. D., of Penn. University, Philadelphia—It gives me pleasure to add my testimony to the professional ability of the author of the "Medical Manual." Numerous cases of diseases of the Genital Organs, some of them of long standing have come under my notice, in which his skill has been manifest in restoring to perfect health, in some instances where the patient has been considered beyond medical aid. In the treatment of Seminal weakness, or disarrangement of the functions produced by Self-abuse, or Excess of venery, I do not know his superior in the profession. I have been acquainted with the Author some thirty years, and deem it no more than justice to him as well as a kindness to the unfortunate victim of early indiscretion, to recommend him as one, in whose professional skill and integrity they may safely confide themselves. ALFRED WOODWARD, M.D.

"This is, without exception, the most comprehensive and intelligible work published on the class of diseases of which it treats. Avoiding all technical terms, it addresses itself to the reason of its readers. It is free from all objectionable matter, and no parent, however fastidious, can object to placing it in the hands of his sons. The author has devoted many years to the treatment of the various complaints treated of, and with too little breath to puff,' and 'too little presumption to impose,' he has offered to the world at the merely nominal price of 25 cents, the fruits of some 20 years most successful practice."—Herald.

"No teacher or parent should be without the knowledge imparted in this invaluable work. It would save years of pain, mortification and sorrow to the youth under their charge."—People's Advocate.

A Presbyterian clergyman in Ohio, in writing of "Hunter's Medical Manual," says: "Thousands upon thousands of our youth, by evil example and influence of the passions, have been led into the habit of self-pollution without realizing the sin and fearful consequences upon themselves and their posterity. The constitutions of thousands who are raising families have been enfeebled, if not broken down, and the do not know the cause or the cure. Anything that can be done so to enlighten and influence the public mind as to check, and ultimately to remove this widespread source of human wretchedness, would confer the greatest blessing next to the religion of Jesus Christ, on the present and coming generations. Intemperance (or the use of intoxicating drinks,) though it has slain thousands upon thousands, is not a greater scourge to the human race. Accept my thanks on behalf of the afflicted, and, believe me, your co-worker in the good work you are so actively engaged in."

One copy, (securely enveloped,) will be forwarded free of postage to any part of the United States for 25 cents, or 6 copies for $1.—Address (post paid) COSDEN & Co., publishers, Box 106, Philadelphia. 478y

DRY GOODS,

Carpets and Oil-Cloths.

Owing to the large increase of patronage, I have found it necessary from time to time, to make many improvements and additions to my store.

This spring I have united the stores No. 7 and 9, State St., making a spacious and beautiful room, fitted up expressly for the sale of all the various styles of

Silks, Shawls, Cloaks & Mantillas.

This connects with the main store, No. 202. River St., (the old stand occupied by the subscriber for nearly 30 years,) which is devoted to a general assortment of

STAPLE AND FANCY DRY GOODS,

comprising every variety to meet the wants of all classes of buyers. Besides these, four large rooms over the stores 200, 202 and 204 River St., are occupied as

PROUTY & MEARS'

Celebrated Centre Draughts—All Sizes

THESE Ploughs wherever introduced, are fast superseding all others

The most thorough trials of Ploughs on record in this country, and at the World's Fair in London, have demonstrated the important fact, that the Centre draught Plough is of much easier draught than any other and therefore used with less fatigue to both Ploughman and Team; and, also owing to its peculiar form, it pulverizes and prepares the ground for seed more perfectly than any other, saving less work for the harrow, and securing better crops than by any other method of Culture.

The following Implements, among others of the best quality, and of the latest and most approved patterns, are constantly on hand, viz:

Harrows, Seed Sowers, Corn Planters, Corn Shellers, Straw Cutters, Corn and Cob Crushers, Cheese Presses, Threshing Machines, Potato Hoes, Manure Hooks, Cast Iron Ox Scrapers, Pruning Shears, Tree Scrapers Budding and Pruning Knives, Hay Knives, Barn Door Rollers, Agricultural Furnaces, Corn Knives, Post Hole Augers, Wheelbarrows, Sheep Shears, etc etc.

SHERIFF'S SALE.

By virtue of two executions issued out of the Supreme Court of the State of New-York, to me directed and delivered against the goods and chattels and chattels real of James W. Taggard, I have seized and taken all the right title and interest which the said James W. Taggard had on the 6th day of August 1852 or which he may since have acquired of in and to all that certain piece or parcel of land situate, lying and being in the Town of Chesterfield, in the Village of Keeseville. County of Essex and State of New York. bounded as follows: Begining at the South west corner of a lot of land sold and deeded to Irish Durkee and John Johnson running thence east, twenty three degrees south twenty rods, thence south twenty three degrees west eight rods thence west twenty three degrees north twenty rods, thence north 23 degrees east eight rods containing one acre of ground excepting & reserving out of the north west corner of the above described premises a piece of land extending thirty feet on the road bounding the westerly part of said premises and fifty feet back or easterly from said road and containing fifteen hundred superficial feet of land being the same parcel or lot of land sold by Robert Forsyth Junior, now deceased to Irish Durkee. Also, that certain piece or parcel of land situate lying and being in the village of Keeseville, in the Town of Chesterfield and State aforesaid. Beginning at the south east corner of a lot of land heretofore sold by Robert Forsyth Jr. now deceased, to Irish Durkee on which said Durkee has erected a building and runs thence south twenty two degrees west along the line of the highway 35 feet, thence east twenty two degrees south fifty feet thence north twenty two degrees east thirty five feet thence west twenty two degrees north fifty feet to the place of beginning. Also all that other certain piece or parcel of land situated in the village, town and county aforesaid, beginning at the south east corner of the aforesaid lot and runs from thence east twenty seven feet from thence north fifty four feet from thence west twenty seven feet and from thence south fifty four feet to the place of beginning. Also all that certain other piece or parcel of land situate lying and being in the village, town, county and state aforesaid, in a patent of thirteen thousand acres of land granted to Zephaniah Platt and others, and is lot number twenty one in the village survey made by Edwin F. Johnson, and is bounded as follows: Begining at the south east corner of lot number twenty in said survey running thence south twenty three and a half degrees west along the west line of vine street two chains thence north sixty six and a half degrees west one chain thence north twenty three and a half degrees east along the line of Robert Forsyths Junior, now deceased, two chains thence south sixty six and a half degrees east one chain along the line of lot number twenty to the place of beginning containing one fifth of an acre of land. Excepting and reserving from the premises last described the following lot or parcel of ground, viz: Beginning on the west line of vine street at the south east corner of the Johnson lot, so called, thence south twenty four degrees, west fifty two feet six inches thence north seventy six degrees west two chains nineteen links thence north twenty four degrees east fifty two feet six inches thence south seventy six degrees east two chains nineteen links to the place o begining, being the same premises sold by Robert Forsyth Junior, in his life time to George Hubbard, and which said three pieces or parcels of land as hereinbefore described compose the farm lot and premises owned and occupied by Robert Forsyth Junior in his life time and being the same now in possession of Sabina Forsyth, the widow of the said Robert Forsyth Junior, deceased, one of the parties of the first part to these presents. Also the right of taking and using water from the lot on vine street in said village the same as it now is used and taken for the use of said farm house and premises and from the same spring and place on said lot that is now taken from and none other. Together with the right at all times of entering upon said lot for the purpose of keeping said spring in repair and of putting down and repairing the logs or pipes used to convey the water from the same and for no other purpose whatsoever. Also, all that house and lot situate in the village of Keeseville, in the town of Chesterfield, in the county of Essex, being the house and lot conveyed by Heman Rockwell and Harry Rackman to Nathan Eastabrook by deed bearing date the 26th day May, 1826, and by the said Nathan to Gardiner Stow and now occupied by the said Gardiner Stow as his office. All of which aforesaid real property, I shall expose for sale at the Adirondac Hotel, in said village and county, on the 18th day of July next, at 12 o'clock at noon of that day. Dated at Keeseville this 3d day of June 1853.

BOOT & SHOE STORE!

THE Subscribers having bought the Boot and Shoe Establishment heretofore known as F, E. Shandrew and Co.'s; are now prepared to manufacture anything in that line. We have also a large stock of Ready-Made Work, selected with great care by Mr. Shandrew, and warranted to be a better article than can be found in any slop Shoe Store in town. Our ready made Boots and Shoes are made by some of the best workmen in New York city,—in the most fashionable style, and every pair warranted to give satisfaction or the money refunded. We are permanently in the business and of course expect to furnish a better article for less money than our neighbors can who do not manufacture.

Ladies and gentlemen—you need not go to Burlington, nor any where else, expecting to do better than you can with us, as we have in our employ some of the best workmen in the State, and can give you perfect fits. We hope and expect that our own mechanics and village will be patronized in preference to the States Prison convicts, whose worthless trash is brought into competition with the labor of honest workmen. In addition to every article in the line of Boots and Shoes, we have a well selected stock of 20 Years Experience.

OLD ESTABLISHED HOSPITAL.

Quick Cures and Low prices. Private Diseases, and their Antidote.

Dr. LISPENARD, author of the Marriage Guide, or Private Medical Treatise. Professor of Diseases of Women and Children, and Licentiate of the College of Physicians and Surgeons of the United States University, &c., &c., continues as heretofore to be confidentially and successfully consulted on all forms and variety of PRIVATE DISEASES, this old quarters, No 5 Beaver-street ALBANY, N. Y.

The great success attending the use of Doctor L.'s remedies in secret diseases, and the many remarkable cures daily effected by him in recent as would lingering attacks, is conclusive evidence that the well

SICK AND UNFORTUNATE

can do no better than consult the Doctor, whose whole time is devoted to the exclusive treatment of this much neglected branch of practice.

LOOK AT THIS.

Dr. Lispenard cures recent cases of disease in from three to six days, and chronic or long standing diseases in a very short period of time, without the use of Mercury, without the loss of time change of diet, or detention from

DAILY EMPLOYMENT.

In Syphilis, Gonorrhœa, Gleet, Strictures, Enlargement of the Testicles and Cords, Bubo, Chancres Pimples and Scaly Eruptions, Sore Throats and Noses, Chancres on the tongue, tender shin bones, and diseases of the skin, and impure blood. Dr. Lispenard's remedies are above all praise, and frequently cure when all others had failed

EVEN TO RELIEVE.

More than 5,000 patients have during the past year experienced the benefit of the Doctor's extraordinary skill in treating secret diseases—among which, diseases of the bladder and kidneys have formed a goodly proportion.

YOUNG MEN,

who by indulging in secret habits have injured their health and prostrated their intellectual faculties, and thereby deprived themselves of the pleasure of married life, should consult Dr. Lispenard without a moment's delay. Hundreds have been restored to health, society and friends, under my peculiar mode of treatment, although vast sums of money had been sacrificed without any benefit. My remedy for this disease is pleasant to take, has no offensive smell and

CURES WITHOUT FAIL

☞ Persons so unfortunate as to be diseased, although they may have visited half a dozen Doctors, and had medicine sent them a dozen times with no benefit would exhibit wisdom by making their case known to that FRIEND OF THE SICK. Dr. Lispenard, who never charges for advice and warrants all his cures. The sick are often at a loss where to apply for relief, AND TIS NO WONDER, as hundreds stand ready to plunder the unfortunate victim of PRIVATE DISEASE, or secret habits with ut one thought for his life and health. All thus deceived will find a friend, and moderate charges, in consulting the Doctor who uses no MERCURY and cures every time.

N. B.—Persons from a distance when visiting the city in search of a physician and friend will be fortunate if they succeed in escaping the many dens of imposition, conducted by unprincipled men, destitute of character knowledge or name, who fleece the unfortunate victim of disease of his hard earned money, and his remaining health. Patients who have no acquaintance in the city should make inquiry of some respectable citizen, or the editor or proprietor of any of the city papers, to ascertain who is the most reliable physician to apply to.

FEMALE DISEASES.

Dr. Lispenard from an experience seldom or never enjoyed by any other medical man, is enable to treat, with every hope of succes, all and every variety of Female Complaints—with safe and pleasant remedies—and has without doubt cured within the past five years more than 3,000 females afflicted with diseases of the Bladder, Womb, &c. &c. Ladies afflicted with suppression or stoppage of their monthly turns, will recollect that Dr. Lispenard is still the sole American agent for.

DR. VICHOI'S

FEMALE MONTHLY PILLS.

The unprecedented sale of more than 15,000 boxes of these excellent Pills and the good results which always follow their use, is conclusive evidence of their utility in stoppages, &c. Caution—Married Ladies in certain delicate situations should not use them—for reasons see directions with each box. Price $1. Sent by mail to all parts of the world.

Married Persons and those about to Marry, should enclose 12½ cents post paid to Dr Lispenard, and obtain a copy of his Marriage Guide or Private Treatise, a bewitching little work of nearly 100 pages. Illustrated. Everything that married persons can desire or wish to know, is here explained. Persons who from poverty or sickness have no desire to increase their family, will find necessary instruction in the Marriage Guide. One copy 12½ cents; 5 copies 50 cts; 12 copies $1—mailed free to any part of the world.

N. B.—Patients treated by letter, and medicines sent with full directions for use, to the writer's address, All communications destroyed or returned

No mercury used in any case and all cures warranted.

No boys or precocious students allowed: timed persons take notice.

Friends of Dr. L when recommending patients to him care will recollect our number 5 Beaver st., three doors from South Broadway.

Hospital open from 7 A. M., to 9 P. M., and on Sundays from 1 to 4 P. M.

No charge for advice. although no medicine may be desired.

Good board and private rooms for those who desire to remain in the city.

THE WONDER OF THE WORLD.

DEVINES' COMPOUND

PITCH LOZENGE,

A sure and pleasant Remedy for Colds, Coughs. Croup, Whooping Cough, Asthma, and if lungs enough are left to sustain life, A CERTAIN CURE FOR CONSUMPTION, safe for the Infant or the Invalid, in any stage of weakness.

"The statements that consumption cannot be cured, has destroyed more lives than the disease itself."—[Dr. Warren

Read the following, which to a candid mind places this "Great Remedy," like Cæsar's wife "above suspicion."

TO THE PUBLIC!

We, the undersigned, citizens of Lee, Mass., are acquainted with Mr. Devines, the Proprietor and Manufacturer of Devines' Compound Pitch Lozenge and from what we know of it ourselves and have learned from others of its beneficial effects, in cases where it has been used, give it as our opinion that it is a valuable remedy in diseases for which it is recommended and is worthy of public confidence. A. G. Hulburt, Leonard Church, F. G, Taylor, Wm Taylor, E. A. Bliss, S. A. Hulburt, Josephus Crafts, T, P. Eldridge.

If any individual is to be pitied, and needs sympathy, it is the consumptive—always expecting to get well, and yet the painful evidence of decay almost "makes the inner soul shrink with the outer flesh"

"Some bloom as roses bloom, and live as roses live,
A single moral space!"

While others, in more mature life—by some imprudence and a slight cold neglected—in the hectic flush—the pulmonary cough.

"The prints of their departing steps appears."

BUT HE IS HOPE! Mr Wm. Devines, the originator and manufacturer of the Pitch Lozenge, under Providence, was raised to perfect health by the use of these Lozenges alone, after he was pronounced by his physician to be almost dying with consumption.

This fact is generally known in Berkshire County and is the neighborhood talk, and wonder in Lee, and in Great Barrington, Mass.

From Dr. Brown, of Lee, Mass.

This certifies that I have made use of Devines' Compound Pitch Lozenge for cold and cough, and found immediate relief. Therefore I would recommend it to the public as being a safe and sovereign remedy. H. C. BROWN.

Thoughts on Prayer.

BY A LADY OF KEESEVILLE.

When earth was in its primeval beauty and glory, man had intimate converse with his Creator, he walked and talk'd with God, and no interruption to this communion caused his heart to mourn. But, sin was born and interposed to sever the links of union 'twixt earth and Heaven—man and his glorious Author, and left the darkness of impenetrable night to settle in all its blackness, o'er present scenes and future joys. While no ray of light dawned to cheer the gloom, all was desolate and drear. The steps of man were weary, as he journeyed to the grave; but soon a voice all musical, was heard, which chased the gloom and threw a blaze of light and life, athwart the surrounding night. 'The seed of the woman shall bruise the serpant's head,' floats on the breeze in angel tones—expiring hope revives, and Death henceforth shall be a conquered foe—this orphaned earth, still lays claim to origin Divine, and receives the Almighty's care.

But no more is the voice of God heard, as he walked in Eden's vale, other means serve to disclose His will, to make known His requirements, and draw man into intimate communion with Him. A throne of grace is erected—a mercy-seat established and thr'o the blood of the covenant we may draw nigh, by faith, 'ask and receive' all needed good. And since it is our only hope, it is well if we consider—The privilege of Prayer. We conceive the question with us, is not that of stern and ironhanded Duty, but of Privilege. Not whether we must, but whether we may pray. Does the great God—the Creator of the universe—the upholder of all things, allow sinful mortals audience? May we petition the court of Heaven, and disclose in the ear of the Eternal our griefs and fears, our joys and sorrows? Does He, who ruleth in the Heavens, and to whom 'the inhabitants of the earth, are as grass hoppers,' condescend to regard our prayers, or listen to our complaints? O! yes, in strains as sweet as fill the arch'd world of light, we hear therefrom, 'Come unto me all ye that labor and are heavy laden, and I will give you rest.' Blessed privilege, as children approach a parent so may man his God, with the same confidence and hope.

And while it is our privilege to Pray, we can but feel The Necessity of Prayer.—We are in a world of sin and sinners, our natures depraved and sinful—the inherent tendency of our whole being is against holiness and God, how much we need the sustaining grace, which is only given in answer to prayer. God has revealed conditions thr'o which we may receive His blessing, and regain His likeness, and it is by prayer only, these results are obtained.—Then if we would be holy we must pray.

Implanted within are desires for happiness, which can never be satiated, only by Him who formed them, and loathings of our spirits to the corruption which enshroud us, can be removed only by Him who is all Purity The pleasures of earth are as vanity, and its joys as dust in the balance.—Our immortal natures demand something elevating—purifying, and it is only by Prayer, these ardent longings are removed, these desires satisfied. We are in a world of Misery and Death; Vice and Ruin stare us in the face, on every hand, and Death only closes the fearful scene.—Our friends die at our side, and the tenderest ties, and most touching affinities are rudely wrecked and sundered by the hand of Death. The loved ones of our hearts and homes, lie in silence in the tomb, and our own limbs totter toward its brink.—Soon, its paleness will gather o'er us—the fever-fires scorch us—the consumptive pains waste us, and with one fearful stroke he'll weed us all away. Our nature's start back and shrink in fear, at thought of the dying chill, and loathsome charnel house—corruptions fearful power—the revels of the feasting worm, and the stillness of the tomb. But there is a Power which will enable us to rejoice and exclaim 'I would not live alway' 'tis the Power of Prayer. When friends sicken and die, and we gather up our fact in death, we may triumph thr'o grace and know that it is but 'the gate to endless joy—the entrance to the skies.' The blessed Saviour has been down into the grave, and sanctified the believers resting place with His presence,—dispelled the gloom and caused the bright rays of immortality, to lighten their abode. If such glorious results crown the pathway of the man of prayer, what can we ask more in view of our necessities than the privilege of Prayer. While it is a privilege and necessity to pray there is Beauty in prayer. It is helplessness casting itself on Power, and Feebleness, clinging to Omnipotence. It is infinity leaning on strength, and misery wooing bliss. It is unholiness embracing purity, and hatred desiring love. It is corruption panting for immortality, and earthborns claiming kindred to the skies. It is the flight of the soul to the bosom of God, and the spirit soaring upward and claiming nativity beyond the stars. It is the restless dove on fainting wing, turning to its loved repose. It is the soaring eagle, mounting upward in its flight, and with steady gaze, pursuing the track until lost to all. below. It is the roving wanderer, looking toward his abiding place, where are all his treasures and his golds. It is the prisoner mourning his fetters and bathing its plumes in the ethereal and eternal.

O! there is beauty such as earth has not in prayer. But there is also, Power in Prayer. It derives its energy, from the promises of God, and by faith in these promises, it is Omnipotent. The treasures of grace are open to the draft of prayer. Importunity ever opens the gates of Heaven and our prayers should wear the character of importunate knocking at the barrier, which limits our approach to Almighty goodness. The consciousness of the faintest secret wish in the depth of the heart to know and commune with the Infinite source of Holiness, should encourage us to knock and plead with unwearying perseverance, and never desist till we obtain the blessing. 'Ask and you shall receive' is our warrant, for prayer, and we cannot fail. Our prayer, should be the holy violence of reiterated entreaty—they should be the loud and lengthened cry of him, who finds no medium, between a friendly access to the throne of grace, and the agonies of the lowest hell. These holy wrestlings, and importunate pleadings these groans unutterable, heard only by the ear of the Almighty—these sighs of penitence and tears of grief, humbly motioning Heaven for relief, are all powerful at the court above. The highest emergencies must yield, for the word of the Eternal is pledged to answer prayer. It is sublime to view the majesty of its power. Heaven and earth shall pass away, but every promise shall be fulfilled in answer to Prayer.

Lions in The Way.

Nothing can be clearer than this, that whether our earthly pilgrimage be rough or smooth, every revolving hour shortens the period in which it must be performed. Our lives are, indeed, uncertain, for we can no more depend on to morrow than we can recall yesterday.

The winged moments fleetly run
To reach their destined goal:
Days swiftly pass: Time turns his glass,
And on the seasons roll.

Every Christian man should not only be thoroughly furnished with love and meekness, but he should also be of good courage, that he may not be cast down by the trials which await him. There are some who, in the paths of recluse and duty, are ready to grapple with every obstacle. They cannot be turned back: at all hazards they will go forward. Difficulty and danger only increase their courage. These not only contend with lions when they meet with them, but absolutely go out in search of them. "David said unto Saul, Thy servant kept his father's sheep, and there came a lion, and a bear, and took a lamb out of the flock; and I went out after him, and smote him, and delivered it out of his mouth: and when he arose against me, I caught him by his beard, and smote him, and slew him. Thy servant slew both the lion and the bear: and this uncircumcised Phillistine shall be as one of them, seeing he hath defied the armies of the living God." 1 Samuel xvii, 34, 35.

When these lion-smiters go forth in the strength of Jehovah, and say: "They compassed me about, but in the name of the Lord I will destroy them," Psalm cxviii, 11, truly they are as strong as giants, and they set before us examples well worthy of imitation.

But though some are thus ready to meet and overcome all obstacles in their career, a much greater number are anxious to avoid them; fearing them when they are seen, and fancying them when there are none. "The slothful man saith, There is a lion without, I shall be slain in the streets." Proverbs xxii, 13. And thus he tries to excuse himself for the neglect of what he ought to perform. Timorous Christians too often see lions before them, instead of looking steadily to Him who has said: "There shall no evil befall thee:—Thou shalt tread upon the lion and the adder; the young lion and the dragon shalt thou trample under feet." Psalm xci, 10, 13.

O! would that all were faithful found;
That still, whatever our lot,
This truth, so bright for sorrow's night,
Might never be forgot—
E'en when our paths look lone and drear,
Our Saviour's presence yet is near.

Christiana and her party in Bunyan's Pilgrim had their lions to encounter "Now Mr. Greatheart was a strong man; so he was not afraid of a lion. But yet when they were come up to the place where the lions were, the boys that went before were now glad to creep behind, for they were afraid of the lions; so they stepped back and went behind."

When Mr. Greatheart is confronted by Giant Grim, the owner of the lions, he addressed him thus:—

"It is the King's highway that we are in, and in his way it is that thou hast placed the lions; but these women, and these children, though weak, shall hold on their way in spite of thy lions. And with that he gave him, again a downright blow, also, he broke his helmet, and with the next he lop off an arm. Then did the giant roar so hideously, that his voice frightened the women, and yet they were glad to see him lie sprawling upon the ground. Now the lions were chained, and so of themselves could do nothing; wherefore when old Grim, that intended to back them, was dead, Mr. Greatheart said to the pilgrims, Come now, and follow me, and no hurt shall happen to you from the lions. They therefore went on; but the women trembled as they passed by them, the lions also roared, but they gave no heed to the pilgrims, but went back as they were bid to do by their master."

Thus will it be with all who encounter lions in the way. Fear will be the result of cowardice, and not of danger. Lions will be seen where they are not, and the fearful will be overcome by the imaginary dangers which they have conjured up. Let us then be of good courage, and the Lord will strengthen our hearts, and we shall be more than conquerors through him that loved us.

Heaven.

Words have not power to paint the bliss
Of that fair world above,
Where pard'ned sinners raise their songs
In holy joy and love.
We may not, angels may not tell
The glories that around them dwell.

Gold is but dim, and earthly crowns
At best but baubles bright,
To those who sit on heavenly thrones,
And live in heavenly light,
Where cherubim with praises soar,
And burning seraphim adore.

With this prospect before us; with the word of God in our hands, and the love of God in our hearts, let us fear neither lions nor legions of evil things; being persuaded that "neither death, nor life, nor angels, nor principalities, nor powers, nor things to come, nor height, nor depth' nor any other creature, shall be able to separate us from the love of God, which is in Christ Jesus our Lord." Rom, viii, 38, 39.—Old Humphrey.

[Written for the Olive Branch.]

My Dear Old Boston:—You know that you are bigoted, and opinionated, and narrow minded, (and like all who revolve in a two-pint measure,) given to meddling with what is lawfully none of your business; but your streets are sprinkled; your sidewalks are washed; you are exempt from the ear-splitting "cries" of "rag," and "radish," and "milk," and "muffin," and "strawberry" and "cherry" and "flower," and "ice cream" venders; and your inhabitants do go to bed at night, and give the pavements a chance to cool before morning.

As to New York, I dare say it will be something of a 'place if it ever gets finished! at present it seems to me to be in a state of progression: the principal thoroughfares being blocked up with huge piles of bricks and timber, suggesting to every stranger the policy of an immediate 'life insurance.' The Broadway belles perform their duty as street cleaners, (of the unmitigated —ly—dirty sidewalks) as if mopping up tobacco pools, and cigar stumps, was the "chief end" of Stewart's ruinous brocades and satins. My pen shrinks from investigating the condition of gaiter boots, and hose, after such a promenade; alas! that ankles should have gone out of fashion.

Dear old Boston, you have no idea how my "tri-mountain" notions are shocked here. You may think by the number of churches in N. Y. that religion walks in satin slippers—not a bit of it. Her church steeples only serve to point the countless thousands in an opposite direction. I am at a loss to know where is the "Lot" who saves this "Sodom!" Sunday being an universal gala-day—for the getting up of military parades in the shape of funerals, and for the consumption of ices, fruits and soda, in the most public and unblushing manner.

Dear thrifty old Boston; they let their gas burn here in the streets, long after daylight, and the store-keepers lie a-bed oblivious of closed window-shutters, and dirty side-walks until you are "up and dressed" and have shaved yourself, and a dozen dry goods customers!

The proverbial meagre-ness of New York milk is no longer a riddle to me. They carry it round in one or two immense cans, with a tin dipper "swashing" round in each: instead of distributing it as you do in five and forty little cans, to prevent the necessity of frequent uncorking in the blazing sun, of course "honey clabber" is the natural result.

In one thing you may take a lesson from the Gothamites:—the New York masculine invariably hands a lad's omnibus fare for her to the driver; thus obviating the disagreeable necessity of being pitched into some promiscuous lap, when the "bus" gives a sudden lurch; (as Cap. Cuttle says) file it: "make a note on't."

The little green grass baskets in which flowers are vended here are quite bewitching. It is a pleasant sight to see husbands, brothers, lovers, &c., returning home at night by ferry boat or omnibus, with these fragrant offerings; thus making the poor's purse heavy, and home hearts light. Some of the enterprising Yankee girls might amass quite a little fortune in the same way. A pleasant smile and sweet voice (in company with such a fairy offering) would loosen many a buisness purse-string; and the occupation would certainly be more healthful than the long weary hours spent over the needle in the hot summer months.

The Crystal Palace is to be finished—sometime! The workmen are crawling round over its immense dome, at such a dizzy height as to make one tremble; one poor fellow was half killed by a fall there the other day. The "Croton" platform overlooking the reservoir in the immediate vicinity, is crowded with masculines viewing the workmen, and varying the monotony by spotting tobacco quids into the pure Croton water quaffed by the 'fair women and brave men' of New York [illegible]

OPENING
OF THE
CHRYSTAL PALACE.
INAUGURATION CEREMONIES.

On Thursday, the 14th, the Crystal Palace was inaugurated by appropriate ceremonies; the President, Secretary Gauthrie, Secretary Davis, and Attorney General Cushing, being present, together with a number of noted individuals from every part of the United States, with a sprinkling of Lords and Dons. As usual, New York spread herself to the tune of $5,000. The military got completely soaked by an opportune shower; spoiled their cockades and washed the curls out of their moustaches, fatigued the President, jammed his hat in the crowd, and all for an ephemeral display of brass buttons and bad horsemanship.

The ceremonies were opened by Bishop Wainwright with an appropriate prayer, and singing by the Sacred Harmonic Society, after which Mr. Theodore Sedgwick, the President of the Crystal Palace Association, rose and addressed President Pierce in the following language:

THE HON. THEODORE SEDGWICK'S SPEECH.

Mr. President: Amid this concourse of people, in this assembly of personages collected from all parts of the world, eminent in every department of human skill and genius, surrounded by the trophies of intellect and industry, the eye and the mind naturally, inevitably rivet themselves, sir, upon you. [Applause.] Upon you, the head of that political system to which, under God, we owe our choicest public blessings—of that vast confederacy founded by the immortal man whose effigy stands before us, and the chief executive powers of which have been transmitted, through a long line of illustrious statesmen to your hands.—[Renewed applause.] It has fallen, and will fall to the lot of others to welcome you in other capacities. It is my duty, sir, as the presiding officer of the association which has raised this edifice, to thank you most cordially most respectfully, for the honor you have this day done us—we feel it deeply. It was perceived by us at the very outset of our enterprize, that it was essential to our complete success to obtain the approbation, and secure the confidence of our own Government—that while we were of course mainly to rely on our own energies, it was at the same time indispensable to create a general conviction that our objects were public and our aims national. The work of impressing on this undertaking the seal of national approbation, as far as that can be done under the restriction of our form of government—and I recall the circumstance with gratitude mingled with pain—was begun by an illustrious statesman now no more—a son, Sir, of your own State. He had a mind large enough, and a heart broad enough, to perceive, even in its infancy, the development of which this undertaking was culpable. How much of interest his presence would have added to this occasion I need not say. Alas! his image only is among us. Genius knows no country. The monument of Daniel Webster, hewn out of French stone, by English hands, rises here most appropriately to contemplate the work to which he gave the first great impulse. What he commanded was continued by the eminent gentleman who succeeded him in the last high office which he filled—a gentleman of whom I may be permitted to say that the country is still fortunate in commanding in another department his experience and ability. And finally, you, Sir, have this day consummated the work by permitting us to greet the Chief Magistrate of the Republic within our walls. We once more thank you, Sir, for the honor you have done us. [Applause.] Your presence here to-day proves the close and friendly ties between the Government of the United States and the happy people whom its power protects, (applause)—the cordial sympathy entertained by the highest functionaries of the Republic for any legitimate popular undertaking—the intimate connection between labor and honor; while, at the same time, it is proper here to state, most distinctly and most emphatically, and especially to those not so familiar with the frame work of our system, that the government of the Union is not in the most remote degree responsible for our short-comings in this matter, whatever they have been, whatever they may be With the great objects of our enterprise, sir, you are already familiar—to bring before our countrymen the choicest productions of the genius and skill of the old world—to make a first exhibition on a national scale of the trophies of the inventive spirit and restless energy of our countrymen—on a national scale to collect (in the poetical language of a late distinguished stranger, this day for us unhappily, not here,) a full representation of "The arts for luxury, the arms for strife, Inventions for delight and sight and sound."

to bind together the two hemispheres—to extend the area of commerce and the fraternity of nations. These have been our aims. How far they have been, or will be attained, it would be most presumptuous for us to say.—Recalling to mind the gorgeous and gigantic pageant exhibited in Hyde Park two short years ago—knowing what French genius has undertaken to establish in the capital of continental Europe, that center of intellectual life and artistic luxury, it is enough to say that we have desired to do something for the art, for the architecture, for the industry of our beloved country, and that if we shall be hereafter pronounced by competent judges to have succeeded, our dearest wishes will be answered. On some particulars, however, I may for a moment be allowed to dwell. Incomplete as our exhibition yet is, we have, what are to us, abundant proofs of the interest which it has excited and the results which it will accomplish. The flag of England, borne by a vessel commissioned by that royal lady who commands the respect of foreign nations as she does the affections of her own people—[illegible]—has waved in our waters on this [illegible] strand. The national Vessel of [illegible] nuch war—that of Holland will immediately follow. Old ocean from [illegible] Tower of London, frowning here, as it cannot express too strongly our sense of the kindness and courtesy with which our foreign agents have been received abroad, no less than our respect for that liberal and enlightened policy, in obedience to the dictates of which the sovereigns of Europe have vied with each other in sending offerings which in other periods of the world would have been made to crowned heads alone. [Applause.] Nor sir, are your greetings or acknowledgements yet concluded. I have still to express the extreme gratification which we feel in the presence of so many distinguished agents—distinguished by social position, by character, by attainments—from all parts of Europe, from all parts of this continent. The dwellers on the Eastern shores of the Atlantic are here mingled with the representatives of our own empire on the coast of the Pacific, and there are, I believe, here to-day, twenty chief magistrates, of as many States of the confederacy—lights of that constellation of which you, sir, are the central star. [Applause.] We are deeply sensible of this courtesy and kindness; while, Sir, we are not so blind or so vain-glorious as not fully to understand that the honor is done not to us, but to you, [renewed applause,] and that the homage of their respect is above all poured to the governing power and majesty of the Republic. May that power, and majesty—and I say it with the profoundest reverence—be ever united to and governed by that spirit of peace and good will which is our direct command from on High, and to contribute to which in the great family of man, is the best and purest and wisest action that can bring us together in this temple of industry—in this palace of labor. But, Sir, I detain my hearers from the pleasure that I hope awaits them. Hereafter, I may take some more fitting occasion to state in detail what we have done and what we desire to do, the difficulties we have encountered and the obstacles we have surmounted. To day, my voice is of little moment, except for the echo and the response which, I hope, it is fortunately destined to awaken. Permit me then, Sir, to ask you to let your voice be heard beneath our dome, and to request that you will, by words, as well as by your presence, inaugurate this exhibition of the industry of all nations.

Mr. Sedgwick speaks emphatically well.—His manner is practiced and self-possessed, and he was much applauded. The President replied evidently impromptu, and his words were well chosen. He appeared fatigued in the previous efforts he had made in public speaking during his journey, and was very brief. Mr. Pierce, however, most favorably impressed his auditory. He was fluent, earnest and unabashed before so vast an auditory. We subjoin here the words of his speech:

REMARKS OF PRESIDENT PIERCE.

Sir: I return you, on behalf of those of my constitutional advisers who are with me and on my own account, my warm and cordial thanks for the reception you have been pleased to extend to us. I have come, Sir, to testify the interest I feel in, and the respect I entertain for, this great Industrial Exhibition—designed and calculated to promote all that belongs to the interest of our country. You, Sir, and the gentlemen who have been and are associated with you, have imposed upon all of us a deep debt of gratitude for your energy and perseverance in this great enterprise. Whatever the shortcomings of which you have spoken may be, I can only remark that they do not appear here; and so far as I have been able to perceive, they are lost in your complete and transcendant success [Loud and continued applause.] Everything around us reminds us that we live in a utilitarian age where science, instead of being locked up for the admiration of the world has become tributary to the arts, manufacturers, agriculture, and all that goes to promote our universal prosperity. Sir, if you had achieved no other good but that which you have in bringing together in this metropolis, citizens from all parts of the Union, you would have fulfilled perhaps, one of the most important of missions—that of strengthening and perpetuating that blessed Union. (Great applause)—But you have done more, and you have nobly alluded to it. Your exhibition has been the means of bringing here, from all the civilized countries on the face of the Globe, men most eminent in all the walks of life; and thus you have done more than could be done in almost any other manner to promote that great object dear to you, dear to me, and dear to my venerable friend near me, (Bishop Wainright) peace and good will among men. [Applause] I have not the voice at this time to address you at any greater length, and conclude by again returning to you my thanks for your generous reception, and tendering my heart's best wishes for the success of your praiseworthy enterprise. [Applause.]

Mr. Sedwick, when the President had finished, proposed three cheers for the President, which were responded to by the multitude.

In noting upon such an ovation, it would be a greateful task to speak, with unqualified praise of all the proceedings, but we feel it a duty to make an exception, and one of the most positive and condemnatory force.

We do not in this connection make much account of the Crystal Palace and its contents not being ready. Let any one enter the premises and see the apparently infinite detail of beams, rafters, pillars, arches, partitions, glass, tints; and add to that the care, trouble and calculation to place, in their proper positions and under their best phases all the goods from six thousand contributors, and the vulgar complaint against the place and its treasures not being ready, will be swallowed up in admiration of the architectural and generally esthetic splendor of the scene. Of its beauty there is but one opinion.—Mr. Pierce and all those who came with him, seeing it for the first time, were evidently thrilled with delight. No words are too strong for admiration, first, for Messrs. Carstensen and Gildorstein, the Architects of the Crystal Palace, and then Mr. Sedgwick and the gentlemen connected with him in the elaborate and difficult work of supervision. Under these circumstances, the triumph of the scene, so thorough and so far exceeding expectations, must silence all reflections on the delays as to the time of the Exhibition, but the public agreed fully with Mr. Pierce when he would not admit of the existence of shortcomings as regard the aspect of the scene. [illegible] in another way, and We hold its inauguration should have been the occasion when artists and mechanics should have occupied Representative seats on the platform, and that both were absolutely ignored by the Committee of Arrangements. We saw fighting men in abundance, politicians and place-holders, but not a single man eminent for the arts which the Crystal Palace was opened to celebrate. At the opening of the Crystal Palace of London, although it was a purely Norman exhibition, clergy, soldiers and politicians occupying the seats of honor and the workingmen who built and finished the wonderful edifice were kept like Roman slave-artists and laborers in the servile background of swinish caste, yet there even amid the shams of State, Mr. Paxton, the Genius who waked it to life, was on the platform. But we would ask, where were the architects of our Palace, Messrs. Carstensen and Gilderstein? Why were they not on the platform? What had any Military personage, or the Reverened Doctor This or That, to do in face of the public in comparison with the men who created the edifice which dazzles and delights all beholders. Yesterday was their battle—and they should have been seen and heard.—But true to the barbarism of this country every one overlooked them; they were not mentioned in terms; they were not greeted by the President of the United States, and if the Crystal Palace had built itself there could not have been a more ignorant, stupid, vulgar omission of their names.

Again, of the thousand workmen who spent their skill and strength, and showed their courage in building the dome,—as great as that renowned by the capture of Mexico,—there was not one representative on the stage. Labor was practically ignored and thrust aside for epaulettes and white cravats,—for men, who had nothing particular to do with the Palace, and have every day or week opportunities of appearing fitly and professionally before the public.

Again, of all the Exhibitors, not one was allowed to be on the platform sacred to clergymen, soldiers and politicians. On the contrary, we find among the printed orders, of the day the following sentence:

"Exhibitors will be admitted at 8 o'clock A. M., and will remain in their respective courts during the ceremonies."

Now we are quite of opinion that a delegation at least of these Exhibitors should have been on the platform. We looked in vain for such men as McCormick, who saved the American Department from disgrace in London, and whose Reaping Machine The London Times pronounced so important that if the Exhibition had done nothing else but make that invention known it would repay England for all its cost.—An American who had borne his country's honor so lofty abroad might have been a fit invited guest on such an occasion, but neither he nor any other ingenious man like him appeared on the scene.

But we do not wish to condemn the Committee of Directors for the contempt which they displayed for artists and working men on the occasion. They merely chimed in within the filthy barbarisms of society, around and about them. We may say in this country that we respect Art and Work, but we do not speak the truth. We do not respect them. Our measure of honor is almost exclusively political. Then out of the pidding pedding little wars that we have, we contrive to manufacture military heroes, and so politics and sword carry the day. In the proceedings of yesterday we see no exception to this rule. General Scott, who appeared on the platform long before the President, was cheered, and very appropriately, but not one of the twenty thousand present demanded that the men whose genius, art, industry and courage had called the gorgeous scene into life and beauty, should present themselves and receive homage. No Artist was there. No Mechanic. No Laborer. The scene calling itself industrial was simply a continuation of the dreary annals of humanity—of State Craft, overriding the majestic Individualism of the true creation, Man. We see less and less reason for paying respect, as it is called, to public functionaries, when we find that every department of Government which the boldness of private enterprise has snatched from the insolent hands of prescription, has flourished truly, for the first time, in private hands. The Crystal Palace, an evidence of pure, unaided personal enterprise, is a case in point. The same thing in Europe is made a Government affair. Long slang-whanging speeches, "masterpieces by great statesmen," precede, accompany and follow its creation and its completion is made the reason for fresh foyalty and additional self-abasement on the part of the people toward their hereditary masters. Here, however, it is suggested, planned, pursued, completed and sustained by Private Enterprise. All that the Government ever did for it was to say that it should be considered as a Bonded Warehouse, and to write a few letters to foreign countries, where the sanction and cooperation of Governments is thought to be a necessary thing.

We regret to speak thus, but the Crystal Palace has signally failed to crown Labor and Art in its proceedings of yesterday—and Art in its proceedings of yesterday—its ovation was to anything else but the building and its contents. It was to Daniel Webster, the President, or whatever else, but not to Labor and Art, represented and honored on the platform. The dignity of the creative faculties of a nation's genius has yet to be truly recognized. It has not yet been the light in Europe nor in this country. When wars and preparations for wars shall cease; when the operation of Government shall be reduced to their least proportions; when professional however, that even these Exhibitions may do much to hasten its advent.

In the mere proprieties of the day apart from these objections the scene passed off well. The speeches had the excellences of brevity; the music was fine, and varied, great rivalry evidently existing between the different bands and orchestras; the audience was unexceptionable in its department; the appearance of the feminine portion was brilliant, and it must be added that the directors liberally provided a ladies refreshment room; the attention of those in authority, the new uniformed police included, was unremitting; the progress made in decorating, finishing and arraying the details of the building and its contents in the few last days, when all seemed to promise disorder and defeat on the promised day of opening, was a veritable wonder of industry; the arrangements of tickets, places, entrance, exits, were admirable; the accommodations for the corps of Reporters were liberal and thoughtful; the positions of the sculptural attractions were well chosen as to locality, light, and combined effect; and in a word, the whole was arranged as to outward show, with a skill that was unsurpassable.

It was a thing to be seen once in a lifetime. As we grow in wealth and strength we may build a much greater Crystal Palace and accumulate more imperial like treasures than we could not afford to purchase, but it cannot have the affect of this one. This has been the first love of its kind. The second cannot bring the exhilaration and glory of the first, though exhausting the wealth of genius in its production. In this we behold the first decided stand of America among the industrial and artistic nations of the earth. In this we see a recognition of her progress, power, and possibilities. In this we find a yearning after Peace—Peace which shall dimple the face of the earth with the smiles of plenty, which shall join the hearts of nations, which shall abolish poverty and servitude. God's earth loves Man to her innermost depths;—treat her well with Peace, and she will reward him as a generous mother; abuse her with War and she will drive him from her presence. Such history has proved; but we may fairly believe that the historical vicissitudes of the past may be avoided in travelling the peaceful and generous path pointed out by the CRYSTAL PALACE.—[N. Y. Tribune.

The preceding remarks from the Tribune, we think, are justly merited, and highly appropriate. Such toadyism should be rebuked, and frowned down by the intelligent inhabitants of our "model Republic." It would seem that rare creative genius, and successful labor should have been honored, at least, with a seat among the great ciphers who create or produce but little or nothing. The country is much safer when honoring her eminent mechanics, than when bending the supple knee to demagogues and political mendicants, or listening to their cheap superlatives. There is a list of articles published in the Times, but too long for our columns. Of the articles of particular interest, we will hereafter give descriptions, and strive to keep our readers "posted" on all important features. There was a grand banquet given at the "Metropolitan," at which were the President, and the before mentioned members of his cabinet. Mr. Sedgewick presided, by whom the toasts were announced, prefacing each in a pertinent and eloquent manner.—Speeches were made in reply to the different toasts, by distinguished gentlemen present. Jefferson Davis, by way of variety, treated them to a Free Trade Speech.—The speech of the evening was on the "Arts of Peace," which called up Ogden Hoffman Esq., who spoke as follows:

MR. PRESIDENT AND GENTLEMEN: I can most sincerely say that I wish the duty of responding to this toast had fallen on some other person, and I say quite as sincerely that I wish the duty had devolved upon me at an earlier period of the evening. If I were to offer the apology of the gentleman from Pennsylvania, who has just addressed you, that he has just risen from a sick bed to attend this meeting here to-night, you may say why am I here undertaking to address you, if I am not able to speak to you. I was asked to respond to the toast of "The Arts of Peace"---yet the few remarks I will make, might as well be made to any other toast, in the catalogue of toasts that has been presented to us.

What are the Arts of Peace? The Arts of Peace are those arts which alone thrive and flourish when man is left, unfettered, to follow the bent of his own genius, and his own untrammelled sense of what subserves his interest and comfort. When man is not torn from the peaceful pursuit of industrial occupation, nor from the prosecution of the remunerating toil of husbandry, to scare some enemy---perhaps to invade some foreign land---perhaps, it may be, to defend the liberties of his own -[applause]---the Arts of Peace—the Arts of Peace, I say, Sir, alone will flourish when men are in quiet and at rest. They are the arts which administer to the happiness and promote the general prosperity of the world. They are the arts which flourish as man advances in moral development. They are the arts which are the elements of humanity. They are the arts which teach man that he has a brother man. They are the arts which tell man, no matter what ocean rolls between them, that they are brothers, all of the one vast family, and each dependent the one upon the other, for prosperity, happiness, and comfort. [Applause.] To cultivate this noble feeling—to promote those Arts, the Association was formed. It was formed to invite here the productions of other climes, as well as our own. It was formed to excite a generous emulation—to teach us our own deficiencies—our own wants—and to invite our brethren from distant lands to come here and lay the productions of their skill and their enterprise upon a brother's altar consecrated to labor. [Applause.] This Society, or Association, owes its character, and its being, to the highlis of the country. It was the offspring, and the offspring alone, of a few noble-minded individuals; and gloriously, yesterday, did they redeem the promise they had made to this community. The Inauguration of yesterday, as my friend the Attorney General has said, was calculated to excite interest and admiration; it was simple and unostentatious—it comported with our Republican feelings and our Republican habits. There were no chariots to which captives were bound to swell the pageant. The contributions which were there, were not the trophies won by the arm of conquest from some subjugated prince. The pictures and statuary that lent an artistic charm to the scene, were not torn by the rude hand of war from some holy edifice, or some sculptured palace. No, Sir, they were the voluntary contributions from a brother to a brother; they come as evidences of their feeling towards us; and with that feeling, we warmly welcome and receive them.—(Applause.) All parts of our land—North, South, East, and West—all pour in their treasures. There was Denmark with her statuary—there was sunny France, with her silks and her china—there was mighty England, with the productions of her loom, whose shuttle, as it flies, weaves out the web of her national destiny. (Applause.) As every stream, every rivulet, pours its tide to the ocean, and, in the process of nature, returns back to the source from whence they set out, vivifying with genial dews and and refreshing showers the thirsty face of nature; so may we expect, from expositions such as this in which you are embarked, a most advantageous reflex influence upon the industrial pursuits of the country. (Loud applause)

Mr. President: I will not trespass on your time. The arts of peace is a subject as exhaustless, and as boundless as the ocean. There are here the voluntary contributions of generous foreigners, of generous rivals. They have been sent to us in times of peace, to heighten our emulation, and to strengthen our love for the arts of peace. It is true, that we boast of our magnificent palace—its architecture, its beautiful symmetry is all—all our own.—And it may be an object of honest boast, that we have reared such an edifice in the midst of our City.

But the contributions which gave life to it, which are to render it beautiful to the eye, and instructive to the patriot and statesman, came from other lands as well as our own. Mythology tells us that the equipments of Hercules was not forged by Vulcan alone, but was the contribution of all the Gods. Minerva brought the shield, Apollo the sword, Neptune the horse. So let our Palace stand the beautiful product of the generous contributions of all nations of the earth.

Frightful Accident—Two Men Swept Over the Falls of Niagara, and another Clinging to a Rook in the Rapids.

NIAGARA FALLS, Tuesday, July 19.

Three men, belonging to a scow which came down the river last night, got into a skiff alongside the scow, and is supposed fell asleep, when the boat got separated from the scow, and was hurried on by the current with fearful rapidity toward the falls. This happened about 9½ o'clock last evening. Two of the men, one named Andrew Hannaman, the other a stranger, were hurled at once over the foaming sheet; the third Joseph Able, caught hold of a stump in his fearful passage and has clung to it ever since.

The excitement here is intense. We have no life boat, and the common boats are swamped as soon as they touch the Rapids. A life boat has been sent for from Buffalo. Parties on the shore have succeeded in floating a box of refreshments to the poor fellow, who can be plainly seen from the shore.

Citizens and visitors throng the banks of the river to witness the efforts making for the rescue.

IId Dispatch.] THE FALLS—12 M.

The man is still in the Rapids, apparently drooping.

The life boat was sent on from Buffalo, but, sad to say, proved too light, swamped immediately it was launched and was lost over the Rapids. Unfortunately, but one boat was sent. The situation of the unfortunate man grows more and more critical, and it is questionable whether he can sustain himself till other boats arrive.

3d D THE FALLS, 6 1-2 P. M.

The man went over the Falls at 6 o'clock. A raft had been floated him which he was on, when they floated another life boat to him, and as he was getting ready to jump into it, the boat struck the raft and swept him off into the rapids. He attempted to swim for a small island but failed to reach it. He raised himself up to his full hight, gave a shriek, waved his arms wildly and disappeared.

An American who has traveled in Europe says that the "Dutch babies are the most phlegmatic, contented, independant looking creatures on the face of the globe They never cry. In order to test this, I pinched several of them as I passed in the croud. One of them slightly yawned; the other merely gazed placidly at me, but made no sign."

Circuit Court.

The Essex Circuit has been in session this week, Judge Hand presiding, assisted in the Oyer and Terminer by Justices Carter and Potter.

Judge Cady was expected to preside, but had not arrived on Wednesday. In consequence, several causes could not be tried, Judge Hand having formerly been counsel, and an adjourned circuit was appointed for October to accommodate this business.

There was an unusually large Calendar this week, numbering 62 causes, being 20 more than ever before.

There were also in attendance several eminent Counselors from other counties—particularly Judge Hay of Saratoga, Hon. Saml. Stevens of Albany, and Hon. J. H. Boyd of Whitehall. Mr. Stevens was present to try the well known "Legge's Patent causes," so long in litigation. There were several criminal causes of interest, but we left before they were moved by the Dist. Atty.

We heard the younger members of the Essex County bar very highly complimented by the foreign counsel, and we think their praises well bestowed. There are few counties that can present a better array of legal talent of the same age than Essex. In fact, the bar in this County has never been second to over two or three, if any, in the State, and we are pleased to see good evidence that its ancient character is not to be diminished, but rather improved.

As a specimen of the way great men are made, we will state that, while holding in his hand a volume of the Transactions of the American Institute, Hon Saml. Stevens remarked to us, after having read an interesting extract, that he "deemed these Transactions very valuable, and that tho' not a farmer, he had the series complete, and had read them all attentively & with profit"

If with his vast business on his hands, he has found time to read several volumes of Transactions of the American Institute, what else has he not read? His reading must be vast and varied. What a lesson to the young.

A singular statement was made to us while at court. We cannot vouch for the truth of it. Such as we heard we repeat. We were told that the jail was full of criminals, and that the two churches at that place were for rent!

A meeting of the Co. Temperance Society was called for Wednesday Evening.—We left before the time of meeting, but presume we shall be able to give proceedings next week.

S. OF T. AT ESSEX.—This gathering on the 13th and 14th, was a very interesting affair. Not a "monster" meeting, so as to be uncomfortable, yet as large as could be conveniently entertained, and as could be desired by the most sanguine. We hear everything spoken of in the most flattering terms. The numbers, the procession, the speaking, the music, and the arrangements generally, are all commended as being most agreeable. The exercises at the church were interspersed with temperance songs by Mr. Hickok and his daughter, who are professional singers, and of course sang most acceptably.

The procession was led by the good, old national music, drums and fifes, which can't be beat for real soul stirring strains. The speaking is said to have been able and instructive. But above all, some of our friends who were there were captivated by the Essex ladies. We don't blame them, for the ladies of that town are not excelled. We hear but one opinion, and that is in terms like the above.

SABBATH SCHOOL CELEBRATION.—The Congregational Sabbath School of this place held its annual celebration on the 21st inst. The teachers and scholars to the number of over 230 gave a pic nic at a point on the lake shore a short distance north of Port Jackson in a romantic and beautiful spot. They left here about 9 o'clock, A. M. conveyed in carriages, and returned about 5 o'clock, P. M. The carriages and horses were bedecked with banners inscribed, "Congregational Sabbath School of Keeseville," and mbering 41 teams, loaded with smiling and joyous faces of the young, the procession presented both an unimposing and an enlivening scene. The day was spent [illegible] on the lake shore, or in the [illegible] public speaking, and social [illegible] All who attended, old and [illegible]

The Great Exhibition.

We devote considerable space this week to the ceremonies of Inauguration of the Crystal Palace. The event we deem an important one, and our readers, no doubt agreeing with us, will be glad to read all that is said on the subject. We would call attention to the comments of the N. Y. Tribune, on the significant neglect of the mechanics and artisans to whose skill the Republic is indebted for the beautiful structure which has been reared for the Exhibition, to which we have alluded elsewhere. We are not a believer in the isms of the Tribune, but we think these strictures perfectly just, and hope they will be extensively dwelt upon by the press.

We note also, the utter insignificance of the speech of the President. It is a most total failure, well enough as far as it goes, but there is nothing of it. It is short in fact, and that is a merit, but it is wanting in every thought and word which goes to make up a great, comprehensive, and profound speech in a few, brief words. The President no doubt did the best he could, and while he should not be blamed for what he could not do, he is entitled to credit for not having said anything foolish, tho' any apology was out of place, more particularly that he could say no more in consequence of exhaustion from political harangues on his way there. An apology might have been expected from a school-boy, but not from a President, especially such an apology.

More Harmony.

The democrats of Maine recently held a State Convention for the nomination of State officers. They had a fierce time of it, and the candidate for Governor was nominated by a vote of only 399 out of 600 votes. The last mail brings news of a call for a democratic mass meeting of all opposed to the first nominations. In Georgia and Alabama, whigs and union democrats are uniting, and according to present indications they will carry those States.—Democratic union papers are out boldly against the course of Pierce for 'reviving the drooping spirits of the disunionists.'

The democratic State committee of this State recently met at New York. The Argus in publishing the proceedings says:

It will be seen that, because the State Committee preferred to promulgate as its own, the doctrines and principles of the National Democracy, as proclaimed at Baltimore and reiterated in the Inaugural—and to do this in the identical language of the Inaugural, as embodied in the series of resolutions introduced by Mr. D. B. Taylor in the Assembly, and adopted by that body—the Free soil members of the committee, following the lead of the Free soil members of the House, when, brought to the test of a vote on them, shrank from the ordeal and left the room in which the committee were assembled! The scene was a repetition, though on a smaller scale, of the "stampede of the Buffaloes" in the Assembly, led off by the Speaker, a short time before—and adds, if possible, significance and importance to that memorable 'show of heels,' instead of hands, on the cardinal points of faith and practice, with which the Democracy of the Union and the Democratic Administration stand identified before the country.

The head of the Republic.

The President was feasted and feted on his way from Washington to N. Y. Crowds paid him the most abject homage, and the President made an innumerable number of speeches, characterized as usual by a want of deep thought, or original ideas, superficial in every particular, full of fulsome praise of persons and places, wanting in dignity, but not wanting in evident attempts at eloquence, tho' they proved abortive. Tracing the Presidential occupants from Washington to Pierce it would seem that the office can scarce fall upon a feebler representative of the talent of this Republic, for Soule, Douglass, Mike Walsh, and Thos. W. Dorr, have far more native talent, and as far as we can judge, more likely to be honored with the 'first office in the gift of a free people' than was Pierce 15 months ago.

At the festivals given to Pierce on his way to N. Y. he was foremost at the dinner tables in repartee and bonmots, in true rowdy style.

Shades of Washington forgive!

Steamboat Accident.

The steamer Empire of Troy on her down trip from Troy on Saturday morning last, was run into by a schooner, striking her amidships, dissaranging the machinery in such a manner that the steam escaped and rushed through the saloon killing six persons and severely injuring several others. The accident was caused by the stupidity of the man at the wheel on the schooner who swore that he did not know the difference between starboard and larboard. The steamer was making her usual time.

Four days later from Europe.

Arrival of the Franklin—The Russian Army in Motion.

NEW YORK, July 19.

The steamer Franklin arrived at an early hour this morning, with London dates to the 6th July.

A dispatch to the London Times of July 6th, from Vienna, says:—The Russians crossed the Pruth at two points, for the occupation of Wallacka and Maldavia.

A dispatch from Paris on the 5th states, that there was a considerable rise in funds, in consequence of a rumor that England would not let her fleet enter the Dardenelles.

RUSSIA AND TURKEY.—After a protracted Cabinet Council in London on the 2d, it was reported that the English and French fleets were to enter the Dardineles, as a counter movement to the expected passage of the Purth by the Russians.

Notwithstanding these war like appearances, hopes were still entertained that peace would be preserved, as negotiations would probably continue, even after the occupation of the principalities.

The report in London on the 2d, that the Russians had entered Jassey, had caused a panic on the stock exchange. The rumor was denied on the 4th, by the Austrian Minister, but still believed, owing to the fact that the Paris Moniteur had announced the receipt of the official dispatch from St. Petersburg, decreeing the occupation of the Danubian provinces.

Count Guzlas was to leave Vienna on a special mission to St. Petersburgh, touching the Turkish question.

The Prince of Servia had offered to place 85,000 men at the disposition of the Sultan.

Forty-four vessels were being armed at the Arsenal, and the militia of Constantinople have been called out.

It was stated that the occupation of Moldavia by the Russians had caused Austria to unite cordially with England and France. Prussia remains neutral.

The Emperor of Russia issued a manifesto on the 26th of June, denying that he wished for war, and threw the whole blame if the conflict come, upon the shoulders of the Ottoman.

☞Advices from Mexico report that Santa Anna is busy in warlike preparations. The militia is to be reorganized with a muster of 3,000,000 muskets. A new corps of cavalry has been formed.—An amnesty has been granted to those who accepted American protection in 1847, on condition that they shall hold themselves in readiness to serve in the army of the frontier. All these are magnified into indictations of a determination to quarrel with the United States. Yet by the same arrival we are told that this military despotism is unable to protect itself from Indian depredations in Chihuahua, and civil war in Chiapas, and that it is in hourly apprehension of another attack on Sonora by Count Ravasset de Bourbon. It is more probable that the new levies of troops are to preserve peace at home than to make war abroad. But as whatever tends to create a hostile feeling between the two nations makes the Mesilla Valley more certain to fall into our hands, and will add to the glory of getting it, it is not surprising that Santa Ana's movements are made to look as formidable and important, on this side of the line, as possible.—Albany Journal.

"Keep that Rail Rolling."

THE RIVERS OF NORTHERN NEW YORK.—The "Sentinel" correspondent of the N. Y. Courier, writing from Albany says:

The improvement of the Northern Rivers occupied the attention of the Senate.—The Grass, Oswegatchie, Moose, Racquet, are almost new to fluvial fame—but they and the Treasury desire "a better acquaintance." The debate on this subject was about all that the day possessed, of interest, for it was scarcely possible to count a quorum. That the appropriation necessary to make these rivers navigable—for logs, would be abundantly repaid by the increased revenue of the Northern Canals, was firmly argued, and it was urged that it was a noble policy thus to open the wilderness, and make even that remote region, a feeder to the great channels of commerce. But it was answered, that these streams, thus sought to be improved, led towards Montreal, always a vast lumber market, and that the effect of the bills would be to facilitate the intercourse with the markets of the British Provinces rather than with our own Cities. But if this were all true, it would yet be good and wise policy for the State to give to the settlers on those lands the opportunity of turning their products into money, and if the reward was the money of another country, so much the better.

☞We heard the other day a good and true story of a Connecticut parson. His country parish raised his salary from $300 per annum to $400. The good man objected—for three reasons. 'First," said he, "because you can't afford to give more than $300. Second, because my preaching isn't worth more than $300. Third, because I have to collect my salary, which heretofore has been the hardest part of my labors among you. If I have to collect an additional hundred it will kill me!"

STRANGE MARRIAGE.—At Parish Church of Himbleton, by Rev. John Vernon, James Bobbins, Esq., of Cladesley Corbett, after a courtship of four days, to Harriet, youngest daughter of Wm. Chambers, of the New House, Himberton. The bridegroom was in his ninety seventh year, and had no time to lose; his fair bride, who has nearly seen sixteen Summers, had pity on him, and took him off hand "for better or for worse," after he had settled upon her the whole of his property, amounting to £1,000 a year.—Montreal Gazette.

☞"Look out for paint," is the warning given on the doors of the Commercial Hotel. "That's what I say," remarked a young, married friend of ours a day or two since, whose young heart a few short years since, has been led astray by a cha-

The True Excellence of Life.

To live well is better than to live long. He lives the longest, and noblest life, who accomplishes the great missions of his being. An individual though he may live but a few years, may so fill up the history of his existence with glorious deeds, as to render his life imperishable in the memory of many, a life that shall be full of deathless and lofty influences over his race. It is natural for us to lament the death of the young and gifted, with a smile we can scatter flowers upon the grave of the old, but we water the garlands upon the tomb of the early and lovely dead with tears. With greater regret we stand by the grave of the noble spirit, who has fallen in the "morning of life," than when we meditate by the sepulchre of the aged. For we think that the young, had not fully accomplished the great purpose of life, but that the old go down to the slumber of death with their labors all finished. But many in youth, are far better prepared for their last and solemn departure, than when heads are white with the snowey locks of age. That one has loved long and nobly, who is ready for the welcome of the bright spirits on high, that one has lived long enough, who has linked the beauty of the present, with the unfading and eternal glory of the Future, who has joined the sweetness of his pilgrimage, with an eternity of blessedness, who has chained all the "bright memories and golden recollections of life, to the everlasting joys of Heaven. How much more beautiful does life appear, when we can look upon the history of the past, and see it filled with noble deeds, when the eye can view the silent shore of departed years, presenting high memorials of exalted actions. How sweet when we revisit the scenes of "by gone days" to discover the imperishable impressions of virtuous deeds, and sad indeed must it be in looking over the record of our lives, to find no inspiring passage, no true and elevated triumph. The brightest inheritence that can fall to any of mortals is to receive firm assurances, that they have always acted from pure and lofty motives.—There can be no richer possessions than the thoughts of past years, ever coming and whispering peace and joy to the faithful heart. The true excellence of life is to be sought in toiling for the elevation of humanity—in consummating all our powers to promote the welfare of society, and in discharging, by the light of science and religion, the unknown mysteries of the future. To accomplish this, is better than to dwell with the living more than a thousand years. For they who truly live can never die. True excellence of life can never be entombed. The thoughts and acts of pure and great spirits in undying eloquence speaks to men, and they shall receive a perpetual reward. A portion of the exultation of every heart that rejoices in the successes of Truth, belongs to them. They gain a share in that eternal blessing which the good will ever give to the benefactors of man. The echo which the song of progress will send back will ever break in grateful melody over their graves. But more precious than glory among men, is the holy and most exalted honor of forever being in the presence of God, when all the pure memorials of earth shall form a portion of our eternal joy. Then, let us act well our part in the great "battle of life"—let us gently wipe the tearful eye of sorrow; let us mildly and faithfully reprove the erring wanderer; let us teach by pure example that we love the unseen glories of the better world, more than the glittering vanities of life. That we are looking above all the crowns of earth to a blessed Coronation in Heaven.

The Sailor's Wife's Lament.

Pale gleams the moon o'er the sea, love,
Pale gleams the moon o'er the sea,
As lone on its grim shores I wander,
Vainly waiting my Jammie, for thee;
Oh, Jammie, I'm weary of waiting,
And watching the dark, gloomy sea:—
Return, Oh, return from thy wanderings,
Return to thy home and to me.

The Wind-God shrieks loud o'er the sea, love,
The wind God shrieks loud o'er the sea;
And I weep when I think that my Jammie
Exposed to its furies may be.
Oh! I pray to our Father to guide thee
In safety once more o'er the sea;
And to bring thee once more from thy wanderings,
Safe back to thy home and to me. [ings,

The cool breeze of morn sheds its gladness,
Once more over mountain and sea,
Oh, would it not truly bring gladness
Could it waft thee once more back to me?
Oh, Jammie, I am "tired and weary,"
Of watching the dark, lonely sea—
Return, Oh! return from thy wanderings—
Return to thy home and to me.

Three Items worth reflecting upon

HOW WE PAY.—A well known, political economist says: "We pay best, first, those who destroy us—generals; second, those who cheat us—politicians and quacks; third those who amuse us—singers and musicians; and least of all those who instruct us—authors, schoolmasters and editors."

If all the world were conservative, society would be like a long train of cars, without an engine. And if every body were radical it would be like a train of engines without cars, rushing furiously ahead bound for progress as long as the track holds out!

An attorney furnishing a bill of costs, was requested by his client, a baker, "to make it light?" "Oh!" said the attorney, "that's what you say to your foreman, but it's not the way I make my bread,"

Price Reduced.

The Republican for $1, in advance $1,50 during the year, or $2, at the end of the year. Papers delivered by the carrier same as heretofore.

We are making out and forwarding bills to our agents as fast as possible.—They are authorized to settle with those in arrears as follows; 1 Where a special bargain exists they will settle accordingly 2. Where no special bargain exists and the subscribers continue another year they will receive arrears at the rate of $1,50 a year and $1, in advance. 3. Those who prefer can settle arrears at the rate of $1,50 a year and continue at the same rate, payable during the year. 4. When a paper is to be stopt they will exact arrears at the full rate of $2 a year in all cases. 5. Our agents are also fully empowered to act in all cases as shall best subserve our interests. Lastly, all who remain in arrears after the 20th of Aug. will be charged at the highest rates.

The Law of Newspapers.

1. Subscribers who do not give express notice to the contrary, are considered wishing to continue their subscription.

2. If subscribers order the discontinuance of their papers, the publisher may continue to send them till all cash charges are paid.

3. If subscribers neglect or refuse to take their papers from the offices to which they are directed, they are held responsible till they have settled their bill, and order their paper discontinued.

4. If subscribers remove to other places without informing the publishers, and the paper is sent to the former direction, they are held responsible.

5. The courts have decided that refusing to take a paper or periodical from the office, or removing and leaving it uncalled for, is "prima facie" evidence of intentional fraud.

TEMPERANCE SPEAKERS.—We have tried from time to time to put the temperance community on their guard against employing men as public advocates of the cause whose private characters were grossly corrupt but it seems to be quite in vain to urge such considerations. We notice that a certain man has been figuring as a public speaker in this city, Brooklyn, and Williamsburgh, for some time past, and we hear that a testimonial is about to be got up for him, in consideration of his "valuable services," just as if he had not forfeited all claim to the countenance of decent people. Well, if people choose to have it so, we wash our hands of all participation in such doings. We don't believe the temperance cause will ever triumph through the advocacy of whoremongers, adulterers or seducers.—N. Y. Organ

Amen. Nor will it prosper by the advocacy of ignoramuses and blockheads who frequently come around under the authority of the State Society, not so much for the cause as to spunge a living out of the friends of temperance. Cases of this kind occur frequently, and we have one in our eye of a recent date too!

☞Having been unable to get our bills ready to forward to our Agents, we have extended the time for the payment of arrearages on subscriptions to the 20th of August. In the mean time, we trust those in arrears over one year, and others if they choose, will call on our agents and settle If not, we shall enforce payment after the date named.

As EXCHANGE paper announces "A new hour of Hon. Pierce." A Hunker at our METROPOLITAN CHARACTER OF NEW YORK.—That our city is truly the metropolis of America no one can doubt, if at all acquainted with its resources, and superiority in its magnificent hotels, naval marine, its fleet of ocean steamers, and its business enterprise and energy. Here the highest talent and acquirement find ample scope, and the largest remuneration. Science, literature, art, the drama, law, divinity surgery, medicine, parade their proudest names. We have at times proposed to introduce to our readers some of the names most distinguished in these several departments, wide renown, besides a local, have a world-wide renown, and whose reputation attracts thousands to be instructed, entertained and benefited. Among them is Dr. S. S Fitch. This gentlemen is one of a line of celebrated physicians. His grandfather, Dr. Ebenezer Fitch, renowned for his piety, learning and skill in surgery and medicine, was one of the surgeons of the Connecticut line during the revolutionary war. His father, Dr. Chauncey Fitch, was the first physician that set led in Plattsburgh, in this State, and for the greater part of his life was one of the most successful physicians that ever practised medicine in America. In the great epidemic of 1813, an epidemic that swept away nearly ten per cent of the population of the United States, he taught its easy and perfect cure, and among his numerous patients never lost a single case. Dr. S. S. Fitch is the third of this line, and was born in Plattsburgh. He, after receiving an excellent academical and classical education, repaired to Philadelphia, at an early age, to complete his medical education — There he graduated in medicine, obtaining the highest honors of his class. He spent about ten years in Philadelphia, closely and carefully pursuing his studies, after which he visited all the States of this Union, and many of the Indian tribes. In 1836, he visited Europe, and during six years, much of his time was spent in the hospitals of London, Paris and Italy. In 1842, he commenced delivering his celebrated lectures on the causes and cure of consumption and disease: on the loss of life—showing by obvious and easily understood rules, how human life may be extended to at least a hundred years. His lectures won all hearers by their truthfulness, common sense utility. In 1845, Dr. Fitch visited this city, and published his lectures on these subjects, which met with wonderful success. They inspired confidence, joy, hope and courage among their readers, and circulated largely both in this country and in Europe. These lectures have passed through over twenty editions, between one and two hundred thousand copies have been already sold. To invalids, as well as those in the enjoyment of health, they prove a perfect guide: and those who early adopt their teachings, and follow them, cannot fall victims to that scourge of our climate—pulmonary consumption. In this city Dr. Fitch has been consulted by over forty thousand persons, of both sexes, for numerous and various diseases. He differs greatly from others in his view of a physician's duty, as he thinks every member of this important profession should prepare and administer his own medicines; that unless he does this, he cannot, though he may enjoy reputation meet with the success he could attain by this means. He writes out an exact and careful account of every case that falls under his notice. These cases already exceed forty five thousand, filling more than one hundred large volumes, all carefully written out. No record of such extent was ever made before by a private physician, and in this way he retains his experience and daily adds to it; and an examination of these volumes will show that of all those who place themselves under his care, nineteen out of twenty are restored to health Dr. Fitch is at home from morning till night, every day, except the Sabbath.—His consultations, either at his house or by letter, are always free, as no charge whatever is made for examining case for rich or poor. The diseases he treats are consumption, asthma, bronchitis, throat diseases, heart diseases, dyspepsia, bowel troubles, piles, all female diseases, liver complaints, affections of the head, skin diseases, and all humors and impurities of the blood, scrofula, &c, &c. Mr. Fitch resides at 714 Broadway, where all invalids will find him a most skilful, sympathising and generous physician. We think our friends who call on him will find this a true history of one of our most respectable men.—Sunday Courier.

Ploughs! Ploughs!!

PROUTY & MEARS'

Celebrated Centre Draughts—All Sizes

THESE Ploughs wherever introduced, are fast superseding all others

The most thorough trials of Ploughs on record in this country, and at the World's Fair in London, have demonstrated the important fact, that the Centre draught Ploughs is of much easier draught than any other, and therefore used with less fatigue to both Plough man and Team; and, also owing to its peculiar form, pulverizes and prepares the ground more perfectly than any other, leaving less work for the harrow, and securing better crops than by any other method of Culture.

The following Implements among others of the best quality and of the latest and most approved patterns, are constantly on hand, viz:

Drag Crows, Seed Sowers, Corn Planters, Corn Shellers, Straw Cutters, Corn and Cob Crushers, Cheese Presses, Threshing Machines, Potato Hooks, Manure Hooks Cast Iron Ox Scrapers Pruning Shears, Tree Scrapers Budding and Pruning Knives, Hay Knives, Barn Door Rollers, Agricultural Furnaces, Corn Knives, Post Hole Augers, Wheelbarrows, Sheep Shears, etc. etc.

Being agents of Messrs. D. P. Prouty and Co., we can furnish the CENTRE DRAUGHT PLOUGHS at the Boston wholesale prices, with the addition of freight

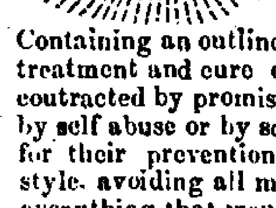
At a Surrogate Court held at the County Judge's Office in Elizabethtown, in and for the County of Essex, on the 20th day of June, A. D., 1853.
Present, J. E. McVine, Essex Co. Judge.

In the matter of the application of Charles Morhous, a creditor of Renssalaer Morhous, deceased, to have the real estate of the said deceased, mortgaged, leased or sold for the payment of debts.



An Order having been heretofore made on the application of Charles Morhous, a creditor of Renssalaer Morhous, late of the County of Essex, deceased, intestate, requiring Emeline Morhous, administratrix, and Abraham Welden and David W. Morhous, administrators of all and singular the goods, chattels, and credits of the said intestate, personally to be and appear before the County Judge and Surrogate of the county of Essex, at his office in Elizabethtown, on the 20th day of June ult., at 10 o'clock, A. M., to shew cause why they should not be required to mortgage, lease, or sell so much of the real estate of said deceased as shall be necessary to pay his debts. And the said administratrix and administrator Abraham Welden, having appeared, as also the said Petitioner by Orlando Kellogg his Proctor, and the said administrators having shown no cause to the contrary.

It is ordered that all persons interested in the estate of said Renssalaer Morhous deceased, intestate, appear before the county Judge of the county of Essex, at his office in the town of Elizabethtown, on the 15th day of August next, at 10 o'clock in the forenoon of that day, then and there to shew cause why authority should not be given to the said administrators and administratrix to mortgage, lease, or sell so much of the Real Estate of the said deceased as shall be necessary to pay his Debts. J. E. McVINE,
[L. S.] Essex Co. Judge.

"Man Know Thyself."
An Invaluable Book for 25 Cents.
"EVERY FAMILY SHOULD HAVE A COPY."

20,000 Copies sold in less than 5 months. A new edition, revised and improved, just issued.

Dr. Hunter's Medical Manual and Hand Book for the Afflicted—
Containing an outline of the origin, progress, treatment and cure of every form of disease, contracted by promiscuous sexual intercourse, by self abuse or by sexual excess, with advice for their prevention, written in a familiar style, avoiding all medical technicalities, and everything that would offend the ear of decency, from the result of some twenty years successful practice, exhlusively devoted to the cure of diseases of a delicate or pirvate nature.

To which is added, receipts for the cure of the above diseases, and a treatise on the causes, symptoms and cure of the Fever and Ague.

Testimony of the Prof. of Obstetrics in Penn. College, Philadelphia —"Dr. Hunter's Medical Manual."—The author of this work unlike the majority of those works who advertise to cure the diseases of which it treats, is a graduate of one of the best Colleges in the United States. It affords me pleasure to recommend him to the unfortunate, or to the victim of malpractice, as a successful and experienced practitioner, in whose honor and integrity they may place the greatest confidence.
JOSEPH LONGSHORE, M. D.

From A Woodward, M. D., of Penn. University, Philadelphia—It gives me pleasure to add my testimony to the professional ability of the author of the "Medical Manual." Numerous cases of diseases of the Genital Organs, some of them of long standing have come under my notice, in which his skill has been manifest in restoring to perfect health, in some instances where the patient has been considered beyond medical aid. In the treatment of Seminal weakness, or disarrangement of the functions produced by Self-abuse, or Excess of venery, I do not know his superior in the profession. I have been acquainted with the Author some thirty years, and deem it no more than justice to him as well as a kindness to the unfortunate victim of early indiscretion, to recommend him as one, in whose professional skill and integrity they may safely confide themselves. ALFRED WOODWARD, M.D.

"This is, without exception, the most comprehensive and intelligible work published on the class of diseases of which it treats. Avoiding all technical terms, it addresses itself to the reason of its readers. It is free from all objectionable matter, and no parent, however fastidious, can object to placing it in the hands of his sons. The author has devoted many years to the treatment of the various complaints treated of, and 'with too little breath to puff,' and 'too little presumption to impose,' he has offered to the world at the merely nominal price of 25 cents, the fruits of some 20 years most successful practice."—Herald.

"No teacher or parent should be without the knowledge imparted in this invaluable work. It would save years of pain, mortification and sorrow to the youth under their charge."—People's Advocate.

A Presbyterian clergyman in Ohio, in writing of "Hunter's Medical Manual," says: "Thousands upon thousands of our youth, by evil example and influence of the passions, have been led into the habit of self-pollution without realizing the sin and fearful consequences upon themselves and their posterity. The constitutions of thousands who are raising families have been enfeebled, if not broken down, and the do not know the cause or the cure. Anything that can be done so to enlighten and influence the public mind as to check, and ultimately to remove this wide-spread source of human wretchedness, would confer the greatest blessing next to the religion of Jesus Christ, on the present and coming generations. Intemperance (or the use of intoxicating drinks,) though it has slain thousands upon thousands, is not a greater scourge to the human race. Accept my thanks on behalf of the afflicted, and, believe me, your co-worker in the good work you are so actively engaged in."

One copy, (securely enveloped,) will be forwarded free of postage to any part of the United States for 25 cents, or 6 copies for $1.—Address (post paid) COSDEN & Co., publishers, Box 196, Philadelphia. 478y

BOOT & SHOE STORE!

THE Subscribers having bought the Boot and Shoe Establishment heretofore known as F, E. Shandrew and Co.'s, are now prepared to manufacture anything in that line. We have also a large stock of Ready-Made Work, selected with great care by Mr. Shandrew, and warranted to be a better article than can be found in any slop Shoe Store in town. Our ready made Boots and Shoes are made by some of the best workmen in New York city,—in the most fashionable style, and every pair warranted to give satisfaction or the money refunded. We are permanently in the business, and of course expect to furnish a better article for less money than our neighbors can who, do not manufacture.

Ladies and gentlemen—you need not go to Burlington, nor any where else, expecting to do better than you can with us, as we have in our employ some of the best workmen in the State, and can give you perfect fits. We hope and expect that our own mechanics and village will be patronized in preference to the States Prison convicts, whose worthless trash is brought into competition with the labor of honest workmen. 26 Years Experience.
OLD ESTABLISHED HOSPITAL.
Quick Cures and Low prices.
Private Diseases and their Antidote.

DR. LISPENARD, author of the Marriage Guide, or Private Medical Treatise. Professor of Diseases of Women and Children, and Licentiate of the College of Physicians and Surgeons of the United States University, &c., &c., continues as heretofore to be confidentially and successfully consulted on all forms and variety of
PRIVATE DISEASES,
at his old quarters, No 5 Beaver-street, ALBANY, N. Y.

The great success attending the use of Doctor L.'s remedies in secret diseases, and the many remarkable cures daily effected by him in recent as well as old lingering attacks, is conclusive evidence that the
SICK AND UNFORTUNATE
can do no better than consult the Doctor, whose whole time is devoted to the exclusive treatment of this much neglected branch of practice.

LOOK AT THIS.

Dr. Lispenard cures recent cases of disease in from three to six days, and chronic or long standing diseases in a very short period of time, without the use of Mercury, without the loss of time, change of diet, or detention from
DAILY EMPLOYMENT.

In Syphillis, Gonorrhea, Gleet, Strictures, Enlargement of the Testicles and Cords, Bubo, Chancres Pimples and Scaly Eruptions, Sore Throats and Noses, Chancres on the tongue, tender shin bones, and diseases of the skin, and impure blood. Dr. Lispenard's remedies are above all praise, and frequently cure when all others had failed
EVEN TO RELIEVE.

More than 5,000 patients have during the past year experienced the benefit of the Doctor's extraordinary skill in treating secret diseases—among which, diseases of the bladder and kidneys have formed a goodly proportion.

YOUNG MEN,
who by indulging in secret habits have injured their health and prostrated their intellectual faculties, and thereby deprived themselves of the pleasure of married life, should consult Dr. Lispenard without a moment's delay. Hundreds have been restored to health, society and friends, under my peculiar mode of treatment, although vast sums of money had been sacrificed without any benefit. My remedy for this disease is pleasant to take, has no offensive smell and

CURES WITHOUT FAIL.

Persons so unfortunate as to be diseased, although they may have visited half a dozen Doctors, and had medicine sent them a dozen times with no benefit, would exhibit wisdom by making their case known to that Friend of the Sick, Dr. Lispenard, who never charges for advice and warrants all his cures. The sick are often at a loss where to apply for relief, and it is no wonder, as hundreds stand ready to plunder the unfortunate victim of Private disease, or secret habits, without one thought for his life and health. All thus deceived will find a friend, and moderate charges, in consulting the Doctor who uses no mercury and cures every time.

N. B.—Persons from a distance when visiting the city in search of a physician and friend, will be fortunate if they succeed in escaping the many dens of imposition, conducted by unprincipled men, destitute of character knowledge or name, who fleece the unfortunate victim of disease of his hard earned money, and his remaining health. Patients who have no acquaintance in the city should make inquiry of some respectable citizen, or the editor or proprietor of any of the city papers, to ascertain who is the most reliable physician to apply to.

FEMALE DISEASES.

Dr. Lispenard, from an experience seldom or never enjoyed by any other medical man, is enable to treat, with every hope of succes, all and every variety of Female Complaints—with safe and pleasant remedies—and has without doubt cured within the past five years more than 3000 females afflicted with diseases of the Bladder, Womb, &c. &c. Ladies afflicted with suppression or stoppage of their monthly turns, will recollect that Dr. Lispenard is still the sole American agent for

DR. VICHOP'S
FEMALE MONTHKY PILLS.

The unprecedented sale of more than 15,000 boxes of these excellent Pills, and the good results which always follow their use, is conclusive evidence of their utility in stoppages, &c. Caution—Married Ladies in certain delicate situations should not use them—for reasons see directions with each box. Price $1. Sent by mail to all parts of the world.

Married Persons and those about to Marry, should enclose 12½ cents post paid to Dr. Lispenard, and obtain a copy of his Marriage Guide, or Private Treatise, a bewitching little work of nearly 100 pages, illustrated. Every thing that married persons can desire or wish to know, is here explained. Persons who from poverty or sickness have no desire to increase their family, will find necessary instruction in the Marriage Guide. One copy 12½ cents; 5 copies 50 cts.; 12 copies $1—mailed free to any part of the world.

N. B.—Patients treated by letter, and medicines sent, with full directions for use, to the writer's address. All communications destroyed or returned.

No mercury used in any case, and all cures warranted.

No boys or precocious students allowed: timed persons take notice.

Friends of Dr. L. when recommending patients to our care, will recollect our number, 5 Beaver st., three doors from South Broadway.

Hospital open from 7 A. M., to 9 P. M., and on Sundays from 1 to 4 P. M.

No charge for advice, although no medicine may be desired.

Good board and private rooms for those who desire to remain in the city.

THE WONDER OF THE WORLD.
DEVINES' COMPOUND
PITCH LOZENGE,

A sure and pleasant Remedy for Colds, Coughs, Croup, Whooping Cough, Asthma, and if lungs enough are left to sustain life, A CERTAIN CURE FOR CONSUMPTION, safe for the Infant or the Invalid, in any stage of weakness.

"The statements that consumption cannot be cured, has destroyed more lives than the disease itself."—Dr. Warren

Read the following, which to a candid mind places this Great Remedy, "like Cesar's wife" above suspicion.

TO THE PUBLIC!

We, the undersigned, citizens of Lee, Mass., are acquainted with Mr. Devines, the proprietor and Manufacturer of Devines' Compound Pitch Lozenge and from what we know of it ourselves and have learned from others of its beneficial effects, in cases where it has been used, give it as our opinion that it is a valuable remedy in diseases for which it is recommended and is worthy of public confidence. A. G. Hulburt, Leonard Church, F. G. Taylor, Wm. Taylor, E. A. Bliss, S. A. Hulburt, Josephus Crafts, T. P. Eldridge.

If any individual is to be pitied, and needs sympathy, it is the consumptive—always expecting to get well, and yet the painful evidence of decay almost "makes the inner soul shrink with the outer flesh."

"Some bloom as roses bloom, and live as roses live,
A single morning space."

While others, in more mature life—by some imprudence and a slight cold neglected—in the hectic flush—the painful cough,

"The prints of their departing steps appears."

BUT THERE IS HOPE! Mr. Wm. Devines, the originator and manufacturer of the Pitch Lozenge, under Providence, was raised to perfect health by the use of these Lozenges alone, after he was pronounced by his physician to be almost dying with consumption.

This fact is generally known in Berkshire County and is the neighborhood talk, and wonder in Lee, and in Great Barrington, Mass.

From Dr. Brown, of Lee, Mass.

This certifies that I have made use of Devines' Compound Pitch Lozenge for cold and cough, and found immediate relief. Therefore I would recommend it to the public as being a safe and sovereign remedy. H. C. BROWN.

Remarks of Hon. Mr. Burnett, of Essex, on the Liquor Bill.

IN ASSEMBLY—July 11, 1853.

MR. SPEAKER—This subject has been so fully discussed, and so ably and eloquently argued, both by the advocates and the opponents of the bill now before the House, that it might perhaps be considered as a work of supererogation and criminal waste of time for me to delay the final action thereupon, by any remarks which I might have to offer. And well may I feel, as I do feel, a hesitancy and a diffidence in thus attempting to bespeak the patient attention of gentlemen, whose minds have now for days been enchained by words of eloquence and cogency of argument seldom listened to within these walls, lest by so doing, I should, in my temerity, imitate the folly of him who would attempt to paint the lilly, or hold up his feeble rush-light to the blaze of the summer sun!

But, sir, in a matter of so great public concern, involving the peace and comfort of every hearth and home in the land I, standing here as the representative of more than thirty thousand freemen, dare not falter in a course which I feel persuaded it is my duty to pursue. And I feel a stronger obligation laid upon me, by the further persuasion, that the very importance of the subject, and its multifarious phases and conflicting interests, have excited a spirit of enthusiasm and heated feeling, not always best suited to calm and dispassionate inquiry, and sound philosophical investigation and analysis. There is a mental as well as physical intoxication, which seizing the reins of the mind, often leads it into vagaries quite as eccentric and mischievous as was ever induced by the intoxicating bowl. The grave and sententious Tacitus, in describing the manners of our ancestors in the forests of Germany, notes it as a characteristic of them much to be admired, that though discussing matters of great public moment in the midst of their feasts and their wine, nevertheless always postponed their caution in the latter particular, and approach the subject in a spirit of cool deliberation and with well balanced feelings. Let us not substitute fancy for fact, nor suffer the influences of a heated imagination to mislead our better judgement. Figures of rhetoric, flights of fancy, and stirring appeals to the passions like plants of hot-house growth in mid-winter, may produce flowers in all their brilliancy and bloom; but their fruit is 'flat, stale and unprofitable.' They may serve as a nosegay, but will they 'satisfy the empty belly?'

The source of all human ills is to be found in a fallen nature, and consequent corrupt affections; and from the exercise of these affections evil habits spring, which like other things acquire strength in the using. To trace therefore all human woes to one evil habit, is neither consistent with sound logic, nor is it sustained by lessons of experience. Avarice is a sin' a sin which prompted a Judas to betray his Lord and Saviour.—Yet who can believe that drunkenness induced that dreadful deed? Avarice has led men to sell their country for gold.—Yet 'these men were not drunken.' Indeed, avarice and drunkenness are rarely concomitant vices, but quite the opposite. The Book of Inspiration instructs us that adultry, fornication, uncleanness, lasciviousness, idolatry, witchcraft, hatred, variance, emulations, wrath, strife, seditious, heresies, envyings, murders, and such like, are sins. And who doubts the fact?—But yet temperate men have perpetrated all these crimes, and in most cases none the less so for having been temperate—And, sir, at the hazard of startling the minds and perhaps wounding the sensibilities of those who take an entire different view of the subject from myself, I would further venture the assertion, and challenge contradiction thereto, that, in the vast majority of instances, the beastly sin of drunkenness springs either from the practice of antecedent vices of quite a different character—such as idleness, sloth, debauchery, gaming, profanity, Sabbath breaking, disobedience to parents, and the like—or from an over-indulgence in and an abuse of benevolent, generous, and kindly affections; nay, not unfrequently from having been made the victims of frowning fortune, or of cold-hearted, cool-headed, calculating, successful villainy in others. Indeed, sir, it is by no means the least evil of intemperance, that the wretched inebriate becomes the pander and the slave of the designing and unscrupulous, who themselves avoid this pernicious habit. And had those philanthropists who have visited our prisons, not like Howard, to relieve human suffering, but for scarcely less laudable purpose of collecting the statistics of crime, interrogated its unhappy victims in reference to their habits, with a view to trace the crime for which they were respectively suffering punishment to its primary cause in regard to early indulgence in any or either of the vices above-named, the result would have been substantially the same in every particular instance.

I submit, therefore, sir, that these gentlemen have not adopted correct or philosophical views of this subject. Vices are social; they exist in groups; they are generative; they produce and re-produce; they act and re act upon each other; and by this action and re action, sometimes, according to the law of nature, they beget their like. Sometimes, as in co-habitation, contrary to nature, they produce offspring of the monster kind, unlike either parent, yet partaking of certain characteristics of each.—Thus man, influenced by external incentives, prompted by internal impulses—now yielding to one temptation, now resisting another; now stipulating for terms of half submission to a third, adopts modes of thought and habits of conduct, which go to form that complex idea, that insoluble enigma, styled human character.

But while insisting that drunkenness is not the parent of every vice, the cause of every crime and the source of every ill, far be it from me to deny its blasting, devastating effects on human character and human happiness. Sir, its history, like the flying Roll of the inspired Prophet, by him seen only in vision, but this, presented to our naked eye-balls, is written, within and without, with 'lamentations and mourning and woe.' 'Tis the history of kindly social affection prostituted to beastly appetite—benevolence changed to hate. We read in its dark page of blighted hopes and crushed affections, the sweets of life turned to 'wormwood and gall;' the desolate hearthstone; the blanched cheek; the dim, sunken eye; the shudder of apprehension at the approach of him who once was the cherished object of the heart's first, deepest, purest love. We see wealth turned to want, squalor, filth and rags; the springy, elastic step to the staggering gate; robust health to wasting disease, the coffin and the shroud. All these and a thousand other ills, are induced by this fell scourge.—It pervades the city and the field, the palaces of the rich, and the cottages of the poor, and every where brings in its train wretchedness and crime!

But, sir, it is precisely because, this afflictive sin does not spring exclusively from innate depravity, that I would restrain it by the strong bands of the law. Vices, like malice, hatred, ingratitude, &c., violative of what civil jurists term imperfect obligations, can be reached by no legal enactments, nor controlled by statutory regulations. Offspring of a foul heart, they can only be corrected by the prevailing grace of God. Not so with the vice of drunkenness. Its inceptives are chiefly from punish crime; can we not attempt to prevent it? The inordinate use of intoxicating drinks leads to the commission of crime. Can we not, therefore, ought we not to restrain such use?

But here we are met by the objection that although the object of the bill before us may be ever so commendable, yet its advocates have made a great mistake in the mode they would adopt to effect that object. And one gentleman has been so felicitous as to have discovered that we need only a plenty of good liquor to make and keep everybody perfectly sober! That by excluding all cheap and adulterated drinks, the price would be so raised as to render it impossible for those on whom this blighting curse chiefly falls, to purchase in sufficient quantities to do them much harm; so that the poor would thereby be kept sober per force.

Ah, sir, has the gentleman duly weighed his words, and pondered his argument?—Has he reflected upon the certain, the inevitable effects of building up this wall of division, this affixing marks of distinction between the rich and the poor, the fortunate and the unfortunate?—a distinction, which should no where exist & which would not for a moment be tolerated in this boasted country of liberty and equality, where the very beggar esteems himself as good, and is in fact often much better than the millionaire; a country jealous of its liberties, where I confess we are apt to think more of our rights and privileges, than of their corresponding obligations. He evidently did not reflect, that men most covet what is granted to others, but denied to themselves. What envyings, what strifes, what heartburnings, what embittered hate would not such a distinction engender?—And its fearful consequences, alas, who can number, who can measure them? Sir, it would sever society in its very midst; and produce the enactment of a drama a thousand fold more fearful than the war of the Jacquerie, and of which the atrocities of the French Revolution were but a shadow. No, no, the gentleman did not well ponder his words; he did not well consider consequences. His heart would revolt, as mine, and that of every gentleman of this floor would revolt, at results sure to follow the course of policy thus inconsiderately suggested.

I will not assert, what no one pretends, that this bill is perfect in all its parts—'Troy was not built in a day;' and every useful scheme must be a work of time. It is only by the test of experiment that the good can be distinguished from the bad, the true from the false. But there must be a beginning of all things; and this is only a beginning, certainly a necessary, and, I trust, a judicious one, destined to lead to happy results. Nevertheless, I deem it due to the cause of truth and candor to add, that I am not of those who anticipate, even in the complete success of the cause of temperance, the full realization of all those blessings so fondly dreamed of, and so glowingly described by the gentleman from Washington, that it would reproduce the golden age and usher in the morning of the millenium, by destroying "all the ills that flesh is heir to," and disenthralling us from the bondage of sin!—Alas, sir, we are afflicted with too many and too foul moral diseases and sicknesses of the soul, to reasonably expect a thorough cure from the simple application of a remedy such as this. We need a 'clean heart and a right spirit.'

I must also confess that I am no very firm believer in what is called the spirit of progress, about which we have heard so much said upon this floor, in the language of laudation and extravagant rhapsody.—Nay, sir, I seriously question indeed, notwithstanding the acknowledged vast improvements in physics and the arts, whether we are progressing at all in those elements, by which alone the civil and social fabric can be sustained and perpetuated. It is doubtful, indeed, upon the whole, whether there has been any real intellectual improvement within the present, century.—This is an impulsive, not a reflective age. We are too much in a hurry in thinking as well as in acting—our attention is distracted by too great a multiplicity of objects, to think well upon any one given subject.—It is quite true, our minds are spread over a broad surface; but while spreading abroad, do we not incur the danger of spreading thin? Yes, sir, in most cases, quite too thin!

But have we in fact progressed, and are we now progressing in principles, habits and pursuits essential to man's present and future well being? Are we better patriots than our fathers were? more industrious, more frugal, more kind hearted and benevolent? Have we more self-denial, more humility, more honesty and sincerity, more private integrity, more faithfulness in the discharge of public trusts? Are we better citizens, better husbands, better fathers, better brothers, better children? Do we love our neighbor better than they did?—Do we more than they cultivate the moral affections, and possess more of the faith and fear of God? In short, are we better fitted to live, better prepared to die? Unless these, or most of these interrogatives can be answered in the affirmative, whatever others may see of progress, I can see little that is to be desired, much less to be vaunted of. Nevertheless, I would not even wholly despair, as deeming the thing impossible. There are doubtless means and facilities within our reach, which, if properly used, may and would lead to beneficial results. Let us do be "very meet and right and our bounden duty" to allow their voices to be heard thereupon, to indicate what future course of legislation it may be expedient to adopt as the settled policy of the State, for I am persuaded that the decision of the people of this State to be solemnly and distinctly pronounced in their primary assemblies upon the merits of this great question will fix and determine the course of policy to be pursued for years to come; and did I think otherwise, I should long hesitate before voting for this bill.

I shall vote for this bill, because its object is to ascertain, as nearly as may be, the public verdict pronounced independently of personal preferences, upon a question which cannot long be blinked, but must be, sooner or later, looked in the face, and met with a manly spirit: believing, as I do, that no more favorable time than the present will occur for years to come, for the question has now been long agitated in every part of the State, and among all classes of men; the horrors of intemperance have been everywhere seen and felt, and I trust the public mind is well prepared to render a just and discriminating judgment thereupon.

I shall support this bill, because though not anticipating an effectual cure for every evil even from its complete success, yet indulging a hope, (it is but a hope) that by practising one virtue, it will become easier for us to practice kindred virtues, we shall in and by the exercise of sober thought and reflection, witness a gradual but permanent improvement in private and public morals. That with sobriety will come a love for, and an exercise of the domestic and social virtues. That we shall have more frugality, more humility, more honesty, more chastity, more regard for social order, more reverence for Law.

That the magistrate will not bear the sword in vain—that there will be less of violence in the land—that we shall no longer be startled at the hour of mid night in this Capital of the State, by the baleful light of signal fires blazing on the hill-tops and along the valleys, not, as in by-gone times amidst old Scotland's highlands, to gather the clans to repel invasion and for the defence of their hearthstones; but for the foul purpose of calling together without restraint and without rebuke, bands of painted outlaws to a rendezvous of burning and a banquet of blood; or to give timely warning to the perpetrators of such atrocities, that the avengers of blood are upon their track.

I shall vote for this bill, because I believe its influence will be, in a very considerable degree, to wrest the weapons of mischief from the hands of heartless, soulless demagogues, fawning and sycophantic when out of, tyrannical when in place; who pander to men's frailties and vices and often practice like vices themselves, that they may the better subserve their own selfish ends and unhallowed aims. Finally, I shall support this bill, because by so doing we in our humble way grant the boon to others which we are commanded to pray for, in our own behalf, whenever we do pray, 'Lead us not into temptation, but deliver us from evil."

GEN. PIERCE. "Do you know," remarked a rather communicative democrat to the editor of this paper the other day, 'that no portraiture of the mental proprieties, of General Pierce ever told the whole truth of him.' Making no particular answer, because not knowing to what he specially alluded, he continued: 'Pierce demands of his followers their entire devotion. They must yield him every thing, and consent to receive in return just so much as he sees fit to bestow. If they murmur, and their murmurings reach his ears, they are politically dead men, so far as promotion depends upon him. He is not an avaricious man; he does not ask men for their money it is their homage he seeks; and until that is secured, fully and unconditionally, he makes no remuneration for services, and even then is careful to have the balance always in his own favor.'

The conversation then turning upon some occurrences inspiring a year and more ago, amongst others, to John S. Wells and the Senatorship, our informant said: 'Wells crossed Pierce's track up in your Merrimack County Court House, in the trial of the Suncook Case, and he remembered it. He was perfectly willing that Wells should be at the call of his (Pierce's) political friends, and stump it through the New England and some other States, but when the Presidential Election was over, and that for Senator in Congress came on, what did he do, but invite Representatives to his room at the Eagle, and personally solicit them to vote for Atherton! Frank Pierce, Sir,' (Uncle Toby could not more emphatically have rapped the floor with his cane, than did our democratic narrator utter the conclusion of the sentence;) 'Frank Pierce, Sir, never forgives a man that crosses his path.'

There was here a pause in the free discourse of the somewhat leaky democrat at our side, when he broke out into a laugh, and then said—'It is amusing to know that after all the lying of which ——— and ——— and ——— were guilty; (naming the conductor of a newspaper and two others) they are likely to obtain, nothing from Gen. Pierce. They swore roundly to what they knew to be false. They swore that black was white and white black; humbugged the writers, causing them to appear ridiculous, and become laughing stocks to such as saw the way into some paths which

The Crystal Palace Dinner.

The CRYSTAL PALACE had first a great Opening and then a great Dinner, at both of which the PALACE seems to have played only a secondary part. At the Opening as at the Dinner, so far as we can judge from the Speeches, the Palace and its attractions were the last things remembered."

The President evidently intended to convert the excursion into an Electioneering trip, but we fancy he has not added to his reputation. The following portraits are by the Commercial Advertiser, a neutral paper with democratic leanings, and hence they can be relied on. If they can be deemed at all favorable we are mistaken.

The current portraits of President Pierce gives a very fair representation or idea of the man. Perhaps he appears somewhat younger than the majority of them represent him. His bearing is dignified when in repose, less so when engaged in conversation, and especially when receiving persons presented to him. At such moments his countenance is lighted up with "wreathed smiles," or, in more homely phrase, is "all over smiles," but they are transient, and have somewhat the appearance of being stereotyped. The eye is fine, brilliant, intelligent. The forehead is rather low and receding; the facial features angular. His figure is slight, active and graceful; his gestures in speaking are abundant, perhaps to surplusage, but easy and natural. He carries to excess the habit of jerking out the conclusion of his sentences, bending forward and suddenly springing up and throwing back the head as the closing word falls from his lips.

The next toast was "Mr. Guthrie, the Secetary of the Treasury," to which of course that gentleman responded. The Hon. James Guthrie is a man to attract observations any where. Of good stature and stalwart frame, he is plain, almost rustic, in his attire, and sits erect and firmly. The countenace is strongly marked, and would indicate, even to the most superficial observer, high personal integrity, great energy of purpose and power of will, and generally almost rigidity of character. The first impression of harshness, however, rapidly subsides as one continues to study that noble, frank, clear countenance. The stronger lines, more manifestly but the traces of thoughtfulness and a habit of reflection. The inner man shines forth, and you feel that with strength of character is blended a genuine benevolence, that ever and anon beams from the eye and plays around the mouth. The impression instantly made by this happy blending of elements of character is most pleasing. Before you are aware how deeply your feelings are interested in the gentleman, you detect yourself divining that Mr. Guthrie is just the man you would like to have for a friend: that he must be an excellent neighbor and judicious adviser; that to a young man especially his counsel and oversight would be invaluable; and your faith in the man grows as you study him, until you almost wish you had occasion for reposing confidence in him. Nor is this feeling at all abated, but rather increased, when he speaks, for the voice is much less rigid than the features.

The Hon. Jefferson Davis, Secretary of War, next responded to a toast complimentary to himself. The honorable gentlemen is in almost every attribute, physical and mental, a contrast to Mr. Guthrie. There is little that is prepossessing, and nothing that is commanding, in his appearance. He might mingle with the crowd, and none would point him out or select him for any special mission. Least of all would he be rated as a warrior. As a speaker he disappointed us. He does not lack fluency in any remarkable degree, but is greatly wanting in force. His style is inflated. He indulges in very transparent rhetorical tricks, and works no conviction in the minds of his hearers. He labors under the misfortune, or has the fault, as the case may be, of seeming to lack sincerity—of desiring to tickle the ears rather than affect the heart or judgement of his hearers. He spoke at some length, in commendation of free trade; but a notification that our columns are wanted for other matters compels us to omit his remarks.

The Hon. Caleb Cushing was the next speaker. He eat next to Mr. Guthrie; and as we looked at the twain, thoughts passed through our mind that we are not disposed wholly to commit to paper. Why is it that few have confidence in Mr. Cushing as a public man? His antecedents are certainly not such as to invoke trust or reliance. But then other men, as well as he, have performed political somersaults, without entirely losing the popular confidence There sits the gentleman, under the shaddow of the massive honesty of the Secretary of the Treasury. The face is smooth, beardless, whiskerless: oval in form, and slightly angular, in profile. Underneath these half-drooping eyelids are the windows of his soul. Look in. You cannot. The glass is not clear, or there is no light within. There is the difficulty. The gentleman is not willing that you should see into those "chambers of imagery." The curtain is studiously drawn, and you strive in vain to read Mr. Cushing through his eyes. This you soon feel; and the next thought is, that his ability of concealment is more than equal to his other abilities, which are confessedly great.

The Boy who Leads the Chinese Rebellion.

In revolutionary matters; boys are invaluable. They have figured prominently in every blow that freedom ever struck. They are not only impatient of restraint themselves, but they dislike to see chains on other people. The leader of the Chinese rebels, it is said is, only nineteen years of age He is called Chu Kichin. A reward of 4,000 taels of silver has been offered by the Imperialists for his capture.

In the French revolution of 1848, among the first to raise a brick bat against Louis Philippe, were the pupils of the Polyteebnic school, and what is true of the boys of the present day, is equally true of those of 1830 and 1814. They have ever been the first to strike and the last to give up. When Paris was attacked in the latter year by the allied armies, the Parisian artillery placed on the heights of Montmarte was served by the pupils of this very school, the most of whom were under fifteen years of age. They, of course, were inexperienced in war; yet they rivalled in ardor the veterans with whom they associated; and their well directed fire filled the approaches to their position with the dead bodies of the enemy. Thus transformed into disciples of war, they served the batteries with all the enthusiasm of valor, and never shrunk from their post whilst it could be retained. Several hundred of these youths fell in the dreadful conflict. And yet, with such facts staring patriotism in the face, there are hundreds of old noodles who are fining these very boys for "firing powder crackers." Again we say, three cheers for the rising generation—they are not only freedom's most ardent, but earliest friends. Having tasted the birch, they dislike rods of any kind.

THE WARLIKE FORCE OF TURKEY.—The capabilities of Turkey to carry on an effective war are greater than has been supposed. Her regular active army is put down at 138,630 men; the reserve, 136,-630 men; the irregular troops, 61,500; auxiliary contingents, 110,000 men—giving a grand total of 448,860 men. Besides this number the Viceroy of Egypt has already offered 45,000 men, commanded by a French officer, to be placed at the service of the Sultan. An Albanian ruler has likewise volunteered to lead into the field against Russia little short of one hundred thousand men. The Albanians can fight; and such an auxiliary would prove most valuable. But leaving this accession out, and reducing the available troops to 400,-000 we find an enormous army, in an excellent state of discipline, and animated, not by a war of aggression, but that which is creative of far greater enthusiasm, a war of national defence. The fleet in commission is four line of battle ships, mounting, from 80 to 120 guns each; two heavy frigates, built by American shipwrights, and, which have the character that no finer can be shown by any navy in the world; several steamers, in excellent order, and many smaller vessels of war. The crews of these ships are expert at gunning, and are well disciplined, having been under the direction of English officers; and the entire fleet is under the charge of a Turkish Admiral, who is also an English naval captain, formerly Captain Adolphus Slade.

It is said that several English noblemen intended visiting the World's Fair at New York, this summer. They will be met by many of America's "noblemen."

☞Here's a cordial grasp of the hand for the author of that paragraph! English noblemen! I wouldn't walk to the end of a knitting needle to see one. Do you suppose the fair would turn their backs on our tall, finely-formed, curly-headed, chain lightning looking American men, to glance at those slow moulded, red faced, apoplectic, barrel shaped, porter fed, boasting, beef-devouring abominations? No sir! No need to label their coats; if we see any masculine particularly arrogant, imperative, ill mannered and disagreeable, we shall set him down for "an English nobleman." I hope they won't tread on my Republican toes. I am afraid I should allude to that huge cup of 'tea' that my forefathers mixed for theirs, in Boston harbor; or hum "Yankee Doodle" in their British ears, or invite them to take a look at 'Bunker hill monument." 'English noblemen!' The nobleman whom my heart recognizes, lies sleeping at "Marshfield."

BARRETT'S GRAMMER.—By the kindness of the author we have been furnished with a copy of a new work, entitled 'The Principles of Grammar, being a compendious Treatise on the languages, English, Latin, Greek, German, Spanish, and French.'—By SOLOMON BARRETT, Jr. Philologist.

We remember that Horace Greely ventured to oppose the weight of his criticism, to the overwhelming current of praise, excited by the entire corps of British Reviewers, in favor of Alexander Smith, a new candidate for the 'poet's bays.' The case will be somewhat similar if our opinion of the book before us, be found in the least to vary from that of the many learned Professors and Editors, by whose wholesale recommendations it is prefaced.

However we presume that even the author, who understands so well the nomenclature of his Grammatica Grammaticarum as to be able to meet every objection with a ready answer, will be glad to establish the reputation of his work, by explaining away the objections that may possibly be raised against it.

We assume that a new classical work is entitled to credit only so far as it is superior to anything that has preceded it.

Again, that no author, who is worthy of public favor, will claim to have done what he evidently has not done.

And thirdly, that no book is fit to be put into a student s hands, which is replete with glaring faults and positive errors, even though it contain an admixture of truth and good reason.

What then are the contents of this book which is to introduce the golden age of letters? We find on examination that one hundred and sixty pages of the work are taken up with what the author calls 'Grammer, Reader, and Dictionary in the same line,' which contains no principles not embodied in the remaining half, and ten pages of which would have been as good as one hundred and sixty.

To this portion of the work we attach no importance, since it is nothing more than every student who is fitted for college could make.

Of the remaining half, sixty pages are devoted to the principles of the English, twenty to the Latin, twenty five to the Greek, and eight to each of the modern languages! We might with good reason be censured for expecting to find anything of importance in so small a polyglot, had not the promises of the author been sustained by the signatures of so many able scholars.

Now the novelty of this work consists in the supposed original discovery of the fact that 'one word belongs to another,' or which a nounts to the same thing, that when arranged in the most natural order, every word in a sentence stands next to some one or two other words. For our part we are unable to perceive the striking originality here, to which the author lays claim. We remember well to have heard the remarks of one of our early teacher's chapeau talks in vain, as he endeavored to explain the 'first relation' by repeating the words 'black hat,' 'white hat,' 'old hat,' to some dull aspirant for academic honors, and we doubt not that the majority of our popular teachers, have the same or other equally simple methods of illustrating the otherwise dry details of grammatical analysis; yet we are by no means inclined to take from the author, or that son of his, the credit of the beautiful drawings which grace his chart. But when we go beyond the English it can certainly claim no superiority. In the few pages devoted to the Latin and Greek languages, novelty of arrangement is the shrine at which the author has sacrificed simplicity and perspicuity; besides, the narrow compass of the work has rendered many unpardonable omissions unavoidable. Finally, what is there in this part of the book, which is not equally well expressed by Bullions and what can supply the place of those important things which are not found here at all? We answer, a good Grammar, Reading-Book and Lexicon. Without these the student must forever grope in the dark, and with them he has no need of the grammatical hash. We now come to speak of the German, Spanish and French. We take it for granted that the alphabet is not offered as an infallible guide to the pronunciation of these languages. If not let us look a little farther, We are next regaled with some dozen pages of definitions, observations, &c. which might be clipped from any Grammar extant, followed by fifty pages of colloquial phrases, which might possibly come in play in a dry goods store or a shoe shop, but which could not be so changed as to be of use in any other circumstances, by a person who had committed the whole book to memory, and no more. and we must be permitted to wonder if the author after laying down these principles, the critical examination of which will enable the fortunate student speedily to read, write, and speak the ancient languages with the facility and accuracy of a native Roman or Grecian,' can do as much himself, or even glibly tongue the 'langue polie.'

A few of the positive errors, at which we have hinted, and we have done. Were it a treatise upon any other subject than language, we would not notice the following errors in orthography. We find in the advertisement the word irrefragible, of which we think Webster is innocent. In the conjugation of the verb sum there are no less than three parts misspelled. On the ninetieth page we find the paridigms in Virgil's Anead, and again on the one hundred and fiftieth, in the first Table of Terminations, there are five consecutive errors; and in one of the Greek pronouns two. On the one hundred and second page we are told that short i, in the supine is the sign of the second conjugation, and long i of the fourth, and immediately after, that abscondĭtum and domĭtum with the short i are of the fourth conjugation, that half the verbs belong to two different conjugations, and some of them to three. But we are tired of fault-finding, in an 'infinite series,' so returning our thanks for the book and the [illegible] that no word is a 'Part of

The Legislature.

This body adjourned on Thursday, after one of the most inharmonious, jarring, discordant sessions ever known. The regular and extra sessions have been devoted to a special effort on the part of the Barnburners, to break down and ruin the Hunkers, while Whigs have been mainly idle spectators. This warfare by the Barnburners upon the Hunkers, cost the state the extra session, at an expense of $75,000, and a session of the Court for the trial of Impeachments which will cost $30,000 more, all to appease political partizans. There never was a body of men, as desperate, as reckless, as void of decency, right, justice, truth as the Barnburner members of the Assembly, headed by the Speaker. Through their malignity the debates have presented a series of wrangling, of low abuse, of a systematic war upon Hunkers, of opposition to the best interests of the state, of glaring inconsistencies, and abuses, which in any other country but our own would have caused the dispersion of the members at the point of the bayonet. We have preserved the debates, and shall give portions to our readers from time to time.

The N. Y. National Democrat, one of the "straightest" of the democratic press, thus speaks of the Legislature:—

"Like a distinguished person of ancient history, let them, (the members) go 'to their own place.' Such another faction of furious fanatics and tricksters as have tried to manage this Legislature, was never before disinterred from the oblivion of private life, to disgrace the State, and render odious the very name of the party to which they belong."

The present Legislature has imposed upon the people over 600 new laws!

The members provided for their own pay, but through the opposition of the Barnburner majority the usual appropriation to the various charitable institutions of the State were denied! This, we suppose, is on the pretense of "retrenchment and reform," tho' the same majority have cost the State over $100,000 in the prosecution of political quarrels!

LE PETITE PRESIDENT.—On his way from the Battery up to the Crystal Palace. the President during a shower, left the Procession and stept into one of the numerous groceries around the Palace, and took a drink to keep the wet from striking in! So say the papers, and so say those who saw it.

It is a vulgar, nevertheless an appropriate saying, that 'a whistle cannot be made of a pig's tail.' Pierce was, by comparison a great man in New Hampshire, (i,e) he was a demagogue and ruled the democracy with a wave of his hand. When he has time to prepare himself he can say very neat and pretty things, but he has not the first characteristic of greatness. He is not a great man—not an able man even as we use these terms—but is essentially a superficial, and a small man.

It is said of a young man who in his native town was called 'pretty smart,' was growing, and was looked up to by his neighbors as a young man of uncommon parts that he went from home to read law, but soon found out that he was unprepared both by preparatory study, and by nature for the legal profession, when he decided to return to his home and follow the farm, saying he 'had rather be the head of a mouse than the tail of a rat.' The anecdote illustrates what we would say of Pierce. In New Hampshire he was 'some punkins' as a political manager, but as President of the U. S. his incapacity is glaringly apparent.

That other old 'saw,' that there is but a step from the sublime to the ridiculous has had an illustrious illustration. As a candidate the position and deportment of Pierce was enviable—sublime. As President, delivering his inaugural as a school boy would 'speak his piece,' pointing his fingers towards the foreign ministers when uttering significant passages, and taking a drink in a grogery on his way to the Crystal Palace, are supremely ridiculous, and worthy only of a bar-room politician, as in truth Pierce is, and this is all he is.

The two hundredth anniversary of the corporation of the town of Lancaster, Massachusetts, was celebrated by a public festival on Wednesday, the 15th inst. Among the orators on this occasion, was the Hon. Charles W. Upham of Salem In the course of his remarks, he paid a high tribute to the memory of "Capt. [illegible]

JUDGE BURNET.—The adjournment of the Legislature brings the Judge once more to his home. This has been an eventful session in many respects, and the Judge has borne himself with dignity, ability, and distinction, amid the tumults which have disgraced the party in power. The ablest speeches of the session have been made by him, and in a pitched battle with Loomis, the barnburner leader, he floored that gentleman completely, and compelled him to beat a retreat through a mighty small hole. Every local bill which the judge regarded as peculiarly under his own care, he succeeded in carrying successfully through, a fact which cannot be said probably of any other member, and it shows the esteem and confidence of his brethren.

The position which the Judge has been able to assume has not disappointed those who knew him best. His re nomination and election by an increased majority are among the pleasing anticipations of the future, and are as much certainties as any future events can be. It is early to begin to prepare for the fall campaign, but we have a suggestion to make for the consideration of our friends, and we make it thus early that they may be making preparations: It is this, that we have a few speeches from the Judge this fall. His "stewardship" has been a distinguished one, and let us have an "account" of it from his own lips. The session too. from the divisions of the democracy has been a most extraordinary one, and let us hear about these things from an eye witness. We do not propose "mass-meetings," but we suggest to our friends in different towns to call the Judge out, and let those go and hear him who wish. They will be richly repaid, not only in listening to eloquent and instructive speaking, but at the ballot box. The Judge spoke only once or twice last fall, but then with the most unbounded success. If no other good shall result from it, whoever goes to hear him will, at all events, hear some first rate speaking.

☞ "THE PRACTICAL DRAUGHTSMAN'S BOOK OF INDUSTRIAL DESIGN."—We have received the first number of this very elegant work, in progress of publication by Stringer & Townsend. It is to be completed in twelve numbers. "This is a work of lasting interest and value. To the Mechanic, the Engineer, and the Artist, it is indispensable. The work furnishes gradually developed lessons in Geometrical Drawing, applied directly to the various branches of the Industrial Arts—comprehending Linear Design; Isometrical Perspective, or the study of Projections; the Drawing of Toothed Wheels and Eccentrics: Shading and Coloring; Oblique Projections; and the study of Paralell and Exact Perspective. The work is comprised within nine divisions, appropriated to the different branches of Industrial Design—each division being accompanied by special applications to the extensive ranges of Mechanics, Architecture, Foundry Works, Carpentry, Joinery, Metal Manufactures generally, Hydraulics, the construction of Steam Engines, and Mill Work. It is, on the whole, the most superior work for Mechanics, Engineers and Artists ever issued in any country. The work is gorgeously got up. Each number is embellished with no less than EIGHT FULL PAGED illustrations on steel. Notwithstanding the immense cost of its publication, it is presented by its publishers at the low price of 37 1-2 cents per number. As the greatest mechanical work ever offered to the public, it will sell immensely."

THE OLD FOREST RANGER; OR, WILD SPORTS OF INDIA, by Major Walter Campbell, with the original illustrations, finely engraved on steel. Edited by Frank Forester. In one elegant octavo volume, gilt muslin. Price $1,50.—New York; Stringer & Townsend.

We have received this interesting work from the enterprising publishers, and quote the following just remarks from a cotemporary, which we fully endorse:

"The Forest Ranger's exploits in the jungles—upon the sandy desert—on the banks of the inland streams, where the tiger slakes his thirst, and where the crocodile prowls for prey—his adventures amid the haunts of the wildest denizens of the wild and trackless woods—his combats with the fiercest representatives of the brute world, are all described with a freshness which is delightful, and a spirit which invests the volume with an irresistible charm. While porsuing its pages the reader suddenly finds his entire intellect aroused—his blood coursing with energy, freshness, and renewed strength through his veins, and his whole organization shaken, as it were, with the ardor, the healthy excitement and nervous vigor which mark the excited hunter who is determined to be in at the death."—Middletown Sentinel and Witness.

FISH STORIES.—Amasa Macomber of this place caught a pike at Rouse's Point the other day with a hook, weighing 9 lbs.

The family of Joseph Beach of this place dined the other day on a trout caught in the Saranac Lake, weighing 7 lbs. Mr. Beach was one of the party which caught him.

John H. Neher and James Roth of Troy, and S. A. Scribner, Dr. J. R. Romeyn, Geo. Cleaves, & A. H. Tucker of this place have just returned from a visit to the Saranac country. They brought home 70 lbs trout, and any quantity of venison. There were 12 deer shot by the party.

It is idle to dwell upon particulars. The sport, and the excitement of these excursions to the western wilds can be quite as well appreciated by stating results.

It may be well to state that facilities are abundant for getting to the Lakes and for enjoying their sports in the freest manner and to the fullest extent. A plank road is laid to within fourteen miles of there. At the Lakes, Col. Baker keeps a first rate Hotel, as everybody says, and furnishes a boat, tent, blankets, cooking utensils, and a guide, all for $1,50 a day.

☞ If we could only get a couple of new subscribers, and cash in advance, we should like to take a trip up there and see for ourself.

The Evening Journal is bent on standing by MATHER just as resolutely as the Argus. And the Evening Journal already intimates its purpose of making him Governor, unless the judgement of the Court shall prevent.

The Evening Journal was "bent on" defeating "Mather's" election as Canal Commissioner, but the Democracy "put him through." The Evening Journal was next "bent on" the dismissal of two of his "unsatisfactory" Superintendents, but the Democratic Canal Board aquitted and reappointed them. The Evening Journal endeavored to prevent the re-election of Mr. FOLLETT, a Canal Commissioner who was associated with "Mather" in making the Contracts for which the latter is to be impeached; but the Democracy "put him through" also. The Rochester Union mistakes the "Atlas" for the "Journal" That print instead of this, stood by the "Argus" in giving us "Mather" for Canal Commissioner; and it is that print whose malignity would, if the thing were possible, make "Mather" Governor.—[Albany Journal.

If a whig governor should be out of the question, the election of Mather by whigs and Hunkers is not a very uncertain event, and considering all things it would not be a very serious cross to whigs either.

We yesterday saw the successful result of a surgical operation of so novel and ingenious a character as to deserve mention in our columns. It was performed by Dr. Dixon, Editor of The Scalpel, upon Mr. D. Hyslop, of this City, for a cancer of eight years standing, involving the whole of the lower lip. The membrane lining the lip being sound, the operation consisted in dissecting off the diseased part and removing it, leaving the membrane in its natural place. Then two incisions were made downward from the corners of the mouth to the chin, and the skin covering the latter, being loosened on each side, was crowded up, and by a few delicate stitches connected with the membrane. When we saw it the lip was nearly well, and was perfectly natural and symmetrical; and when entirely healed a slight scar from the cut on each side of the chin will be the only trace of the disease, or of the operation for its removal. It forms a striking illustration of the resources of both nature and art.—N. Y. Tribune.

TO KEEP BIRDS FROM PICKING FRUIT.—As the season is coming on for the depredation of birds I beg to report my experience of last year. when I saved my currants and gooseberries, by winding colored worsted around and across my bushes, and my cherries, by hanging up several pieces of tin with strong thread in the different trees, two pieces being hung near enough together to clash with the wind, which sound, with the bright reflection of the tin in the sun, certainly frightened them away; and I had my due share of fruit, which, the preceding year. I was obliged to relinquish to them.—[Agricultural Gazette.

May the time never come when the gentle rays of the Moon shall cease to fall upon the beautiful Ausable.

——On our first page will be found another speech from Judge Burnett. Like all that has fallen from his lips during the session, it bears evidence of careful preparation of a strong and well cultivated mind; it is dignified, respectful, elegant, and there is throughout a moral, elevated tone, a religious fervor, to which old political stagers are strangers.

Memento Mori!

BY MARCO MUSING.

While we last night still were sleeping—
To his keeping,
Death a brother took away;
Here at mid-night angels spread wide,
Round his bed-side,
Pinions viewless as the day.

While they round his couch were wreathing,
We were breathing,
Scarcely parted from his side;
And a marble wall between us,
Only screened us,
From his homeward angel guide.

But the night is safely ended—
God hath tended,
All our helpless hours in sleep;
But as time is swiftly running
One is coming
When will Death this vigil keep.

Many forms is life installing—
Death is calling
Many too from mortal strife;
And whether these be falling closely,
Or remotely,
Still they're dropping—dropping—life.

Down an unknown tide we're sailing,
Ever failing,
Rocks and bluffs and sands to see,
Fogy future o'er it lieth,
Vainly trieth,
Man forewarned of wreck to be.

Thus life's bark is gliding steady—
Ever ready
We its inmates then should be,
Should He who our ship is steering,
Onward veering
Launch us in Eternity.

May our lives and souls be spotless,
Ever thoughtless,
Of an unkind act or word;
Patience—Love—and Self-Denial,
Virtues trial,
Be the constant feeling stirred.

So that then our life's last evening,
Without grieving,
We may watch earth fade away;
And from Death's last night like sadness
Rise in gladness,
To a brighter—purer day.

The Village of the Dead.

BY A LADY OF KEESEVILLE.

There seems a sweet repose about the place, where rests the dead. The very air seems hush'd, or breathes, if it breathes at all, soft and plaintive melody. Whether we visit the grave yard on a bright summer day, or in the depth of winter—in spring or autumn, at early morn, at noon or twilight, the same quiet, peaceful spirit seems presiding there. I love to visit, when all is green and beautiful, the place of rest—the village of the dead. On such sequestered spots, nature bestows her gifts of beauty and cheering influence, as well as on the homes of the living, in the village of cottages and gardens, whose inhabitants inhale the sweet odors of spring, and enjoy the mild sunshine of a summer's day. The same zephyr that plays thro' the garden, breathes mildly here, but revives not the dead. The same flowers that bloom before the cottage door, disclose their beauty, and shed their perfume here, but not for the dead. The same sun that pours his morning beams in the cottage window or stately mansion, awaking beauty from her slumbers, shines here, but brings no morning to those who sleep in these graves. And there is music here too—the sweet plaintive music of nature—the music of the bird, insect and of gentle breeze, mingled with the lowing of flocks, and the merry peal of the village bell, but those who lie here heed it not And who ever visits such beauteous spots, but feels the sacredness of the place? Who—who has not a friend reposing in silence there? Our loved ones lie among the buried, and our strongest ties, perhaps are beneath the sod. Our Father's and Mother's homes are among the mansions of the dead—and our brothers and sisters too, are not, but pillowed low in Death's cold arms; their dust now rests in hope,—The little ones of our firesides are locked in icy coldness, with corruption's dread embrace, and the loved of early years have gone down to the cold, damp, dark, and dreary tomb. Some are here, among the graves of kindred ones, and the cold marble marks the spot, where lies all that remains. But others, perchance, away from the graves of those they loved; in some distant clime, or some foreign coast, or deep down in ocean's [illegible]as, the seaweed shrouds, in tearful silence all their hopes, or on burning sands, or in southern climes, they await the morning of the resurrection. And tho' a mother may yearn for a sight of all that remains—and sisters with bursting hearts, long to gaze on the lifeless form of him they loved, and have him among his kindred rest, yet, there he lies, among strangers, unwept and unknown; and no friend will ever plant a shrub or flower o'er the sod that covers him. Call it weakness, but I would not, that my resting place should be among strangers. I would sleep, during the long, moonless, starless night of the grave, by the side of those whom I have known and loved. I would that when the night is gone, and the shadows and darkness of the tomb are dispersed, and the resurrection morning breaks, my opening eyes may meet the eyes of friendship and love. I would that the faces, on which I may then look, may be those familiar to my childhood and youth. Let my grave be made in some rural spot, where rests my father and my mother, and the loved ones of early years. No matter then, in the lapse of time, our names are obliterated from the marble that marks the spot, or even the place where we lie, be forgotten; but let us lie forgotten in peace, and in the morning of the resurrection let us together awake, together arise, and together meet our Saviour, Christ Jesus, the Lord.

Proclamation,

of the Emperor of Russia on taking up arms against the Turks. Its peculiarities may please our readers. To those familiar with the question it shows what wickedness tyrants practice 'by the Grace of God.'

The following is a literal copy of the Proclamation:

'By the Grace of God,

'We, Nicholas I.,

'Emperor and Autocrat of all the Russias and Czar of Poland, &c., &c., &c.

'Inform all people.

'Be it known to our loved and faithful subjects

'The defence of our faith, has always been the sacred duty of our blessed ancestors.

'From the day it pleased the Almighty to place me on the throne of our fathers, the maintenance of the holy obligations with which it is inseparably connected has been the object of our constant care and attention; these, acting on the groundwork of the famous treaty of Kainadjir. which subsequent solomn treaties with the Ottoman Porte have fully confirmed, have ever been directed towards upholding the rights of our Church.

'But to our extreme grief, in latter times, notwithstanding all our efforts to defend the inviolability of rights and privileges of our orthodox church, numerous wilful acts of the Ottoman Porte have infringed upon these rights, and threaten finally the entire overthrow of all that ancient discipline so precious to orthodoxy.

'All our efforts to restrain the Porte from such acts have proved in vain, and even the word of the Sultan, solemnly given us by himself, was soon faithlessly broken.

'Having exhausted all means of conviction, and having in vain tried all the means by which our just claims could be peaceably adjusted, we have deemed it indispensable to move our armies into the provinces on the Danube, in order that the Porte may see to what her stubborness may lead.

'But even now we have no intention of commencing war; in occupying those provinces, we wish to hold a sufficient pledge to guarantee for ourselves the re-establishment of our rights under any circumstances whatever.

'We do not seek for conquests: Russia does not require them. We seek to vindicate those rights which have been so openly violated.

'We are even yet ready to stop the movements of our armies, if the Ottoman Porte will bind itself solemnly to respect the inviolability of the orthodox church; calling God to our aid, we leave it to Him to decide our quarrel, and in full confidence in the right hand of the Almighty, we shall move forward on behalf of the orthodox faith.

Given at Peterhoff on the 14th (26th) day of June, in the year of the birth of Christ. 1853, and of our reign the 28th.

'Sealed at the Senate in St. Petersburg on the 14th, (26th) June, 1853.

'To the original of this document the own hand of his Majesty is signed.

President Pierce.

President Pierce has come and gone—the Crystal Palace is open—the people have been out to the show and returned again to their buisness. And now then, let us ask in the name of reason. of common sense, and true republicanism, what does all this amount to? Hundreds of dollars have been spent, hundreds of people put to sore inconvenience, thousnds more spent their little earnings in dram-drinking and folly, and no one is one whit better off or knows any more than before all this parade, bombast and show were made. Gen. Pierce has made some half dozen speeches—some of them were of no account whatever, and some of them were very good. They were about as good, generally as the average of all stump speeches, and no better.

In our humble opinion, these grand receptions of Presidents and Cabinets, are more honored in the breach than the observance, and the sooner they are dispensed with the better. We hope to live to see the day. when the President of the United States will decline them in toto, on the ground that they are a royal and kingly custom, and unbecoming our republican [illegible] of government.—[Day Book.

☞ The Hon. Mr. Papineau, so long a distinguished Member of the Canadian Parliment, whose Family are at Saratoga Springs, was in this city to day, in the enjoyment of fine health, and as ardent as ever in his admiration and advocacy of Republican Institutions.—[Albany Journal

We are glad to know that there remains one Canadian Patriot true to his professions, the most of the leaders having become tories, on acquiring control of the Canadian Government, and have re-imbursed themselves at the expense of the people for losses caused by their own ill-timed, and worse arranged attempts at revolution.

Some of these same leaders tried to persuade the canadians in the States to vote for Pierce, the favorite of the tory government of England, and against Gen. Scott, the mortal enemy of England, because, in obedience to the orders of a Locofoco President he was on the frontier to preserve neutrality.

University of Vermont.—This Institution is the great ornament of the Champlain Valley. It is growing continually in public estimation, and the students are giving a popular character to their commencements highly favorable. They will tend to attract the masses, as well in behalf of the college, as of their annual ceremonies.—We give elsewhere the "excursion" of the students for the benefit of our readers, some of whom may wish to enjoy the pleasure of so delightful a trip. It is a happy finale to the commencement exercises.

Beautiful Illustraton.

Rev. Mr. Willets, of Philadelphia, in illustrating the blessedness of cultivating a liberal spirit, uses this figure:

"See," he says, "that little fountain yonder—away, yonder in the distant mountain, shining like a thread of silver through the thick copse, and sparkling like a diamond in its healthful activity.

It is hurrying on with tinkling feet to bear its tribute to the river. See, it passes a stagnant pool, and the pool hails it; 'Whither away master streamlet?' 'I am going to the river to bear this cup of water God has given me.' 'Ah, you are very foolish for that—you'll need it before the summer's over. It has been a backward spring, and we shall have a hot summer to pay for it—you will dry up then?' 'Well,' said the streamlet, 'if I am to die so soon, I had better work while the day lasts.' If I am likely to lose this treasure from the heat, I had better do good with it while I have it.' So on it went, blessing and rejoicing in its course. The pool smiled complacently at its own superior foresight, and husbanded all its resources, letting not a drop steal away. Soon the mid-summer heat came down, and it fell upon the stream. But the trees crowded to its brink, and threw out their sheltering branches over it in the day of adversity, for it brought refreshment and life to them, and the sun peeped through the branches and smiled complacently upon its dimpled face, and seemed to say,—'It's not in my heart to harm you,'—and the birds sipped its silver tide, and sung its praises; the flowers breathed their perfume upon its bosom; the beasts of the field loved to linger near its banks; the husbandman's eye always sparkled with joy, as he looked upon the line of verdant beauty that marked its course through his fields and meadows; and so on it went, blessing and blessed o. all!

"And where was the prudent pool? Alas! in its inglorious inactivity, it grew sickly and pestilential. The beasts of the field put their lips to it, but turned away without drinking; the breeze stopped and kissed it by mistake, but shrunk chilled away. It caught the malaria in the contact, and carried the ague through the region, and the inhabitants caught it and had to move away; and at last, the very frogs cast their venom upon the pool and deserted it, and heaven, in mercy to man, smote it with a hotter breath and dried it up!

'But did not the little stream exhaust itself? Oh, no! God saw to that; it emptied its full cup into the river, and the river bore it on to the sea, and the sea welcomed it, and the sun smiled upon the sea, and the sea sent up its incense to greet the sun, and the clouds caught in their capacious bosoms the incense from the sea, and the winds, like waiting steeds, caught the chariots of the clouds and bore them away—away to the mountain that gave the little fountain birth, and there they tipped the brimming cup, and poured the grateful baptism down; and so God saw to it, that the little fountain, though it gave so fully and so freely, never ran dry. And if God so bless the fountain, will he not bless you, my friends, if, as ye have freely received, ye also freely give?"—Be assured he will.

It is seldom we do advertising gratuitously, but the case below appeals so strongly to our sympathies that we "break over the rule:"

From the Fulton Couty (N. Y) Democrat, June 28.

NOTICE is hereby given that all persons are forbid harboring or trusting my wife MARY, on my account, as I will pay no debts of her contracting.

Johnstown, June 11th 1853.

THE ABOVE Notice is entirely useless and unnecessary. Since our marriage, (more than 30 yeas since) through all his wanderings, backslidings, and undutifulness to me, I have taken care of him, watched over him, and supported him in sickness and health; trusting that he may yet see the errors of his ways, and knowing,

"That while the lamp holds out to burn,
The vilest sinner may return,"

I shall continue to plead and pray for his reformation. The public may still, as they always have, continue to trust him on my account.

LEANDER BABBIT'S TRUSS OFFICE

The latest and most approved Trusses; Female Supporters; Do. with shoulder braces attached; spinal elevator for curvature of the spine and projection of the shoulder blade. Suspensory shoulder braces. This instrument so constructed that it not only acts the part of shoulder braces but can take the belt of the ladies' shirts on their shoulders; and, hence remedies the evil consequent on so raising them on the hips and sides. For gentlemen it not only serves for a shoulder brace, but acts the part of suspenders.

As to the importance and usefulness of the above named instruments, and their beneficial effects their peculiar mechanism and superiority over all other instruments of the same class, I need not say anything. They are too well known by physicians, and the multitude of persons that have had occasion to use them in this northern section of country, that I do not import it to intimate a long catalogue of certificates; yet I have about evidence in my possession to justify me in all I claim or affirm, and deem it a privilege to give references to any who wish to make inquiries.

Ploughs! Ploughs!!

PROUTY & MEARS'

Celebrated Centre Draughts—All Sizes

THESE Ploughs wherever introduced, are fast superseding all others

The most thorough trials of Ploughs on record in this country, and at the World's Fair in London, have demonstrated the important fact that the Centre draught Plough is of much easier draught than any other and therefore used with less fatigue to both Plough man and Team; and, also owing to its peculiar form, it pulverizes and prepares the ground for seed more perfectly than any other, leaving less work for the harrow, and securing better crops than by any other method of Culture.

The following Implements, among others of the best quality, and of the latest and most approved patterns, are constantly on hand, viz:

Cultivators, Seed Sowers, Corn Planters, Corn Shellers, Straw Cutters, Corn and Cob Crushers, Cheese Presses, Threshing Machines, Potato Hoes, Manure Hooks, Cast Iron Grass Scythes, Grain Shears, Tree Scrapers, Budding and Pruning Knives, Hay Knives, Barn Door Rollers, Agricultural Furnaces, Corn Knives, Post Hole Augers, Wheelbarrows, Sheep Shears, etc., etc.

Being agents of Messrs. D. P. Prouty and Co., we can furnish the CENTRE DRAUGHT PLOUGHS at the Boston wholesale prices, with the addition of freight

AT a Surrogate Court held at the County Judge's Office in Elizabethtown, in and for the County of Essex, on the 20th day of June, A. D., 1853.
Present, J. E. McVine, Essex Co. Judge.

In the matter of the application of Charles Morhous, a creditor of Rensselaer Morhous, deceased, to have the real estate of the said deceased, mortgaged, leased or sold for the payment of debts.

An Order having been heretofore made on the application of Charles Morhous, a creditor of Rensselaer Morhous, late of the County of Essex, deceased, intestate, requiring Emeline Morhous, administratrix, and Abraham Welden and David W. Morhous, administrators of all and singular the goods, chattels, and credits of the said intestate, personally to be and appear before the County Judge and Surrogate of the county of Essex, at his office in Elizabethtown, on the 20th day of June ult., at 10 o'clock, A. M., to shew cause why they should not be required to mortgage, lease, or sell so much of the real estate of said deceased as shall be necessary to pay his debts. And the said administratrix and administrator Abraham Welden, having appeared, as also the said Petitioner by Orlando Kellogg his Proctor, and the said administrators having shown no cause to the contrary.

It is ordered that all persons interested in the estate of said Rensselaer Morhous deceased, intestate, appear before the county Judge of the county of Essex, at his office in the town of Elizabethtown, on the 15th day of August next, at 10 o'clock in the forenoon of that day, then and there to shew cause why authority should not be given to the said administrators and administratrix to mortgage, lease, or sell so much of the Real Estate of the said deceased as shall be necessary to pay his Debts.

J. E. McVINE,
[L. S.] Essex Co. Judge.

"Man Know Thyself."

An Invaluable Book for 25 Cents.

"EVERY FAMILY SHOULD HAVE A COPY."

20,000 Copies sold in less than 5 months. A new edition, revised and improved, just issued.

Dr. Hunter's Medical Manual and Hand Book for the Afflicted—Containing an outline of the origin, progress, treatment and cure of every form of disease, contracted by promiscuous sexual intercourse, by self abuse or by sexual excess, with advice for their prevention, written in a familiar style, avoiding all medical technicalities, and everything that would offend the ear of decency, from the result of some twenty years successful practice, exclusively devoted to the cure of diseases of a delicate or private nature.

To which is added, receipts for the cure of the above diseases, and a treatise on the causes, symptoms and cure of the Fever and Ague.

Testimony of the Prof. of Obstetrics in Penn. College, Philadelphia—"Dr. Hunter's Medical Manual."—The author of this work unlike the majority of those works who advertise to cure the diseases of which it treats, is a graduate of one of the best Colleges in the United States. It affords me pleasure to recommend him to the unfortunate, or to the victim of malpractice, as a successful and experienced practitioner, in whose honor and integrity they may place the greatest confidence.

JOSEPH LONGSHORE, M. D.

From A Woodward, M. D., of Penn. University, Philadelphia—It gives me pleasure to add my testimony to the professional ability of the author of the "Medical Manual." Numerous cases of diseases of the Genital Organs, some of them of long standing have come under my notice, in which his skill has been manifest in restoring to perfect health, in some instances where the patient has been considered beyond medical aid. In the treatment of Seminal weakness, or disarrangement of the functions produced by Self-abuse, or Excess of venery, I do not know his superior in the profession. I have been acquainted with the Author some thirty years, and deem it no more than justice to him as well as a kindness to the unfortunate victim of early indiscretion, to recommend him as one, in whose professional skill and integrity they may safely confide themselves. ALFRED WOODWARD, M.D.

"This is, without exception, the most comprehensive and intelligible work published on the class of diseases of which it treats. Avoiding all technical terms, it addresses itself to the reason of its readers. It is free from all objectionable matter, and no parent, however fastidious, can object to placing it in the hands of his sons. The author has devoted many years to the treatment of the various complaints treated of, and 'with too little breath to puff,' and 'too little presumption to impose,' he has offered to the world at the merely nominal price of 25 cents, the fruits of some 20 years most successful practice."—Herald.

"No teacher or parent should be without the knowledge imparted in this invaluable work. It would save years of pain, mortification and sorrow to the youth under their charge."—People's Advocate.

A Presbyterian clergyman in Ohio, in writing of "Hunter's Medical Manual," says: "Thousands upon thousands of our youth, by evil example and influence of the passions, have been led into the habit of self pollution without realizing the sin and fearful consequences upon themselves and their posterity. The constitutions of thousands who are raising families have been enfeebled, if not broken down, and the do not know the cause or the cure. Anything that can be done so to enlighten and influence the public mind as to check, and ultimately to remove this wide-spread source of human wretchedness, would confer the greatest blessing next to the religion of Jesus Christ, on the present and coming generations. Intemperance (or the use of intoxicating drinks,) though it has slain thousands upon thousands, is not a greater scourge to the human race. Accept my thanks on behalf of the afflicted, and, believe me, your co-worker in the good work you are so actively engaged in."

One copy, (securely enveloped,) will be forwarded free of postage to any part of the United States for 25 cents, or 6 copies for $1.—Address (post paid) COSDEN & Co., publishers, Box 196, Philadelphia. 478y

BOOT & SHOE STORE!

THE Subscribers having bought the Boot and Shoe Establishment heretofore known as F. E. Shandrew and Co.'s, are now prepared to manufacture anything in that line. We have also a large stock of Ready-Made Work, selected with great care by Mr. Shandrew, and warranted to be a better article than can be found in any slop Shoe Store in town. Our ready made Boots and Shoes are made by some of the best workmen in New York city,—in the most fashionable style, and every pair warranted to give satisfaction or the money refunded. We are permanently in the business, and of course expect to furnish a better article for less money than our neighbors can who, do not manufacture.

Ladies and gentlemen—you need not go to Burlington, nor any where else, expecting to do better than you can with us, as we have in our employ some of the best workmen in the State, and can give you perfect fits. We hope and expect that our own mechanics and village will be patronized in preference to the States Prison convicts, whose worthless trash is brought into competition with the labor of honest workmen. In addition to every article in the line of Boots and Shoes, we have a well selected stock of

Miscellaneous.

26 Years Experience.

OLD ESTABLISHED HOSPITAL.

Quick Cures and Low prices. Private Diseases and their Antidote.

Dr. LISPENARD, author of the Marriage Guide, or Private Medical Treatise. Professor of Diseases of Women and Children, and Licentiate of the College of Physicians and Surgeons of the United States University, &c., &c., continues as heretofore to be confidentially and successfully consulted on all forms and variety of

PRIVATE DISEASES,

at his old quarters, No 5 Beaver-street, ALBANY, N. Y.

The great success attending the use of Doctor L.'s remedies in secret diseases, and the many remarkable cures daily effected by him in recent as well as old lingering attacks, is conclusive evidence that the well

SICK AND UNFORTUNATE

can do no better than consult the Doctor, whose whole time is devoted to the exclusive treatment of this much neglected branch of practice.

LOOK AT THIS.

Dr. Lispenard cures recent cases of disease in from three to six days, and chronic or long standing diseases in a very short period of time, without the use of Mercury, without the loss of time, change of diet, or detention from

DAILY EMPLOYMENT.

In Syphilis, Gonorrhoea, Gleet, Strictures, Enlargement of the Testicles and Cords, Bubo, Chancres Pimples and Scaly Eruptions, Sore Throats and Noses, Chancres on the tongue, tender shin bones, and diseases of the skin, and impure blood. Dr. Lispenard's remedies are above all praise, and frequently cure when all others had failed

EVEN TO RELIEVE.

More than 5,000 patients have during the past year experienced the benefit of the Doctor's extraordinary skill in treating these diseases—among which, diseases of the bladder and kidneys have formed a goodly proportion.

YOUNG MEN.

who by indulging in secret habits have injured their health and prostrated their intellectual faculties, and thereby deprived themselves of the pleasure of married life, should consult Dr. Lispenard without a moment's delay. Hundreds have been restored to health, society and friends, under my peculiar mode of treatment, although vast sums of money had been sacrificed without any benefit. My remedy for this disease is pleasant to take, has no offensive smell and

CURES WITHOUT FAIL.

Persons so unfortunate as to be diseased, although they may have visited half a dozen Doctors, and had medicine sent them a dozen times with no benefit, would exhibit wisdom by making their case known to that FRIEND OF THE SICK, Dr. Lispenard, who never charges for advice and warrants all his cures. The sick are often at a loss where to apply for relief, AND TIS NO WONDER, as hundreds stand ready to plunder the unfortunate victim of PRIVATE DISEASE, or secret habits with ut one thought for his life and health. All thus deceived will find a friend, and moderate charges, in consulting the Doctor who uses no MERCURY and cures every time.

N. B.—Persons from a distance when visiting the city in search of a physician and friend will be fortunate if they succeed in escaping the many dens of imposition, conducted by unprincipled men, destitute of character knowledge or name, who fleece the unfortunate victim of disease of his hard earned money, and his remaining health. Patients who have no acquaintance in the city should make inquiry of some respectable citizen, or the editor or proprietor of any of the city papers, to ascertain who is the most reliable physician to apply to.

FEMALE DISEASES.

Dr. Lispenard from an experience seldom or never enjoyed by any other medical man, is enable to treat, with every hope of succes, all and every variety of Female Complaints—with safe and pleasant remedies—and has without doubt cured within the past five years more than 3000 females afflicted with diseases of the Bladder, Womb, &c. &c. Ladies afflicted with suppression or stoppage of their monthly turns, will recollect that Dr. Lispenard is still the sole American agent for.

DR. VICHOI'S
FEMALE MONTHLY PILLS.

The unprecedented sale of more than 15,000 boxes of these excellent Pills, and the good results which always follow their use, is conclusive evidence of their utility in stoppages, &c. Caution—Married Ladies in certain delicate situations should not use them—for reasons see directions with each box. Price $1. Sent by mail to all parts of the world.

Married Persons and those about to Marry, should enclose 12½ cents post paid to Dr. Lispenard, and obtain a copy of his Marriage Guide, or Private Treatise, a bewitching little work of nearly 100 pages, illustrated. THE WONDER OF THE WORLD.

DEVINES' COMPOUND

PITCH LOZENGE,

A sure and pleasant Remedy for Colds, Coughs, Croup, Whooping Cough, Asthma, and if long enough are left to sustain life, A CERTAIN CURE FOR CONSUMPTION, safe for the Infant or the Invalid, in any stage of weakness.

"The statement that consumption cannot be cured, has destroyed more lives than the disease itself.—[Dr. Warren

Read the following, which to a candid mind places this "Great Remedy," like Cæsar's wife "above suspicion."

TO THE PUBLIC!

We, the undersigned, citizens of Lee, Mass., are acquainted with Mr. Devines, the proprietor and Manufacturer of Devines' Compound Pitch Lozenge and from what we know of it ourselves and have learned from others of its beneficial effects, in cases where it has been used, give it as our opinion that it is a valuable remedy in diseases for which it is recommended and is worthy of public confidence. A. G. Hulburt, Leonard Church, F. G. Taylor, Wm. Taylor, E. A. Bliss, S. A. Hulburt, Josephus Crafts, T. P. Eldridge.

If any individual is to be pitied, and needs sympathy, it is the consumptive—always expecting to get well, and yet the painful evidence of decay almost "makes the inner soul shrink with the outer flesh."

"Some bloom as roses bloom, and live as roses live,
A single morning space!"

While others, in more mature life—by some imprudence and a slight cold neglected—in the hectic flush—the painful cough.

"The prints of their departing steps appears."

BUT BEHOLD HIS HOPE! Mr Wm. Devines, the originator and manufacturer of the Pitch Lozenge, under Providence, was raised to perfect health by the use of these Lozenges alone, after he was pronounced by his physician to be almost dying with consumption.

This fact is generally known in Berkshire County and is the neighborhood talk, and wonder in Lee, and in Great Barrington, Mass.

From Dr. Brown, of Lee, Mass.

This certifies that I have made use of Devines' Compound Pitch Lozenge for cold and cough, and found immediate relief. Therefore I would recommend it to the public as being a safe and sovereign remedy. H. C. BROWN.

MORSE'S

COMPOUND SYRUP OF

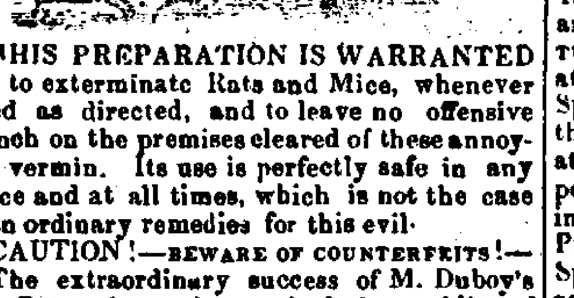
Yellow Dock Root.

THIS is a Purely Vegetable Compound, scientifically prepared from the best Roots and Herbs of the Materia Medica, and has gained a universal reputation for the following effects, viz: Regulating and Strengthening the Liver and Digestive Organs, and Cleansing the Stomach and Bowels, and curing all Billious Diseases, Liver Complaints, Dyspepsia, Indigestion, Costiveness, Piles Headache, Fever and Ague, Jaundice Nausea Loss of Appetite, &c., and causing the food to nourish and support every part, PURIFYING THE BLOOD, and thus curing all Humors, Cutaneous Eruptions, Scrofula, Salt Rheum, Erysipelas, Scald Head, Canker, Pimples on the face, Blotches, Ulcers, Tumors, Mercurial Diseases, Cancers, &c. Regulating the secretory Organs, and by enabling them to perform their proper functions, preventing and curing many painful and dangerous diseases; strengthening and Quieting the nervous system, thus allaying Nervous Irritation, and curing all Diseases of the Nerves, as Hysteria, Neuralgia, Cramps &c.

It is unrivalled in the cure of all FEMALE COMPLAINTS, as weakness, general debility, Irregularity, Obstructions, Swelling of the Feet, Limbs, Joints, &c., caused by weakness; also, Lung and Throat Complaints, as Colds, Coughs, Asthma, Consumption, &c., also, Dropsy.

Having made use of the Compound Syrup of Yellow Dock Root, prepared by C. Morse and Co., either ourselves or in our families and finding it to be a very salutary and effectual preparation, we do most cheerfully recommend it to the public as a very valuable medicine.

E Bourne, Esq., Cashier National Bank, Providence, R. I.; A. W. Spencer Esq., Cashier Lime Rock Bank, do do Rev. William Phillips Rev. J. B. Richmond, C. S. Jones, editor Providence Gen. Advt., Wm. Field, M. W. G. M. Cyrus Fisher, M. E. H. P. James Hutchinson, G. S. Dea., V. J. Bates, Doct. Benj. Colby, and one hundred others of the most respectable families of Providence.



This certifies that I have for a number of years been acquainted with the composition and mode of manufacture of Morse's Comp ound Syrup of Yellow Dock Root. I have also been acquainted with its modus operandi in disease, and can say that in all respects it is admirably calculated to remedy that class of Diseases for which it was designed. It is especially valuable in Indigestion and all its attendant symptoms, it excites to healthy action the Liver, removes Torpor, and inactivity of this organ, and stimulates healthy action in all the system. As a Depurator or purifier of the Blood it has no superior.

Annie Green's Wish.

"I wish I was thin," said Annie Green with a sigh, as she gazed upon the bright fire which blazed in the cheerful grate before her, a few nights after New Year's day. She had just returned from a private party which had been given at the house of a female friend, and was turning over in her mind what she had heard and seen previous to retiring for the night.

She was a fine, healthy looking girl about twenty years, and possessed of a physical organization with which one would suppose she should have felt perfectly contented. She was about the medium height, well built, and carried about with her no more flesh than was actually necessary to good looks, while the bright hue of health enlivened her countenance when she was disposed to feel merry, and all sensible men admitted that she was really a pretty girl.

But although nature had dealt very fair-ly with her, Annie was one of those who could not con-sider herself blessed, felt at times utterly miserable.

"I do wish I was thin!" she exclaimed, as she regarded her white, well moulded arms, discontentedly. 'If I could only be like Ninny Verisopht now! What a crowd of admirers she had around her to-night, to be sure! And no wonder at it!—she's so tall; and delicate and thin! How I did envy her when that gentleman with the black mustachios, Mr. Zuesickly, whom they say is the son of a Russian Count, seated himself beside her, declared that she was the most interesting creature he had ever seen in his life! But he wasn't the only one—there was scarcely a gentleman in the room who was not crazy to get with her? The plain, matter-of-fact, common-sense old curmudgeon, Mr. Blunt, remarked in my hearing, that Mr. Znesickly and all the rest of them would have thought her quite interesting had she been as fat as a market woman and homely as a stone-fence, long as her father was worth a fortune, but I don't believe a word of it. I havn't the slightest doubt they would all think just as much of her if she hadn't a penny?

"How happy she ought to be in the possession of so many admirers! She can do just as she pleases with them! She flirts with this one, snubs that one, and looks cross at the other with the most perfect impunity, and I'm sure that many of her adorers would grow tired of trying to get into her good graces if it was not that she is so very, very interesting. There's that tall, good looking fellow, Mr. Hawk, now—I don't see how he can endure the many absolute affronts and pointed repulses he meets with at her hands! Why she actually had the hardihood to night to intimate to him that his absence was better than his company, and he didn't seem to mind it any more than though the remark had been a complimentary instead of an insulting one! But I suppose the secret is to be found in his great love for her!"

"Such men as Mr. Hawk will endure a great deal for money!" said a voice which seemed to proceed from the grate in front of her. 'Miss Verisopht has the game in her own hands now, and she can do as she choses, but it won't always be so!'

At the unexpected sound of another voice than her own, Annie was considerably startled, and for a moment she did not know but she was about to become a medium for spiritual manifestations. She soon recovered her self-possession, however, and looking steadily into the fire she at length perceived a most singular looking individual seated upon the top of a piece of coal which had not yet ignited. He was not larger than a man's thumb, he had an immense pair of bushy whiskers around his comical little phiz, his eyes seemed like two rubies, his nose was acquline, his hair looked like threads of gold, as it glistened in the fire-light, his mouth was stretched from ear to ear in a broad grin, and as he sat there swinging his legs and looking merrily at her, she thought he was one of the funniest characters she had ever looked upon. Her fears vanished instantly, and gazing into the intruder's face, she said good humoredly,

'Why, what do you know about Miss Verisopht or Mr. Hawk either?'

'I know all about them was the answer.

'The first has money but no brains, while the latter has neither the one nor the other, and is a hollow-hearted fop.'

'Hey-day!' exclaimed Annie lifting up her hands in surprise. 'Be careful what you say or you will be called upon to answer a charge of defamation of character. Who are you any how?'

'My name is common sense,' answered the little man, 'and I am one of the guardian spirits of the old curmudgeon Mr. Blunt, to whom you a short time since alluded.'

'And do you pretend to say,' questioned Annie' 'that Miss Verisopht is not interesting?'

'Not quite so interesting as her money,' was the laconic answer.

'And do you doubt for a moment,' again asked Annie, 'that Mr. Zuesickly and Mr. Hawk are desperately in love with her?'

'Yes,' answered the little man, 'for I know that they are not capable of loving anybody or anything but themselves.'

'Well, I don't believe it,' answered Annie, 'and I wish I was as thin as she is, at all events.'

'That's a wicked wish,' said the little man with a frown, 'and you had best recall it.'

'Indeed, I shall do no such thing,' answered Annie, 'and what's more, I shall take to starving myself, and eating chalk, and drinking vinegar, to see if I can't reduce myself.'

'Self-destruction is a horrible crime,' said the little man, kicking, in his anger, a piece off the coke upon which he was sitting, 'and I command you to drive such thoughts from your mind.'

'And I tell you I shall do just as I please,' said Annie, with some asperity.—'Do you suppose I am to be ruled by you?'

'Listen to me, Annie,' said the monitor, with a serious look. 'You are now in the enjoyment of good health, loved by your parents respected by your acquaintances, and better looking than the great majority of woman kind. Can you not rest satisfied, then?'

'No,' answered the young girl, pettishly. 'I am determined to be thinner.'

'Is that your settled determination?' asked the monitor.

'It is,' was the laconic and decisive reply. 'Then be it so, but you will never think of the matter again, for the exchange must hold good forever.'

'That's just what I want,' said Annie.—'I should not wish, after revelling in all the delights which she enjoys to be brought back to the cold realities of my present state.'

'Shut your eyes,' said the monitor.

Annie did so.

'The change is effected!' cried the little woman, and on opening her eyes she found herself in a brilliantly lighted room, surrounded by a number of grandly dressed ladies and gentlemen, among whom shone conspicuously the Russian count's son and Mr. Hawk, the latter of whom approached her and timidly asked permission to dance with her the next quadrille. She was about to answer, when Mr. Znesickly looking daggers at his rival, came up and said that the lady was already engaged for the next set. Annie felt mightly tickled at the idea of having two such distinguished persons quarrelling about her, and chuckling to herself she observed—

'We shall see whether I shall enjoy myself better than I did before!'

As she said this, a short dry cough broke from her, and at the same time she noticed that an annoying dull pain had settled in left side, extending to the shoulder blade. She did not mind this much at first, for she felt compensated when she caught sight of her fragile form in one of the brilliant mirrors; but as the night wore on, the cough became much worse. She experienced a choaking sensation, great difficulty in breathing, and at length she became so ill that she was obliged to request the Russian Count's son to have her carriage called, when she took her way home. She was soon in bed, indulging, as well as the pain which she suffered would permit, in the recollection of the many extravagant spheeches which had been whispered in her ear by Messrs. Hawk and Znesickly, who had both sworn eternal fidelity to her, and had assured her that she was made up of everything but the materials that compose a real woman—they had told her that her eyes were twin stars—her hair, threads of gold—her neck, alabaster—her teeth, pearls—her gums, coral—her breath, perfume from Arabia—her form, a sylph's—her step, a fawn's—and her whole being an angel's—either one of them would have died for her on the spot—they didn't entertain the slightest selfish feeling in the matter—each was ready to kill the other, and both seemed willing to eat her up bodily in the exstacy of their love.

So far, so good—but Annie began to feel such severe pains shoot through her frame, that when she attempted to close her eyes in sleep she found it impossible to do so, and she lay tossing from side to side till morning, when she was so unwell that her father was obliged to send for a physician. By the time the man of medicines arrived, Miss Green, from caughing severely, had burst a blood vessel, and the crimson tide was fast flowing from her mouth and nostrils. She heard the doctor tell her father that she could not live an hour—she listened to her parent's sobs of agony as he bent over her form, and she shuddered as her ear caught the sound of his retreating footsteps, as he left the apartment to seek for other aid, for she feared that she should never see him again. Now the sound of familiar voices falls upon her ear, and looking up she sees Hawk and Znesickly at her bedside. They seem to be in quite a merry mood and not at all angry at each other.

"The game is up!" remarks Zncsiokly, she is going to die, and we can't either of us get her!

'Well, it isn't much of a loss after all.' returns Hawk, for she wasn't more than half a woman, at best—a mere human machine—a toy—a doll baby—and I don't know but what she would have been dear with all the old gentleman's money thrown in.

'I agree with you,' said Znesickly, 'I would have married her, but I shouldn't have thought I had much of a bargain.—Such a girl as that Miss Green now, would be a prize, even though she had no money, if a fellow was looking for a wife alone, without regard to fortune.'

The poor girl found her strength fast giving way—drops of perspiration stood upon her forehead—her respiration became difficult—remorse was gnawing at her heart—the folly of the part she had acted came vividly to her mind—and when she felt that she was indeed dying, she admitted in the bitterness of spirit that the little monitor was right, and she prayed—O, how fervently!—that as she could not live, she might be allowed to die as Annie Green and not as Miss Verisopht. 'Let me but be myself again!' she exclaimed, 'if only for a moment—let recall the wicked, wicked wish I made, and then I can die happy!'

'Why, Annie! why are you making such terrible faces and such a horrid noise?' exclaimed her sister, at the same time shaking her, 'do wake up and come to bed.'

'Thank God!' exclaimed Annie, as she bounded from her her chair,' dear, dear, what a horrid, horrid dream!'

Circular from the Superintendent of Common Schools.

STATE OF N. Y., SECRETARY'S OFFICE. Department of Common Schools: Albany, July 22, 1853.

To answer a great number of inquiries daily received at this office, to protect against the consequences of .... Schools throughout the State, passed April 12, 1851. Trustees of school districts may safely proceed to make out rate bills for the payment of teachers' wages under the last named Act. They may also safely levy and collect taxes voted under, or authorized by, the School Law of 1847 as amended by chapter 382 of the laws of 1849.

To protect Trustees from the liabilities incurred under the Act of 1849 which is now declared unconstitutional, the Legislature on the 30th day of June last, passed the following law to which the undersigned would call the attention of all parties interested:—

AN ACT RELATIVE TO RECOVERIES AGAINST SCHOOLS OFFICERS PASSED JUNE 13, 1853.

The People of the State of New York, represented in Senate and Assembly, do enact as follows;—

§ 1. Whenever a recovery has been or shall hereafter be had against the trustees or collectors of a school for the collection of any tax, levied in the district by reason of the tax or any part thereof having been imposed pursuant to the provisions of the act entitled "An act establishing free schools throughout the State," passed March 29th, eighteen hundred and forty-nine, it shall be the duty of the trustees of the district for the time being, to ascertain the amount so recovered, to the interest thereon, and all costs, charges and expenses to which the trustees or collectors have been subjected in the defence of the action or actions, and to impose and collect in the manner school district taxes are levied and collected, a tax sufficient to dischaage the amount so ascertained, and in addition thereto, such further sum as shall be sufficient to repay to all the tax-payers, who shall have paid the first-mentioned tax, and who shal not have brought actions therefore, the amount by them respectively paid with interest thereon to the time the tax to be imposed is collected.

§ 2. From the moneys collected by virtue of the preceding section, there shall be paid to the persons against whom such recovery shall have been had, the moneys by them paid therefor, with interest and the costs, charges, and the expenses incurred by them and so ascertained as aforesaid and to each tax-payer who shall have paid any portion of the first-mentioned tax, and who has not brought an action therefor, the amount paid by him with interest to the time the tax to be levied by virtue of this act is collected.

§ 3. Where the trustees of school districts shall have paid the amount of any such recovery or any part thereof from moneys belonging to the district, the amount of moneys so paid with interest thereon shall be replaced from the moneys to be raised under this act, instead of being paid as in the second section provided, and the remainder of the moneys shall be applied as hereinbefore provided.

HENRY S. RANDALL, Secretary of State.

PRACTICAL ELOQUENCE.—The following very brief and decidedly pithy speech of Oliver Cromwell, was delivered by the great Englishman, on dissolving the long Parliament;

"It is high time for me to put an end to your sitting in this place, which ye have dishonored by your contempt of all virtue, and defiled by your practice of every vice. Ye are a factious crew, and enemies to all good government,—Ye are a pack of mercenary wretches, and would like Esau, sell your country for a mess of pottage, and like Judas, betray your God for a few pieces of silver. Is there a single virtue now remaining among you? Is there one vice you do not possess? You have no more religion than my horse Gold is your God. Which of you has not bartered away your conscience for bribes?

Is there a man among you that has the least care for the good of the commonwealth? You sordid prostitutes! Have you not defiled the sacred place, and turned the Lord's temple into a den of thieves? By your immoral principle, and wicked practices ye have grown intolerably odious to a whole nation. You who were deputed here by the people to get their grievances redressed, are yourselves become the greatest grievance. Your country, therefore, calls upon me to cleanse this augean stable, by putting a final period to your iniquitous proceedings in this house, and which by God's help and the strength He has given me, I now intend to do. I command you, therefore, upon the peril of your lives, to depart immediately out of this place. Go! Get you out! Make haste! Ye venal slaves, begone! Take away that shining bauble there, the Speaker's mace, and lock up the doors!

THE SHIRT SEWERS OF NEW YORK.—It is estimated that there are about five thousand shirt-sewers in New York, each of whom makes a shirt per day,—and at $2 per shirt, this gives us shirts to the value of $10,000 manufactured every day, and $3,130,000 yearly. A city paper says:

"Each shirt sewer earns on an average two dollars and a half a week, making the aggregate yearly earnings about $900,000. More than one third of all the shirts made ... sent to the South and West by ... wholesale shirt manufacturers, of ... there are about twenty altogether." ... Book.

"Ethiopia shall stretch forth her hands to God."

No fading laurels are upon thy brow,
Thou fearless champion of the stricken slave!
Thy courage, noble, god-like, lifts thee far
Above the false, the heartless thralls of earth;
Aye, thou hast bid defiance to the waves
Of scorn, contumely, and the taunting sneer
Of the oppressor—thou hast braved them all,
And thy reward is high as heav'n from earth.
The noble will applaud thee, and the true of heart!
'Tis these alone are worth thy anxious thought.
The wronged and the oppressed of every clime
Shall lift their voice in thankfulness & praise;
And injured Africa stretch her hands to God,
Blessing the hand that op'd her prison-doors,
And utter'd liberty to the long enthralled—
The trampled and despised of sable hue!
Taught free America to hide her face,
That wrong so bitter clouds her eagle fair!
Taught her that till she loose those heavy chains,
She is not worthy that prerogative,
That gift of freedom, her most vaunted boast!
Free, while three millions of her people mourn,
In chains more galling than Egyptian bonds!
"All men are free and equal."—but the slave—
"All have the natural, inalienable right
To life, to glorious liberty, the pursuit
Of happiness," except our sable brother,—
All have ties, too sacred to be broken, save by Him,
Who lent them to his children;—all rejoice
In the high privilege, but our injured friend,
Child of the same bounteous Parent, trampled down
Even as beasts that perish—wife,
Sister, or child, he cannot call his own,—
But at another's mercy. Going forth
At the oppressor's bidding, to some coffle vile,
Sold in the market-place as senseless things!
Oh thou hast dared to tell of these—to breathe
Thy woman's pity for unuttered woe!
Well has the genius lent by Heaven to thee,
(Arrayed in panoply of Christian love,)
Fulfilled its work—and in that final hour,
When nations shall be judged, and each and all
Shall stand before the throne, will not the words
Salute thine ear, "Servant of God, well done!"

Fourth July, 1853.—Wilmington and Blackbrook.

MR. EDITOR:—I notice that you invite your friends to give you an account of the 4th of July proceedings, when they can make it convenient to do so. I will therefore give you a brief notice of a Union Celebration, as indicated above.

The first steps were taken at a very late hour. A subscription having been started for the purpose of raising the means to defray expenses, and meeting with all desirable sums, the further management of the matter was then submitted to a committee, consisting of Norris Mihills, N. P. Hays, and W. Lansing. The appointments for the day were next made, and are as follows:

President of the day, W. Lansing; Marshall, Roger Hickok; Assistant Marshall, Willard Bell, Reader, Nathaniel P. Hays; Orator, Rev. G. W. Sawyer.

I have not time to write, nor you the room to give, all the details of our Celebration. Suffice it to say that everything, out of doors, and in the church, passed off in a most pleasant and agreeable manner.

Agreeably to appointment, a large procession of our citizens met our Blackbrook friends at a point previously designated, and escorted them into town in a manner and style becoming the occasion, while the scene was enlivened by the firing of cannon and the shouts of the multitude.

The Oration of Mr Sawyer was faultless in style and matter, and gave general satisfaction.

After the proceedings in the church were concluded, a large procession proceeded to the dinner-table set by Mr. A. H. Beach. Here was substantial "aid and comfort" really, as the day was warm, and the guests weary and hungry.

The body having thus been well cared for, the "thirteen toasts" were called for, which we washed down with pure cold water, and "applauded" separately, and as a whole by the Blackbrook field piece.

STANDING SENTIMENTS.

1. The Declaration of July 4th, 1776—An act of our fathers which inspired the world with a confidence which led to a glorious result.

2. The American Union—Giving us the government under which we live, and securing us the Freedom which we enjoy.

3. The memory of George Washington.

4. The Heroes of the Revolution.—May their descendants never be wanting in like virtue, patriotism, and valor.

5. Thirteen.—A number considered lucky the world over.

6. The President of the United States—May he administer the government for the benefit of the whole, and not a part of the American people.

7. The Voters of the United States—In the exercise of their privilege, more powerful in results than thousand millions of Despotic Europe.

8. Church and State.—A union destructive of the freedom of speech and the Press, hostile to the liberty of conscience, and obstructive to the onward progress of the age.

9. The Tillers of the Soil.—The bar on which rests the pillars of the Republic. May government retain their confidence by the kindest guardianship and the strongest protection.

"In a bold peasantry, a country's pride, ... can never be supplied."

... bright in the midst of the nations—an asylum for the oppressed of every land—a government equally powerful in restraint and protection—great and equitable in its laws, and impartial in the administration of its government. The flag which floats over us to-day we are pledged to defend "at all times, on all occasions, and under all circumstances."

12. The Ladies and Gentlemen of Clinton and Essex County.—May the principles for which our fathers fought, and our mothers prayed, be entwined closely around our hearts.

13. Blackbrook and Wilmington.—The discords of a day are healed in an hour.—Henceforth, the rivalry shall be devotion to the Flag of the Union.

VOLUNTEER.

By Rev G. W. Sawyer—The American Fair—The fairest exponents of the principles of temperance, and civil and religious liberty. Their suffrages would free the world from intemperance and oppression.

By Mr Sawyer—My Country.—"With all thy follies and thy faults, I love thee still."

By Samuel Bullen—The memory of Gen. Washington—may it be cherished so long as the world shall stand.

By J. Vanderwarker—Blackbrook and Wilmington—may they be as inseparably united as the streams that pass them.

By S. L. Newton—The 56 Signers of the Declaration of Independence—the heaviest 56 the world ever saw—all Europe cannot lift it.

By John Chamberlain—President Fillmore and our late Cabinet—

The cobbler left his end and awl,
And hearing such a clatter,
He cried as loud as he could bawl:
Lord help us! what's the matter?

By Roger Hickok—The "Higher Law"—if the law of man is "higher" than the law of God, then a candle should be "instituted" to light the sun.

By Norris Mihills—Union—union for right, and not for wrong—union for strength and not for weakness—union for the perfection of human government, the redress of human wrongs and grievances, and the protection of the weak and defenceless.

By P. A. Markham—Independence—May the time soon come when it shall be heard as the proudest exclamation of man—I am an American!

By Mr. Child—Liberty—may the tree of Liberty flourish till its branches overspread the whole world.

By Willard Bell—American Heroes—In defence of our liberty they pledged their "lives, their fortunes, and their sacred honor" May some of their descendants, without exposing their "lives," or their "sacred honor," bestow liberally of their "fortunes" in the purchase of powder to fire blank cartridges.

By H. Beach—The Declaration of Independence—May the day be not far distant when the glorious truths contained in it will be enjoyed by every sensible being.

By Wm. Johnson—The Ladies of these hills and vales—may the never rock a cradle where beat's not a patriot's heart.

By J. Lexis Tedder—A great many toasts have been read, but the hero of France has not been spoken of. He left honor and riches to assist in gaining our independence.

Fire works in the evening closed our Celebration, and "Old Whiteface," always appearing to good advantage, wore a very pleasant countenance through the day. If any two towns in these Northern counties can beat Wilmington and Blackbrook in getting up a Celebration on short notice, we should like to hear from them.

THE AMAZON RIVER ENTERPRISE.—We mentioned a few days since that the Brazilian and Bolivian governments had given a large grant of land to Capt. J. D. Williamson, of this city, for the purpose of navigating the Amazon river and its tributaries. Our merchants—always ready to open new enterprises of this kind—have nobly responded to the call made to them by the Governments which made the grant, by forming a company to be called "The Amazon Steamship and Trading Company" They will lay the keel of a large sea steamer and several smaller ones for river service in a few days—the large one to be called after the Emperor of Brazil. Capt. Williamson will go out with a steamer for the purpose of locating some of the lands of his grant, form stations on the river, and take charge of the enterprise there. We think the Company could not have made a better selection than Capt. W. His long acquaintance with the inhabitants, their modes of trading, and the merchandise required on that mighty stream, make him a valuable acquisition to the Company in their new enterprise, and we wish them every success.—N. Y. Courier and Enquirer, 8th inst.

This is the way to do business. Action should always follow investigation and conviction. It is the only way to assure a speedy realization of well founded hopes. Delay and dilly dallying are always injurious. The New Yorkers know that the trade of the Amazon is destined to be immensely valuable, and are determined to strike for the desirable prize, in time. Should not our merchants begin to do something? We should think so. The trade should rightfully centre here.—N O. Com. Bulletin

CLOSING SCENES.

Extraordinary Proceedings.

IN ASSEMBLY, July 21.

Mr. Cary asked and obtained consent to offer a resolution tendering to the Speaker, Mr. William H. Ludlow, a vote of thanks for the able, courteous and impartial manner in which he had discharged the delicate and laborious duties of the Chair during the session, now about to terminate.

Mr. Speaker: During the discussion of this resolution, will Mr. Russell Smith take the chair?

Mr. Russell Smith, Speaker pro tem, thereupon took the chair.

Mr. Glover said he had proposed a resolution extending the time of adjournment to 10 o'clock.

Mr. Burroughs, (the question being announced on the resolution of thanks to the Speaker,) took the floor—saying that he supposed the presentation of this resolution was to be taken as an indication that no further business was to be done. But there was some time left yet for business, and if anything required action, he would give way.

Mr. B. went on to review the course of the Speaker during the session—going back to the organization of the committees of the House. He charged that the committees had been organized with a view to build up one section of the democratic party—he alluded to the barnburners—and to annihilate the hunker section—treating the whigs with utter disrespect. Such a course, he ventured to say, had never been pursued by any Speaker before.

He next alluded to the arbitrary and unwarrantable arrest of a member of the House—Mr. Russell Smith—by the mere fiat of the Speaker, and without consulting the House, which alone had power to order an arrest. This, he characterized as an outrageous breach of the privilege of a member, which no presiding officer, in this or any other legislative body, ever before ventured on.

Mr. B. alluded to the partiality of the chair in awarding the floor to members—his neglect to recognize members who were entitled to it—and his favoritism towards barnburners to the exclusion of others — He knew that the Speaker wore glasses, and he had taken pains to ascertain whether his sight was affected by them or his hearing, or both. He found that they were of that peculiar quality that could see some members and not others. He had seen the gentleman from Herkimer (Mr. Loomis) recognized without addressing the chair, while others—hunkers and whigs—were addressing the chair at the top of their voices, and we were entitled to the floor by the rules of the House.

Instances, said Mr. B., have been frequent where the Speaker in putting a question has intimated to members, very distinctly, how he wished them to vote. He repeated the words of the Chair in these cases—'Those in favor of the motion will say Aye. [laying a stress upon the word.] Those opposed will say no,' [sinking his voice almost to a whisper.] All of us understand, his Barnburner friends particularly, precisely how the Speaker desired them to vote, from the manner of his putting the question.

Mr. B. stated further that there were instances when several members desired the ayes and noes, and rose and called for them but were not recognized by the Chair—and because he feared the vote might be against his wishes. He instanced the case where the gentleman from Niagara (Mr. Holley) was placed under arrest, and where the Speaker refused to heed the call for the ayes and noes on the motion for his arrest —though several members were on the floor calling for the ayes and noes at the top of their voices. Without asking the usual question, 'Is the House ready for the question?' the Speaker rose and put the question, without listening to the various calls from all parts of the House for the ayes and noes. Thus, said Mr. B., were the rights, privileges and personal liberty of a member trampled under foot by the arbitrary fiat of the Speaker, as in the case of Mr. Smith. The Speaker, said he, on that occasion, was as deaf as he is sometimes blind.

Mr. B, went on to say, that the Speaker on repeated occasions had assumed the prerogative of lecturing members, and of speaking to them in an insulting and impertinent tone and temper. Such things were very common. He ventured to say that the Speaker had behaved better this last session than he did the first.

The Speaker here resumed the chair, saying that as the gentleman from Orleans would probably consume all that remained of the session, he desired to announce the Committee of Managers in the Impeachment case—and he named Messrs. Loomis, Champlin, Noble, McBurney, Hastings, Session and Wood as such committee.

The Speaker, retaining the chair, gave the floor to Mr. Burroughs.

Mr. Burroughs said he should greatly prefer if the Speaker would allow him to address the gentleman [Mr. Russell Smith, Speaker pro tem.] who had just left the chair.

The Speaker: The gentleman from Orleans need not be troubled with modesty, as the chair is not.

Mr. Burroughs said he could forego any such sentiment, if it was demanded.

Mr. B. went on to say that his next position was that the presiding officer of this House had improperly and dishonestly attempted to influence the votes of members on important questions by putting money in their pockets by appointing their sons to office, contrary to all right, and thus securing to them more than their constitutional per diem.

The Speaker: The gentleman is out of order, and will take his seat. (He repeated this mandate several times, rapping with his hammer, and drowned the voice of Mr. Burroughs, who still retained the floor.)

Mr. Burroughs then said he wished to proceed in order; and if it was in order to Speaker should disregard them. He appealed to the House to be permitted to be heard, and on that question demanded the ayes and noes.

Mr. Lawrence now moved the previous question.

Mr. D. B. Taylor: If gentlemen can't get a complimentary vote in favor of the Speaker without the previous question they better not have it.

Mr. Hutchins moved to lay the motion on the table.

The Speaker announced the question pending to be on laying the previous question on the table.

Mr. Hutchins withdrew the motion—and Mr. Glover renewed it.

The roll having been called, the motion to lay on the table was lost.

The Speaker announcing the result, immediately put the question on ordering the main question, and declared it carried—although several members were calling at the tops of their voices for the ayes and noes.

Mr. St. John appealed from the decision of the Chair, that the main question had been ordered—and on that appeal called for the ayes and noes—but

Mr. Loomis was awarded the floor. He said he had a resolution of an unusual character which he deemed it due to the dignity of the Chair to offer.

Mr. Clapp rose to a question of order.—A resolution was already pending.

The Speaker ruled that it was a question of privilege, and there was no other question of that character before the House.

Mr. Beman inquired if a resolution was a matter of privilege.

The Speaker directed the resolution to be read—[which turned out to be a resolution directing that Mr. Burroughs be reprimanded by the Speaker for grossly insulting the Speaker

Mr. Borroughs: Then I have a right to speak to the resolution

Mr. D. B. Taylor called attention to the clock—saying that it was 6 o'clock.

Mr. Burroughs repeated that he had a right to speak to this resolution—but

The Speaker addressed the House, and delivered his farewell address, in the course of which he returned thanks to the House for the intended compliment, assuming that it expressed the opinion of the House, with a single exception; [alluding to Mr. Burroughs.]

This allusion called out Mr. Burroughs, who challenged the Speaker to test the sense of the House on the resolution of thanks by putting it to a vote.

The Speaker concluded by adjourning the House sine die.

The announcement was followed by great cheering and hissing—many members participating in both.

There were loud calls for Mr. Burroughs, and he took a stand upon the Clerk's desk, while the cheering and hisses were continued. The confusion and tumult was very great, and, after thanking his friends for the compliment of calling him to address them, he would not detain them with any remarks—for although interrupted in his remarks in the House, he had said very nearly all he intended.

And then the members dispersed, amidst great confusion.

☞As a fitting accompaniment to the extraordinary proceedings at the close of the Legislature, we give the commentary of the Argus, whose democratic orthodoxy will not be disputed:

THE FINALE OF THE SESSION—EXTRAORDINARY SCENE IN THE HOUSE.—The extra session of the legislature was brought to a close yesterday afternoon at 6 o'clock, pursuant to the joint resolution of the two houses.

Our report covers all that was done, and a somewhat full sketch of what was said, during the last sands of this extraordinary session—including a remarkable and exciting scene in the House on the presentation of the usual complimentary resolution of thanks to its extraordinary Speaker.

Such a scene, we venture to say, was never before heard of any where. No such compliment, certainly, was ever tendered to the presiding officer of the Assembly, since the organization of the government.

We have been accustomed to witness at the close of a session, entire good feeling between the Speaker and the House. We do not recollect the occasion when the usual vote of thanks was not tendered to the presiding officer, with entire and hearty unanimity. Nor can we recall the instance where the response of the Speaker, has not been received with the emotion which characterizes the parting of friends, long associated in the discharge of official duty, and about to seperate, never perhaps to meet again. Even in times of high party excitement, this has always been the feeling which has marked the close of a session.

But not so in this case The reverse of all this signalized the close of the session in the House yesterday. The resolution of thanks met with opposition—determined and successful opposition! It was virtually rejected!

As if to mark this singular spectacle with ten-fold singularity, the Speaker—who had left the chair, in order that the House might be free to act upon the proposed compliment to his "impartiality" and ability—is seen resuming his seat, under a pretext; arbitrarily arresting the debate, by dint of his mallet; and without permitting a vote to be taken, responding to the "intended" compliment, in a farewell speech designedly insulting to those who, outraged by his tyrannical career throughout a prolonged session, were not prepared to stultify themselves even by a seeming acquiescence in a vote of thanks!

An Excitement at Saratoga.

[The Saratoga correspondent of the Times has the following good hit at the way in which watering-place gossip magnifies every day incidents.]

There is not much romance in real life but occasionally a circumstance transpires which keeps alive the mysterious element in our nature Of this kind is the anecdote I am about to relate. A few days ago, richly moulded, and possessed of dark liquid eyes' on which a man's soul might float away very easily. The gentleman was favorably situated with regard to masculine perfections, and lacked very few of the social requisites for winning regard Every one viewd them as a handsome couple. On Saturday, amongst other arrivals at the same hotel, a lady presented herself She was a blonde, with delicate features, and mild blue eyes. The bookkeeper handed her the register, when, to his consternation, she subscribed herself as Mrs X. Y. Z. Very quietly, and apparently with little emotion, she asked him if her husband had arrived. With beautiful simplicity, he replied, 'Yes—and his lady, too' Hereupon there was a kindling up of internal fire, and the mild blue eyes became slightly green. The blonde insisted on seeing the faithless X. Y. Z. but the masculine representative of those three letters, in company with the feminine ditto, had gone on a pleasure trip to Saratoga Lake. Mrs. X. Y. Z., No. 2, immediately ordered a carriage, and after a word of promise to the driver, went on hot pursuit. Arrived at the Lake House, the eager lady discovered that two persons answering the description of the fugitives had lunched there, and were then yatchting on the silvery bosom of the Lake. Not to be baffled at this hour, Mrs X. Y. Z. negotiated with the propietor of the Lady of the Lake, and soon hoisted sails to follow.

Now comes the mystery. From the jut of land whereon the Lake House is situated, could be observed, with the naked eye,' the yachts wherein Mr. and Mrs. X. Y. Z, were seated. For some time they moved towards each other, in languid politeness of motion, but when within a dozen lengths of each other's prow, the yacht containing the former couple was precipitately 'put about.' Every stitch of canvass was braced to the wind, and a most exciting race commenced, and continued until the increasing shades of evening, and the distance, obstructed the view. After waiting for some hours, the carriages of both parties returned to Saratoga empty; since which time nothing has been heard of the missing parties.

Of course, the only reasonable conjecture is, that they are still chasing each other on the Lake, The knowing ones maintain that Mrs. X. Y. Z. No. 1 will have to winter on Snake Island, if she regards the integrity of her dark liquid eyes.

It is my intention to investigate this affair to-morrow. If you will forward me instructions, I will have the Lake dragged. C. S.

SECOND DISPATCH.—After all, there is no romance in real life. All the parties interested in the above exciting episode have returned to their hotel in high glee. They say they were belated on the Lake, and concluded to stay all night and the next day at the Lake House, in order that they might more freely enjoy the beauty of the scenery. Mrs X. Y. Z. No 2 is, by an unromantic coincidence, the mother of Mr. X. Y. Z.

Free Trade and Direct Taxation.

The New York Courier & Inquirer says: "that Jefferson Davis, in his late visit to that city, proposed the summary abolition of the entire revenue system, the extinction of duties, the suppression of Custom Houses, and, more and worse than all, a sweeping dismissal of the whole army of Custom House officers. He wanted no half way reform, under the name of a judicious revenue tariff, but would be content with nothing less than absolute, unrestricted free trade."

We are glad to see any development of the policy of the present administration; and this coming from one of Gen. Pierce's Cabinet, may be considered almost official. How will the manufacturers and mechanics of Northern and Middle States like the new policy? All duties are to be abolished, and foreign fabrics are to be poured in upon us, to the ruin of our laborers. But the absurdity of Mr. Secretary Davis' plan will appear in this, that it must end in direct taxation, which a portion of the State in this Union could not possibly bear. How would Mr. Davis' own State —the poverty stricken and repudiating State of Missisippi, like to be called upon to pay three or four Millions annually, to support the Government, in all its mad schemes of foreign conquest? We should like to see how direct taxation would be received by the Democratic States of Illinois, Mississipi, Pennsylvania, Maryland, Arkansas, Texas, &c., States which can hardly pay their present debts. We hope President Pierce will recommend direct taxation in his Message at the opening of Congress. This would bring the subject before the people in a tangible shape and give them an opportunity to be heard on the subject.—Boston Atlas.

☞ The Newark Advertiser asks 'Shall Mount Vernon be given up to speculators?" and says "the grave of JAMES MADISON, the Father of the Constitution, and twice President of the United States, cannot now be recognized!" Is this possible? We cannot credit it. We can believe that the tomb of HARRISON has been desecrated by some vandals. We know that a merchant of New York has resened the resting place of the mother of WASHINGTON from oblivion, and that the monument which encloses the ashes of the immortal patriot himself was furnished by a marble-cutter of Philadelphia. Yet we must hesitate to believe the calumny upon a nation, that the place where so recently deceased a President of the United States lies buried has been wholly obliterated from the memory of his family and his country!" Look to this in time, and let Mount Vernon belong to the people of this Republic forever.

An Extraordinary Letter.

CITY HOTEL, Albany, July 29, '53.

MESSRS. WEED & DAWSON:—The Evening Journal and Albany Argus have each several times charged me with having stated, in reference to the impeachment case, 'that a victim was necessary.' This has been given as evidence in support of editorial remarks, imputing to me unworthy motives for the course I have felt it my duty to pursue in relation to that matter. The remark which was really made, and which is perverted as above from faulty memory, as I am bound to presume, merely indicated my own opinion to be, that the mismanagement in certain financial matters had been so bad, that an "example" ought to be made. While I am not disposed to be over sensitive to misrepresentations of my words or public acts, or even my motives, made by partizan papers for political effect, I feel it due to myself and the cause I espouse, not to permit a repetition so often uncontradicted as to induce a general belief of a remark I never made, in order to justify an inference equally unfound and unjust. I therefore take the liberty of asking you to make the correction by publishing this note.

Very respectfully yours, &c.

ARPHAXED LOOMIS.

I request the Argus also to do me the same justice.

Mr. Loomis is the leader of the barnburners in the Assembly. Mr. Shaw is a democrat of talent and a member from N. Y. city. He made a "confession" in the House in which he said he had been deceived by Mr. Loomis, that Mr. Loomis told him a 'victim' was necessary to 'appease public indignation,' and induced him to become the father of the charges against Mr. Mather, which he should not have done had not Loomis deceived him. The Evening Journal and Argus having frequently alluded to this statement Mr. Loomis wrote the above letter in contradiction. Now, suppose he used the word 'example,' the difference is betwixt 'north and north west side.' There stands the distinct admission that the democratic officials had become so corrupt as to require an 'example,' or 'victim,' as the reader pleases.—Yet these same men will have the brazen impudence to ask a re-election at the hands of the people! Will they get it? Will the people continue men in power who, if they speak the truth of each other, are unworthy and incompetent? Will they re-elect men who admit that they are so corrupt as to require an 'example?' Whigs would be swept from power with the besom of destruction, and it remains to be seen whether any other fate awaits the democracy.

NEW SPECIMEN OF "NATIONAL DEMOCRACY"—The newly appointed Postmaster at Cambridgeport—a Coalition Democrat himself—has, to start with, appointed a former attache of the Liberator and Commonwealth newspapers, (both bitterly Abolition,) and the leader of the Freesoil party in that ward of Cambridge, as his chief clerk, or as acting postmaster. The subappointee has had some experience in "blanks, wrapping paper and twine," and enjoyed, while in the same office in 1848, the honor of being an ardent supporter of the Freesoil candidate for President, but since which time his unabated zeal in the cause has, until now, failed to receive its reward. A Coalition Democrat and a "Liberal Party" man are both appointed to office under the party which eschews all connection with Freesoilism! Queer stuff, this National Democracy!—Boston Courier, 4th.

Well, it is rather "queer stuff," to make the most or least of it; and can no more be judged by ordinary rules than can a chameleon be set up as a standard for colors. It can change oftener than a chameleon, and has more hues than a rainbow. It can fill three-fourths of the Northern offices with Freesoilers, and be opposed to Abolition. It can fill the offices South with Secessionists, and yet be in favor of the Union. It can be in favor of the Comprumise, yet confide to enemies the execution of the Compromise laws. Rare "stuff," this "National Democracy." But, if the 'sovereigns' like it, very well; and if the rule of contraries established by Mr. Pierce is to prevail in future, we would suggest to the 'National Democracy' that they nominate Gerrit Smith, or some other mad Abolitionist, for President next time. Following Pierce's example, he might possibly repudiate all run like wildfire. What is a virtue in one being a vice in the other. Democrats, also, always support their own men, regardless of principles or results, and whigs are so given to independence, or rather dogged obstinacy, as to sacrifice their own friends whose notions do not exactly co-incide with their own, for a democrat with whom they have no single sentiment in common. Such is the past: but we hope they have got a lesson in the election of Pierce which will not soon be forgotten. Whigs ought now to be in the ascendancy in the national and State Administrations, and with half the union and co-operation of democrats, with greater cause of division, they would be.—Our confidence in the future is unabated. Remember, "'tis darkest just before day."

Troy Female Seminary.

We are indebted to one of the teachers in this institution for the Report of the Board of Visitors in attendance at the Annual examination. The appointment of this Board is an annual custom and is composed of both Gentlemen and Ladies of eminence. We learn from the Report that the examination commenced on the 23d day of June and continued six days, that it was highly satisfactory, and creditable to all, and that 27 young ladies were awarded diplomas. The Troy Budget in publishing this report says:

We publish to-day the Report of the Committe appointed to atend the Annual Examination of the Troy Female Seminary. The report bears testimony to the success of the system of education pursued in this valuable institution. By the severe intellectual tests applied to the pupils, we are furnished with the strongest evidence that they are possessed of a thorough and accurate knowledge of their subjects of study. This characteristic of the system, and the means employed to give vigor and independence to the mind. The standard of scholarship cannot be reached without deep and long sustained effort. We are gratified to learn that it was attained by a large proportion of the pupils in attendance last year.

A high degree of excellence was also exhibited in the accomplishments of Art,—in Music, Painting and Drawing. Every department, whether of useful learning or of elegant accomplishment, is conducted with efficiency and ability. The intellectual discipline and cultivation of the taste; the moral restraint and religious influences to which the pupils are subjected, cannot fail to secure that first and highest aim of every educator of woman—the information of a character combining all that is lovely and attractive, with all that is true and holy.—May all the daughters of our land who gather within the time-honored walls of the Seminary to receive their education, bear the noble impress which its influences are capable of stamping upon their characters!

That the advantages of this institution secure increasing respect and confidence is evinced by its increasing patronage every succeeding year. We understand that one hundred and fifty pupils have been in attendance in the Boarding School during most of the time last year,—a much larger number than at any previous time.

Consistency.

Can it be possible that Union Democrats have been false in all their professions?—Is it possible that they led whigs into the Union movement simply to break down the whig party and then betray them? Is it possible that the South care nothing and fear nothing of Abolition, only to make it a political bugbear to subserve the purposes of the democracy? It looks so. The following is a strong case, but a common one under this boasted, Union, Compromise, National. Free Soil, and Secession Administration:—

"How easy it is for a Locofoco to be mistaken! When the duplicity of Wm. J. Brown, of Indiana, his connivance at once with Free Soilers and pro-slavery members, for the Speaker's chair, was exposed in 1849, a leading Locofoco journal in a southern city, said of him: "He stands before the world, a convicted and doomed man—deserving the contempt and scorn of every honest mind." These were brave words to be sure. Did the writer of them then dream that before four years had passed over the head of this very self-same Wm. J. Brown, this "doomed, convicted man, deserving the contempt and scorn of every honest mind," would be honored by a "democratic" President, with the important and responsible situation of the Mail Agent of the North Western States, and that this very journal and its editor, no longer holding him up to the "scorn and contempt of every honest mind," would not dare even to give utterance to so much as a whisper of disapprobation! It must be quite apparent now, to this then grandiloquent, but now silent organ of southern democracy, that if Wm. J. Brown is "deserving the contempt and scorn of every honest mind"—and we have no doubt he was about right—he certainly does not receive those deserts from President Pierce and his Cabinet—that, however, is not a matter of surprise, when we bear in mind that the class designated by "every honest mind" was probably intended to refer to a very different order of politicians, from the present truckling, time-serving Administration!—Boston Atlas.

Legislative Proceedings.

We call attention to scenes at the close of the extra session which we give in another place. They were reported for the Argus. The speech of Mr. Burroughs groups together, or alludes to scenes which UNIVERSITY OF VT.—COMMENCEMEN[T] Aug. 3.—Burlington was thronged wi[th] people on Tuesday and Wednesday to wi[t]ness the annual exercises at this instit[u]tion. Multitudes poured in from the su[r]rounding country—former graduates wer[e] present from Miss. Cal. and other dista[nt] states, and re-unions took place amon[g] those who had not met in 25 years. E[x] President John Wheeler pronounced th[e] Oration before the Society, and Alfred [...] Street of Albany was Poet. The gradua[]ting class numbered 25, all of whom acqui[tt]ed themselves with honor. We will [be] obliged to our friends if they will credit [it] to the Essex Co. (N. Y.) Republican.—We have been accustomed to seeing ite[ms] and editorials taken entire without ackno[w]ledgement, and sometimes credited to so[me] other paper, yet we have never before a[l]luded to the subject. Whoever "steal[s] an Editor's "purse," truly "steals trash" but whoever uses the product of his bra[in] takes all that he has. It is just, and [as] flattering as it is just, to credit to who[m] credit is due.

A SUMMER-NIGHT SCENE.

BY WIDESWARTH.

[Augustus to Juliana—in which is revealed a mistake of a night, in consequence of a blinding passion. Augustus is to be imagined "all alone, on a cold, cold stone," gazing intently upon a second story window. Time, midnight.]

I'm sitting 'neath the wings of brooding night,
And on thy window gaze with rapture deep;
I see thy form, bedraped in snowy white,
Before my vision like an angel sweep.
Oh, Juliana! idol of my soul,
My hat between my hands is crush'd & bruised

A QUADRUPED CHICKEN—The 'Germantown (Pa.) Telegraph' publishes the following extract from a letter of a gentleman of Columbia to a citizen of Germantown:—'One of my Shanghai hens has a few chicks, hatched a few days ago, and one of them—which toddles about and eats heartily, and seems to thrive—has four legs. For the first day, 'Quady' (as we call him, from quadruped) did not know which pair to go upon. The hind pair made him rear up, and the front pair made him kick up. But after balancing the thing in his mind over night, he settled down next morning on his 'all fours' boldly, and persists in that mode of locomotion.'

When June's hot sun pours down in fervid [beams—
In striking beams, that knock a mortal down
Or make the perspiration flow in streams,
In regal streams, descending from the crown;
My mind recalls a fat and jovial one,
A jovial one that I did call my friend,
Who melted on a time 'neath such a sun,
'Neath such a sun, just like a candle end.
I saw him for a moment stand alone—
Stand all alone beneath a hat of straw;
A moment more and on the sidewalk stone,
That rocking stone, my wond'ring visuals saw
A heap of clothes, suspenders, hat and boots,
An empty wicker flask, and twenty smoked [cheroots.—Boston Post.

Husband, wife, and children three—
(One is lost—an angel fled

Touch us gently, Time!
We've not proud nor soaring wings:
Our ambition, our content,
Lies in simple things.
Humble voyagers are we,
O'er Life's dim unsounded sea,
Seeking only some calm clime—
Touch us gently, gentle Time!

POLITICAL PUNNING.—The following bits of fun show that the Whigs have some life in them yet, and can joke despite their awful using up last Fall:—

FEATS OF HORSEMANSHIP.—It will be remembered that Pierce was unfortunate in Mexico. It is suggested that he conceives his endeavors to lead the numberless factions of the democracy; the Old Fogies, Young America, Fillibusters, Secessionists, Free Soilers, Softs, Hards, Hunkers, and Nationals, to be an attempt to straddle so many donkies; and that, if he can succeed, it will wipe out the disgrace of his "brief experience as a soldier."

Ordered, that this Court be, and the same is hereby adjourned to be held at the Court House, in Elizabethtown aforesaid, on the first Tuesday of October next, at 10 o'block in the forenoon of that day.

E. A. ADAMS, Clerk.

The Oyer and Terminer was adjourned without day. 483-9 w.

DAGUERREOTYPES.

LOOK AT THIS!

DON'T fail to call and see for yourselves, that H. S. Tousley is yet among you, and may be found, as usual, in his rooms from sunrise until sunset, ready to supply patrons with Daguerreotypes, with or without colors He is always ready to make your pictures on the shortest notice, and is determined that he will not be outdone by any operator in Northern New York, or even in the cities. Call and try his skill, as satisfaction wil be given in ALL CASES or

No Charges.

Mr. T., it is well known, has occupied rooms in the Adirondac Buildings, for over 2 years, where he has had the advantage of an excellent which is acknowledged by all competent operators to be unequalled in producing a dark rich picture with well arranged lights and shadows, which will make a Daguerreotype not only pleasing as a portrait but as a work of Art.

Mr. T. has also just received a very extensive assortment of well selected stock, of the latest style and the choicest ever offered in this village. Pictures taken all sizes from the smallest sized

Lockets, Pins and Rings, to Full Size, and warranted to remain permanent, and put up in the best style.

N. B. A Dark Dress is preferable to a light one in all cases, to ensure a rich picture, though a light one may be taken if desired by the sitter. HORACE S. TOUSLEY.

KEEP THESE COMMANDMENTS AND THOU SHALT YET BE SOMEBODY!

1 Thou shalt have no other place to buy thy Clothing.

2 Thou shalt not choose to thyself any other Clothier. Thou shalt not bow down to them nor listen to their fair speeches for Cardwell is a reliable Clothier, capable and willing to dress his customers to the third and fourth Generation.

3 Thou needs't not search for Cardwells, Clothing Store in vain; it is in the Adirondac Hotel Building," and has the most splendid Sign in the State.

4 Thou shalt keep in remembrance the above location; six days shalt thou labour, and on Saturday night come and buy thy Sunday outfit.

5 Thou shalt honor the judicious adorner of thy person and long may thy days be upon the land to enjoy the fruits of his services.

6 Thou shalt not commit an outrage upon propriety, by purchasing your Clothing, of any wandering Jew that may come hither, nor of any one else that has not courage enough to adhere strictly to one branch of trade.

7 Thou shalt not take unto thyself foreign fashions by adulterously wedding strange garments to thy body thereby converting an American citizen into a foreign ambassador.

8 Thou shalt not rob Cardwell! for he sells so Cheap 'twould be a sin

9 Thou shalt not bear false witness but honestly acknowledge that thou can't get better suited at Cardwell's for less money than any other place, get thy money's worth and the right change back.

10 Thou shalt not covet thy neighbor's garments, but take counsel of the wise and proceed straightway to Cardwell's and buy for thyself and be satisged.

TROY, NEW YORK,

INVITES the attention of those who wish to purchase

DRY GOODS,

Carpets and Oil-Cloths.

Owing to the large increase of patronage, I have found it necessary from time to time to make many improvements and additions to my store.

This spring I have united the stores No. 7 and 9, State St., making a spacious and beautiful room, fitted up expressly for the sale of all the various styles of Silks, Shawls, Cloaks & Mantillas.

This connects with the main store, No. 202, River St., (the old stand occupied by the subscriber for nearly 30 years,) which is devoted to a general assortment of

STAPLE AND FANCY DRY GOODS,

comprising every variety to meet the wants of all classes of buyers. Besides these, four large rooms over the stores 200, 202 and 204 River St., are occupied as

CARPET WARE-ROOMS,

where I am constantly receiving the newest and most desirable patterns of Velvet, Tapestry, Brussels, Three-ply, Ingrain and Venetian Carpets. Also, Oil-Cloths of every quality and width, and every style of Druggetts, Rugs, Mats, Matting, Stair-Rods, &c.

All these departments combined making an extensive and complete Establishment, conducted on such principles, that customers can trade with confidence, and to their own advantage, my sales being always for cash, and the only price asked, being the lowest cash price. G. V. S. QUACKENBUSH.

LEANDER BABBIT'S

TRUSS OFFICE

The latest and most approved Trusses; Female Supporters; Do. with shoulder braces attached; Spinal elevator for curvature of the spine and projection of the shoulder blade. Suspensary shoulder braces. This instrument is so constructed that it not only acts the part of shoulder braces but carries the heft of the ladies' shirts on their shoulders; and, hence removes the evil consequent to carrying them on the hips and sides. For gentlemen it not only serves for a shoulder brace, but acts the part of suspenders.

As to the importance and usefulness of the above named instruments, and their beneficial effects, their peculiar mechanism and superiority over other instruments of the same name, I need not say anything. They are so well known by physicians, and the multitude of persons that have had occasion to test them, in this and the connection of country, that I deem it not important to introduce a long catalogue of certificates; yet I have abundant evidence in my possession to justify me in all I claim or affirm, and deem it a privilege to give references to any who wish to make inquiries.

Office at Keeseville in the building on the corner of Main and Front street, opposite the Bank, up stairs

Ladies will be waited on at my dwelling by Mrs. Babbit whose experience in adjusting braces and supporters qualifies her to give perfect satisfaction. 482—3m

Ploughs! Ploughs!!

PROUTY & MEARS'

Celebrated Centre Draughts—All Sizes

THESE Ploughs wherever introduced, are fast superseding all others

The most thorough trials of Ploughs on record in this country, and at the World's Fair in London, have demonstrated the important fact, that the Centre draught Plough is of much easier draught than any other and therefore used with less fatigue to both Plough man and Team; and, also owing to its peculiar form, it pulverizes and prepares the ground for seed more perfectly than any other, saving less work for the harrow, and securing better crops than by any other method of Culture.

The following implements, among others of the best quality, and of the latest and most approved patterns, are constantly on hand, viz:

Drills, Seed Sowers, Corn Planters, Corn Shellers, Straw Cutters, Corn and Cob Crushers, Cheese Presses, Threshing Machines, Potato Hoes, Manure Hooks, Cast Iron Fence Posts, Pruning Shears, Tree Scrapers, Budding and Pruning Knives, Hay Knives, Barn Door Rollers, Agricultural Furnaces, Corn Knives, Post Hole Augers, Wheelbarrows, Sheep Shears, etc. etc.

Being agents of Messrs. D. P. Gray and Co., we can furnish the CENTRE DRAUGHT PLOUGHS at the Boston wholesale prices, with the addition of freight.

At a Surrogate Court held at the County Judge's Office in Elizabethtown, in and for the County of Essex, on the 20th day of June, A. D., 1853.
Present, J. E. McVine, Essex Co. Judge.

In the matter of the application of Charles Morhous, a creditor of Renssalaer Morhous, deceased, to have the real estate of the said deceased, mortgaged, leased or sold for the payment of debts.

An Order having been heretofore made on the application of Charles Morhous, a creditor of Renssalaer Morhous, late of the County of Essex, deceased, intestate, requiring Emeline Morhous, administratrix, and Abraham Welden and David W. Morhous, administrators of all and singular the goods, chattels, and credits of the said intestate, personally to be and appear before the County Judge and Surrogate of the county of Essex, at his office in Elizabethtown, on the 20th day of June ult., at 10 o'clock, A. M., to shew cause why they should not be required to mortgage, lease, or sell so much of the real estate of said deceased as shall be necessary to pay his debts. And the said administratrix and administrator Abraham Welden, having appeared, as also the said Petitioner by Orlando Kellogg his Proctor, and the said administrators having shown no cause to the contrary.

It is ordered that all persons interested in the estate of said Renssalner Morhous deceased, intestate, appear before the county Judge of the county of Essex, at his office in the town of Elizabethtown, on the 15th day of August next, at 10 o'clock in the forenoon of that day, then and there to shew cause why authority should not be given to the said administrators and administratrix to mortgage, lease, or sell so much of the Real Estate of the said deceased as shall be necessary to pay his Debts.

"Man Know Thyself."

An Invaluable Book for 25 Cents

"EVERY FAMILY SHOULD HAVE A COPY."

20,000 Copies sold in less than 5 months. A new edition, revised and improved, just issued.

Dr. Hunter's Medical Manual and Hand Book for the Afflicted—

Containing an outline of the origin, progress treatment and cure of every form of disease contracted by promiscuous sexual intercourse, by self abuse or by sexual excess, with advice for their prevention, written in a familiar style, avoiding all medical technicalities, and everything that would offend the ear of decency, from the result of some twenty years successful practice, exhlusively devoted to the cure of diseases of a delicate or pirvate nature

To which is added, receipts for the cure of the above diseases, and a treatise on the causes, symptoms and cure of the Fever and Ague

Testimony of the Prof of Obstetrics in Penn College, Philadelphia—"Dr. Hunter's Medical Manual."—The author of this work unlike the majority of those works who advertise to cure the diseases of which it treats, is a graduate of one of the best Colleges in the United States. It affords me pleasure to recommend him to the unfortunate, or to the victim of malpractice, as a successful and experienced practitioner, in whose honor and integrity they may place the greatest confidence.

JOSEPH LONGSHORE M. D.

From A Woodward, M. D., of Penn. University, Philadelphia—It gives me pleasure to add my testimony to the professional ability of the author of the "Medical Manual." Numerous cases of diseases of the Genital Organs some of them of long standing have come under my notice, in which his skill has been manifest in restoring to perfect health, in some instances where the patient has been considered beyond medical aid. In the treatment of Seminal weakness, or disarrangement of the functions produced by Self-abuse, or Excess of venery, I do not know his superior in the profession. I have been acquainted with the Author some thirty years, and deem it no more than justice to him as well as a kindness to the unfortunate victim of early indiscretion to recommend him as one, in whose professional skill and integrity they may safely confide themselves. ALFRED WOODWARD, M.D.

"This is, without exception, the most comprehensive and intelligible work published on the class of diseases of which it treats. Avoiding all technical terms, it addresses itself to the reason of its readers. It is free from all objectionable matter and no parent, however fastidious, can object to placing it in the hands of his sons. The author has devoted many years to the treatment of the various complaints treated of, and with too little breath to puff,' and 'too little presumption to impose,' he has offered to the world at the merely nominal price of 25 cents, the fruits of some 20 years most successful practice."—Herald.

"No teacher or parent should be without the knowledge imparted in this invaluable work. It would save years of pain, mortification and sorrow to the youth under their charge."—People's Advocate.

A Presbyterian clergyman in Ohio, in writing of "Hunter's Medical Manual," says: "Thousands upon thousands of our youth, by evil example and influence of the passions, have been led into the habit of self pollution without realizing the sin and fearful consequences upon themselves and their posterity. The constitutions of thousands who are raising families have been enfeebled, if not broken down, and the do not know the cause or the cure. Anything that can be done so to enlighten and influence the public mind as to check, and ultimately to remove this wide spread source of human wretchedness, would confer the greatest blessing next to the religion of Jesus Christ, on the present and coming generations. Intemperance (or the use of intoxicating drinks,) though it has slain thousands upon thousands, is not a greater scourge to the human race. Accept my thanks on behalf of the afflicted, and, believe me, your co-worker in the good work you are so actively engaged in."

One copy, (securely enveloped,) will be forwarded free of postage to any part of the United States for 25 cents, or 6 copies for $1.—

BOOT & SHOE STORE!

THE Subscribers having bought the Boot and Shoe Establishment heretofore known as F, E. Shandrew and Co.'s, are now prepared to manufacture anything in that line. We have also a large stock of Ready-Made Work, selected with great care by Mr. Shandrew, and warranted to be a better article than can be found in any slop Shoe Store in town. Our ready made Boots and Shoes are made by some of the best workmen, in New York city,—in the most fashionable style, and every pair warranted to give satisfaction or the money refunded. We are permanently in the business, and of course expect to furnish a better article for less money than our neighbors can who, do not manufacture.

Ladies and gentlemen—you need not go to Burlington, nor any where else, expecting to do better than you can with us, as we have in our employ some of the best workmen in the State, and can give you perfect fits. We hope and expect that our own mechanics and village will be patronized in preference to the States Prison convicts, whose worthless trash is brought into competition with the labor of honest workmen. Private Diseases and their Antidote.

DR. LISPENARD, author of the Marriage Guide, or Private Medical Treatise, Professor of Diseases of Women and Children, and Associate of the College of Physicians and Surgeons of the United States University, &c., &c., continues as heretofore to be consulted confidentially and successfully on all forms and variety of

PRIVATE DISEASES,

at his old quarters, No 5 Beaver-street ALBANY, N. Y.

The great success attending the use of Doctor L.'s remedies in secret diseases, and the many remarkable cures daily effected by him in recent as well as old lingering attacks, conclusive evidence that the well

SICK AND UNFORTUNATE

can do no better than consult the Doctor, whose whole time is devoted to the exclusive treatment of this much neglected branch of practice.

LOOK AT THIS.

Dr. Lispenard cures recent cases of disease in from three to six days, and chronic or long standing diseases in a very short period of time, without the use of Mercury, without the loss of time change of diet, or detention from

DAILY EMPLOYMENT.

In Syphillis Gonorrhœa, Gleet, Strictures, Enlargement of the Testicles and Cords, Bubo, Chancres, Pimples and Scaly Eruptions, Sore Throats and Noses, Chancres on the tongue, tender shin bones, and diseases of the skin, and impure blood. Dr. Lispenard's remedies are above all praise, and frequently cure when all others had failed

EVEN TO RELIEVE.

More than 5,000 patients have during the past year experienced the benefit of the Doctor's extraordinary skill in treating secret diseases—among which, diseases of the bladder and kidneys have formed a goodly proportion.

YOUNG MEN,

who by indulging in secret habits have injured their health and prostrated their intellectual faculties, and thereby deprived themselves of the pleasure of married life, should consult Dr. Lispenard without a moment's delay. Hundreds have been restored to health, society and friends, under my peculiar mode of treatment, although vast sums of money had been sacrificed without any benefit. My remedy for this disease is pleasant to take, has no offensive smell and

CURES WITHOUT FAIL.

Persons so unfortunate as to be diseased, although they may have visited half a dozen Doctors, and had medicine sent them a dozen times with no benefit would exhibit wisdom by making their case known to that Friend of the Sick. Dr. Lispenard, who never charges for advice and warrants all his cures. The sick are often at a loss where to apply for relief, and tis no wonder, as hundreds stand ready to plunder the unfortunate victim of Private disease, or secret habits with nt one thought for his life and health. All thus deceived will find a friend, and moderate charges, in consulting the Doctor who uses no mercury and cures every time.

N. B.—Persons from a distance when visiting the city in search of a physician and friend will be fortunate if they succeed in escaping the many dens of imposition, conducted by unprincipled men, destitute of character knowledge or name, who fleece the unfortunate victim of disease of his hard earned money, and his remaining health. Patients who have no acquaintance in the city should make inquiry of some respectable citizen, or the editor or proprietor of any of the city papers, to ascertain who is the most reliable physician to apply to.

FEMALE DISEASES.

Dr. Lispenard from an experience seldom or never enjoyed by any other medical man, is enable to treat, with every hope of succes, all and every variety of Female Complaints—with safe and pleasant remedies—and has without doubt cured within the past five years more than 3000 females afflicted with diseases of the Bladder, Womb, &c. &c. Ladies afflicted with suppression or stoppage of their monthly turns, will recollect that Dr. Lispenard is still the sole American agent for,

DR. VICHOP'S

FEMALE MONTHLY PILLS.

The unprecedented sale of more than 15,000 boxes of these excellent Pills, and the good results which always follow their use, is conclusive evidence of their utility in stoppages, &c. Caution—Married Ladies in certain delicate situations should not use them—for reasons see directions with each box. Price $1. Sent by mail to all parts of the world.

Married Persons and those about to Marry, should enclose 12½ cents post paid to Dr. Lispenard, and obtain a copy of his Marriage Guide, or Private Treatise, a bewitching little work of nearly 100 pages, illustrated. Every thing that married persons can desire or wish to know, is here explained. Persons who from poverty or sickness have no desire to increase their family, will find necessary instruction in the Marriage Guide. One copy 12½ cents; 8 copies 50 cts.; 12 copies $1—mailed free to any part of the world.

N. B.—Patients treated by letter, and medicines sent, with full directions for use, to the writer's address, All communications destroyed or returned.

No mercury used in any case, and all cures warranted.

No boys or precocious students allowed: timed persons take notice.

Friends of Dr. L when recommending patients to our care, will recollect our number, 5 Beaver st., three doors from South Broadway.

Hospital open from 7 A. M., to 9 P. M., and on Sundays from 1 to 4 P. M.

No charge for advice, although no medicine may be desired.

THE WONDER OF THE WORLD.

DEVINES' COMPOUND

PITCH LOZENGE,

A sure and pleasant Remedy for Colds, Coughs, Croup, Whooping Cough, Asthma, and if lungs enough are left to sustain life, A CERTAIN CURE FOR CONSUMPTION, safe for the Infant or the Invalid, in any stage of weakness.

"The statements that consumption cannot be cured, has destroyed more lives than the disease itself.—[Dr. Warren

Read the following, which to a candid mind places this "Great Remedy," like Cæsar's wife "above suspicion,"

TO THE PUBLIC!

We, the undersigned, citizens of Lee, Mass., are acquainted with Mr. Devines, the proprietor and Manufacturer of Devines' Compound Pitch Lozenge and from what we know of it ourselves and have learned from others of its beneficial effects, in cases where it has been used, give it as our opinion that it is a valuable remedy in diseases for which it is recommended and is worthy of public confidence. A. G. Hulburt, Leonard Church, F. G. Taylor, Wm Taylor, E. A. Bliss, S. A. Hulburt, Josephus Crafts, T. P. Eldridge.

If any individual is to be pittied, and needs sympathy, it is the consumptive—always expecting to get well, and yet the painful evidence of decay almost "makes the inner soul shriuk with the outer flesh"

"Some bloom as roses bloom, and live as roses live,
A single morning space!"

While others, in more mature life—by some imprudence and a slight cold neglected—in the hectic flush—the painful cough,

"The prints of their departing steps appears."

BUT BE-EIS HOPE! Mr. Wm. Devines, the originator and manufacturer of the Pitch Lozenge, under Providence, was raised to perfect health by the use of these Lozenges alone, after he was pronounced by his physician to be almost dying with consumption.

This fact is generally known in Berkshire County and is the neighborhood talk, and wonder in Lee, and in Great Barrington, Mass.

From Dr. Brown, of Lee, Mass.

This certifies that I have made use of Devines' Compound Pitch Lozenge for cold and cough, and found immediate relief. Therefore I would recommend it to the public as being a safe and sovereign remedy. H. C. BROWN

THIS is a Purely Vegetable Compound, scientifically prepared from the best Roots and Herbs of the Materia Medica, and has gained a universal reputation for the following effects viz: Regulating and Strengthening the Liver and Digestive Organs, and Cleansing the Stomach and Bowels, and curing all Billious Diseases, Liver Complaints, Dyspepsia, Indigestion, Costiveness, Piles Headache, Fever and Ague, Jaundice Nausea Loss of Appetite, &c., and causing the food to nourish and support every part, PURIFYING THE BLOOD, and thus curing all Humors Cutaneous Eruptions, Scrofula, Salt Rheum, Erysipelas, Scald Head, Canker, Pimples on the face, Blotches, Ulcers, Tumors, Mercurial Diseases, Cancers, &c. Regulating the secretory Organs, and by enabling them to perform their proper functions, preventing and curing many painful and dangerous diseases; strengthening and Quieting the nervous system, thus staying Nervous Irritation, and curing all Diseases of the Nerves, as Hysteria, Neuralgia, Cramps &c.

It is unrivalled in the cure of all FEMALE COMPLAINTS, as weakness, general debility, Irregularity, Obstructions, Swelling of the Feet, Limbs, Joints, &c., caused by weakness; also, Lung and Throat Complaints, as Colds, Coughs, Asthma, Consumption, &c., also, Dropsy.

Having made use of the Compound Syrup of Yellow Dock Root, prepared by C. Morse and Co., either our selves or in our families and finding it to be a very salutary and effectual preparation, we do most cheerfully recommend it to the public as a very valuable medicine.

E Bourne, Esq, Cashier National Bank, Providence, R. I.; A. W. Spencer Esq, Cashier Lime Rock Bank, do do Rev. William Phillips Rev. J. B Richmond, C S Jones, editor Providence Gen Advt, Wm. Field, M. W. G. M. Cyrus Fisher, M. E. H. P. James Hotchinson, G. S. Dea., V J. Bates, Doct Benj. Colby, and one hundred others of the most respectable families of Providence.

This certifies that I have for a number of years been acquainted with the composition and mode of manufacture of Morse's Compound Syrup of Yellow Dock Root. I have also been acquainted with its modus operandi in disease, and can say that in all respects it is admirably calculated to remedy that class of Diseases for which it was designed. It is especially valuable in Indigestion and all its attendant symptoms, it excites to healthy action the Liver, removes Torpor, and inactivity of this organ, and stimulates healthy action in all the system. As a Depurator or purifier of the Blood it has no superior.

"Gentle Hand."

BY T. S. ARTHUR.

I did not hear the maiden's name; but in my thought I have ever since called her 'Gentle Hand.' What a magic lay in her touch! It was wonderful.

When and where it matters not now to relate; but once upon a time, as I was passing through thinly people district of country night came down upon me, almost unawares. Being on foot, I could not hope to gain the village towards which my steps were directed until a late hour; and I therefore preferred seeking a shelter and a night's lodging at the first humble dwelling that presented itself.

Dusky twilight was giving place to deeper shadows, when I found myself in the vicinity of a dwelling, from the small, uncurtained windows of which the light shone with a pleasant promise of good cheer and comfort. The house stood within an enclosure, and a short distance from the road along which I was moving with wearied feet. Turning aside, and passing through an ill-hung gate I approached the dwelling. Slowly the gate swung on its hinges, and the rattle of its latch in closing, did not disturb the air until I had nearly reached the little porch in front of the house, in which a slender girl, who had noticed my entrance stood awaiting my arrival.

A deep, quick bark, answered almost like an echo, the sound of the shutting gate, and sudden as an apparation, the form of an immense dog loomed in the doorway.—I was now near enough to see the savage aspect of the animal; and the gathering motion of his body and he prepared to bound forward upon me. His woolfish growl was really fearful. At the instant when he was about to spring, a light hand was laid upon his shaggy neck, and a low voice was spoken.

'Don't be afraid. He won't hurt you,' said a voice that to me sounded very sweet and musical.

I now came foreward, but in some doubt as to the young girl's power over the beast on whose rough neck her childish hand still lay. The dog did not seem by any means reconciled to my approach, and growled wickedly his dissatisfaction.

'Go in, Tiger,' said the girl, not in a voice of authority, yet in her gentle tones was the conciousness that she would be obeyed; and as she spoke, she lightly bore upon the animal with her hand, and he turned away and disappeared within the dwelling.

'Who's that?'

A rough voice asked the question; and now a heavy looking man took the dog's place in the door-way.

'Who are you? 'What's wanted?'

There was something very harsh and forbidding in the way the man spoke. The girl now laid her hand upon his arm, and leaned with a gentle pressure against him.

'How far is it to G———?' I asked, not deeming it best to say, in the beginning, that I sought a resting place for the night.

'To G———?' growled the man, but not so harshly as at first. 'It's good six miles from here.'

'A long distance; and I'm a stranger and on foot,' said I. 'If you can make room for me until morning, I will be very thankful.'

I saw the girl's hand move quietly up his arm, until it rested on his shoulder, and she leaned to him still closer.

'Come in. We'll try what can be done for you.'

There was a change in the man's voice that made me wonder.

I entered a large room in which blazed a brisk fire. Before the fire sat two stout lads, who turned upon me their heavy eyes, with no very welcome greeting. A middle aged woman was standing by the table, and two children were amusing themselves with a kitten on the floor.

'A stranger, mother,' said the man who had given me so rude a greeting at the door; 'and he wants us to let him stay all night.'

The woman looked at me doubtingly for a few moments, and then replied coldly:

We don't keep a public house.'

'I'm aware of that, ma'am,' said I.—'But night has overtaken me, and it's a long way yet to G———'

'Too far for a tired man to go on foot,' said the master of the house, kindly, so is no use talking mother; we must give him a bed.'

So unobtrusively, that I scarcely noticed the movement, the girl had drawn to the mother's side. What she said to her I did not hear, for the brief words were uttered in a low voice; but I noticed that as she spoke, one, small fair hand rested on the woman's hand. Was there magic in that gentle touch? The woman's repulsive aspect changed into one of kindly welcome, and she said,

'Yes, it is a long way to G———I guess we may find a place for him. Have you had any supper?'

I answered in the negative.

The woman without further remark, drew a pine table from the wall, placed upon it some cold meat, fresh bred and butter, and a pitcher of new milk. While these preperations were going on I had leisure for a mere minute observation.—There was a singular contrast between the young girl I have mentioned and the other inmates of the room; and yet I would trace a strong likeness between the maiden and the woman, whom I supposed to be her mother, browned and hard as were the features of the latter.

a loud, peremptory voice, speaking to one of the children.

But John, though he could not help hearing did not choose to obey.

'Do you hear me, sir? Off with you!' repeated the angry father.

'I don't want to go,' whined the child.

'Go I tell you, this minute!'

Still there was not the slightest movement to obey; and the little fellow looked the very image of rebellion. At this crisis of the affair, when a storm seemed inevitable, the sister, as I supposed her to be, glided across the room, stooped down, took the child's hand in her's. Not a word was said; but the young rebel was instantly subdued. Rising, he passed out by her side, and I saw no more of him during the evening.

Soon after I had finished my supper, a neighbor came in, and it was not long before he and the man of the house were involved in a warm political discussion, in which were many more assertions than reasons. My host was not a very clearheaded man; while his antagonist was wordy and specious. The former as might be supposed, very naturally became excited, and now and then, indulged himself in rather strong expressions towards his neighbor, who, in turn dealt back wordy blows that were quite as heavy as he had received, and a good deal more irritating.

And now I marked again the power of that maid's gentle hand. I did not notice her movement to her fathers side. She was there when I first observed her, with one hand laid upon his temple, and lightly smoothed his hair with a caressing motion. Gradually the high tone of the disputant subsided, and his words had in them less of personal rancor. Still the discussion went on and I noticed that the maiden's, which rested on the temple when unimpassioned words were spoken, resumed its caressing motion the instant there was the smallest preceptibly tone of anger in the father's voice. It was a beautiful sight and I could but look on and wonder at the power of that touch, so light, so unobtrusive yet possessing a spell over the hearts of all around her. As she stood there, she looked like an angel of peace, sent to still the turbulent waters of human passion. 'I could but think her sadly out of place, amid the rough and rude; and yet, who more than they need the softening and humanizing influence of one like the 'Gentle hand?'

Many times more, during that evening did I observe the magic power of her hand and the one gentle, yet potent as the other.

On the next morning breakfast being over, I was preparing to take my departure, when my host informed me that if I would wait for half an hour he would give me a ride in his wagon to G———, as business required him to go there. I was very well pleased to except the invitation. In due time, the farmer's wagon was driven into the road before the house, and I was invited to get in. I noticed the horse as a rough-looking Canadian pony with a stubborn endurance. As the farmer took his seat by my side, the family came to the door to see us off.

'Dick!' said the farmer, in a promptory voice, giving the reign a quick jirk as he spoke.

But Dick moved not a step.

'Dick! you vagabond! get up.' And the farmer's whip cracked sharply by the pony's ear.

It availed not, however this second appeal. Dick stood firmly disobedient.—Next the whip was brought down upon him, with an impatient hand, but the pony only reared up a little. Fast and sharp were the strokes now dealt, to the number of a half dozen. The man might as well have beaten his wagon, for all his end was gained.

A stout lad now came out into the road, and catching Dick by the bridle, jirked him forward, using at the same time, the customary language on such occasions, but Dick met this new ally with increased stubbornness; planting his fore-feet more firmly, and at a sharper angle with the ground.—The impatient boy now struck the pony on the side of the head with his clenched hand and jirked cruelly at his bridle. I availed nothing, however, Dick was not to be wrought upon by any such arguments.

'Don't do so, John!'

I turned my head as the maiden's sweet voice reached my ear. She was passing through the gate into the road, and in next moment had taken hold of the lad, and drawn him away from the animal. No strength was exerted in this; she took hold of his arm, and he obeyed her wish as readily as if he had no thought beyond her gratification.

And now that soft hand was laid gently on the pony's neck, and a single low word was spoken. How instantly were the tense muscles relaxed how quickly the stubborn air vanquished.

'Poor Dick!' said the maiden, as she stroked his neck lightly, or softly patted it with her childlike hand.

'Now go along you provoking fellow!' she added in a half chilling, yet affectionate voice, as she drew upon the bridle.—The pony turned towards her, and rubbed his head against her arm for a minute or two; then pricking up his ears, he started off at a light, cheerful trot, and went on his way as freely as if no silly crotchet had ever entered his stubborn brain.

'What a wonderful power senses!' said I, speaking to as he rode away.

He looked at me a mom

Was the quality of her soul perceived in the impression of her hand even by brute beasts? The fathers explanation was doubtless a true one. Yet have I ever wondered, and still do wonder, at the potency that lay in the maiden's touch. I have seen something of the same power showing itself in the loving and good, but never to the extent as instanced in her, whom for a better name, I must still call 'Gentle Hand.'

A gentle touch, a soft word. Ah! how few of us, when the will is strong with the purpose can believe in the power of agencies so apparently insignificant. And yet all great influencies effect their ends silently, unobtrusively, and with a force that seems at first glance to be altogether inadequate. Is there not a lesson in all this.

CHESTERFIELD, August 20th, 1853.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE ESSEX CO. REPUBLICAN.

DEAR SIR.—I am instructed by "The Good Will Temperance Society of Chesterfield," whose secretary I have the honor to be, to offer you the following lines for insertion in the Republican:. And in doing so it may be suitable to say a few words in respect to the source from which they come. Our Society is provided with a small box, furnished with a lock, and having in it a narrow aparture through which papers may be passed, and this box is called 'The Good Will Temperance Societie's Literary Budget Box.' It is kept by the secretary in an accessible place and through this box all communications, including questions, resolutions, &c., come before the society. All peices are anonymous, yet if necessary the authorship of any piece can easily be ascertained. The box is opened at every meeting and the contents read by a person appointed for that purpose. It has not been the purpose of the Association to offer for publication any of the articles coming through the box, but at our last meeting it was resolved, in accordance with the wishes of several members to offer you the lines following. I am sir very respectfully yours.

M. A. BARNES.

TO THE GOOD WILL TEMPERANCE SOCIETY.

Friends of our country; with greeting sincere Cheered by your presence we welcome you here.
True to the cause ye have nobly upheld,
Ye come, by regard for your country impell'd,

Lovers of temperance, friends of your race
Deeply lamenting our country's disgrace,
Well have ye toiled to wipe out the foul stain:
Well have ye battled the victory to gain.

Friends of humanity, faithful and true:
Heroes of temperance, our hearts are with you,
Freedom our watchword from alcohol's chains,
Death to the fiend who his millions has slain.

Patriots who seek not for honor or fame,
Having a nobler a loftier aim,
Push on your conquest, we bid you "God speed,"
Ye have his blessing—no other ye need.

Agents of heaven the lost to reclaim,
Blest by their families—this is your fame;
Where is the glory so lasting and sure?
Where is the fame that like this shall endure.

Leave not the doctrines for which ye contend,
Leave not the cause ye have sworn to defend,
Leave not the faith ye have vowd to maintain.
Victory has crown'd and shall crown you again.

Opening of the Crystal Palace,

Such a crowd, such a rush, such confusion I never expect to see again. Equestrians and pedestrians; omnibuses and carriages; soldiers, civilians and uncivil-ians; carts and curricles; city exquisites and country nondescripts; men on the run; women tiptoe-ing, with all sails spread; papas in a putter; fat men sweltering; lean men, with tempers as sharp as their bones, ruthlessly pushing through the crowd; musicians perspiring in tuneful agony; thermometer evidently on a spree; shirt collars prostrate; dust everywhere; police nowhere; everybody in somebody's way;—whiz;—buzz—rattle—bang—crash—smash; "Oh dear! where's Pa?"—"Sarah Maria, take care of your flounces."—"Get out of the way, can't you?"—"Take your cane out of my eye, will you?"—"Mr. Jones, just see the way that baby's best bonnet is jammed!"—"Hurry?"—"I can't hurry; somebody has trod on my skirt and burst off the hooks so much for not letting me wear Bloomers! What a figure I cut, to appear before the President, and no chance to apologize, Mr. Jones!"

Well; it's eleven o'clock, & after several abortive attempts we succeeded in arresting an omnibus, labelled "for the Hippodrome and Crystal Palace." Away we go—dashing through the crowd, regardless of limbs, vehicular or human.

Broadway is lined, on either side, with a dense throng of questionable looking expectants, waiting, 'to see the procession.' Short people are at a discount; no chance for the poor wretches, strain and tiptoe it as they will. One tall man, who evidently knew the worth of his inches, seemed to think himself too valuable to be let out all at once: so, he elevated himself, jack-screw fashion letting out one link of his vertebral column, after another, until he towered above his neighbors like a pine tree among scrub oaks. What altitude he finally reached, I am unable to say, as he was on his way up (like Jack's bean stalk) our omnibus passed him.

Everything comes in use once in seven years, says the old proverb. I had often wondered of what earthly use could be the eager gazers. The windows overlooking Broadway were all filled with neatly dressed ladies, and as the eye swept through this magnificent thoroughfare, the rushing vehicles, the swaying, motley multitudes, the gaily dressed ladies, the waving flags and banners which floated over the more public and prominent edifices, presented an ever varying panorama, that was far from being the least attractive and impressive features of the day. I have often thought when the people come out "to see a sight," that they themselves are far more imposing than what they came to see.

On entering the Palace, we (my companion and I) found that all the most eligible seats were already occupied, and that what were left were reserved for some man of straw and his wife. It was no use to show one's ticket. "You mus' n't sit here!"—"You mus' n't sit there!"—"You can't stand in that place!"—'You can't go there!' 'You can't come here!'—and so the throng went folornly about and around—old men and maidens—heads of families—clergymen—elegant ladies—all sorts of people—seeking places whereon they may rest, and finding none. We finally resolved on action, seized a couple of boxes of workman's tools, emptied the contents on the floor and converted the boxes into comfortable seats in the most commanding position in the eastern gallery, notwithstanding the impertinent expostulations of the rosetted officers.

Above us was the lofty stained dome, a most imposing feature; flags of all nations waved from the latticed balconies; beneath, the jewelled arms of ladies fair gleamed and flashed in the sunlight. Directly below us was Marochetti's equestrian statue of Washington, of colossal proportions. Years ago, dear General, you rode into my affections on that very horse, as represented on a ninepenny printed cotton handkerchief, given me as a "reward of merit" for correctly "declining to love"—(I wish I had always declined it)! In the immediate neighborhood, our eye rested on a gigantic statue of Webster. There were his features, certainly, all correct, by line and plummet; but where's the expression? It was soul less and corpse-like—it failed to magnetize me.

An hour has passed; our eyes are weary with gazing; still no President.—The singers have taken their places—the organ has emitted one or two premonitory subterranean grumbles, and the platform is beginning to fill with lesser dignitaries. The richly-cushioned Presidential chair, has been wheeled about in the most inviting locality; a huge bouquet is placed under it by way of bait, but still the President doesn't nibble! So we bide our time with what patience we may—though the thought of a glass of ice-water, or a cake, occasionally quenches our patience and patriotism.

"In the name of all that's Roman Catholic, what figure is that?" exclaims an elbow neighbor, "with the long flowing muslin sleeves—sweeping black surpliced robe, and shaven crown fringed with silver locks! who is it?"

"It must be the Pope or Archbishop Hughes," says another. Well—I didn't suppose anybody but a high Catholic would dress in that fashion. It is not only un American, but unbecoming the occasion.

Another hour has passed! Even feminine curiosity cannot exist much longer on such unsubstantial aliment as pontifical robes and empty glitter. My companion is certainly a wizard! he has conjured up some ice cream and cake:—now I shall have strength to cheer the President. Here he comes, God bless him! You won't see a sight like that out of America. The representative of a mighty nation—one of the mightiest on earth—receiving the homage of expectant thousands, standing without "star" or "order," or insignia of power other than that with which the Almighty has stamped him. No "life guards," no hedging him in from the people. It is sublime!

Now the "Pope" gets up to read a prayer. I'd like to know if there's no Presbyterean, or Baptist, or Methodist here, who wears a dress in harmony with that worn by the President and his people, who can pour out an extemporaneous, simple prayer from the heart, with more point than that? I imagine it would be more satisfactory to the people, and quite as much so to the Being whom it is intended to honor.

Now follows an Ode, sung to the time-honored tune of Old Hundred, echoing from hundreds of voices, through those deep naves, with such thrilling majesty that you feel as if wings were growing from out your shoulders, and you must soar; and suggesting the song of the redeemed, sung by thousands, and thousands, and hundreds of thousands, before the great White Throne.

Now the speeches commence—but as I see a whole army of reporters, down below, I shall use their ears instead of my own, and make my escape while an omnibus is to be had. Some day, when the President is not present to eclipse them, I shall return and examine all the chef d'oeueres of art here collected.

Stay! here's a pretty conceit, I must look at, as we pass along out—a mock garden of moss and flowers, about the size of a lady's work table, from the centre of which plays a fountain of eau de cologne, beneath whose drops any lady can perfume her kerchief en passant, a dainty invention for a boudoir. Need I say its birthplace is Paris.

There's the statue of the Amazonian Queen, startled by the sudden spring of a tiger at her horse's throat. Hartshorn and smelling salts, it's alive!—no; it is life's a bronze, but so full of vitality and expres unto me." It is not He who said to the weeping Magdalen, "Neither do I condemn thee." It is not He who raised for the meek Mary, the dead Lazarus. It is not He who dying cried, "Father, forgive them; they know not what they do." It is a form stern, unbending, forbidding. My heart refuses its allegiance.

But I fear I am wearying the reader; so, let me close by saying that what astonished me more than anything else, was the appearance of what were pointed out to me (by O. D., the special European Correspondent of The Musical World and Times) as four of the most consummate Knares in the world. The occupied conspicuous positions during the public exercises, and in fact, all the time I was there. Indeed, I am informed that they have been in regular attendance ever since the Palace was opened, notwithstanding they are well known, not only to the police, but to the officers of the exhibition. It even whispered that the latter named gentlemen connive at their attendance, unblushingly bestow many attentions upon them, and will undoubtedly permit them to be present during the entire exhibition. That the public may know and recognize them, I will give their names: they are the North Nave—the South Nave—the East Nave and the West Nave!

FANNY FERN.

The Way to Steal Chickens.

We've seen a few "cool" people in our extensive travels in various parts of the world, but we recollect none that more nearly approximated zero than little Joe W., who is now (poor fellow) in his last resting place—he having gone to Mexico, during the last war, and had the misfortune to be numbered among the dead, at the close of the bloody battle of Buena Vista.

To use the old phrase, Joe could never be found with both eyes asleep, nor with his thumbs in his mouth. However bad a scrape he might be caught in, he would either lie himself out of it, or remain perfectly silent, and look as indignantly injured as a pet goat.

When about fourteen years old he was afflicted with a protracted headache, and hearing that a sure remedy had been discovered by perforating the crown of the hat, and thereby ventilating the head, he was not long in making daylight visible brough an inch and a quarter hole in the top of his old black tile, which, in its palmiest days, had been worn by his great-grandfather on the occasion of Washington's farewell to his troops in New York.

With his hat upon his head, he paid a visit one forenoon to the farm-yard of Mr. B., about three quarters of a mile, to discover, if possible, a few stray eggs, which he hoped by chance might have escaped the sharp, searching eyes of Mrs. B.

Not being able to find any eggs, the wicked thought suddenly entered Joe's mind to take the next best thing to them, and the resolution was no sooner formed, than he grasped a young white-headed pullet, thrust it into his hat, and immediately started for home, balancing his precious load upon his head, and counting the eggs he should be able to call his own, and dispose of or eat, as he might in his own judgment be inclined.

But Joe was not destined to enjoy these pleasing reflections for any length of time, for farmer B. happening to meet him, discovered protruding through the top of the youngster's hat, the white head of what he had good reason to suppose was one of his favorite bantams, and accosted Joe with—

"Where are you going, Joe?"

"Going home, sir.'

"Where have you been?" down at your house," says Joe without the least hesitation.

"Did you go down for anything particular?" inquired B., casting his eye up to the white head and neck of the pullet, which was moving to and fro, like an ostrich feather in an officer's cap.

"Nothing particular." replied Joe; "I wanted a little walk, so I strolled along down to your house.'

"What have you got in your hat?"

"Nothing!" replied Joe, looking much astonished.

"Nothing?" said B.

"Yes, nothing!" reiterated Joe.

B. here coolly took off Joe's hat with one hand while he held on to the pullet's head with the other, and with a voice of spiritual indignation, he exclaimed:

"Joseph, do you call that nothing?"

Joe straightened himself up as erect as a bean-pole, put on a look of unheard-of surprise, and in a sonorous voice exclaimed;

"How came that chicken in my hat?

FAR AHEAD OF FARADAY.—The New York Reformer thus satisfactorily disposes of the mysterious rappings:

Mysterious 'rappings' proceed from the subderangement and hypereffervescence of small conical glandular bodies situated heterogeneously in the rotundum of the inferior acephalocysts; which, by coming in unconscious contact with the etherization of the five superior processes of the dorsal vertebræ, also results in "tippings," by giving rise to spontaneous combustion with certain abnormal evacuations of multitudinous echinorbyneus bicornis, situated in various abdominal orifices. The raps occur from the ebullitions of the former in certain tempestuous structures; and the tips from the thoracic cartilaginous ducts whenever their contents are compressed by cerebral inclinations.

More "Harmony."

The democrats of Albany have just been displaying more of the union and harmony which prevails in that party, in the election of two sets of delegates to approaching conventions, two central committees &c. There was a bolt in the organization of the general committee and it extended to the ward meetings as above. It is very likely to result in two state tickets, hunker and barnburner. Oh, wont there be fun though?

The democratic Organ at this place has at last been compelled to show the cloven foot and—it is not hunker!

In a Quandary—Wm. Tinsley and sons recently assumed the control of the Glen's Falls Republican, but the divisions of the democracy meet them in the face in the very outset. The Whitehall Democrat, hunker, cautioned them against the "isms and dogmas of a few unscrupulous politicians in this state," to which they reply.

"We need more than caution; there are so many paths that seem fair, with 'This is the way—walk ye in it,' and the boundaries of partizan-ism are too vaguely defined to be traceable."

Tho this be true, tho every honest democrat in the state, if they could behold the divisions, wranglings, deceptions, hollowheartedness, and worthlessness of the democratic leaders, would cry out in the same bitterness of spirit, yet we must advise our friends that this will never do for democrats. No divisions must be admitted, all must be harmony, orders from the chiefs must not be questioned. you must have no minds of your own, nor undertake to define democratic principles, or trace the boundaries of partizanism. All you have to do to be good democrats is to pitch in right and left against every body and every thing pure and noble, go in for the rights of man in general, and nothing in particular, proclaim yourselves 'democrats of the Jeffersonian school,' admire Jackson, swear fealty to the powers that be, leaving the 'boundaries' of your creed 'too vaguely defined to be traceable,' and our word for it, you will be placed at once in the front rank of the party albeit a piebald party that would shame the devil.

In our last we asked our colemporaries to credit to the Republican the notice of the Marriages at Baker's Saranac Lake House. The N. G. having published the notice without credit is pleased to reply in terms which proves clearly that a bob tail coat and rat-an are not always sure guarantics of a gentleman. Although the Gaz. has frequently stolen our items, we never cared to call him to account because we knew it would only call out some blackguard retort, and in the request alluded to above, we did not even think of the Gaz.—The notice has been copied into the first papers all over the country, sometimes credited to the N. G. doubtless with his knowledge, when in fact, the credit is due to us. We allude to this only to test the editor of the Gaz. on one point: He says the notice was originally intended for him. Now as we wrote this notice with our own hand, at our own desk, in our own office, from hearsay, we dont see how it could have been intended for the Gazette. We will prefer no charges against that Editor at present, but we should like to have him say, whether he is in error, or whether he deliberately intends to insult us and impose upon his readers, or not. We should like an unequivocal answer, and if agreeable to him, he may omit his accustomed slang for

The Fisheries—Great Britain and the United States.

MR. BUCHANAN, our newly appointed Minister to England, sailed for Liverpool on Saturday last. It is understood that in the event of a failure to finally and satisfactorily adjust the Fishery dispute, by the eminent negotiators in this country, Mr. Buchanan is prepared to transfer the subject to England, where the discussion which has been going on in this country for a year past between the British diplomats and Secretaries WEBSTER, EVERETT, and MARCY, will be repeated. The entire question lies in the matter of verbal construction of certain treaties made between the two countries many years ago, and at a time when the extent and value of the Fisheries in question were of little importance compared with what they are now.—That the dispute will be amicably adjusted to the satisfaction of both countries there is every reason to believe. It is to be hoped that the same happy result will attend the negotiations in respect to the Fisheries as secured the settlement of the North Eastern boundary and Oregon question. War would be a calamity to both countries and the world. Which country in the end would be the loser, it is difficult to foretell.—The war which England forced upon us in 1812, cost that country more than five hundred millions of dollars, and brought her no acquisitions. In 1813 she maintained 140,000 sailors and marines, 137,000 regulars, 371,000 militia, 65,000 yeoman cavalry, adding the Indians and colonial armies. She had more than a million of men under arms. She had 1,003 vessels of war, of which 614 were in commission, 99 were ships of the line. The army cost £33,000,000. The navy estimates were £22,000,000. A war with the U. S. at the present time would add an item to her expense not found in the account of the last with us, and that is the loss of the Canadas in less than one month after war was declared.—Troy Whig.

Bargain and Sale.

The most profitable truck and dicker that has been driven of late years, in the political market, is that by which the late free soil party of 1848, has become the recipient of government favor and patronage. We know of no other instance in history that more clearly shows the profitableness of bolting. The free soil leaders, by every species of tricks, by combination with parties of every shade, succeeded in obtaining a larger vote for Van Buren than was cast for Gen. Cass. Their majority was so much capital in trade, The two factions, separately, would be powerless in this State, and the continuance of their quarrel would be the perpetuity of the Whig ascendancy. A union was necessary, and the Barnburners found among the Hunkers men who were willing to barter their character and influence for office, provided the Barnburners would be willing to sacrifice their principles for the same consideration.

The present State officers were elected by virtue of this bargain. Gov. Seymour and John C. Wright were formerly the leaders of Hunkerdom. When in the Assembly, Seymour was the particular favorite of the Argus, and in all things an ultra-conservative. Now he is the Free Soil leader. Who has forgotten the bitter controversy between Young and Wright, in the Senate, in which the quiver of Wright was furnished with arrows from the arsenal of Edwin Croswell. Now Wright speaks through the Albany Atlas, and is the chief ornament of the Free Soil administration.

At the time of the Baltimore Convention, it was supposed that the Hunkers and Compromise men had achieved a decided triumph. But in their case we see a proof of the old proverb, that virtue is its own reward. They supported the candidate for President, because he represented their principles. In the meantime, their candidate purchased the support of the Free Soilers, by promising them the richest offices in his gift.

The Softs and Barnburners, where Union gave them control of the party in the State, have all the offices, for the sole consideration of stepping off the Buffalo Platform, on to that framed at Baltimore. The Hunkers have the consolation of reflecting on their uniform devotion and consistency, and are gratified at the great victory obtained over the Whigs by the sale of their votes to the Barnburners. There must be great comfort in the thought that they cannot be reproached with supporting the compromise in the hope of obtaining office. They have a right to complain of the distribution of government pap, only just so far and with the same reason, as certain servants in the parable who had borne the heat and burden of the day, and yet saw those that came in at the eleventh hour, receive every man his penny. As they commenced the campaign, and joined the ranks from principle, they ought not to complain that President Pierce pays those who come into his support very late, but with a speical bargain.—The contract will be supposed to be complete when Gen. Dix goes to France, and John Van Buren is elected to the United States.—Troy Post.

Whew!—Who'd ha' thot it? There is division in the democratic ranks after all, and in the State of N. Y. too! We were told in a tie the other day by the Organ

Topics of the Day.

The last few days have furnished numerous topics of general and absorbing interest. We briefly notice a few of them.

—The Elections will be noticed next week.

The news from Europe is highly interesting, tho' the probabilities of a war are not as imminent as they were a short time since. There is a difference of opinion as to the result of the present state of things, tho' the better opinion seems to be against a war. Nothing, however, but the almost, certain triumph of the people stays the arms of the leading powers. Such is the corruptions, the imbecilities, the abuses, the the oppressions, of the courts of Europe—we say let them be purged by the atrocities of their outraged subjects. The one is as disgusting, as the other will be shocking.

The rebels of China are reported to have raised the flag of Christianity, adopted the Protestant form of worship, and given circulation to the Bible. It is almost too good to believe.

An affair has just occurred at Smyrna which stirs one's blood with the true whig spirit of '76.

One Capt. Koszta, a Hungarian patriot was confined in Turkey with Kossuth, came to the U. S. where he declared his intention to become a citizen. It seems he returned to Turkey for some purpose, and was kidnapped at Smyrna by an Austrian gang, and confined on board an Austrian brig to be sent to Austria to be tried and shot as a traitor. Information of the affair coming to Commodore Ingraham of the American Navy, he at once demanded the release of Koszta. Going on board the Austrian brig for that purpose, in the absence of the commander, the Lieut. denied having such a person. Returning again when the Commander was present, he said, "Your Lieut. has lied; the meanest of American cabin boys would not be guilty of such cowardice!" Com. Ingraham again demanded the release of Kozsta, and being refused, at once prepared his ship for action, giving those hirelings of tyranny to understand that they should release Kozsta or fight!

"After this was known, tremendous excitement spread throughout the ship; all hands were called to quarters to make preparations for action: the big guns were loaded, cutlasses, small-arms, boarding-pikes, and everything ready for an engagement. The surgeons brought out their instruments, ready to cut off legs, patch up wounds, &c. The shore was crowded with people to witness the engagement, as they thought bloody work was going to take place.

The news spread like wild-fire throughout Smyrna, and the people were as much excited as we were. After four or five hours (happily for all parties) the American and Austrian Consuls came to a compromise; that is, the Austrian Consul, who had full control of the man, consented that Martin Koszta should be delivered up into the hands of the French Consul, who consented to take charge of him, until everything was fully settled by the two Governments as to who had claim to the man."

There was a general rejoicing after the matter was settled. The American residents gave a dinner to Capt. Ingraham and his officers, and the people of Smyrna gave a pic-nic.

We like this. It smacks of the old continental spirit—the real grit of '76.

Hurrah, for the stars and stripes—the red, white and blue! Three cheers for Capt. Ingraham!

LEGISLATIVE ADDRESS OF THE DEMOCRATIC MEMBERS;—In our last we requested the democratic Organ at this place to publish the comments of the Argus upon that production. Not seeing fit to furnish his readers fair play and equal justice, we give them below. We offer our type to the Ed. of the N. G. if he will publish them next week.

The Bogus Address and the Bogus Democrats who Signed it.

Tee Free soil organ admits that, of the signers of the bogus address, surreptitiously got up and surreptitiously circulated during the last hour of the recent session, and immediately afterwards—THIRTY-SIX voted for Van Buren and Adams in 1848.

But it overlooks the other important fact, that twenty-nine of the thirty-six, either voted against, or dodged Mr. Taylor's test resolution in favor of the Compromise measures and the fugitive act—including Mr. MARSH, who pronounced its doctrines "damnable," whether in the Inaugural or not!

This bogus address, thus b... the bogus "State paper" of ... own free-soil type, as the indu... admission into our colums!

CURIOUS EPITAPHS.—We have read quaint epitaphs indeed, but some of the worst of them we have rather been inclined to believe existed only in the imagination of the writer. Our doubts however were recently dispelled. Being lately on a visit in a neighboring county one of our walks led us past a burial ground, when we had the curiosity to step in and examine the monuments. In giving a few epitaphs we beg to assure our readers that they are copied faithfully and literally, verbatim, literatim, et punctuatim. The first was 'In memory of Mr. Benjamin Baley he died March the 15th day A. D. 1795 in the 49 year of his age.

"Death is a debt to nater du
Which i have PAid
And so must you."

The next was 'In memory of Arnol Cole sun of Reuben and Lydia Cole aged 6 yrs who was drounded April the 27, 1798.

"It was on the day I went away I fel, Beneth the wave I lost my,
Breath as you may see prepare,
For death and follow me."

The next was 'In memory of Mis. Avis, wife of Alexander Arnold who died July 20th 1804 in the 44th year of her age.

"Aflictions sore
Long time I bore
Physicians wear in vain
Til God was pleas
To give me eas
And fre me from my pain.'

The next was in memory of 'Otis son of Mr. Job and Mrs Lydia Martin was killed by lightning Sept. 19, AD 1808 on the 8th year of his age.

"His glass is run
ours is running Prepare for death for judgements coming."

We have many more, but we will give only one found on a lonely stone which tradition says was in memory of a young, beautiful and gifted female teacher, who died among strangers, 'far from friends and home.' The imagination conceives her in the last stages of wasting disease dictating the touching lines which adorn the tomb stone at the head of her solitary grave.

"Far from my friends and home where first I drew my breath
Then sudenly I was caled upon
To resign my soul to death."

MILES TREMENHERE; or the Love Test. By Mrs. Annette Marie Maillard. N. Y.; Stringer & Townsend.

In inviting the attention of our readers to this volume, we would state that we have never read such a work since we were born. Like the wand of an enchanter, its fascinating pages throw a spell around the reader which is broken only when the last word of the last page is reached. It appeals, with irresistible force, to all who have intellects to be brushed up, and hearts to be shaken. It is one of those books which make their mark upon the generation which receives them, and have an impression which is favorably remembered.—Never before have we perused a work which presented such earnest, eloquent, and stirring appeals to our nobler feelings; nor one which charmed up by the freshness vigor, purity and gracefulness of its tone, while it led us irresistibly captive by the touching beauty and melting eloquence—so richly fraught with golden imagery—of its story. It is splendidly illustrated with original designs, and bears upon its very face the unmistakeable signs of true worth and beauty. As may be inferred from its title, it is one of those rare works which address themselves to the heart and the intellect.

The "London Athenæum," in a review upon this great production, says:—

"Here is a work which stands out, amid the fictional issues of the present prolific season, like a pure diamond in the midst of paltry paste. It is one of the most fervid and impressive narratives that has ever fallen from the press. With a power possessed by no female writer of our day, unless it be by the lamented Grace Aguilar, or the singularly gifted Ellen Pickering, its fair author strikes on every page, for the hearts and intellects of her readers, and rarely fails to touch the first or take the latter captive. As a picture of the vast power of the great Master-Passion, it has scarcely ever been approached—certainly never excelled. What Raphael was among ordinary artists, this work is among works of fiction; and as but few ever reached the lofty platform occupied by that great artist, so we can point to but a very limited number of modern works which, for beauty, freshness, power and gorgeousness of execution, will compare with "Miles Tremenhere."

"Solomon Northrop; or, 12 Years a Slave."

J. TARBELL, ESQ.:—The above is the title of a book now lying before me, and which I have just read with painful interest. It contains 336 printed pages, 7 fine illustrations, and it is published by Derby and Miller, Auburn, N. Y.

I wish to notice this book for the benefit of those persons who are so conscientious they will not read "Uncle Tom's Cabin" because they say it is a Novel. Let such persons read "Uncle Sol's." book, and they will find the saying true, that "truth is stranger than fiction." This book is a narrative of Solomon Northrop a free colored man who was kidnapped in Washington city in 1841, and rescued from a cotton plantation, near the Red River in Louisiana, in Jan. 1853, by Mr. Henry B. Northerp, Esq, of Sandy Hill N. Y.

I am personally acquainted with Squire Northup. He is a high minded, honorable, christian gentleman, and a man of high standing as a lawyer. He has done an act in the liberation of "Uncle Sol," as he is familiarly called, which is deserving of more honor than if in war he had stormed a city. God bless him!—"may his shadow never be less." We want just such men in the councils of the nation.

The Hon. David Wilson of Whitehall, the editor, is also a lawyer; has been a member of the N. Y. Legislature; is a promising man and a good writer. I believe he never was suspected of being an Abolitionist—he may be anti-slavery—somewhat conservative.

Uncle Sol. is about 46, and is now enjoying the sweets of liberty in the bosom of his family at Glen's Falls, Warren Co., N. Y. Read his own description (page 310) of their trip to New Orleans, he says:

"As the steamer glided on its way to New Orleans, perhaps, I was not happy—perhaps there was no difficulty in restraining myself from dancing round the deck—perhaps I did not feel grateful to the man who had come so many hundred miles for me—perhaps I did not light his pipe, and wait and watch his word, and run at his slightest bidding. If I didn't, well, no matter." Poor fellow! I envy not the happiness of Squire Northup. He is worthy of it all.

Whoever loves to hate slavery let him read this 2nd Key to "Uncle Tom's Cabin." I understand the profits of the entire sale of the book is to be for the benefit of "Uncle Sol." and his family. It was published in June or July, and has already reached the 13th Edition. Pass it round—advertise it—read it.

It is astonishing the exact coincidence of some of the characters in "Uncle Tom" and the real personages in "Uncle Sol." "Master William Ford" is "Shelby," and "Epps," Sol's. master, the intolerable villian, is "Legree," full length; and if Mrs. Stone had taken Epp's portrait for Legree, it would not wanted paint. I would like to review the book, but cannot do it. One extract more I must give, page 206, he says, speaking of those who talk and write so lightly about the great evil of slavery—"the vilest that ever saw the sun":—

"Let them toil with the slave in the field—sleep with him in the cabin—feed with him on husks; let them behold him scourged, hunted, trampled on, and they will come back with a different story in their mouth. Let them know the heart of the poor slave—learn his secret thoughts—thoughts he dare not utter in the hearing of a white man; let them sit by him in the silent watches of the night—converse with him in trustful confidence, of "life, liberty, and the pursuit of happiness," and they will find that 99 out of every 100 are intelligent enough to understand their situation, and to cherish in their bosoms the love of freedom, as passionately as themselves."

I do not wonder at the saying of Jefferson: "I tremble for my country when I remember that God is just." I believe with Uncle Sol., "that they are deceived who flatter themselves that the ignorant and debased slave has no conception of the magnitude of his wrongs—that he arises from his knees, with back lacerated and bleeding, cherishing only a spirit of meekness and forgiveness." "A day may come—it will come, if his prayer is heard, a terrible day of vengeance, when the master in his turn will cry in vain for mercy."

Yours, for the oppressed,
JOHN THOMSON.

MR. EDITOR:—In compliance with your request, I send you the following notice:

The Sabbath School, connected with the Baptist Church in Keeseville, went on a pleasure excursion on Wednesday the 10th inst. A very large number assembled at an early hour, who were transported in carriages to Port Kent, where they took the steamer "Francis Saltus" to Burlington the Sabbath School belonging to the Baptist Church in that place came on board, whence both schools proceeded together to Shelburne Point. The arrangements for the day having been announced, the time was variously spent. Some were engaged in preparing the tables; some in conversation; some in rambling about the fields, or along the water side; and some in swinging, and other sports. After partaking of refresh-

[Correspondence of the N. Y. Express.]

KEESEVILLE, Essex co., N. Y. July 30.

Comparatively few of the travelling public are aware of the many charms which Dame Nature has thrown around the village of Keeseville, or of the allurements which cluster here, to please the most fastidious admirer of the sublime and grandly majestic. Such, indeed, has been the surprise of visitors to the above named localities, that they have been pleased to compare them with Lake George and Saratoga, and the Falls and their surroundings, with the world famed Niagara.

Half-a-mile below the village, the rapid current of the Ausable takes its first leap over a perpendicular rock, and falls thirty feet into an oval chasm—the diameters of which are not less than 800 by 150 feet.—Standing at the bottom of this chasm, on a shelving rock, amid the spray, one is forcibly reminded of the collossal amphitheatres of the ancients. At his feet the boiling waters hold a fearful contest, and 80 feet above him, the rocks rise an inclining wall—surmounted by the pine and cedar—upholding the dome of the misty sky.

Running out at the lower end, in a deep and narrow current, it continues its course for half-a-mile between rocky walls, verging to sixty feet in height, until at Birmingham it takes its last and wildest leap, sixty feet over a perpendicular rock, and is almost lost from sight in its rocky chasm.—The descent to the river from above, is made by a flight of stairs containing 189 steps. From the foot of the falls the river roars along a narrow current of thirty feet in width, closed in for a mile by rocky walls rising perpendiculary from 70 to 150 feet, every yard of which is rendered doubly interesting by tradition.

Standing at the foot of this wide ravine, and looking upward, the scene is one worth many miles of travel. What before was admiration, is now deepened into awe, and what at the first falls excited pleasurable emotions, is now irresistably changed into an almost painful sense of majesty and sublimity.

But the best description can give but a faint idea of the original. To be appreciated it must be seen. No person making out the plan of a northern pleasure excursion via Saratoga, through Lake George to Montreal, should fail to place Ausable Falls, Keeseville, prominently on the programme.

Landing at Port Kent, opposite Burlington, an easy drive over a plank road to Keeseville, brings the traveller to the "Ausable House," one of the best Hotels in Northern New York. At this commodious and well-kept establishment, the traveller cannot but find a pleasant home—and in Messrs Reynolds & Tufts, the gentlemanly proprietors, he will find those, whose presence will ensure every accommodation which can possibly promote the enjoyment of their guests.

Hunting and fishing parties to the far-famed Saranac and Chateaugay Lakes, will find this their most convenient starting place; and those travelling for health or pleasure will find no better stopping place than Keeseville,—a week's stay at Ausable, with now and then an excursion amid the pure air, and wild scenery of the Adirondacks.

Juvenile Excitement.—The excitement consequent upon the Congregational Sabbath School excursion hardly subsided when a Juvenile Fire company made its appearance, composed of about 20 boys, dressed in red jackets and white pants, drawing a beautiful embryo Engine bedecked with flowers, which set everybody all agog.—Then followed a juvenile singing school under the direction of Mr. Wright. This was continued for several days and at the close two public concerts were given with unbounded success. The more recent excursion of the Baptist Sabbath School is noticed elsewhere.

A Severe Rebuke.

We would the following were gentler; yet we cannot suppress it:

From the Buffalo Commercial Advertiser, July 9.

INGRATITUDE.—So it is true that Mount Vernon has been sold to speculators. An old woman peddles canes at ten cents apiece by the door of Washington's tomb; and pretty soon a whirligig and swing will be erected in the grounds, a saloon opened in the venerable mansion, and along the piazza, through which, with slow and dignified step, the best man of his age used to walk for recreation, there will be a line of smokers and tobacco chewers, with their feet up, guzzling mint juleps and talking politics! Will the speculators be good enough not to use the sarcophagi in which are the remains of the hero and his wife, for their contemptible penny-getting operations! We hope that they won't sell them to Barnum.

Sell Mount Vernon! It is akin to that mean spirit which leaves the resting places of our great men unmarked and almost unknown. It is akin to that disgraceful neglect of all obligation, all gratitude, which has characterized our National Legislature. This bragging country of ours which glorifies itself over its territory wealth, enterprise, and ever-extending limits, has permitted its old revolutionary soldiers to die in hovels, or starve on beggarly pensions; or sent them, grown old, feeble, blind, to subsist on the cold charity of the almshouse. Our Westminster Abbey, our St. Paul's—where are they? Where the monuments to our patriots, our statesmen, our generals? Briars and thistles overgrow their graves, or hide the mouldering tablets that mark the spot. If a commission for a foreign consulship or postoffice were paid at the head of each, and the whole hungry swarm of office-seekers set upon the hunt with such prizes in prospect, not one in one thousand could find them. The paltry spirit of party refused a memorial to Clinton; and a Legislature who could not understand or appreciate anything that did not belong to party, denied the tribute which public gratitude demanded at their hands. Congress haggles and debates over the compensation which some of the more patriotic of that miscellaneous crowd may attempt to make to an old soldier, and squanders thousands in mileage on useless, and worse than useless, members.

Well, we don't mean to get out of temper: but this exhibition of the remains of Washington, and the sale of ginger-pop in his mansion, is something to get angry about.

We saw a venerable man to-day who had seen and talked with Washington. He recollected his stately presence and had heard the utterance of his lips. We were glad to take the hand which had been clasped in that of the great chief, to listen to the interesting incidents of his life at Philadelphia—to know how he lived—what was the manner of his home life—how he looked, talked, and acted. We seemed to be gazing on one of the few solitary links that connect this generation with a great age, now passed away. When the venerable face of our informant was lighted up with the memories of his youth which were thus called to mind, and his heart discharged itself of its burden of love and devotion to Washington, we could understand something of that character which impressed itself so indelibly on the age in which he lived and on the men who were his contemporaries.

Congress quarrels and wastes the public treasure in the Capitol, under the shadow of the monument that begs its way slowly towards the skies and but a few miles distant from the scene of his death and burial. Alas for the gratitude of republics! The grave of Madison is unmarked, and almost obliterated. Jefferson lies amid the rank grass and the brambles; the graves of the Generals of the Revolution are, many of them forgotten; and the country which they have established and made renowned has consigned to obscurity the memories of those men whose lives were marked by her ingratitude.

[For the Republican.]

"She is not dead, but Sleepeth."

I saw a pale young creature, far too frail
For earth's rude storms, yet she was beautiful!
Beautiful, for she was gentle as the flower
That lifts its lily head, when morning's dew
Is like the angel's breath upon its cup;
So every vein is fresh with new-sprung life!
But brighter glows the orient, and soon
King of the Heaven, the glorious sun appears!
Earth yields the wealth of every goblet up,
To th' empyrean, whence, like angel's tears,
It fell unseen, on every blade of grass,
Lending new richness. But the sun rides high,
And parches with his fervid, constant heat!
The lily bends its fragile form: perchance
Another eve will never shed its dew
On every trembling leaf and petal fair;
But Heaven is kind, always beneficent!
"A little longer lend that flower to earth,
To cast delight upon some loving heart!
A little longer, angels, strew your gifts!
For yet that utter blighting shall not come!"
So spake the Eternal King, for so he will'd!
So lived the flow'ret, till its fragile leaves
Must fall and wither. Then its parent stem
Was even as a reed shaken by the wind!
Its twin-flower drooped, as tho' it fain would die!
And two soft buds clung trembling near, and wept!
Oh, thus the beautiful of earth depart!
So breaks the tie that binds the spirit here;
Yet why must come the bitter, scalding tear?
We saw them suffer and we saw them die!
Man cannot see his other self, his own,
Though seraph wings were given her, leave his hearth!
Faith may point Heavenward, but she is not here!
The clay is here, the soul hath sought its home,
And may revisit earth,—but oh, the voice,
The smile, the sympathy, the gentle love,
What shall recall them? Can the wife return,
The mother come again to mortal sight?
Nay, gentle sufferer! it were bitter wrong,
To call thee back, tho' heav'n wept for thee!
That sculptured clay, as marble fair, that brow,
That sunny hair, and cheek of snowy hue,
Must live in memory, for the cold, moist turf
Will keep their beauty in its sheltered vault,
Till it exhale to heaven. Mourner, weep not now!
In clear, soft light that beauty is, for aye.
Reflected in the clouds, at eve or morn,
Or smiling when the queen of night ascends,
Her chariot paved with brilliants, and her path
Unshadowed by the breath of darkness. There
Gaze, and drink in those smiles, for so she Mechanics Inventors & Manufacturers.

$450. IN SPLENDID PRIZES. $450.

Volume IX of the Scientific American commences on the 17th of September. It is chiefly devoted to the advancement of the interests of Mechanics, Inventors, Manufacturers, and Farmers, by the diffusion of useful knowledge upon these important branches. It is edited by men practically skilled in the arts and sciences, and is widely regarded as a sound and able journal.—Nearly all the Valuable Patents which issue weekly from the Patent Office are Illustrated with Engravings, and the Claims of all the Patents are published in its columns; thus making the paper a perfect Scientific and Mechanical Encyclopedia for future as well as present reference. The Scientific American is very extensively circulated—its circulation in the last Volume exceeding 18,000 copies per week. It is in form for binding; each volume contains Several Hundred Engravings and over Four Hundred Pages of Reading Matter, with an Index. The practical receipts alone are worth to any family much more than the subscription price.

KEEP THESE COMMANDMENTS AND THOU SHALT YET BE SOMEBODY!

1 Thou shalt have no other place to buy thy Clothing.

2 Thou shalt not choose to thyself any other Clothier. Thou shalt not bow down to them nor listen to their fair speeches. for Cardwell is a reliable Clothier, capable and willing to dress his customers to the third and fourth Generation.

3 Thou needst not search for Cardwells, Clothing Store in vain; it is in the Adirondac Hotel Building," and has the most splendid Sign in the State.

4 Thou shalt keep in remembrance the above location; six days shalt thou labour, and on Saturday night come and buy thy Sunday outfit.

5 Thou shalt honor the judicious adorner of thy person and long may thy days be upon the land, to enjoy the fruits of his services.

6 Thou shalt not commit an outrage upon propriety, by purchasing your Clothing of any wandering Jew that may come hither, nor of any one else that has not courage enough to adhere strictly to one branch of trade.

7 Thou shalt not take unto thyself foreign fashions by adulterously wedding strange garments to thy body, thereby converting an American citizen into a foreign ambassador.

8 Thou shalt not rob Cardwell! for he sells so Cheap 'twould be a sin.

9 Thou shalt not bear false witness but honestly acknowledge that thou can't get better suited at Cardwell's for less money than any other place, get thy money's worth and the right change back.

10 Thou shalt not covet thy neighbor's garments, but take counsel of the wise and proceed straightway to Cardwell's and buy for thyself and be satisfied.

INVITES the attention of those who wish to purchase

DRY GOODS,

Carpets and Oil-Cloths.

Owing to the large increase of patronage, I have found it necessary from time to time to make many improvements and additions to my store.

This spring I have united the stores No. 7 and 9, State St., making a spacious and beautiful room, fitted up expressly for the sale of all the various styles of Silks, Shawls, Cloaks & Mantillas.

This connects with the main store, No. 202, River St., (the old stand occupied by the subscriber for nearly 30 years,) which is devoted to a general assortment of

STAPLE AND FANCY DRY GOODS,

comprising every variety to meet the wants of all classes of buyers. Besides these, four large rooms over the stores 200, 202 and 204 River St., are occupied as

CARPET WARE-ROOMS,

where I am constantly receiving the newest and most desirable patterns of Velvet, Tapestry, Brussels, Three-ply, Ingrain and Venetian Carpets. Also, Oil-Cloths of every quality and width, and every style of Druggetts, Rugs, Mats, Matting, Stair-Rods, &c.

All these departments combined making an extensive and complete Establishment, conducted on such principles, that customers can trade with confidence, and to their own advantage, my sales being always for cash, and the only price asked, being the lowest cash price.

LEANDER BABBIT'S

TRUSS OFFICE

The latest and most approved Trusses; Female Supporters; Do. with shoulder braces attached; spinal elevators for curvature of the spine and projection of the shoulder blade. Suspensary shoulder braces. This instrument is so constructed that it not only acts the part of shoulder braces but carries the weight of the ladies' shirts on their shoulders; and, hence removes the evil consequent to carrying them on the hips and sides. For gentlemen it not only serves for a shoulder brace, but acts the part of suspenders.

As to the importance and usefulness of the above named instruments, and their beneficial effects, their peculiar mechanism and superiority over other instruments of the same name, I need not say anything. They are so well known by physicians, and the multitude of persons that have had occasion to put them in this northern section of country, that I deem it not important to introduce a long catalogue of certificates; yet I have abundant evidence in my possession to justify me in all I claim or affirm, and deem it a privilege to give references to any who wish to make inquiries.

Ploughs! Ploughs!!

PROUTY & MEARS'

Celebrated Centre Draughts—All Sizes

THESE Ploughs wherever introduced, are fast superseding all others

The most thorough trials of Ploughs on record in this country, and at the World's Fair in London, have demonstrated the important fact, that the Centre draught Plough is of much easier draught than any other, and therefore used with less fatigue to both Ploughman and Team; and, also owing to its peculiar form, it pulverizes and prepares the ground for seed more perfectly than any other, leaving less work for the harrow, and securing better crops than by any other method of Culture.

The following implements, among others of the best quality, and of the latest and most approved patterns, are constantly on hand, viz:

Harrows, Seed Sowers, Corn Planters, Corn Shellers, Straw Cutters, Corn and Cob Crushers, Cheese Presses, Threshing Machines, Potato Hoes, Manure Hooks, Cast Iron Ox Scrapers, Pruning Shears, Tree Scrapers Budding and Pruning Knives, Hay Knives, Barn Door Rollers, Agricultural Furnaces, Corn Knives, Post Hole Augers, Wheelbarrows, Sheep Shears, etc., etc.

Being agents of Messrs. D. Prouty and Co., we can furnish the CENTRE DRAUGHT Ploughs at the Boston wholesale prices, with the addition of freight

What is Faith?

Faith is a sweet assurance that beyond this world of toil and pain is one where sorrow, sin and death can never enter; a place where "the wicked cease from troubling and the weary are at rest." By faith are we made partakers of the sacrifice that was off red for a sinful world.

'Tis faith that helps, when troubles rise,
To lift our thoughts above the skies.

And when the soul, with sin oppressed,
Would fain on Christ its burden cast,
Faith sweetly says, "Your sin's forgiven,"
And seals your passport into heaven.

'Tis faith that dries the mourner's tear,
And gently whispers, "Christ is near;
'Tis he that holds affliction's rod;
'Be still and know that he is God."

By faith we know of worlds above,
Where naught is found save joy and love;
Where we, when sufferings all are o'er,
May sing His praise forevermore.

Oh! may we while we sojourn here,
Oppressed with sorrow, sin and care,
Ever walk by faith, and not by sight,"
And reach, at length, yon world of light!

And knowing that without faith it is impossible to please God, let it—in the language of the disciples—be our earnest, unceasing prayer, "Lord, increase our faith."—Rural New York.

Declension in Religion.

A FEW OF ITS SYMPTOMS AND CAUSES.

THERE is nothing to which the attention of a believer should be more steadily directed than the danger of declension in the spiritual life, and the importance of carefully guarding against its causes. In the want of experience, and with the proneness to rest in emotions and cherish rash confidence, young Christians are in peculiar peril. They look at first more to pleasant impressions, and some sensible evidence of the Divine favor, than to the truths of God's Word, brought in constant and faithful application to their own souls. Hence when emotions subside, they often prove like the stony-ground hearers, rejoicing for a season, but when the toils of duty amid temptations and trials meet them they wither away, having no root.

Besides this mistake, and the wrong estimate the young convert is led to make of the Christian life, there are conspiring causes which at once operate to elicit a gradual declension, unless vigilantly watched against. The snares of the world and the cares of life tend to seduce and entangle. The pleasures, allurements and temptations of this present evil world present their solicitations in various ways; and unless resisted and overcome in their first approaches, will gain increasing power, deadening the spirit of devotion, and preparing the way for departures from the faith and walk of the gospel. The cares of life, amid our lawful pursuits and employments, as frequently produce a decline in religion as the snares of the world in more direct solicitation to sin; and perhaps more so, as their approach is more gradual and insusceptible, and the boundary lines between course we cherish. Our character and habits will take a distinct complexion from our chosen friend and associates. "He that walketh with wise men shall be wise, but the companion of fools shall be destroyed." It is desirable that those who "fear the Lord should speak often one to another" words of exortation; comfort and advice. The more advanced a Christian boocmes, the more will he covet and prize the society of fellow-Christians. Proportionate must be the influence of the want of Christian society in cooling and estranging his affections, and laying him open to the solicitations of the world. If he is not merely deprived of the benefit of Christian society, but is also brought into daily contact with men of the world, a growing taste and habit of conformity to the world will be formed, and the soul will be led away from its rest in Christ and devotedness to God Unless the means of recovery, by repentance, prayer, &c, be at once faithfully used, the downward progress will be sure and sad.

The neglect of secret prayer, or the lifeless performance of it, may be considered both as a cause and symtom of spiritual decay. Where this habit is carefully and cordially observed, it will be found the bulwark of the soul, and furnish a safe protection against surrounding evils. There is no trouble, affliction or temptation which will not be disarmed of its sting by being brought to a throne of grace. When the believer neglects his closet; when it is not regularly frequented, but only at intervals; and when devotion is felt to be more a task than a privilege, he has sure evidence of spirtual decline and poverty.

A comparative neglect of God's Word, written or preached, may also be viewed as a cause and symptom of declension. This Word is a "lamp unto our feet and a light unto our path," and "our song in the house of our pilgrimage." Like David, we should "hide it in our hearts, that we may not sin against God," and should there delight in it, and meditate on it day and night. We should apply it with strict and careful discrimination, as "able to make us wise unto salvation, and furnish us unto all good works" A neglect in this, and so also a carless and inconstant attendance on the preached Word, are sure evidences of the existence and process of backsliding. "One thing have I desired of the Lord, that will I seek after, that I may dwell in the house of the Lord, there to behold his beauty, and to inquire in his holy temple." When we lose this spirit, our attendance on the house of God becomes formal, uninterested, unprofitable. The Word preached does not profit, not being mixed with faith in them who hear" The spirit of formality, instead of the living power of godliness, opperates insidiously, and strongly operates; and a decline is frequently marked by a morbid curiosity to hear different preachers, and the indulgence of a fastidious and critical taste. The Sabbath was indeed made for man, and is a most important means of grace. The enjoyment and improvement of it in its proper use mark the prosperous Christian. Every Christian will testify with Sir. Matthew Hale, that in proportion as the Sabbath has been faithfully employed in its spiritual uses, will a genial influence be found resting upon the buisness and interests of the week, and a contrary influence on the neglect and perversions of it. A certain symptom of the decline will be found in the neglect or heedless observance of the Sabbath. The life of the believer consists greatly in "looking to Jesus," and "living a life of faith in him," and in the love and keeping of his commandments. If our eyes be diverted from the Savour, and our faith in him be not simple and entire, or if we fail in setting him before us in all our ways, and walking in his footsteps, we may be assured that the elements of spiritual decline are working within us. Only a few of the cause and symptoms of declension can be hinted at in a brief article. It is hoped these plain remarks may not be unprofitable, but lead to the study of the means of recovery and future protection.

The House of God.

The glory of a sacred edifice lies not in its vaulted roof and lofty spire and pealing organ, but in the glory that fills the house—the Divine presence; not in its fabric of goodly stones, but in its living stones, polished by the hand of the Spirit; not in its pointed windows, but in its gospel light; not in its choir of singing-men and singing-women, but in the music of well-tuned hearts; not in its sacred priesthood, but in the great High Priest. If every stone were a diamond, and every beam of cedar, every window a crystal, and every door a pearl; if the roof were studded with sapphires, and the floor tessellated with all manner of precious stones; and yet if Christ and the Spirit be not there, and if the sacrifice of the heart be not there, the building has no glory. The house of God must have a glory beyond what Solomon's cunning workmen can give it, even the Lord, God, who is "the glory thereof."—Remains of Rev. Wm Jackson.

The Uncertainty of Life.

Life is a fountain fed by a thousand streams, that perishes if one be dried It is a silver cord twisted with a thousand strings, that parts asunder if one be broken. Frail and thoughtless mortals are surrounded by innumerable dangers, which make it much more strange that they escape so long with death. Health is made to operate its own destruction. The food that nourishes the body contains the elements of its decay. The soul that animates it by a vivifying fire tends to wear it out by its action.—Death lurks in ambush about all our paths. —S. S. Smith. D D.

Scenes on Lake Champlain.

Correspondence of the N. Y. Herald.

Steamer Canada, June 30, 1853.

All who travel for amusement and instruction or for health should be careful to place prominently in their programme a passage through Lake Champlain No part of the continent is more attractive in the picteresque grandeur and beauty of its scenery or in the impressiveness and interest of its historical associations. The valley of Lake Champlain, for more than a century the battlefield of America, is its classic ground. Embarking at Whitehall, "Putnam's Rock" is the first point of historic interest. South Bay soon follows.—This was the great avenue of invasion, so often pursued by the French in their attacks upon the English colonies. Dieshau, hastening to a field of bloody conflict and of his own defeat and death, followed this route Then occurs the magnificent ruins of the fortresses of Ticonderoga and Crown Point. Sections of their ramparts still remain, memorials of their former glory and strength. The mouldering walls of their barracks, magazines, covered way, and miles of dilapidated entrenchments, constitute the most interesting and imposing ruins in the New World The line of the battery erected by Burgoyne on Mount Defiance, and the American works of Mount Independence, upon the eastern side of the lake, may still be traced. The remains of an ancient city or village near Crown Point are yet visible, although its origin and history are unknown. At Port Henry, directly upon the margin of the lake, is situated a vast iron manufacturing establishment. A little north of this place is the scene of the last naval fight of Arnold, where, to preserve them from becoming tropies to the enemy, he burnt or blew up most of his fleet, and on that beach at Paoton their charred and blackened fragments remained for many years, monuments of his gallantry and patriotism. In a narrow strait between Valcour Island and the main land, and in the track of the steamer, was the site of his first great conflict with Carlton. A few miles beyond in the bay of Plattsburgh, is the theatre of McDonough's immortal victory. These are among the thrilling incidents which are recalled by a trip of a few hours duration through this beautiful water. A few years since I passed over it in company with a distinguished traveller, who was familliar with the sceneary of Europe, Asia, and South America—He remarked that no region he had visited contained so much and diversified beauty as Champlain and that no scenery rivaled it, except that of the Lake of Geneva; and this domain of nature, in its magnificence and loveliness, may be reached in seven hours from the city of New York.

Leaving Albany or Troy at 7 A. M. or Saratoga an hour or two later, you reach Whitehall by an excellent railroad, and about 10 A. M., embark upon one of the most perfect and splendid steamers in the world. At Ticonderoga the water begins to expand into the broader surface of the lake. On the right you now have a view of the distant and jagged peaks of the Green Mountains. This sierra, running parallel with the lake, limits the horizon, while a beautiful and fertile country adorns the plain between. On the western shore, as far inland as the eye reaches, the broken group of the Adirondac raise their towering summits into the region of the clouds. Lateral spurs project from these ranges to the lake in bold and lofty headlands, where naked and beetling cliffs form high and perpendicular walls upon the shore. Intended with these projections are rich tracts of highly improved agricultural districts.—The lake is studded with innumerable islands, of varied forms and dimensions—some mere rocky islets, and others, clothed in rich vendure rest like emerald gems upon its bosom. Thriving villages at short intervals enliven the shores of the lake.

These are among the elements of beauty and interest which render a trip through Lake Champlain so delightful. Another, and scarce secondary attraction, is afforded by the enjoyment of the elegant steamers watch for a time become our home. The Canada, (from whence I write,), is a new vessel, just out of dock, and unsurpassed in all the combinations which confer comfort, pleasure and security, upon the traveller. She is not so large as some of the first class boats on the Hudson, but is not excelled by any of them in elegance of finish and construction, in her airy and spacious arrangement, and in the exuberant luxuries and taste of her table. She is admirably commanded by a very courteous and accomplished officer, Capt. T. R. Foster. I have been so delighted with the appearance, model, and arrangement of this boat, that I have solicited an exhibit of her size and fixtures, which are as follows:—

Length of boat on deck	264 feet
Breadth of beam	33 1-2 "
Cylinder	54 inch
Stroke	12 feet
Burthen

Thirty large double s[tate]rooms berths for 130 passenger[s] forming each way, a day and night line.—At Plattsburgh they unite with a railroad, which conducts the traveller in about three hours to Montreal. A day spent on one of these lake palaces, amid these thrilling reminiscences, and this gorgeous scenery, is worth months of existence in the dusty thoroughfares and pent up atmosphere of your reeking metropolis. TOURIST.

A SHARP TRANSACTION—WALL STREET SHAVED.—Some days since, as a financier was just leaving his office in Wall st., after a busy day of stock and banking operations, (which had evidently been satisfactory, since his countenance wore that pleasant expression which is compatible only with unqualified success) he noticed a countryman with slouched hat, homespun coat and thick mud-covered boots driving along a cow and calf. The cow's udder was brimming full, so that fine streams of the lacteal fluid were running from her teats. The thought of pure country milk crossed the broker's brain, and the temptation to secure such a luxury induced him to pause.

'I say,' cried he to the countryman.

'Hello, yourself,' replied the rustic.

'That's a fine cow you have there.'

'Waal, yes, pretty smart animal, I reckon.'

'Where do you come from?'

'Dutchess county, a leetle back of Pokeepsy. Been drivin' all day round town; consarned tired, any how.'

'Is your cow for sale?'

'Don't know; hate to part with her, but moought dicker. Like to buy?'

'Perhaps so. What's you price?'

'Look here, Mister, you can't have the calf That's half Devonshire and more'n a quarter Durham. I want her.'

'Well, I don't want the calf. What will you take for the cow?'

'What a thunderin' big house,' soliloquised the countryman, as his glance rested on the Exchange. 'Must a cost a heap o' pewter!'

'Oh, if you won't sell, I'll go,' observed the gentleman.

'Waal, I don't like to part with Old Bet; but if you'll give sixty dollars in California shiners, you can take her. Look at that,' continued the Yankee pointing to a little pool of milk that had gathered on the pavement, 'that's true Id Dutchess grass juice, tew thirds cream and the rest sweet buttermilk.'

The financier thought the price rather high, but the sight of the milk, and such a bag full, convinced him that the bargain would be a good one, so he stepped into his office and produced the gold, which the Yankee carefully counted, hefted, bit, &c., to make sure that it was good, observing that 'folks are pesky sharp down here, and somebody said this was Wall st so I'd better look out.' Having satisfied himself that the gold was good, he turned away with the calf, almost crying at parting with Old Bet, who, he said he loved more'n he did his brother.

The Wall st. gentleman hired a Hibernian to drive Old Bet to his home across the river. That night there was rejoicing in Brooklyn. Great was the flow of pure country milk, so abundant that the broker began to think that he had tapped the Milky Way. New pans were purchased, the children were filled up like demijohns, even the cats had a lick extra, and Biddy called in all the helps around to talk over the new wonder. The proud owner and his wife congratulated each other a hundred times, and went to sleep only to dream of sailing in a huge tin pan over an ocean of milk.—Old Bet was fed on corn meal, and bedded like a pet dog. Next morning, instead of fifteen quarts she gave only three; next day about a pint, and in a week she was as dry as a book of logarithms.

The Wall st. financier was completely sold. The Yankee never saw Dutchess county, but had got an old farrow' cow, just drying up, borrowed a calf set him to nursing until the flow was somewhat stimulated, then kept the cow without milking for a week, when she was in proper order to appear 'on 'Change,' when he dressed himself for the occasion, and made his debut in Wall st. The done-brown broker has since sold his cow to a butcher for some twenty dollars, and taken the milk pans to his office to pitch pennies into.—Tribune.

Social Manners in America.

HINTS FOR LADIES AND GENTLEMEN.

The N. Y. Post has been permitted to print a few extracts from an unpublished manuscript on social manners in this country, from which we take the following hints to ladies and gentlemen:

When you hear a man insisting upon points of etiquette and fashion: wondering, for instance, how people can eat with steel forks and survive it, or what charms existance has for persons who dine at three, without soup and fish, besure that that individual is a snob.

It is almost unnecessary to mention that the table cloth is not the place to put your salt. Bread is the only comestible which the custom of well bred people permits to be laid off from your plate.

If you brake a vase, or statuette, or any little etagere knick knack in the house of an acquaintance, never mind it.—Treat it as a matter of no consequence; even if you know that it wrings his pocket.

Always precede a lady going up stairs [illegible] maxim is a legacy from a maiden [illegible].

When you enter a public room, the [illegible]nch practice of raising the hat, as a collect in the matter of children how many are born every hour, each one almost as remarkable as yours in the eyes of its papa and mamma.

It is hard to say which has the most clownish appearance; to move the lips in silent reading; or to wet the finger in turning over the leaves of the book.

Do not go to an evening party in black gloves, even if you have lost a relation. If your feelings are to deeply lacerated for yellow kids, stay at home.

Keep your nails cut short. None but barbers' boys and blacklegs are entitled to the distinction of a long Chinese talon. When presented never offer your hand: if offered to you on such an occasion, touch it slightly. When you meet a friend in a public place do not shout his name so that every by stander may know who he is. Never ask a friend the price of a thing he has bought, nor praise things by their prices.

Cultivate the good will of weak minded, talkative people. They will be as useful as the parrots of Absethus. He taught his birds to repeat "Absethus is a god," and let them fly. Your unfeathered bipeds can be caught by a little kindness and attention and taught, without pains, to proclaim in house and highway, "Blank is an excellent fellow."—If this is said often enough no matter by whom, some one is sure to believe it.

Moderation is the best general rule for conduct in social life. Moderation in manners, moderation in language, moderation in dress, moderation in feeling, moderation in everything, but personal neatness. With these a kind and yielding spirit, and a decent share of self respect, a man can guide smoothly through the world, if not pleasantly. One last counsel—a hard one to follow—learn to grow old gracefully.

POPULATION STATISTICS OF GREAT BRITAIN.—While the United States are yearly receiving hundreds of thousands of emigrants from the British islands, it will be not uninteresting to know something of the progress of population in that country. The result of the British census of 1851 has just been laid before Parliament. The original returns filled seven millions of schedules, and the whole weight of the documents amounted to upwards of fifty-two tons. This enormous mass of 'light reading' was digested into a volume of 1,250,-00 pages;—which, being rather too bulky for popular use, was further abridged into three volumes of manageable size, though none of the slenderest.
